Surgeon Saves Woman's Life With Kidney Graft

Dead Man's Kidney Used In First Successful Transplant

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Star says today a healthy kidney from a dead man has been grafted into a woman who was about to die—and the woman has lived.

The paper's newspage story says a month ago Mrs. Dorothy Pezze, 26, was so swollen with Bright's disease as a result of her own kidneys refusing to function that she weighed 185 pounds and was near death from the poisons accumulating in her system

"Today she is down to a normal 120 pounds, feels fine, is living a normal life and within two months will resume her job as a receptionist for a drug and chemical manufacturing company."

The operation was performed by Dr. Gordon Murray of Toronto, who has been experimenting for years on the transplantation of kidneys in animals and who was the first to make a successful mechanical kidney.

Toronto surgeons suggest that transplantation of the liver may soon be possible and many lives may be saved in cases of cirrhosis or hardening of the liver and other diseases of that organ," the

Mrs. Peze's own kidneys were not removed. The third one was added.

B.C. Millworker, Dazed by Blow, Sought in Woods

POWELL RIVER, B. C. (CP)—A husky millworker, dazed from a blow on the head and bare from the waist up, vanished yesterday into the rain-soaked woods which fringe this coastal community.

An R. C. M. P. search dog has joined hundreds of residents who are hunting for 26-year-old Arthur Offley. He raced from the sulphite plant where he worked after accidentally striking his head.

The only clue was a report from a resident of Wildwood, about two miles from the mill. He told police of seeing a shirtless man carrying a club who shortly after disappeared into a thicket

Mill foreman Bert Southcott said that about 2 a. m. yesterday he saw the 200-pound Offley rising from the floor where he had apparently fallen with a deep gash in his forehead

The foreman said he approached Offley, but that the worker winged a punch at him, jumped through an open window and ran to a shed.

When he returned, Offley had disappeared into the woods.

Reason for Not Saving Plants May be Solved

TOKYO (AP)—The mystery of why the Chinese Communist air force made no attempt to save the vital Yalu River power plant from destruction may be solved.

It may be that the U.S. Air Force chose June 23 for the smashing raid because it knew the Reds had just brought to Manchuria a batch of green pilots for training.

Pilots who pressed home the great assault on the Sulho plant saw 200 MIG-15 jets parked on the Manchurian base of Antung, only 30 miles away. Not one of these jets challenged the raiders.

For months the Allied pilots have noted a periodic up-and-down in the fighting ability of their MIG foes. This has been taken to mean the communists are using "MIG Alley" near the Manchurian border as a school.

Police Too Late

HAMILTON (CP)—Malcolm Stewart, a 35-year-old clerk, wrote a letter to the police Monday.

In the letter, addressed to Inspector of Detectives Walter Hagan the clerk said: "My life has been ruined as the result of a shattered love affair.

"I have decided to end it all with an overdose of sleeping tablets. You will find my body at. . ."

Inspector Hagan received the letter at 8:55 a. m. today. By 9:10 a. m. detectives were at the clerk's apartment

They were too late. A coroner said the man had died as a result of an overdose of pills.

Southern regions of the province will have considerable cloud tonight with slightly higher temperatures and mainly sunny skies on Thursday.

Very hot humid air lies to the southwest of the disturbance but is not expected to reach the province until Thursday.

Convicts Hold Four Employees As Hostages

CONCORD, Mass. (A)—Thirty-four tough prisoners, armed with knives, wrenches and table legs, rioted at Concord state reformatory for three hours yesterday while holding four employees as hostages.

They surrendered meekly after getting a guarantee of no reprisal from state commissioner of correction Maxwell B. Grossman. The instructors and guards were released unharmed before the prisoners filed out of the barricaded store house.

Constable Shot Through Hip, Man Arrested

WHITE RIVER (CP)—Farmer Joseph Laronde, 50, has been charged with attempted murder and having liquor in an illegal place.

He was arrested yesterday after Provincial Police Constable E. V. Gilmore was shot through the hip. Police said Laronde later burned down his house and barn.

Laronde will be transferred from here to jail in Sudbury, 300 miles south, later today.

Scientists Hope to Solve Mystery Of Cannibalistic Fresh-Water Codfish

OTTAWA (CP)—Fishery scientists this year hope to solve the mystery of cannibalistic fresh-water codfish which have lived in an Arctic lake for possibly 4,000 years.

The small lake in Baffin Island and its unusual fish were discovered last year by scientists aboard the fisheries research vessel Calanus. The ship returns this year for further studies of the cod.

Ogac Lake is about half-way up Brobisher Bay, a deep inlet which cuts into the southeast corner of Baffin Island. The lake lies at the head of Ney Harbor and empties into it across a shallow sill. Little salt water ever enters the lake, less than two miles long.

A brief survey five years ago was believed the first time white men had visited the lake. Scientists from the Calanus said they believe there is no movement of fish between the lake and the harbor.

Last year they caught 30 cod, larger than the Labrador cod and golden brown, perhaps from eating seaweed and sea urchins. Remnants of cod were found in their stomachs, showing them to be cannibalistic.

The Baffin Island cod may be a cousin of the Atlantic cod, which is identical with the cod found in European Atlantic waters but different from the Pacific cod.

The Fisheries Research Board notes:

"The present evidence points to the conclusion that the cod in Ogac Lake are completely isolated and that they may have been isolated since the last climatic optimum—perhaps as much as 4,000 years ago."

DREW SUGGESTS LONG DEBATE ON REDISTRIBUTION

P-C Leader Asks Govt. To Reconsider Areas

OTTAWA (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, last night implied that his party will continue indefinitely a debate on redistribution unless a change is made on disputed constituency boundaries.

He recalled that Prime Minister St. Laurent had said political controversy should be avoided in dealing with the redistribution bill. The measure would increase Commons membership to 265 from 262 and change the boundaries of 125 constituencies.

Mr. Drew appealed to the government to reconsider the proposed boundaries objected to by his party.

"There will be ample time for the government to consider its position. The amount of time that will be taken will be measured by the extent to which the government will seek to give some reality to the statement made by Mr. St. Laurent."

He said remarks made by Agriculture Minister Gardiner had proved that there was "direction" given members of a redistribution committee in defining boundaries.

This was a reference to a statement by Mr. Gardiner that a Liberal caucus of Saskatchewan members agreed that special consideration should be given constituencies held by M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, and John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre).

He said it would have been easy to eliminate Mr. Coldwell's Rosetown-Biggar seat and Mr. Coldwell nodded agreement. Lake Centre was expanded to take in Moose Jaw riding, held by Ross Thatcher of the C. C. F., and some Regina suburbs to which Mr. Diefenbaker objected.

Mr. Gardiner said the constituency thus formed was one could be won either by Mr. Diefenbaker of Mr. Thatcher.

The Liberal seat of Swift Current, represented by Harry Whiteside, was eliminated as one of the three seats Saskatchewan was required to lose under the 1951 census.

Mr. Gardiner also offered some advice based on 38 years in politics.

He suggested a few dos and don'ts for "young members" when they face boundary that could be won either by Mr. Diefenbaker or Mr. Thatcher. changes.

1. "I don't think you get anywhere kicking about the constituency you have got."

2. Get out and fight for votes even if you think you have been dealt with unfairly.

Mr. Drew said Mr. Gardiner's remarks did not deal with the "cynical gerrymandering that has gone on."

No explanation could be given "of the butchery performed in seeking to arrive at a new constituency which retains the name but little relationship to the historic background of Lake Centre."

He said there can be no doubt direction also was given in merging Conservatives held riding of Brandon and Souris in Manitoba and Hastings-Peterborough and Frontenac-Addington in Ontario.

Earl Alexander Expresses Uneasiness Over Reserves But 'Hushed' Out of Papers

LONDON (Reuters)—A section of Earl Alexander's speech to the Canada Club last night, "hushed" out of newspapers at the defence minister's request, expressed uneasiness over the state of Eighth-Army reserves in Korea, Prime Minister Churchill disclosed today.

Churchill told the House of Commons that Alexander in an "impromptu" address had said:

"I should be very much happier of Gen. (James) Van Fleet had a little more reserve in his own hands.

Can Halt Reds

"I think if the Chinese attempt a full scale offensive they will penetrate the front to a depth of some miles in some places, but I think that owing to the efficiency of the Eighth Army and their fire power they will be able to bring the offensive to a halt."

Defence Minister Alexander prefaced these remarks by saying there were weaknesses in Korea which he had not liked to mention when reporting to the House of Lords on his recent visit there. He said he hadn't told the Lords "because it was a thing I was asked not to mention as a matter of secrecy."

Churchill said Alexander used the word "secrecy" on the spur of the moment and it was undoubtedly ill-chosen. What he meant was that the remarks might be misconstrued if made in a public speech

Reserves Increased

Churchill said Alexander wasn't referring to military security, and said in his opinion security was not affected by what the defence minister had said. Churchill added that Eighth Army reserves now have been substantially increased."

After Alexander's speech to the club dinner, a private affair attended by 500, reporters were asked not to use his references to the reserves.

No British newspaper quoted him on that section, although two mentioned his request. The matter was raised in the Commons today by Emanuel Shinwell, former Socialist defence minister, who asked for a full statement of what Alexander had said

Churchill and Shinwell clashed frequently during the Prime Minister's statement. Other Labor members jeered when Churchill insisted that Alexander was unaware that reporters were present at last night's dinner.

He said that when Alexander prepared his statement for the Lords, he had referred its principal contents to Gen. Omar Bradley, chief of the U. S. Joint chiefs of staff.

Received By Tass

Bradley had said he would prefer that no public reference be made to the strength of reserves, but did not dissent from the statement as an expression of opinion, Churchill said.

But Bradley thought that in its original form the statement might be interpreted as implying that there were virtually no reserves, which was too bleak a picture, the Prime Minister added.

Churchill did not reply when Shinwell asked him if he were aware that Alexander's remarks had been received by Tass, the Russian news agency, which has an office in London. (A full report of the speech was carried by the Press Association, British domestic agency, which subsequently carried a note asking that the reference to reserves be withheld.)

sional report today officially charged Russia with killing 15,000 Polish officers 12 years ago on a pattern duplicated by the Reds in Korea.

This, said Representative Alvin O'Konski (Rep. Wis.), was the unanimous verdict of a special House of Representatives committee which heard 150 witnesses in the United States and Europe while probing the 1940 Polish massacre Russia.

The report was prepared for presentation to the House today or tomorrow. It may include specific recommendations considered by the committee for "appropriate action" against the Russians by the United Nations Assembly and the World Court and for international investigation of any other Soviet atrocities.

Duplicated In Korea

O'Konski, a committee member, told a reporter the report said that, in at least two respects, Communist methods in Korea are in exact duplicate of practices uncovered in in the Katyn massacre.

He said one was the method of killing the victims. The second, he said, was the "run-around" at the Panmunjom truce negotiations over the whereabouts of missing U. N. troops.

The Polish officers disappeared in 1940 from Russian prison camps. Three years later German authorities discovered crude graves at Katyn forest from which 4,258 bodies were exhumed

The Nazis claimed the Russians were responsible. Moscow replied that the Germans had killed the Poles after capturing the Smolensk area.

O'Konski said all of the committee's evidence confirmed Russian guilt. Witnesses included a former Polish soldier who appeared in a mask, to hide his identity, and who testified he saw some of the shootings.

Hands Tied

The Polish officers had their hands tied in a distinctive manner behind their backs and most of them were shot in the head.

O'Konski said the committee fixed the time of the Katyn massacre as the spring of 1940. For months after that, however, Moscow officials were telling Polish authorities the prisoners all had been released to join a Polish Army then being raised against the Germans.

O'Konski said the committee's evidence showed the Katyn incident was part of a definite program of genocide—mass extermination of races.

Truman Carries Fair Deal Fight To Deep South

ABOARD TRUMAN TRAIN IN ARKANSAS (AP)—President Truman today carried his fight for support of his public power and other "fair deal" programs deep into the heart of the southern United States.

In whistle-stop fashion, reminiscent of his 1948 give-'em-hell campaign, he rolled by train through central Arkansas toward the border of his native Missouri to dedicate two big hydro-electric power dams—Bull Shoals and Norfolk—as samples of what his administration has done for the south.

Split Party In 1948

Truman flew into Little Rock last night in an air force Constellation for one of his rare appearances in the south where bitter opposition to his civil rights proposals split the Democratic party in 1948 and cost him four states in this normally-solidly Democratic territory. Arkansas was not one of those states.

The two dams he dedicates, administration officials say, "will together generate 230,000 kilowatts of power."

Truman has said he will neither seek nor accept the Democratic that he could guarantee his entire that he could guaratee his entire "fair deal" objectives including a fair employment practices act and other measures aimed at stopping discrimination against Negro and other minority groups will be a part of the 1952 party platform.

With the Democratic national convention less than three weeks away, dedication of the two dams offered him an opportunity to play on that note in his address. The private power interests have been among his favorite whipping boys since his campaign for reelection in 1948

Crash Kills Two, Burns 14 Houses

SALISBURY, Wiltshire, England (CP)—An R. A. F. fighter-bomber cut a flaming path through 14 small houses in a crash on the outskirts of Salisbury today. Only the plane's two occupants were killed.

All but nine persons got out of the houses unharmed and the nine were not seriously injured.

TRUMAN'S SEAWAY MOVE PUZZLES OFFICIAL OTTAWA

Issues 11th Hour Call For Rapid Legislation

OTTAWA (CP)—A surprise move by President Truman on the St. Lawrence Seaway has puzzled official Ottawa.

The President's "11th hour" call on Congress yesterday for rapid-fire Seaway legislation did not upset a joint move Monday by his administration and the Canadian government on the project, but it stirred much speculation.

Mr. Truman's action came a day after the U.S. administration, apparently abandoning hope of Congressional sanction, had turned to an alternative course with Canada to start the $700,000,000 job.

On Monday, the U.S. and Canadian governments joined in applying to the International Joint Commission for permission to construct the $400,000,000 power works. The application carried a commitment that the Canadian government would build the $300,000,000 navigation system alone.

Hits 'Short-Sightedness'

In a letter yesterday to Alben Barkley, vice-president, and Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Mr. Truman said Congressional refusal to go ahead on the Seaway project is "a glaring example of short-sightedness." The documents of the U.S.-Canadian agreement "serve notice that the 11th hour has struck."

"If Congress acts rapidly, we can still join, as we should, as a full partner in building, managing and controlling this project."

Congressional action on this message would mean that the U.S. administration would be empowered to join Canada fully in a joint project, splitting the cost of both the power and seaway undertakings.

This was regarded here as not having even a forlorn chance, with Congress due to rise during the week.

Informants here said the President's step came as a complete surprise to the Canadian government, which had a delegation in Washington Monday ironing out final details of the joint application to the International Commission.

Mayors Vote Down Resolution On Lotteries

The Quebec delegates, led by councilman Marcel Lefaille of Montreal, wanted lottery laws shifted from federal to provincial control.

Mayor Edward Sargent of Owen Sound said millions of dollars are being paid in sweepstakes tickets for overseas hospitals. That money, he said, should stay in Canada.

An opposing voice was raised by Mayor Allan J. Rush of London Ont., a former police officer.

"Almost everybody buys sweepstakes tickets," he said, "but I have to think what suckers we are. The chances are 50-50 the tickets are either counterfeit or for races run the year before.

MOSCOW (AP)— A noted beekeeper in the Caucasus is as busy as a bee defending himself from the sting of criticism and thus can't pay enough attention to his bee studies, the newspaper Izvestia revealed today. It warned his critics to leave the beekeeper alone.

Apiarist Obraztsov, known to beekeepers through the Soviet Union, has been concerning himself principally of late with getting together documents to prove he is not a thief.

One woman charged that he swiped ideas from other bee-men, adultered wax, stole collective farm sugar and even raised some inferior, misguided bees with which to subvert other bee farms.

"It is impossible to say," reported Izvestia, "or to describe with the pen how many commissions investigated after this. How much ink was wasted on composing various documents and conclusions."

Anyway, the commissions could not substantiate the charges made against the beekeeper. In all, about 12 commissions were after him.

Four Sightseeing Americans Taken Into East Berlin

Gun-Brandishing Police Rushed Car at Border

BERLIN, July 2.—(AP)—Gun-brandishing Communist "People's Police" arrested four sightseeing Americans, including a chaplain and a woman, today and whisked them into the Soviet-occupied east zone of Berlin.

West German police reported that the incident occurred at Dueppel, where the American zone residential suburb of Zehlendorf borders the Russian zone.

The police said a Russian officer and east zone police, armed with rifles, rushed the Americans' car when it stopped at the border and the occupants began taking photographs.

The police said the Communists entered the American car and forced it across the border.

Eye-witnesses reported that the car had U.S. licence plates, showing that it was registered in West Germany, not in Berlin. This indicated that the abducted Americans were visitors to the city and possibly not familiar with the ticklish border question.

The west police said that at the spot where the incident occurred the boundary between the American sector and the surrounding Soviet zone is marked by iron spikes in the road. They said the Americans drove past these right up to the red-and-white barrier pole across the road at the Russian check point.

U.S. military authorities got in touch with the Russians and asked the return of the four persons.

Typhoon Lashes Philippines

The northeast Mindanao coast was lashed by heavy winds. Southern Leyte was virtually paralyzed.

The Manila weather bureau in a bulletin at five a.m. E.D.T. located the typhoon centre 80 miles southeast of Cebu City, on Cebu. Winds of 55 miles an hour were estimated within a 60-mile radius of the storm centre.

Philippine air lines cancelled all flights from Manila to the Visayan islands and Mindanao. Earlier the Philippine Air Force began evacuating its heavier type craft from Manila to Zamboanga.

Moose Population On the Increase Says Department

TORONTO (CP)—Northern Ontario's moose population is on the increase, officials of the Department of Lands and Forests said today.

Under the protection of the department, the number of animals has increased to the extent that many motorists now report seeing moose on or near the highways.

Railway engineers running between Chapleau and White River recently counted 21 moose along the right-of-way including two herds of six and four animals.

Indian Parsee High Priest's Daughter Weds

LONDON (Reuters)—Miss Bapsy Pavry, 49, daughter of an Indian Parsee high priest, becomes Britain's premier marchioness today when she marries the 89-year-old Marquess of Winchester.

The nobleman heads Britain's marquesses by virtue of the fact his title, created in 1539, has been in existence longer than any other marquess' title.

The marquess—16th successor to the title—has survived two wives, both of them widows when they married him. He has known Miss Pavry many years but only proposed in the last few days.

"I'm nearly 90 you know," he said last night. "When you get to my age it's too late to waste time. You have to act quickly."

Miss Pavry is the sister of the Dasturdzada, religious head of the Liberal Zoroastrian church in India and Iran, and daughter of the late parsee high priest of Bombay, who died in 1947.

The marquess has spent little time in England since 1930 when he became bankrupt following the crash of the Clarence Hatry financial empire.

Pageants, Parades Feature Canada's 85th Birthday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's 85th birthday was celebrated Tuesday with generally perfect holiday weather. Sunny and cool—across the country.

Pageants, parades and games featured the day. Many citizens enjoyed a long week-end, given Monday off work to relax in summer cottages or just at home.

But in Newfoundland it was a day of mourning, the anniversary of the battle of Beaumont-Hamel, when the Newfoundland regiment was all but wiped out in the First World War. Before Newfoundland joined Canada in 1949 the day had been observed as Memorial Day.

Two Men Drown

ST. WILLIAMS (CP)—Two Woodstock men were drowned and another scrambled ashore exhausted by a three-hour battle with choppy waters of Long Point Bay yesterday, opening of the bass season.

The dead: Leo Croft, 28, and Robert W. Magill, also 28.

Bruce Shipp, 26, reached shore atop an emergency gasoline tank which he drained. Clad only in a sweater, he scaled a 65-foot cliff to reach the farm of Harold Bulmer.

Shipp told police that the light skiff in which the men set out to fish capsized as they turned toward shore.

Magill, he said, struck out for shore and was last seen as he reached a thickly matted belt of swamp grass.

Croft, he added, went down as the boat overturned. He brought him to the surface. But the man slipped off a second time and he was unable to reach him.

PENETANGUISHENE (CP)—Two teen-agers drifted 17 hours on Georgian Bay Monday after their 14-foot outboard motor boat was blown into open water. REDNERSVILLE DUMP CATCHES FIRE, CAUSES EXCITEMENT

There was some excitement in Rednersville early this Wednesday morning when it was discovered that the village dump was on fire and residents of the village thought there was danger that the fire might spread through the evergreens and reach the village.

Mr. Bernard Redner, on whose farm the dump is located watched the fire carefully for a while and decided there was no immediate danger. Rev. O. G. McKinley, who is conducting special services in the big tent on Rednersville Gospel Beach, accompanied Mr. Redner on his early morning watch of the fire.

Andre Repeats Feature Victory At Speedway

Howard Sanford, Belleville, struck one of the light posts on the east turn and knocked it down. Very slight damage was done to his car, the Speedway Special. Nine cars were entered in the feature and five finished. Several near accidents took place on the curves as the drivers urged their cars to the limit. Dale Cleave of Wellington, driving Gay Babe, car 33, took an early lead in the feature but failed to hold it against Andre, who overtook him and passed him on the seventh lap. Cleave took second spot.

Of the five cars entered in the first heat, two finished. Ernie Lindsay took first place closely followed by Frank Andre. Two of the cars developed engine trouble and one spun off the track.

The consolation event had a few exciting moments for the stock car fans. Car 98, a new entry at the Speedway, driven by Rip Hartley of Kingston was late coming out of the pits due to a damaged wheel. The other drivers held up the race until he got his wheel fixed. Hartley went into that race and took the lead before the first turn. He won the eight lap event.

Rotarians Hear Veterinarian Tell Of His Profession

Some of the history of the veterinary profession, school and founders was told Rotary members Monday at the Hotel Quinte by Dr. Harry Burns.

"The health of the people or a nation," the veterinarian said, "depends a great deal upon the health of the livestock in the country." Citing as an authority for this stateemnt, Dr. Burns referred members to the Syrian Empire. "It is believed," he said, "the Syrian cattle developed Anthrax and spread it to the people which eventually was the cause of the fall of that great empire."

Dr. Burns spoke of the first veterinarian college founded in 1862 by Dr. Andrew Smith. The first graduates received their diplomas in 1866. In 1906 Dr. Smith surrendered his charter to the Canadian government. Since then, the college, later moved to Guelph, has been under government control.

The birthday rose was presented to Stan Goodwin. Two other members, eligible for their roses, Gordon Miller and O. H. Scott, were absent.

Visitors were: Claude Young, of Tillsonburg; L. M. Miano, of Los Banos, California, and Jerry Farrar, of Trenton.

July 23rd, has been set aside as the date to hold the Inter-Service Club Golf Tournament.

The speaker was welcomed by Perc McGuire and thanked by Virgil James.

Child Instantly Killed, Fell Out Of Car Onto Road

BANCROFT — Shirley Irene Jackson, two and a half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jackson of Faraday township in North Hastings, was almost instantly killed Monday when she opened the rear door of her mother's car and fell out onto the road. The little girl died from a fractured skull.

The accident took place on a farm road near the Jackson home a short distance north of No. 28 highway west of Bancroft. Mrs. Jackson driving the car was proceeding slowly after passing through a gate when the child opened the door and tumbled onto the road.

The mother stopped the car immediately when she realized the door swung open but was not in time to prevent her child from falling out.

Provincial Police Constable John Hawkings investigated the accident. Coroner O. W. Anderson of Bancroft said there would be no inquest.

Tenders Called For Construction Of Grandstand

Tenders for the construction of a reinforced concrete grandstand to be built at the Belleville fair grounds have been called by the architect William A. Watson of this city. No closing date was mentioned in the call for tenders.

Mr. Watson said it was hoped to commence construction of the new grandstand immediately after the Belleville Fair. Plans for the new stand were approved by the fair board and other interested bodies some months ago and call for construction of a stand to seat approximately 2,500 persons. There will be a partial roof over the structure while underneath the seats will be accommodation for junior farmer events held in connection with the fair and a canteen.

Youngsters Will Get Instruction At Swimming Pool

Here's good news for non-swimmer youngsters between the ages of seven and 16 years:

The Kinsmen Club have started swimming classes at the Community Swiming Pool on Dundas Street and will continue instruction throughout the holidays.

The classes, which started yesterday, begin at 9.30 a.m. through till 10.30. Qualified instructors are in charge of the classes and strict supervision is maintained at all times over the youthful charges.

Members of the class are segregated during instruction periods, and receive instruction without interruption from others who occupy the pool in deeper water.

As the young swimmers increase their knowledge they will be subdivided and special instruction given them until they are judged capable of looking after themselves in the pool.

While swimming instruction to non-swimmers is still in its infansy, Kinsmen Club Swimming Pool chairman "Buster" LeBarr said today that it is anticipated the youngsters should be able to swim after a period of two weeks tutoring.

There is no charge for youngsters entering the classes. It is the aim of the Kinsmen to teach as many youngsters as possible to swim during the holiday period.

Some 25 boys and girls attended the initial class on Tuesday morning and this morning upwards of 50 turned up for instruction. There is no limit to the number of applicants.

Though God took you from us, we cannot forget.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices remained mixed and trendless today in dull early afternoon stock market dealings.

Industrials, base metals and western oils opened strongly as interlisted issues jumped sharply to catch up with New York's advance yesterday. Support turned mixed during the first hour, however, and advances dwindled.

Trading slowed from a steady opening. Industrial activity spread moderately from leading issues but few golds, metals or oils attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours was 988,000 shares.

Papers, constructions and manufacturing companies posted a scattered list of fractional advances to form industrials' strongest sections. Utilities, steels and refining oils held gains and losses in in balance but liquors, retail stores and miscellaneous issues slipped.

Western oils eased as Anglo-Canadian Williston, Canadian North Canadian, Pacific Petroleum Peace River and Western Leaseholds turned downward. Britalta was strong.

Base metals were mixed. Falconbridge, International Nickel, Osisko, Quemont and United Keno Hill strengthened while Consolidated Smelters, and Normetal weakened.

Senior golds dipped. Bralorne, Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger and McIntyre posted losses ranging to about 25 cents. Junior producers and prospects were firm. Campbell and Conwest jumped sharply.

The exchange's 1 p. m. indices showed industrials up .25 at 320.00 golds up .04 at 90.20, base metals down .03 at 187.14 and western oils down .75 at 137.56.

Canadian Dollar Hits New High On U.S. Exchange

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar, which yesterday hit an 18-year high in terms of U. S. funds, today climbed to a premium of 3¼ per cent.

Foreign traders said the Canadian dollar was worth $1.03¼ U. S. in noon trading. It closed yesterday at $1.03 3-32.

Today's quotation on the Canadian dollar was the highest since 1934 when it was worth $1.03¾ U. S. when an advance in U. S. gold prices was anticipated.

The Canadian dollar actually hit $1.05 U S. at one time in 1933 when it was fluctuating between a premium and a discount in U. S. funds. It had dropped as low as a 25-per-cent discount in 1931.

Cheese Exchange

Twenty of the 88 producing factories listed in the new directory of the Belleville Cheese Exchange failed to board cheese at last night's meeting with the result that production dropped off to a total of 6,605 boxes.

Of the total, 1,410 were specials, 2,962 white and 2,233 colored. Only two buyers took any cheese, purchasing approximately two thirds of the colored cheese at the floor price of 28 cents. The remainder of the colored cheese, and all the white cheese, were sold to the Marketing Board at the floor price.

It was decided that the Exchange would hold its next meeting Tuesday, July 8th, and that all cheese produced in June would be accepted for sale.

Close to 1,000 employees of the Canada Cement Company, their families and friends took part in the company's annual field day held yesterday at the Point Anne Recreation Field under ideal summer conditions.

A large and varied program for youngsters from five to 95 began at nine a.m. with boat races off the park and finished in the early hours of Wednesday morning at a dance in the community hall. All the events were keenly contested. Excellent organization kept the program humming along at top speed, while generous prizes added immeasurably to the general enjoyment.

In the exhibition softball game between Plant 3, of Hull, Quebec, and the locals, the Point Anne Cementmen of the Belleville and District League handed their senior B confreres from the Ottawa district League a 5-4 setback in seven innings. It was Hull's second loss in three years.

Trailing 4-3 going into the bottom of the seventh on the strength of Hull's three run rally in the sixth frame, the Cementmen came up with the winning tallies on the centrefielder's two base error of Mallory's hoist and Jack Elliott's line single to left field that scooted past the fielder for three bases and the ball game.

It was a popular victory despite the fact that the Pointers almost kicked the decision away on infield errors.

Boyce's Garage edged the Rotary nine 23-22 in a Peewee Softball League scheduled game at Firemen's Park last night.

Boyce's held a 20-13 lead at the top of the sixth, but the Rotary kids exploded for seven runs and knotted the count in their half of the inning.

The winners came up with three runs in the top of the seventh. Rotary again rallied but came one run short of tying the score.

SAFETY ON THE ROAD, TOO!

Members of the Kinsmen Club are determined that this city will continue to boast of one of the most enviable highway safety records anywhere.

At the time the kinsmen built their swimming pool for the benefit of the city's youngsters, provision was made to staff the pool with ample life guards. Duties of these life guards extend beyond actual pulling a near-drowned individual from the water; they seek to prevent accidents of all kinds by maintaining a semblance of order and discipline in the pool.

Last week the Kinsmen extended their interest in the safety of children to No. 2 Highway on Dundas Street, one of the most travelled stretches of road in Ontario, which must be crossed by children going to the pool. Three men have been employed to patrol the corner from morning until night. Their job is to see that children are able to cross the street in safety.

Thanks from a grateful community go to the Kinsmen Club for providing a swimming pool. Further appreciation for the Club is expressed by Belleville parents who may now feel that their children may go to the pool in comparative safety despite the hazard of crossing a busy street.

NEIGHBORS DEPEND ON NEIGHBORS

Gone for sure are the days of the cave dwellers who, armed with a club, could meet all their needs, depending on their neighbors for nothing.

This fact is being brought into sharper focus by the hour as the strike of lumber workers in British Columbia and the nation-wide steel strike in the United States continues. Although these strikes directly affected only the workers in the industry during the early phase of the strikes, their action sparked a chain reaction and today's count estimates that there are more than 300,000 American workers idle, in addition to the 650,000 steel workers who originally obeyed the strike call. The workless total mounts daily.

In the west coast province of British Columbia, the lumber workers' strike is moving slowly to paralyze the entire economy of the province, directly affecting shop keepers and transport who contribute in their way to the processing of timber to finished lumber.

What the ultimate effect of such strikes will be, no one can speculate with accuracy. But one thing is sure: a strike in Pittsburgh or a strike in a lumber camp along the Pacific coast, can affect the livelihood of John Dokes who may live right here in Belleville.

"AM I BLUE?"

The Reds have the blues — or Paris intends they shall. Borrowing the device used in certain banks whereby tellers are able to squirt bank robbers with tell-tale indelible blue dye, the French government has announced that future Red rioters will be sprayed by the police with a blue they will find almost impossible to wash off.

This, you will see, is quite different from the blue used by laundresses to make their dirty linen whiter. And it is nothing like the thin blue reputed to run through the veins of effete representatives of what Marxism calls the "feudal classes." It suggests rather the war paint of the ancient Britons — though, we suspect, this blue will be worn with a difference, like Hamlet's rue. It might also be called a forget-me-not blue.

Here we reach the sad fact that behind our lighthearted pleasantries lie the grim facts of cold war on the street level. Yet because men struggle blindly shall we therefore allow ourselves to be sicklied o'er with a melancholy (not to say "blue") cast of thought? Paris forfend! The dye is not yet cast. This is a horse laugh of another color. — (Christian Science Monitor.)

SPEED COSTS MONEY

Excessive speed not only endangers life but it also hurts the pocketbook. Reduced speed can cut driving costs. At the pocketbook level driving costs go up every time the accelerator goes down. When speed is increased from 40 to 65 miles an hour, gasoline costs jump almost 30 per cent. Cost of oil consumed goes up almost four times when speed is increased from 40 to 65 miles an hour. At the same time, the cost of wear and tear on tires is two-and-one-half times greater at the higher speed. The increased seriousness of accidents at higher speeds is indicated by the records for 1951. In Ontario cities the "fatal rate" (fatal accidents per 100 accidents of all types reported) was 0.7. On the Queen's Highways, the corresponding rate was 2.4, or more than three times as high. — (Niagara Falls Review.)

DANDELIONS

Were dandelions hard to grow,
In early spring their seed we'd sow;
Give tender care to most of them
And when they bloomed we'd boast of them.

Were dandelion blossoms rare,
We'd find some sheltered corner where

We'd strive to keep the frost from them
And sigh if one were lost from them.

If they were fragile, we'd behold
With pride and joy their petals gold,
But since they freely grow for us
We scorn the love they show for us.

Letter to the Editor

Secretary Explains Aims Of Amateur Radio Club

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you on behalf of the Quinte Amateur Radio Club for printing in your paper, the various articles on our activities during the past year.

At the start of my term as secretary, I brought to the attention of the executive, the question of publicity with the thought in mind that the general public is not aware of the full scope and significance of amateur radio activity here in town as well as in a national sense. The potential opportunity for our services to be used, as well as for those of other civil defence organizations, is very real in these times. In view of the service we may be called upon to render to the community, it is well that the public know how we work and what we are able to do in the event of national emergency.

If you were to ask the man on the street the question "What is a "Ham" or Amateur Radio Operator" he probably would say, "Oh, he is a fellow who tinkers into the wee small hours with wires and tubes in the cellar or attic." In fact nothing could be closer to the truth or at the same time further from it. All amateurs begin by tinkering with things electrical, but today "Ham Radio" is an art of the highest order encompassing as it does, knowledge and ability acquired only through hard work and study, as well as tinkering and experimentation.

In the beginning, Marconi sent a message from Newfoundland to the Old Country without the aid of wires — this first radio transmission via the air waves stirred within the souls of a great number of electrically minded persons the urge to duplicate this feat. Amateur radio was born. Soon radio signals were being heard on various wavelengths within the scope of the apparatus of that day. Such a situation called for some form of government regulation to confine amateurs in certain bands and allot others to the military and commercial services. Things went along pretty well, until the First Great War, when the government took over all the bands for the use of the armed forces. Once having such authority over the radio bands, the government was reluctant to give it up. The amateurs appealed to their government and other bodies controlling such things, but all to no avail. One of the most enthusiastic "Hams" at that time was Hiram Percy Maxim, the famous inventor. He decided to do something about this situation, so he floated a bond issue to raise funds and formed an organization called the American Radio Relay League. He went to Washington and prevailed upon the board set-up to regulate radio matters, in an effort to have the frequencies once used by the "HAMS" returned to them. They promised to give the "HAMS" back their bands but months went by and nothing was heard from the powers that be. Mr. Maxim kept working and finally two years after the war, he got an agreement in writing and with great foresight, asked for and got bands in the spectrum which at that time were situated up in the high frequencies where no one thought it possible to transmit radio waves. All progressive amateurs today, belong to the American Radio Relay League. The league is recognized as the bargaining agent of the amateur and deals directly with the government in all matters concerning HAM radio. The league binds together all "HAMS" and their activities on this continent. It tries to keep the amateur informed of trends and events in radio, deals with the problems of "HAMS" such as television interference and generally supervises all amateurs and their doings. The league sponsors contests on a national scale (our recent field day at Roblin Lake for example) they also lay down a code of conduct for the "HAM" in his dealings with the public, other HAMS and his family.

The ranks of Ham radio here in Belleville as elsewhere include engineers and technicians and other skilled tradesmen, who are bound together by their enthusiasm and love of the radio art. A HAM's first duties are to his country, his community and his family and in times of disaster, he stands ready with his equipment and his skill to serve his country. In the past such service has given him high praise from the leaders of his country and social organizations.

We, of the Quinte Amateur Radio Club, are grateful for the publicity given our activities by your paper and hope that in the future, we will continue to merit your support.

Howard E. Fralick,
Secretary,
Quinte Amateur Radio Club.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

WEEK'S DIARY

Sunday — To visit my sweet mother-in-law this day and she showed me a delightful letter written many long years ago by a little girl at school.

"My dear parents," the little girl wrote. "I have much pleasure in informing you that our school vacation commences today. And I take this opportunity of thanking you for your kindness in providing me with the means of instruction. And also hope the diligence and progress I have made in my studies will meet with your approbation. Your affectionate daughter, Ellen Inscoe."

The letter was dater Dec. 20, 1867.

And I found myself thinking of the last time I'd had a letter from my own daughter when I was on an out-of-town assignment.

So I pondered for some time about the girls of 1867 and little girls of 1952. But as my mother-in-law recalled the family legends of little Ellen I realized there really wasn't much difference at all.

Monday—Reading today another of those all too familiar accounts of a couple stalling their car on a railway right-of-way and narrowly escaping death when the inevitable passenger train came along.

How does this happen? It's pretty rare to stall a car these days under any circumstances, even in heavy traffic. Yet incredible numbers of people seem to find themselves with a dead motor straddling the lonely rails —and not only that, but just at the moment when old 99 is bearing down.

The only explanation that makes any sense is the psychiatric view that some people will themselves into accidents, are drawn inexplicably into situations productive of violence.

Tuesday—Reading an account today of the triumph of the housefly over DDT and a chilling account it was, too.

Seems the housefly, or musca domestica Linn., has built up an amazing resistance to (or tolerance for) all sorts of insecticides.

The manufacturers of such poisons have been making stronger and stronger sprays. The potion kills millions and millions of weak flies, but makes the hardier breeds even stronger and tougher and they, in turn, produce new resistant generations.

So, the authority writes, "with our help the weak insects are being killed off and the stronger ones are getting stronger."

Which is the trouble with scientific progress. Every forward step is a step closer to doom.

Wednesday—Our eldest gal, Judy, home today with her books, ready and eager for two months of fun and games. No more pencils, no more books, she sang, no more teachers' cross-eyed looks.

Her report card was the best she's ever had and I attribute this to the methods and atmosphere of a country school. The classes, for one thing, are smaller and so the teachers obviously are able to give more individual attention to the pupils.

My own memories of school days are often vaguely unhappy because I was always, it seemed one ant among thousands. Now, when I occasionally visit my daughter's school, I find her with a sense of identity and participation that are pleasant to behold. This is "her" school. And all I recall are factories of education.

And I fell to wondering if perhaps it wouldn't be better to have a great many small schools in the city rather than a few immense ones.

Thursday—My wife, who has wild urges at auction sales, returned to the shack today with the oldest, most beat-up rocking chair since the last road show production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

With hand clasped dramatically to forehead I berated her for her extravagance, $2.15 for a rocking chair! We need a rocking chair, quoth I, like we need holes in the head.

But later I made some furtive experimenting and found that the rocking chair was not merely wondrously comfortable but soothing to the nerves and when she found me there, a'settin' and a rockin'! I could only smile wanly and admit that it was—creak, creak—a pretty good buy. Smart woman, my wife.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GET RID OF THE EVIL

A distinguished statistician tells in a book he wrote recently of the great fear he had the first time he took an anesthetic. The physician who administered the anesthetic took this into consideration and realized that he would have to do something to allay the patient's fear.

"Do not try to inhale the anesthetic," he said. "Simply exhale the air that is in your lungs. Blow it out hard as you can." The result of course was a very successful operation.

In religious counseling we generally tell people to fill their lives with good and that will drive out the evil. This is true. But it is also true that one reason why some people have such terrific inner conflicts is because they haven't got the evil out of their minds and hearts before they try to make room for the entrance of the good. We might just as well face the fact that before we have peace of heart, we have to get certain things out of our lives. We have to expel them —blow them out, as the elderly man exhaled violently just previous to having the anesthetic cone put over his face.

Jealousy, grudges, evil thoughts, desire for revenge, covetousness, and suspicion—here are a few things to get rid of before we can expect the good offices of the Holy Spirit to operate in our hearts.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The death of a salesman was the subject of a very moving stage play and screen version, but the life of a salesman still deserves more sympathy from us mere consumers than it gets. No merchant wants to see salesmen Monday morning, because he is busy straightening up the business for the week's work. Wednesday afternoon is a half-holiday, and the morning is rather hectic and disturbed by that fact. No merchant wants to see salesmen Friday afternoon, because he is already launched upon the weekend rush of business.

That leaves Tuesday, Thursday, and three half-days for the salesman to make his contacts and do his stuff. If they were eight-hour days, which they are not, really, this would make a total of 23 hours a week in which the salesman can be at grips with his task. The probability is that in most cases, it would work down to only 24 hours a week, when you deduct the delays, interruptions and disappointments associated with trying to see people privately.

The scheduling of those few hours is involved in travelling, motoring considerable distances by highway by day and night, so as to make the most of the limited contact time and reduce waste movement to a minimum. It is further bedevilled by the weather, car trouble, flat tires, and the slowly increasing hazards of highway traffic, by which somebody else's accident can slow down the flow and steal an hour each from a hundred salesmen.

Some salesmen are on salary; many on salary and commission; a few on straight commission. Unlike the vast majority of us who blandly work an eight hour day and a forty hour week at a work bench or in an office or behind a counter, the salesman has to make his hay in little more than half the time. Yet on him depends most of our jobs at bench, in office or behind counter.

He, literally, is the distributor. Some of us envy his apparent freedom of movement. So we might envy an acrobat. He also has freedom of movement. Within very narrow limits.

Personal Health Talks

NOW, SEE HERE, DOCTORS

A five-year-old boy died four hours after tonsillectomy without regaining consciousness after the operation. A relative said the child "was in good health and had not suffered any major illness prior to his sudden death."

I obtained that information from a newspaper report published May 15. I wonder why the doctor deemed it necessary to subject the child to a major operation if the child was in good health.

Another newspaper report published May 22 tells of the death of a young woman "while having her tonsils removed under anesthesia in the operating room at ——— Hospital." The medical examiner stated officially that the young woman's death was accidental and no one was to blame. Having done so he paradoxed that "the cause of death was difficult to determine without an autopsy."

Now I wonder why the doctor who advised the operation thought an attempt to "get all the tonsil" was justified. But then, I think tonsilectomy is only rarely warranted anyway.

The familiar argument of the ever ready operator, that it is necessary to "get all the tonsil" —that is, the operator must leave no tonsil tissue in the throat — is absurd. The truth is that more or less tonsil tissue remains in the throat after "complete" tonsillectomy, no matter who the surgeon may be. If I'm wrong about this isn't it the duty of the ever ready operators to correct me?

My advice to people who are being urged to undergo the major operation called tonsillectomy or to subject their children to "complete removal" of tonsils is as follows:

1. Wait a bit. Don't be rushed into the hospital. Take time to think it over. There is no emergency.
2. Children are likely to have very large tonsils in the spring and by the time school opens in the autumn — if some eager surgeon hasn't gotten them — the tonsils will have shrunk to ordinary size.
3. Where ear trouble or dulled hearing is ascribed to enlarged tonsils and/or adenoids, a series of safe, painless X-ray or radium emanation treatments will probably give as good results as an operation.
4. If enlarged tonsils obstruct the breathing passages instantaneous tonsillectomy is as effective as the attempt to "get all the tonsil" and far safer.
5. The treatment of infected tonsils by diathermy (electro-coagulation) by a physician skilled in this difficult technique, is at least as effective and far safer than tonsillectomy.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Passing of a Philosopher

One of the most noted of American teachers and philosophers, John Dewey, recently died at the age of ninety-two. As a professor at Columbia University, he influenced thousands of students. One day, it is said, that a student asked Dewey: "What is the purpose of life?" The answer given was: "To climb mountains." When someone then asked: "Why climb mountains?" the learned teacher answered: "To find more mountains to climb!"

It is the humble opinion of this writer that the source of much of the trouble in this world has come about by climbing too many mountains. We sacrifice efficiency for speed. We want bigger things all the time. Hardly do we improve one thing than we discard it and try something else. The appraisement of character value is too much ignored.

It is all very well to climb mountains, but why keep on climbing mountains that don't get you anywhere? Perhaps it was the idea of this philosopher that if we concentrate for a time on climbing mountains, we would discover its futility and "get down to earth" and work happily at the ordinary business of life, not attempting to beat some one else.

Climbing too many mountains, also, is apt to make us oozy of mind, and cause us to lose our foot-holds, dashing us into failure, as has so often happened when attempts are made to conquer without equipment. Trying to find "more mountains to climb" is what is furnishing new encouragement for inflation.

There are those who laugh at rules and law. Yet they are what give to us integrity, a consideration for the rights of others, and self-protection and preservation as well. We cannot afford to ignore our obligation to others. We need the moral and spiritual aid of some one else. We need it in the valley, among the hills, and even upon the mountain, if it is there that we decide to climb!

CAN WEAR PERSONAL GEMS

LONDON (CP)—Apart from the traditional regalia Queen Elizabeth II may wear whatever pieces of her personal jewelry she chooses for her coronation next year.

The young Queen has a flair for the effective display of her jewelry and like any other woman she values it not only for its intrinsic worth but also for its association. One of her favorite tiaras was a wedding present from Queen Mary.

The earliest school for the blind in Canada was the Nazareth Institute founded at Montreal in 1861.

WEDDINGS

CARMAN—ARMSTRONG

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, was the scene of a picturesque wedding at 2:00 p.m., on Saturday, when Velma Ethel Armstrong, daughter of Mr. Cecil J. Armstrong, of Millbridge, and the late Mrs. Armstrong, was united in marriage to Laveryne Leonard Carman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carman, of Belleville. Rev. T. Harvey Good, rector of Madoc, was the officiating clergyman. The church was decorated with peonies, baby's breath, and ferns.

Mrs. L. R. Rundle, organist, played the wedding music and during the signing of the register sang, "Through the Years".

PHILLIPS—MORRISON

St. John's Anglican Church, York Mills, Toronto, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Thursday, June 5th, at 2:00 p.m., when the Rev. Canon A. C. McCallum, before a background of blue and pink delphiniums and white Shasta daisies, united in marriage, Constance Jean Morrison, of Toronto, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Special-Purpose Menu

(I hope Mrs. A. M. of Brooks like this—since she asked for jellied chicken salad. This is a rare recipe—so if you fancy it you should clip it now.)

Chilled Tomato and Lemon Juice
Potato Chips Spread with Cottage Cheese
Jellied Chicken
Homemade Tea Buns
Waldorf Salad
Lattice Cherry Pie
Iced or Hot Coffee

DIRECTIONS:

It is Barb's birthday today but since yesterday was the holiday we celebrated it last night at our house and this was the meal we had. She said she preferred a fresh cherry pie to a birthday cake.

JELLIED CHICKEN

One 3-lb. chicken (dressed weight), 2 1-2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons gelatin, 1 chopped onion, 2 bay leaves, 3 cloves, 1-2 teaspoon whole peppers, 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg, 3 hard-cooked eggs, 6 sliced stoned olives, 1-2 cup sliced canned mushrooms, 1 tablespoon each chopped parsley and celery or new cooked peas. Wash and singe dressed chicken and put in kettle and half cover with boiling water. Cover and simmer until tender—2 or 3 hours depending on age of bird. Add 1 1-2 teaspoon salt when half-cooked Lift chicken from liquor and reserve liquor. Drain and cool chicken. Remove all meat from bones and cut into 1-inch squares. Put skin and bones with 1 quart of cooking liquor and add onion, bay leaves, 1 teaspoon salt, cloves, peppers and nutmeg. Simmer until reduced to 1 pint. Soak the gelatin in 1-2 cup cold water or cold left over broth for 5 minutes. Stir it into the hot liquid. Strain. Put layer of chicken meat into greased mold, cover with layer of sliced eggs, mushrooms and olives. Alternate layers until all ingredients are used, sprinkling each layer with parsley or celery or peas. Pour reduced strained stock over all. Chill several hours until firm. Unmold and garnish attractively. Pass mayonnaise.

Note: If Mrs. A. M. of Brooks would like to add mayonnaise she may add 1-2 cup to broth but it must be cool before it is added, and gelatin will have to be increased by 1-2 tablespoon.

WALDORF SALAD

Soak 2 cups seedless white raisins in orange juice to cover in covered jar and soak overnight. Ten or fifteen minutes before serving time make the salad by adding drained raisins to 4 cups diced inner celery; 6 cups diced dessert apples—leave some red skin on—and 2 cups fresh walnut meats. Put some dressing on apples as soon as they are cut. This takes a pint of mayonnaise to moisten it. It is a large salad and I had a large crowd. Cut it in half or down to one-third for six. This is very elegant and popular.

Filling for Cherry Pie is 4 cups pitted sour cherries, 1 or 1 1-4 cups sugar mixed with 5 tablespoons of flour, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon and 4 drops almond extract.

QUESTION:

Please give recipe for Maraschino Cherries.—Mrs. E. A.

ANSWER:

HOME CANNED MARASCHINO CHERRIES

Three lbs., sweet cherries, preferably Royal Ann, weighed after stemming and pitting, 3 lbs. sugar, 1 oz. liquid red coloring, 1 oz. almond flavoring, 1 cup water. Soak cherries in cold water 2 hours, then pit them, keeping them as whole as possible. Weigh. Put sugar and water in kettle and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add coloring and cherries and cook slowly until cherries are red and syrup is fairly thick. Do not scorch. Remove from heat, cool a little, add flavoring, let stand to cool, then pour into sterile jars and seal. Store in cool place.

Note: (The commercial method of preparing maraschinos involves bleaching the cherries and this is too complicated and risky with home equipment for me to describe in this column.)

Canada's first successful suspension bridge for railway traffic was built at Niagara Falls in 1855.

Sunday School Picnics

HALLOWAY UNITED CHURCH

Favored by ideal weather conditions, the picnic of the Halloway United Church Sunday School held on Saturday last at Quin-Mo-Lak, Moira Lake, was a great success. The lake was at its loveliest and the camp was a hive of activity as the workers were preparing for the influx of some ninety boys to begin a ten-day camping holiday. While this is more boys than there has ever been before, still more applications had to be refused. Accommodations would not permit the acceptance of all who would have liked to come. It was a pleasure to renew the acquaintance of a former pastor, Rev. Lloyd Shorten who is camp director this year.

A basket picnic was enjoyed by all at noon followed by a treasure hunt and a program of sports with Miss Ruth McMullen and her helpers in charge. Winners in the various events were as follows:

Pre-school (prizes for all) 1st boy, Bruce Roth, 1st girl, Christine Workman.;; girls 6 and 7, Holly Roth; boys 6 and 7, Paul Emerson; Girls 8, 9 and 10, Eleanor Huffman; Boys 8 and 9, Ralph Townsend; Boys 10 and over, Don McMullen; wheelbarrow, Ronald Denyes and Ralph Townsend; shoe kick for women, Lois McMullen; shoe kick for men, Reg Workman; couples' paper plate race Verna Townsend

By the time the sports were and Ed. Emerson.

By the time the sports were over everyone was anxious to try the water and none was disappointed in it. It was declared perfect and a thoroughly happy time was enjoyed by all.

ST. PAUL'S W.M.A.

Stirling — The June meeting of St. Paul's W.M.A. was held at the church with a large attendance and entertained the members of Mount Pleasant Auxiliary.

Mrs. Ernest Munro, president, presided over the opening exercises and took care of the necessary business. The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance and Mrs. Thompson mentioned having received Mrs. Clifford Lansing's application for life membership.

Mrs. E. G. Bailey reported the various bales had been packed with a modest valuation of $200. Mrs. W. Elliott offered her home for a tea to complete the funds for the training school project. The arrangements were left with the executive.

Mrs. John Holmes, of Mount Pleasant, then took the chair, calling upon Mrs. Roy Thrasher to present her fine devotional on "Seedtime." Mrs. Will Potts left some valuable thoughts on Christian Stewardship. Mrs. Blake Sharpe reported for Temperance and Christian Citizenship and urged everyone to be diligent in exemplifying Christianity to the "newcomers" to the land.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen delighted all with her solo, "The Church by the Side of the Road". Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited a splendid poem, stressing the need for missions and pointing out the selfishness so often involved. Mrs. Kenneth Weaver gave a talk on "The Moravian Mission in Labrador," and urged all to learn and study more about other missions than their own.

HOUSING No. 8-E

"IN THE MARKET"

The Government proposes this year to supply capital and assistance of $110,000,000 to industry in defense production, but the Government is not buying out industries.

Why must the Government take over our land and building industry? Are not private builders and municipal corporations capable of managing their own affairs? Canada has been built up by private enterprise under local municipal authorities. No change is wise or necessary.

Large tax contributions have been supplied to the Government by the taxpayers in our municipality but surely not with which to buy us out. We are entitled to assistance but surely not to be taken over.

In the bounds of our City there are very few pieces of land remaining for building purposes. What the Corporation itself owns must be very carefully husbanded. Before any more land is sold by the City to anyone, a policy should be formulated by an advisory representative official body including all walks of life and upon approval be adopted by the City council. This is the first important and necessary step to be taken. It is not suggested that Council abrogate any of its authority, but that it should seek information and assistance from its citizens in forming a definite workable policy to best meet their needs. It is important that all classes of people and bodies be represented. There is safety in numbers. We have seen too often how and where a committee or group of a biased few has wrecked an otherwise good project.

The policy adopted must not be "experimental," it must be arrived at by hard concentrated effort. Work and thought must be applied to take into consideration the history and experience that others have had both in success and failure in the handling of land and housing.

Belleville has land. Belleville is in the market. Let us act wisely.

FRANKFORD

FRANKFORD—The C. A.'s of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle held their regular weekly meeting Friday night. Mr. Reg Solmes had charge of the meeting. The chorus "I Will Live Close to Jesus," was sung. Miss Juanita Fox favored with a violin solo, "Out of the Ivory Palaces."

Barbara Curry favored with a piano solo. Miss Forbes brought a message from St. Matthew's Gospel, "Let Your Light Shine Before Men." Rev. J. Embree showed colored pictures of western Canada and the southern states.

Bible Society

On Thursday night, the annual meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held in the Trinity Anglican Parish Hall. Rev. J. Secker opened the meeting with the singing of "From Greenland's Icy Mountains." The Scripture lesson was taken from Timothy 2. Mr. Secker welcomed Mr. Young, special representative from the society. All the Protestant churches of Frankford were represented.

The president then took charge of the meeting. It was reported that Mrs. Spencer had canvassed Stockdale with excellent results.

Officers Elected

Mr. Secker took charge of the election of officers. The 1952 slate of officers is as follows: president, Mrs. E. E. Ketcheson; vice-president, Mrs. George Spencer; secretary, Miss Marjorie Forbes; treasurer, Mrs. Gerald Haggarty.

Mr. Young took charge of the meeting at this point. He voiced a word of appreciation for record givings. There is a portion of the Bible in over 1,000 languages. In 1954, the 150th anniversary will be held, and the objective for 1953 will be $250 million, the same amount to be raised each year for three years.

The first objective: Literacy gospel for new readers; second objective. Scripture readers in modern Braille; third objective, Ukrainian scriptures, new Bible houses, special Bible for school children, in a larger print.

Mr. Young pointed out that the Word of God is the greatest weapon of warfare in this present age.

Fourth objective: to encourage Bible reading in home and churches. Mr. Young then showed the film "The Bible on the Table," portraying the importance of the Word of God with a message of salvation.

Mr. Secker moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Young. Rev. Secker dismissed the meeting with prayer. The offering was a most gratifying $11.

Canadian Legion

The regular bi-monthly meeting of Branch 387, Canadian Legion was held in the Legion Hall on Monday night, with a good turnout. The meeting opened with a moment of silence, observed in tribute to the fallen comrades of the two wars.

In the business the lawn Social committee reported that the event has been most successful.

It was announced that Trenton will be holding their annual Memorial Day parade next Sunday and all Frankford veterans are requested to be present to represent 387. The parade will leave Dufferin Street school at 2 p. m. and will proceed to the Trenton Memorial Park where services will be held, to pay tribute to Trenton's veterans who gave their all.

The Legion plans on a "Fun Night" early in September, either in the Memorial Park, or Town Hall.

Further work is being done on the new kitchen and it is hoped to have this portion of the hall completed by winter.

A number of donations have been received by the Legion lately and it is expected that a complete list will be published shortly.

The members of the Branch were sorry to learn that Comrade John Henshell has been laid up lately, and all hope that will be around and well again soon. Several items of welfare were dealt with, including help on dental work required by a veteran's wife.

All veterans of the district are reminded that the first and fourth Mondays are the regular meeting nights for the Legion and all are cordially invited to attend.

Wiener Roast

The choir of the Frankford United Church held a wiener roast at 12 O'Clock Point on Thursday evening. There was a fine turnout of singers, and an even larger turnout of mosquitoes. The report is that Frank Terry and Ernie Wallace teamed up in an extermination campaign. Frank would throw rocks at the mosquitoes and when one of them fell to the ground stunned, Ernie would run over it with the truck. This worked fine on the "young ones," the bigger ones giving a little more trouble. In spite of it all, both singers and mosquitoes report a most profitable evening. The choir members went home with their stomachs full of hot dogs, and the mosquitoes went home with their stomachs full of choir members. The sing-song which is so typical of all the choir get-togethers was even better than usual on Thursday night.

The Frankford Citizens' Band presented concerts at Roslin on Wednesday night, and at Scott's Church on Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Madill of Port Hope called on relatives in town Thursday.

St. Andrew's Church, Wellington Concludes Successful Centenary

The natural eloquence of Mr. J. Alex. Edmison, assistant to the principal of Queen's University, in an address "The Last 100 Years," featured the St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Wellington, centenary dinner on Friday night.

Mr. Edmison, speaking to over 200 members of the church, village and out-of-town guests, spoke on the topic "The Last 100 Years."

Spacing his talk with humorous rhetoric, the speaker drew rounds of applause and merriment from his audience with droll comparisons of happenings one hundred years ago to those of the present day.

He made continuous reference to a scrapbook that was mellowed with age and which contained newspaper clippings dating as far back as 1851. He compared the headlines of yesterday with those of today, remarking occasionally on, and pointing out, the truth in the statement "history repeats itself."

Juvenile Delinquency

Juvenile delinquency was as apparent in the olden days as it is today, it was shown. Advertisements compared closely with the exception of differences in style, and not so much at that, and prices. Mr. Edmison took time to verbally compare and comment on fashions of milady, and other newspaper features that were common throughout the century.

An outstanding musical trio also featured the dinner. These included Mr. Reg Stewart, well-known Toronto vocalist; Mrs. Winnifred Stewart, his wife, a soprano, who is a director of the Eaton Operatic Society, and Miss Betty Wilson, violin virtuoso of the Toronto Philharmonic Society.

The three artists were heard in solo and in trio. Their individual and collective performances drew well-merited ovations from the audience. They graciously responded with several encores.

Observances Concluded Sunday

The week-long centenary observances concluded on Sunday with two outstanding services.

At the morning service the rite of Holy Communion was celebrated by a capacity congregation. The Rev. Canon L. E. Davis, M.A., DD., secretary of the Synod was the guest preacher.

The Rev. Canon J. M. Brownlie, rector of St. Paul's Church, Marmora, and St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, and former rector of St. Andrew's, gave an outstanding sermon. Another large congregation was in attendance.

Lieut.-Col. W. A. Davern, chairman of the centenary committee, commenting on the week's observances, said today the week's commemoration of the 100th. anniversary of St. Andrew's had been "very successful. Everybody is delighted." He expressed the appreciation of his committee, the rector, the Rev. C. P. Heaven, rural dean of Prince Edward, for the co-operation of all who helped in any way.

The observances included the presence of newly-elected Bishop of Ontario, the Right Rev. Kenneth Evans, who presided at a confirmation class ritual and gave the address on Sunday, June 22, to formally open the observances. A choral evensong featuring the well known male choir of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, on Wednesday night. The centenary dinner and the closing services on Sunday, June 29th.

Talk on Evolution Of Religion Heard by Group

"The Christ Spirit has appeared on earth at many times, in many guises, under many names," said Allan F. Raynor, Chartered Life Underwriter. Mr. Raynor is a Million Dollar Round Table Member and well known in Toronto life insurance circles. He spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Baha'is on Friday. "Some of the names under which He has appeared," Mr. Raynor said, "are Moses, Jesus, Zoraster, Buddha and Mohammed. Under each of these names, He has taught in essence the same spiritual truth. This essential basic truth is that the most important thing in life for any man is to have the righgt attitude toward God, and govern his life in accordance with the spiritual principals also taught by the Christ Spirit. The Christ Spirit under these names has shown practical means for applying this basic spiritual truth. The practical means necessarily varied in accordance with the needs of the people to whom He spoke, but it is only in these practical means that there was any difference.

Divisions Unnecessary

Once this basic concept of the oneness of all religion is arrived at, Mr. Raynor pointed out, the need for the many divisions among those who are attempting to follow the teachings of the Christ Spirit appear unnecessary. The basic spiritual truth has not failed however the practical means of the application of this fundamental spiritual truth as taught to the Jews through Moses, to the Christians through Jesus, to the Moslems through Mohammed, cannot be applied to the complex needs of today.

The human mind is incapable of solving social problems. The need for world - government to avoid a catastrophic world war is obvious. Racial discrimination is causing great trouble. These are but a few of the problems which make it appear that a further revelation of some means for applying the teachings of the Christ Spirit to find a solution is necessary.

"Baha'is," said Mr. Raynor, "believe that the Christ Spirit has again appeared and has taught how spiritual truth may be applied to solve the problems of today. About one hundred years ago in Persia, Baha'u'llah appeared and taught such a solution. That solution is today being applied by Baha'is in one hundred and twenty - four countries throughout the world. The Faith, although little known on this continent as yet, is rapidly becoming one of the major religions of the East and is attracting the attention of many students of world affairs in this hemisphere."

A. G. Austin Shows Colored Slides Of Florida at 3M Club

Frankford — The 3M Club of the Frankford United Church held their regular monthly meeting in the Sunday School hall, Monday evening. The turnout was only fair, with a number of the members away on holidays. Claude Moran ,president, presided.

In the business discussion, it wa smoved that no meetings would be held in July or August. The next meeting is to be held on September 8th, with Sid and Evelyn Martin's group in charge o farrangements.

Affiliated

Ray Scott reported that the 3M Young Adult Club had been officially affiliated with the Cobourg Presbytery Young Peoples Union. He reported further that presbytery was looking into the possibility of official recognition of Young Adult Groups in a class of their own, since so many of them were being formed in the doistrict.

Jean Chase then took charge of the worship service, and a call to worship, reading a number of passages by noted writers, based on the theme of the worship service, "Nature."

Supreme Court Upholds Validity Of Marketing Act

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today upheld the validity of 1949 federal marketing legislation authorizing provinces to direct the marketing of their farm products beyond provincial borders.

Canada's top court reversed a judgment of the Supreme Court of Prince Edward Island that held the Agricultural Products Marketing Act was unconstitutional and that interprovincial and international marketing schemes based on it were invalid.

Several such schemes set up by provinces under the 1949 statute were suspended after the ruling of the P. E. I. court early this year. The P. E. I., New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and British Columbia governments joined the federal government in fighting that decision.

The far-reaching judgment of the Supreme Court now enables the revival of those marketing operations. There is no further appeal, since the case was started after Parliament abolished appeals to the Privy Council.

Taft-Eisenhower Battle For Republican Nomination Reaches Bare-Knuckle Stage

Liquid Support

Sen. Estes Kefauver, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, holds a cheque for $30,000 raised at a campaign fund dinner in New York. The fete was given by leaders in textile and garment industries and indicates that Mr. Kefauver will have plenty of support there if he wins the Democratic nomination. — Central Press Canadian.

By ED CREAGH

CHICAGO (AP)—The Taft-Eisenhower fight for the Republican Presidential nomination tore into the bare-knuckles stage today.

Though it could be different next week, when the Republican national convention gets down to the business of actually naming a Presidential candidate, Senator Robert A. Taft appeared to have the political muscle to forge ahead on points in the pre-convention struggle.

Currently he led Gen. Dwight D. Eisehower, his principal rival, 474 to 410 in the Associated Press tabulation. That count is based on delegates pledged, instructed or willing to express a preference, as well as on candidate concessions. It takes 604 votes to win the nomination.

In today's round the Republican National Committee called its members into session with Georgia on its mind.

It is up to the 106-member committee to decide between the claims of two delegations who wanted to vote on behalf of Georgia Republicans at the convention

Solid For Taft

One is solid—would cast all of Georgia's 17 votes for Taft.

The other numbers 14 supporters of Eisehower, two of Taft, one uncommitted to either.

As of last night Taft forces called the tune.

An 18-member Florida delegation almost solid for Taft was recognized by the National Committee in an unanimous vote.

The National Committee overrode objections from Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York and other Eisenhower supporters in voting 60 to 40 to bar radio microphones and cameras from its deliberations.

Move Downstairs

The whole committee moved one flight downstairs in the Conrad Hilton hotel—to the Boulevard Room, a fancy night club sort of place. There they sat, around drinkless linen-covered tables, while spotlights cast a purplish glow on the speakers' faces.

Dewey telegraphed his views from Houston, Tex., where he has been attending the national governors conference. He said if he had influence with the committee, he wanted full television coverage so the voters could get all the details of what he called "the scandalous way" Taft delegates were chosen in Texas and elsewhere.

Eisenhower forces were furious.

The General's campaign manager, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts, called the action "a major political blunder" and said it would "embarrass everyone in our party who believes in free discussion and has nothing to hide or to frame."

'Zone of Death' Around Berlin Started by Reds

BERLIN (AP)—The Communists have started making a sinister "zone of death" around Berlin to keep people from leaving, eabdnva instituted a Gestapo-like check on those who enter.

The zone—first noticed yesterday opposite suburban Spandau in the British sector—resembles the No Man's Land created between East and West Germany, where Germans setting foot in the area risk death.

West Berlin newspapers call it "killing ground."

No shoot-to-kill orders have yet been announced in connection with with the cleared area in the zone, but that presumably will come when the ring of forbidden ground is complete.

The first stretch is near the British airfield at Gatow. Witnesses said trees have been felled and bushes cleared from a strip between 30 and 50 yards wide, making it impossible for people to tross the area unobserved.

Watchtowers fitted with machine-guns overlook the miles-long strip and tough East German police keep an eye on it.

It is believed to be the first portion of a new Red "security ring" around the city. Berlin is almost surrounded by woods, giving excellent cover to people who want to get out of the city without the knowledge of the eastern Communists.

The spruce budworm, besides attacking spruce, is the most destructive pest of balsam pulpwood forests in Eastern Canada.

Commons Rejects Mild Labor Motion of Censure

London, July 2 — (CP) — The House of Commons by a majority of 30 votes decided last night that the government was not to blame because it hadn't been told the Americans were going to bomb the Yalu River power plants in Korea.

The Commons rejected by a vote of 300 to 270 a somewhat mild Labor motion of censure, saying Winston Churchill's Conservative government was at fault in not securing U. S. ammunition before the Yalu bombings.

The Labor party, particularly its left wing, strongly criticized the raids, claiming the attacks imperiled the Korean armistice talks and threatened all-out war with red China.

Michael Foot, spokesman for the followers of left-winger Aneurin Bevan, said the motion was not strong enough. It should have challenged the very decision to make the raids. Many Labor members want to do all in their power, Foot said, to "prevent such an irresponsible thing happening in the future."

Churchill warned that the censure, while technically aimed at his government, "really falls on the United States.

Britain must not antagonize U. S. public opinion in a presidential year. Praising the "monumental patience" of Americans in Korea, the Prime Minister said.

"There might easily come a time, especially during a presidential election, when a sharp reaction of emotion and even anger might sweep large sections of the American people and any candidate for the presidency who gave full vent to it might gain considerable advantage.

Talking Politics To Rhee Hard Says Alexander

LONDON (Reuters) — Defence Minister Earl Alexander told the House of Lords last night just what it was like talking politics to President Syngman Rhee of South Korea during his recent trip to the Far East.

"I said: 'Mr. President, I have come 10,000 miles to tell you how the British people feel about your conduct—martial law without any apparent reason, arresting people and not trying them," Alexander recalled.

Rhee replied he was not understood and the British people were ignorant of the true state of affairs.

Alexander added: "As I got no satisifaction from him I said: 'Can I deliver a message to Mr. Churchill which will be satisfactory' "

Rhee replied: "Please give Mr. Churchill my best wishes and say I inquired after his health, that everything will come right in the end. All I would ask of him is to have patience."

Alexander added resignedly: "I don't know what one can do about it unless one can take him into protective custody—or is that undemocratic"

With Canadians in Korea

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—Censorship restrictions, for the last six weeks forbidding mention of Canadian troops in connection with day-to-day activities at the front, were lifted yesterday.

While most action during the news blackout was confined to patrols, raids and ambushes, the Canadians established a record of being the only United Nations formation to carry out its rotation policy by relieving battalions right in the line. Usually the formations are withdrawn, reorganized and then sent back to the front.

While Canada's 25th brigade was technically in reserve for six weeks last winter, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry has actually been in the line since it arrived in late October, though not always in the most exposed positions.

Patrols Vigorous

Solidly dug in behind formidable positions along their ridge line west of the Imjin River, the Canadians have vigorously patrolled their share of the Samichon River valley.

Brig. Pat Bogert of Toronto, commander of the brigade, said in an interview: "We completely boss this valley—so much so that to engage the enemy and capture prisoners we usually have to go right up to his positions to find him.

"This demands rare single-mindedness of purpose from our soldiers and we are perfecting this technique and its application."

Lt.-Col. Peter Bingham of Petawawa, Ont., commanding officer of the 1st battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, said that since this unit was sent to the front two months ago it has averaged five patrols a night.

"Every officer and man has from three to five patrols under his belt," Bingham added. "Their tails are high."

Maj.-Gen. Jim Cassels, commander of the Commonwealth Division, in a Dominion Day gesture worked out a plan to enable many of the Canadians to observe their national holiday.

To Visit Canada

The commanding officers of all units were entertained for lunch at Bogert's headquarters and a sports meet with [illegible] outfits competing was in the [illegible]ternoon.

Gen. Cassels chose Dominion Day to announce he will visit Canada in October when returning to Britain after surrendering his command to Maj.-Gen. M. A. R. West.

Col. Bingham assumed temporary command of the brigade as Brig. Bogert left to inspect Canadian training installations at Kure, Japan. He will return to Korea at the week-end.

Revenue Minister Called 'Stupid' By Conservative

OTTAWA (CP)—An uproar developed in the Commons yesterday when Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said Revenue Minister McCann was "stupid."

The exchange occurred during debate on a bill redistributing seats in the Commons on the basis of the 1951 census.

Mr. Fleming referred to an earlier point he had made and said Dr. McCann was "too stupid to take it in; that was all."

Dr. McCann: "Mr. Chairman, I demand that the word 'stupid' as applied to me be withdrawn."

George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview): "Oh, don't be a stuffed shirt as well as being stupid."

Dr. McCann: "The honorable member can't buck me down. He is a big man but he is not big enough for that."

After other cross-floor exchange, Mr. Fleming said:

"Mr. Chairman, I always like to make a contribution to peace and harmony in the House of Commons; and if it will assuage the injured feelings of the Minister of National Revenue, for what I said I will substitute the statement that the Minister made a very stupid remark."

Dr. McCann: "I demand a withdrawal of the word which the honorable member admits that he used with reference to me."

The Chairman: "As I apprehend the situation, the honorable member for Eglinton has withdrawn the word 'stupid' as applied directly to the Minister of National Revenue. He has amended that and said that they were largely stupid remarks. I think the withdrawal was complete in so far as any personal reference to the Minister was concerned."

New Immigration Policy Needed, Canadian Federation Of Mayors Told at Meeting

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP)—A warning that Canada must open its doors to more immigration or "be forced to open them" was made today by John Kidd, executive director of the Canadian Citizenship Council.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, Mr. Kidd said Canada must remove immigration policy from its "emergency" basis.

A long-term policy must be decided with the necessary administration machinery, housing, employment and educational facilities to support sustained immigration.

Problem For Canada

"Sooner or later," he said, "the tremendous unbalance of population, standards of living and material resources among the nations is going to create real and perhaps shattering problems for Canada."

The Mackenzie River basin compares favorably in size, climate, resources and soil with Finland. Yet the population of the Mackenzie basin was only 3,500 while Finland supported 3,500,000 people with a fairly high standard of living.

"How long can we, only 14,000,000 people, hope to hold and develop for our own uses so much space, so many resources, in relation to the rest of the world."

Mr. Kidd said during the next 25 years Canada is going to be faced with strong opinion and pressure from other countries to allow in more people.

"Unless we open our doors considerably wider than they now are, sooner or later we will be forced to open them," he predicted.

Immigration had always been handled on an "emergency" basis, and only emergecy measures had ever been implemented. What was needed was an intelligent program of orientation and integration for newcomers to the country.

See Threat to Dairy Farmers

Milk producers face new competition in a new type of milk, with a vegetable fat replacing the present butter fat, members of the National Dairy Conference of AFL Teamsters in Toronto were told by Thomas Haggert of Chicago, left. Comparing milk prices, milk selling for 22 cents a quart in Canadian cities sold for 30 cents in Chicago and New York, and an increase in price, U.S. delegates said, would result in the new vegetable product becoming popular because it can be produced more cheaply. It Did Happen to Him

Surrendering to police, William Fleming of Brampton, Ont., unconsciously makes a significant photo as, head bowed, he passes by a sign which says: "It Can Happen to You." He is alleged to be the driver of the car which crossed to the wrong side of the road at Port Credit, Ont., and killed two youngsters, Billy Green, 13, and Anne Vander Heul, 16. The driver of the car did not stop at the scene of the accident, though the impact hurled the body of Billy nearly 100 feet. After the accident, Fleming was stopped by a police officer, who said the car smelled of liquor, but that Fleming was able to talk coherently and walk normally. — Central Press Canadian.

Poolitical Motive Seen

Some officials here expressed the view that the Truman move is one means to clear the Democratic party's political skirts on the seaway. It would demonstrate that the administration took every possible step to leave the seaway in the hands of Congress.

Particularly, it was suggested, the Truman step would make it plain that the Democratic administration—failing legislation by Congress—had no choice but to name the New York State (Republican) Power Authority as the U.S. "entity" to build the power works.

Transport Minister Chevrier, whose department will handle the federal end of the seaway and who was in Washington Monday for the signing of the Canada-U.S. documents, had no comment last night on President Truman's action.

Earlier, he said in an interview that getting the joint application before the Commission was "the most important step and the most difficult we have had to traverse."

Mr. Chevrier said he hopes now it will be possible to make a start on the development some time in 1953.

He spoke shortly after all political parties in the Commons agreed the seaway should be pushed to completion as soon as possible and the House had heard an opinion from Prime Minister St. Laurent that it does not look as though opponents can block it after I.J.C. approval.

All groups in the House endorsed the idea of an international hydro development and an all-Canadian navigation system.

The Prime Minister, tabling documents on the joint application to the International Commission, said it is "unlikely" that the powerful seaway opponents in the U.S. will be able to upset plans for the undertaking on the basis the two governments are seeking before the commission.

He emphasized that the Commission, set up in 1909 under a boundary-waters treaty, has been asked to give the seaway application high priority. The six-man commission, made up equally of Canadian and U.S. representatives, is regarded as sure to hand down a favorable decision after holding hearings. That will probably take several months.

Hopes that both ends of the project will be developed as quickly as possible were expressed by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader; M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, and John Blackmore, acting Social Credit leader, after the Prime Minister outlined the current plans.

Mr. Coldwell said he favors the currently-proposed system. He said one country or the other should build the seaway and take the responsibility for operating it.

Two Big Innings For Frankford In 15-5 Victory

Frankford Merchants defeated the CNR "AA" team 15-5 Monday evening at the CNR Athletic field in a Belleville and District Softball League game. The Frankford infield showing defensive strength and batting power, scored 12 runs in two innings.

In the third frame with the score standing at 1-0 for Frankford, a single, four doubles and an error on the AA centre fielder were good for six runs, to make the score 7-0. Rankin scored in the fourth on a walk, a passed ball and a double by Curtis to add another tally for an 8-0 lead. In the fifth, Frankford did it again as three bases on errors, a single, a double and a walk put six men across the plate to make the score 14-0.

A walk in the sixth for Bertram, a stolen base, an error, and a steal of home, scored the first run for the AA's. Bertram injured his ankle as he slid home and had to be assisted from the field. Rogers of the AA's strolled in the seventh, advanced to second on a single off the bat of Moon, reached third on an error by the shortstop and scored on the catcher's error to make the score 14-2.

Frankford was blanked in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings. A single off the bat of Nolan in the eighth with the assistance of Nichol's triple and a walk for Rogers counted three more for the AA's to make it 14-5.

Gilmour scored the final run as he singled in the ninth. Murphy advanced him on a sacrifice hit and Cooke brought him home as he tripled.

Farr Wins Again

Farr started on the mound for Frankford walking two, striking out six, and giving up one hit for no runs. Rankin came in in the sixth to walk two, strike out three and give up three hits for five runs. Curtis stepped to the mound in the ninth and gave one hit.

Stengel Names American League All-Star Team

CHICAGO (AP)—Seven Cleveland Indians and six New York Yankees bulwarked the 25-player American League squad designated Monday by Manager Casey Stengel for the July 8 all-star game at Philadelphia

Yankee pilot Stengel, as boss of the American All-Stars, named six pitchers and 11 replacements for the eight starters certified in the country-wide poll of fans which ended last week-end.

Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia A's each placed three players, Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators two apiece, and Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Brown one each.

The Nationals won 8-3 last year at Detroit. Shantz is the logical choice as starter this year in Philadelphia.

ELDERLY WORKERS

Umpire Joe Paparella puts the clutch on Ferris Fain, Philadelphia Athletics' first baseman, in order to avoid a free-for-all between Fain and pitcher Tim Morgan during game between A's and the Yankees in New York. In the top of the seventh, with the Yanks behind 12 to 0, which was final score, Fain went for Morgan, claiming he had knocked him down at the plate with a high and tight pitch. A near-team-versus-team fight almost followed, but officials managed to intervene in time to cool the hot situation down. — Central Press Canadian.

Russian Women Athletes Rated High, Expect to Take Share of Olympics

By TOM WHITNEY

Russians are looking to this lean girl to win individual honors in the Olympic Games at Helsinki, starting July 19.

Alexandra—nicknamed "Sasha" holds the Soviet records in both the high jump and broad jump, and her performances are only slightly off the world's best marks.

She runs a formidable 80-metre hurdle race, her best time being 11.4 seconds. She is Russia's fourth-best javelin thrower with a heave of 162 feet. She is a member of Russia's 400-metre women's relay team which established a world's record during the last year.

Sasha holds Russian records in the triathlon for women and in the pentathlon's No. 2 and No. 3. She is the country's outstanding volleyball player.

She graduated from high school the day before Germans poured their legions into Russia. She dug bomb shelters in Moscow, then entered a Moscow war factory.

For years she drove a three-ton truck. In 1944 her athletic prowess was recognized and she was put on the "swing shift" so she could work at night and train in the daytime. She became an immediate sensation.

The Russians, however, are expected to do their best in the Olympics in the discus, shot put and javelin throw. Their running remains a question mark.

There are four events on the women's running program: 100-metre dash, the 200-metre dash, 80-metre hurdles and 400-metre relay.

On the basis of 1951 performances, Russia's best 100-metre prospect is Natalya Khnykina, whose best time is 11.7 seconds. She did only :12.4 to take the Russian championship on a wet track at Minsk.

Evegenia Sechenova has done :11.8 and Galina Turova, a much younger girl, has done :12 flat.

Miss Sechenova has the best time in the 200 metres with :24.7. Miss Chudina is the Russian Champion in the 80-metre hurdles and she is a member of the 400-metre relay team which did 47.5 seconds in 1950.

Miss Sechenova is well-known in the west. She performed in the European championships at Oslo and won two events. At Brussels in 1950 she made a good showing.

Miss Khnykina is a tall, thin girl, just out of high school, and wears pigtails. She is a threat in running and jumping events.

Miss Turova was reared in sport. Her mother was a famous sprinter and broad jumper who held Soviet records 15 years ago. Less than 20, she is one of the Soviet's brightest prospects for future Olympics.

Glen Roys Beat Motor Car 8-1 For 12th Win

Glen Roy Juniors continued to roll along in first place in the Belleville and District Softball League last evening as they defeated Belleville Motor Car 8-1 in a league fixture at the Alemite Field.

Bob Hunter, doing the firing for the Glens, turned in another superb performance on the hill as he struck out six, walked four, and doled out a measly four hits in going the route. In addition he handled four chances flawlessly, one of them a neat double play ball in the ninth inning.

The Motormen opened the scoring in the first inning with Walsh, who got aboard on a fielder's choice, moving to second on an error at second, and coming all the way round when Pete Green caromed a throw off Earl Cousins' ear for a two base error.

They added another tally in the fourth on singles by Bob Hunter and John Batchelor, and finished with a three run rally in the sixth on a walk, singles by Barclay and Batchelor, a fielder's choice, and two errors.

Two Double Plays

The Juniors pulled off two double plays, one in the 5th going around the horn from Hull-to-Batchelor-to-DeGray, and another in the ninth being Hunter's one handed stab of Thompson's line drvie and his relay to-first to pick off Earl Cousins.

Best at the plate for the Juniors was cleanup hitter Batchelor with four singles in five trips. Barclay had two for three.

Day pitched the first frame for Motor Car walking none, striking out one, and giving up three hits for four runs. Jack Reid toiled the rest of the route walking five, striking out four, and giving up six hits for four runs.

Whip Meets Clip In Third Round Of Current Feud

Don't look now but the wars of the Clip and the Whip will be renewed in Memorial Arena come Friday gloaming.

Yup, Billy the Whip and Athol the Clip will go gore-searching again since the last two encounters have resulted in miniature Donnybrooks with little satisfaction to the principals but oodles of fun for the faithful.

And just to ensure that this week's free-for-all will be held under Marquis of Queensbury rules with no sidearms, lead pipes or tear gas bombs being brought into play, Marse Frank Tunney, wrestledom's boss-man, is sending two referees down this away, with orders to stop all monkeyshines and prevent, if possible, a repetition of the Battle of the Bulges that have characterized the post-minutes of the last two bouts.

Lord Athol Layton claims he was "swindled of the decision" in the first meeting. Whipper Billy Watson claimed he won last Friday night after blasting the bejabers out of Layton and his "Durocher" Pete Petrocia outside the ring. So Friday night should settle the matter.

And look who's back again. None other than Fred Atkins the "Arrogant Aussie" who mingles with Ray Villmer in the semi. Layton's erstwhile manager Petrocia meets Sonny Kurgis in the opener.

AIRFIELD FARMS

OSLO (CP)—Norwegian officials have worked out detailed plans for farm cultivation of all airfields between runways and buildings. At the new airfield at Rygge 900 feet of the total 1,200-foot width will be brought under the plow. All new airfields are being built with an eye to increasing grain production.

WARM WIRING

LONDON (CP)—Soil-warming by electricity is being adopted increasingly in Britain, especially for production of tomatoes in greenhouses. The wires buried in the soil are usually charged with between five and 10 watts a square foot.

Redmen Edge Kingston 4-3 For 5th Straight Victory In COBL Thriller

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

CLOSE ONE

It could be that Paddy Gilmour is different to the usual run of bridegrooms. The Redmen left-fielder who said "I Do" just a few days ago, certainly did not leave his mental machinery concentrating on the new missus last night in Megaffin Stadium, or else he was celebrating his nuptial vows in a baseball manner.

Paddy was the hero of the piece in one of the best baseball games seen in the Kingston Stadium this season. He not only rapped out three hits but made a sensational shoestring catch in the last half of the ninth with two out, to end the game and give the Reds their sixth COBL victory in seven starts.

It was nip-and-tuck all the way, a game that had the few faithful present on tenterhooks up to the final out. Both starting pitchers came up with good efforts, although relieved in the seventh and the fielding was good despite the fact the Monarchs erred three times and our side but once.

The Redmen continued their consistent form at the plate with all hands connecting safely in the thirteen hit-barrage they laid down. Huck Reeves' clutch hit in the seventh with two out started the Reds on the victory road, but it was awful close. Goyer and Pettitt galloped home with the latter crossing the plate a split second ahead of Semark's put out (the third) at third base. Monarchs raised a mild howl but Umpire Whitman signalled two runs in.

The game was the best performance we have seen the Monarchs turn in this season. All of which is evidence that Manager Scrutton has the boys performing much better than in the earlier games. Last night's game could have gone either way. And had Paddy Gilmour been a split second late the teams might have been playing yet.

The Peterborough Petes are guests of the Redmen tomorrow night and on Saturday they take the long safari to Prescott for an interlocking date. Incidentally the Monarchs defeated the Prescott team 8-2 last Saturday.

A FIGHTING "POP"

Some people call him "Micropterus Dolomieu". He's not a displaced person, a new planet nor a freshmen halfback on the Notre Dame football squad. To anglers he's the smallmouth black bass. Veteran fishermen call him the "fightingest" fish that swims. Brave, cunning, unyielding to the last, he rushes with the speed of trout, leaps like a salmon and has the untiring strength of a muskie. But in a skillet he sizzles like the rest of 'em.

It seems Papa Bass is "Joe" when it comes to looking after the family brood. Mamma figures she has done her job the minute she deposits her eggs and they are fertilized by the milt of the old gent. She takes off for fresh waters, and another boy friend, or an angler's hook, and the old man sticks around to look after the five or ten thousand motherless youngsters. It's a good thing for him baby bass don't wear three-cornered pants, or sip pablum when the dawn is cracking over the eastern horizon.

But the old man is a fond parent. He doesn't go out with the boys, seek the solace of the "back room", or ogle fresh young finny beauties while his offspring is struggling to get into the swim. He sticks around faithfully and watches his brood with a jealous eye. And this "Ray Robinson" of the piscatorial family will take on anything regardless of size, weight, color or reputation if it interferes with his babies.

But like Samson he has a weak point. A juicy bait dangled under his nose is a great big temptation and he's liable to forget about teaching his youngsters the lesson of the birds and bees if his stomach is the least bit empty. And if he falls victim to the lure, some five to ten thousand babies are left at the mercy of ravenous carp, perch, pike and sunfish, all of which would have been given the "bum's rush" had the old man been around.

In more serious vein the Department of Lands and Forests recommends to sportsmen (The bass season opened yesterday morning) that during the first several weeks of bass fishing they adopt the following tactics: Play a hooked bass until it is almost exhausted, then haul it slowly in and to the surface. If the bass is followed by a compact mass of small fry, it should be carefully freed from the hook and returned to the water to resume guardianship of its otherwise defenceless family. Thus thousands of young bass will be given a chance of survival to perpetuate smallmouth black bass populations.

AFFILIATION

Since the Redmen seniors and the minor division teams, junior, juvenile, midget, bantam and peewee have been affiliated by the Belleville Baseball Association the OBA has certain regulations which should be adhered to.

Exhibition games with teams not affiliated with the OBA may not be played unless permission is granted by the OBA. The fee is $5.00 for senior teams and $3.00 for intermediates. Incidentally the Toronto Baseball Association is not affiliated this year.

The OBA minor committee requests that all juvenile and midget teams be ready to enter OBA playdowns by August 23rd. Bantam and peewee teams must be ready for playdowns by August 2nd. Peewee games shall not exceed seven innings unless in case of a tie. The regulation nine-innings game will be played subject to OBA governing rules.

A SPORTSMAN PASSES

Heartfelt sympathy of sports circles in this city in general and the Redmen senior baseball team in particular goes out to Dick Fitzpatrick, starry second-sacker and pitcher, and Mrs. Fitzpatrick in the loss of a devoted father and husband on Monday evening. The late C. Wilfrid Fitzpatrick was an outstanding sports enthusiast in all its phases. He loved athletic competition and travelled many miles to see his favorite baseball and hockey. He supported all athletic endeavors in the city and a sports crowd was rare indeed that did not have the familiar face of "Fitz" present. He was a trout fisherman of the first water, and few streams in this district have not known the splash of "Fitz's" lure. He will be sadly missed in sports as well as the other circles in which he moved.

The Redmen baseball club will attend the funeral in a body in final tribute to a great friend. Players will meet at the city hall tomorrow morning at 8:30 prior to leaving for St. Michael's Church where the last rites will be observed at 9:00.

Pat Gilmour's Shoetop Catch With Two Out in 9th Inning Climaxes Nip-And-Tuck Battle

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

KINGSTON— Pat Gilmour's spectacular left-field shoestring catch in the bottom half of the ninth with the tying run on third gave the Belleville Redmen a 4-3 victory over the Kingston Monarchs at Megaffin Stadium last night.

The victory was the Redmen's ninth in ten starts and their sixth in COBL competition. They top the league standing with six wins and one loss with Kingston in second place with three and five and Peterborough trailing with two and five.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way with the issue not decided until the last out in the ninth innings. The teams scored two runs each in the first innings battled scorelessly until the seventh when the Redmen shoved over two runs only to have the Monarchs strike back for a single in their half of the innings.

Scoreless For Six

The eighth was scoreless for both squads. Came the ninth and the Redmen went down after banging out a pair of hits and Carson was trapped between second and third for the third out after falling.

Carnegie, first man up in the ninth for the Monarchs flied out and Levandoski a pinch-hitter was hit by a pitched ball. He went to second on McCormick's infield out and advanced to third on a wild pitch.

Eric Rank strode to the plate and lifted a blooper to short left field. Gilmour, who was playing deep, raced in at the dead gallop, leaned over and scooped the ball from his shoe-tops for the third out and the ball-game.

Pat, a new bridegroom, celebrated his entry into a Benedictian ranks with an outstanding performance. Besides his thrilling last-minute game-winning putout, he rapped out three hits to pace the Red attack.

Bobby Bunton and Billy Richards, starting pitchers, both gave up two runs in the first inning, then hooked up in a thrilling pitchers' duel until the seventh when the Reds scored twice and the Monarchs once.

Bunton was touched for nine hits and three runs striking out four and walking one. He went out of the game at his own request in the seventh when Johnny Mowat relieved him. Mowat stifled the Monarch bats pitching no-hit no-run baseball the two innings he worked.

Richards gave up ten clouts for four runs in seven innings and was removed for pinch-hitter Stan Scrutton in the seventh. He whiffed three and walked four. Babe Stinson took over and yielded three hits in the remaining two innings.

Kelleher opened the Reds two-run first innings with a single after Gilmour popped to first. Tony Pettitt blasted out a towering triple scoring Kelleher after Ferguson dropped Vern Goyer's high fly to centre. Bush popped out and Carson walked. Semark drove out a single and Goyer was nipped at the plate in attempting to score on the hit.

Huck Connect

McCormick walked in the Monarchs' half and Bunton sent Rank and Aitken to the bench with a fly and infield out. Ferguson drove a long triple to the fence scoring McCormick, counting himself on Gilmour's single. Milne also singled but White flied out to right field to end the rally.

A walk and a hit by Pettitt and Goyer put both runners aboard in the seventh. Mouse Bush laid down a perfect sacrifice advancing the runners to second and third. Red Carson went out on an infield tap and Richards walked Don Semark intentionally. Huck Reeves promptly blasted a clean single to left centre scoring Pettitt and Goyer. Semark went out when he was nipped at third on the throw-in.

Bunton weakened in the seventh giving up four hits but holding the Monarchs to a single run when pinch-hitter Scrutton, who had singled, scored on Aitkens' single.

Every man on the Red line-up hit safely. Gilmour had three singles, Pettitt a triple, Semark and Bunton two singles each and the "rest got the rest".

Aitken and Gilmour each hit two singles for the Monarchs Ferguson tripled and McCormick, Milne, Carnegie and Scrutton accounted for the remainder.

Royals Cling To 2-Game Lead, Leafs, Wings Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ed Roebuck, who will be 21 years old tomorrow, looms as Montreal's top candidate for the International League rookie-of-the-year honor.

The lanky righthander started slowly but of late has been one of the Royals' best pitchers.

Roebuck, who hurled a one-hitter June 20, turned in his fourth straight victory and fifth of the season yesterday as the pace-setting Royals split a Dominion Day doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles. Roebuck allowed only two hits as he breezed to a 10-2 triumph. The Orioles, behind the two-hit tossing of Paul Stuffel, won the second game 3-1.

Roebuck led the Montreal attack, driving in four runs on a pair of doubles and a single. Carm Mauro of the Royals also had three hits including a home run.

The Orioles snapped a 1-1 tie in the fifth inning of the second game, scoring twice on Al Lakeman's second double of the game.

The split enabled the Royals to maintain their two-game lead over Rochester Red Wings who divided a twin bill with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Leafs-Wings Split

John Hetki turned in his eighth victory for Toronto in the opener, besting Fred Hahn 3-2 on Andy Anderson's seventh-inning homer. Rookie George Condrick blanked the Leafs 2-0. Steve Bilko tripled home the first run and Rip Repulski homered for the other.

The third-place Syracuse Chiefs and Buffalo Bisons also divided a doubleheader. The Chiefs won the opener 5-4 on Bob Drescher's bases-loaded single in the seventh and the Bisons took the nightcap 3-2.

Springfield and Ottawa divided a twin bill, the Cubs winning the second game 5-4 in 10 innings after Ottawa won the opener 6-3.

Red Rolfe Out As Tiger Boss

DETROIT (AP)—It appeared certain today that Red Rolfe is going to be fired as manager of Detroit Tigers. Still undecided was the choice of a new manager for the last-place American League club.

Rolfe, nearly everybody agreed, is going to get the ax Saturday. And he appeared resigned to his fate.

Walter (Spike) Briggs, president of the Detroit club, has called a meeting of his board of directors for 5 p.m. Saturday. Briggs said last night he will recommend a change in managers for the rest of the 1952 season.

Rumors have been current for some time that Rolfe was on his way out as the Tigers became mired deeper in the cellar.

Rolfe appeared ready to yield to the inevitable.

"All I know is that I am sick and tired of all these rumors," said Rolfe, whose leadership of the Tigers won him the honor of manager-of-the-year two years ago when the Tigers were pennant contenders.

"If they're going to fire me why don't they do it and get it over with"

Canadian Wins Nickel Trophy At Gananoque

GANANOQUE (CP) — Gerard Patry, booming "My Own" around the three-lap course yesterday at Gananoque's fifth international Nickel Cup regatta, became the first Canadian to win the $1,000 Nickel Cup.

The Montreal driver was second in the first heat of the 266 class hydroplane race, following Bernard Daoust, Lachine, Que., to the finish line. In the second heat, however, Patry got his craft off to a well-timed flying start and led all the way.

Daoust, driving "Canada Boy", was never able to catch him, and Patry's combined heat times of 9:33 2-5 beat Daoust by five seconds.

Resulted included:

135 Restricted: George Reynolds, Brockville, "Hornet II," Bill Belfie, Gananoque, "Static," Dr. E. E. Toye, Toronto, "Docs Toy."

Yvars Smashes Torgeson's Bludgeon Gets Punch in Jaw for Trouble

BOSTON (AP) — Statistically speaking, the seventh-place Boston Braves are close to being the National League's doormat.

Torgy enlivened the 6-3 defeat by New York Giants by storming the latters' bench to attack catcher Sal Yvars.

When Torgeson went to bat in the first inning, Yvars complained that Torgeson was hitting him on the shins with the backswing of his bat. Torgeson gruffly suggested that Yvars stop crowding the plate.

Torgeson connected for a single and Yvars then smashed his bat against the plate.

Torgeson had to return to right field as soon as he was stranded as a base-runner. But after the Giants were retired in the second inning, he took off for the Giants' dugout and landed a left hook that sent Yvars crashing against the cement wall. The blow opened a wide gash over Yvar's right eye, which required post-game stitching in hospital.

"Breaking a guy's bat is like slapping him in the face," Torgeson explained as he cooled off in the clubhouse. "We may be in seventh place but we don't have to take that insult."

Hamilton Trims Timbermen 12-7

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tigers defeated Peterborough Timbermen 12-7 Monday night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

Peterborough goal keeper Lloyd Wooton was taken to hospital suffering from concussion after he was struck in the head with a ball.

Captain Blain McDonald paced the winners with three goals, with Jack Dorney assisting on all three. Bill Rankin scored two for Hamilton and Ike Hildebrand and Ray Pawless each scored two for the losers.

'Ole Satch' Hurls 11-Inning Relief Job But Browns Lose In 19-Innings

Spectacular Pitching Duel With Cleveland's Lou Brissie Ends With 4-3 Tribe Victory

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baseball's unsung Minute Men—the relief pitchers—should feel proud of themselves today.

Ranging from the superlative 11- and 10-inning chores of Satchel Paige and Lou Brissie, respectively to the two-inning tenure of Ted Wilks, the performances yesterday of no fewer than seven rescue workers were magnificent.

GREAT DUEL

1. Brissie and Paige—hooked up in a spectacular pitching duel from the 10th inning on with Brissie and Cleveland finally defeating St. Louis Browns in a record-tying 19-inning night game, 4-3. Brissie relieved Bob Feller in the 10th and hurled nine scoreless innings before yielding a tally in the top of the 19th. Paige pitched 10 runless frames after replacing Ned Garver in the ninth, but weakened in the 19th as the Indians scored twice.

2. Clem Labine—worked four scoreless innings for Brooklyn after relieving Ralph Branca and was credited with the victory when the Dodgers came from behind to nip Philadelphia Phillies 4-3. The victory enabled the Dodgers to retain their 3½-game lead in the National League.

3. Hoyt Wilhelm—stopped a Boston threat in the fifth and went on to yield two runs in the next four innings as the Giants handed the Braves their sixth straight loss, 6-3, to remain on the heels of the Dodgers.

4. Don Johnson—handcuffed Philadelphia Athletics with two hits and no runs in four innings after Washington had tallied four times in the sixth to preserve the Senators' 6-5 victory. Washington thus moved into second place in the American League, 3½ games behind the Yankees.

5. Wilks—relieved Forrest Main with the bases loaded and none out in the eighth and stopped Chicago Cubs cold for two innings as Pittsburgh emerged with a 3-2 victory.

Stops Sox

6. Fred Hutchinson—stopped a Chicago three-run uprising in the second inning and pitched seven scoreless frames until he tired in the ninth as Detroit rallied to down the White Sox 6-4.

In the two games where the starter went the route, Vic Raschi pitched the Yankees to a 3-2 decision over Boston Red Sox and Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell hurled St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-3 decision over Cincinnati Reds.

Bobby Brown doubled Mickey Mantle home from first in the eighth to snap a 2-2 tie and hand Boston's Dizzy Trout his seventh defeat.

Enos (Country) Slaughter was the big gun in the Cards' win. The veteran outfielder batted in five runs with a pair of homers to back up rookie Mizell's six-hit pitching. Slaughter became the fourth player among active major leaguers to pass the 1,000 runs-batted-in mark, bettering that total by one.

Paige Weakens.

Paige, who had won six and saved nine of the Browns' 32 victories, came within inches of hurling 11 scoreless relief rounds. The Browns had broken through Brissie's serves in the top of the 19th, taking a 3-2 lead when Dick Kryhoski walked, advanced to second on a sacrifice and scored on Jim Delsing's single.

Bobby Avila, however, opened the last half of the 19th with a single and scored the tying run on Al Rosen's one-out double. After Larry Doby made the second out, pinch-hitter Hank Majeski singled to score Rosen with the payoff run.

Nearly 20,000 See Cars Race

TORONTO (CP)—Believed to be the largest crowd ever to watch stock car races in Canada, 19,616 fans last night saw Norm Brioux of Toronto win the 50-lap Summer Classic championship on the Canadian National Exhibition half-mile track.

Ivan Boone, also of Toronto, finished second. Only 11 finished of some 24 starters. The victory gave Brioux the major share of $4,000 prize money.

Owner-Trainers Draw Suspension

HAMILTON (CP)—Harold Peak and Vince Stott, owner-trainers, were suspended yesterday for 50 racing days by the Ontario Racing Commission.

The ruling followed the claiming of the thoroughbred La Patica from Stanley Crawford of Toronto during the Thorncliffe meet. The stewards found collusion between Peak and Stott, then trainer of the thoroughbred, which was claimed by Peak for $1,250.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Batting: Enos Slaughter, Cards—drove in five runs with a pair of homers to lead Cardinals to 8-3 victory over Cincinnati.

Pitching: Lou Brissie, Indians, and Satchel Paige, Browns—Brissie pitched nine scoreless relief innings and gave up one run in 10 as the Indians tallied twice to defeat the Browns 4-3 in 19 innings. Paige, the loser, pitched 10 runless innings before allowing the tying and winning runs in the 19th.

Easter Optioned To Indianapolis

CLEVELAND (AP)—Luke Easter, on whose six-foot-four frame Cleveland Indians had pinned a big chunk of their 1952 pennant hopes, was optioned to Indianapolis last night.

The 235-pound Negro first baseman will be on 24-hour recall.

In 63 of the 69 Cleveland games this season, Luke's batting has averaged only .208, lowest of any Tribe regular. His 11 homers are seventh high in the league, but in addition to strikeouts, Luke—slowed by a bad knee—has hit into frequent double plays.

"I can't protest the games because it wouldn't be allowed," Quinn said. "Everybody but the four umpires saw Durocher managing the team from one of the press boxes."

The senior National League umpire, Larry Goetz, admitting he saw Durocher making the signals, said: "The rules say a suspended manager can sit anywhere except near his own dugout. I'm an umpire, not a detective. Until they put a few teeth into that rule I can't do a thing."

Durocher is on the sidelines for four days as the result of a dispute with Umpire Bill Stewart.

Just when bids should roll along as if on rubber wheels, your tough opponents come in strong and rock you on your heels.

South and north could reach five diamonds or maybe a slam. Without interference their arrival at such a bid can be smooth and leisurely. But what if opponents get into the act?

The opening by south is a club. West passes. North bids one diamond. East will not sit there stonily and pass. Nor be content to slip in a modest overcall of one spade.

With a passing west, east will not expect a slam in his pair. But, a game in spades is inviting and probable. He has eight tricks. Two tricks in west will help make a game.

So, east will hop at once to four spades. This shotgun-like broadside will break into the tranquil honeymoon of south and north. It compels them to resort to emergency tactics.

No longer can they sit back and exchange information in slow stages. They are now pressed for time. They lack the necessary rounds for finding out all they need for their best bids.

If south bids five clubs, he may be in trouble. If he bids five hearts it may be worse. If he bids five no-trump it is the aces and kings asker which is not advisable until a trump suit has been decided.

If he doubles, north may pass when he could show stuff for some kind of a game. And south is not sure he can defeat four spades. So, south passes and dumps the decision into the lap of north.

If he passes, north will bid five diamonds. If so, west may say five spades and take a sacrifice. If he does, will south and north reach slam in diamonds.

Depends on their temperament. Or maybe temper.

Movie Column

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Gene Autry, who made a fortune as a crooning cowpoke, is having a loud last laugh at the people who yowled when he went into television films.

Autry drew protests from theatre men when he decided to follow Hopalong Cassidy into the TV market. His critics predicted he would ruin himself with the film houses.

But the cowboy's popularity in the theatres doesn't seem to have diminished. He is currently filming "Winning the West," one of six features he plans to make this year. He figures his audience has greatly increased because of TV.

Westerns Slumping

Autry admits that movie westerns are in a slump.

"There have been too many big-budget westerns with stars like Clark Gable, Gregory Peck, John Wayne and Kirk Douglas," he observed. "Naturally, this cuts into the playing time of the program westerns.

" But the program western field is better now, because it has thinned out. Roy Rogers isn't making pictures now, nor are Tim Hol or Charlie Starrett. Now there are only four regular series—myself at Columbia, Rex Allen and Rocky Lane at Republic and Monogram.

But it has happened this way before. Westerns go in cycles. One thing is always certain: Their popularity will always return."

At present, the moneyed cowboy is making six features a year, 26 half-hour TV shows, a weekly radio show, four other TV series and managing his extensive financial

MR. SIMPKINS HAS BEEN DRIVING HIMSELF TOO HARD. HE WORKED TILL 3 A.M. AGAIN LAST NIGHT
HE'S ASKING FOR A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN!

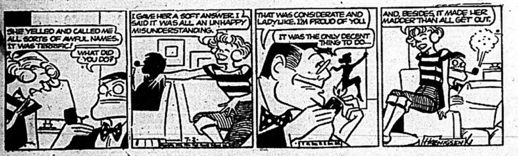
PENNY — By Harry Haenigsen



SHE YELLED AND CALLED ME ALL SORTS OF AWFUL NAMES. IT WAS TERRIFIC!
WHAT DID YOU DO?
I GAVE HER A SOFT ANSWER. I SAID IT WAS ALL AN UNHAPPY MISUNDERSTANDING.
THAT WAS CONSIDERATE AND LADYLIKE. I'M PROUD OF YOU.
IT WAS THE ONLY DECENT THING TO DO...
AND, BESIDES, IT MADE HER MADDER THAN ALL GET OUT.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday July 3, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Look fearlessly upon problems and you can solve most with energy. Arians can get better results by taking things philosophically; deliberating, not rushing.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Little difference from Aries now. Stress keenness albeit calmness. Give ample thought before starting tasks, duties.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Need of sound balance, common sense in efforts today. Some unfriendliness during late day likely. Be careful throughout.

July 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Much self-determination required to frustrate obstacles. Some may appear during a. m. hours. A willingness to listen, to co-operate brings greater assistance and achievement.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) —Configurations indicate upward trend. Extend yourself to make up for poor past days. Full measure of amenable effort will bring new gains, happy leisure hours.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Determined effort and early start will bring more and more lasting results. Planetary vibrations favor your talents. Believe firmly in what you do.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra)—May find some puzzling problems, contention; but push on with Libra's sense of foresight and you should have little difficulty getting results.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Some minor opposition; don't sit back and let it hamper your paramount purpose. You have fine ability to cope with obstacles, use it now and achieve well.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Stimulating rays. Negotiate duties in business-like manner. Your personality can play important part, especially in selling, making contracts. Romance rates.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Be careful what stand you take in personal affairs, discussions that involve property, loans, legal matters.

January 22 to February 21 — (Aquarius) — Some unattractive spots for business and personals today. Rate activities according to importance, but don't retard or stop anything new you have started. Initiative favored.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—Just one of those days. The energetic logical thinker will get his, others will experience so-so results. You may have to exert more to keep pace with events.

YOU BORN TODAY: The Moon is your planet. You are industrious and like good fun. But may be too frugal in domesticity. Don't become annoyed at little differences, ordinary tribulations. Occupations dealing with the public or work having to do with the sea, real estate, banking suited to your aptitudes. Birthdae of: Henry Grattan, historic Irish statesman.

Air Force Gives Cause for Bombing Electric Plants

TOKYO (AP)—The United States Air Force said today hydro-electric plants in Communist North Korea were bombed because "they were supplying electricity" to Red war plants producing weapons being used against United Nations troops.

The power plants had remained untouched by the Allies for two years of war. Much of the power they produced went to Manchuria.

Photographs released today showed widespread damage to 13 plants. The air force said the photographs established that the plants were knocked out.

Other large Communist users of the power were listed as maintenance and repair shops, both rail and vehicular; widely-dispersed small factories and repair shops supporting the Red war effort, and the Communist radar warning systems.

Two Men Killed, Bullet Explodes 22 Tons Dynamite

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—Two men were killed 80 miles northeast of here Sunday when 45,000 pounds of dynamite—900 cases—exploded when struck by a stray rifle bullet

Killed in the explosion were Wilfred Goodman, 24, of Selkirk, Man., and Philip Sequin, 30, of Pine Wood, Man. Three other men were injured. One is still in hospital.

The men were employed in construction of the Sherridan-Lynn Lake railway in northern Manitoba.

Officials said one of the dead men is believed to have fired at a bear. His bullet plowed into the dynamite, stored 200 yards from five camp buildings. The blast destroyed the buildings which housed 30 men.

Communists Ask 24 Hour Recess In Truce Talks

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The snarled Korean armistice talks are in recess for 24 hours at Communist request. The Reds gave no reason for asking cancellation of today's session, but the United Nations Command immediately agreed.

The recess came just one day after Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., reviewed the April 28 Allied plan for exchanging war prisoners and suggested that it offers the Communists a face-saving way to end the long stalemate.

The prisoner issue is the main block to an armistice. The Allies refuse to return prisoners who do not want to go home. The Reds want all military captives back

Would Meet Demands

In effect, the chief U. N. truce negotiator told the Reds the Allies would erase from their prisoner lists about 100,000 captives who say they will resist repatriation.

This would leave 70,000 to 80,000 Reds to be returned when an armistice is signed.

Harrison suggested that the U.N. plan would meet Communist specifications since war prisoners who refuse repatriation would be given some other classification and removed from the official roster.

The Reds then would get back what they have demanded—all of the war prisoners in Allied hands.

Stake Horse

By Larry Sternig

For three days Johnny had tried to be a man. For three days he'd tried to bear the grief of his father's death with the calm quiet courage expected of John McLaren Hamilton III.

At 20, life for him had meant going to college, going to parties, and going a bit too fast, occasionally, in his convertible. He wasn't prepared for tragedy.

Late afternoon of the third day he had just returned from the funeral. He sat in his room, alone, thinking back over as many of the 20 years as he could remember. For a moment the effort to be manly was too much, and he broke down and cried.

It didn't last long; tears would not help ease the aching loneliness in him. His dad had been his entire family. His mother had died when he was a baby. He had no brothers or sisters, no one close enough to turn to.

He went to the window and stared out over the neighboring homes. It was spring and faintly chill outside. Out on the farm, Nystrom would be exercising the colts, Jarvis would be at the spring plowing. On the farm he and his dad had been the closest. There dad had spent most of his time, among the horses to which he'd devoted his life. The Hamilton stable was one of the finest in America.

Johnny went downstairs and told the servants he wouldn't be home for dinner. A few minutes later he was out of the city, the convertible moving swiftly along the gravel road.

A bit too switly as usual. He hit the curve a short distance from the farm entrance at a spanking 62 miles an hour. And just around the turn, a coupe was parked directly in the road. Another car was coming from the other direction.

Johnny slammed the brakes the same time he twisted the wheel toward the ditch.

It was a rough, if inspired bit of handling, but the convertible took it like a thoroughbbred. The car came to halt inches from the stone fence that bordered the farm along this edge.

Johnny glanced at his hands, which were shaking. Then he looked up into a pair of the bluest angriest eyes he'd ever seen.

"Did you by any chance assume this road was a race track?" she wanted to know.

Johnny looked from her eyes to the jack in her hand, and then to the left rear tire of her car, which was flat.

"Only a girl would be thoughtless enough to leave a car on the road to change a tire," he said.

"Thoughtless!" she echoed, and the blue of her eyes was almost black now. "You come racing along a winding road 70 miles an hour and you have the nerve to—"

She started to say something, but changed her mind. She turned back toward the coupe.

Johnny watched her. "You have the jack upside down. Turn it around." He stepped from the car. "Let me help you."

"Never mind." She kept her back toward him. She was trying to force the jack underneath the car.

"If you 'll pull your car off the road, where it won't be a danger to traffic, I'll show you how it works."

Sh edid as he suggested. Johnny worked silently until he opened the luggage compartment to get the spare.

The spare tire was soft.

Again Johnny shook his head. "It won't do any good to put this tire on. Didn't you ever have it checked?"

She shook her head. "Oh, well, it doesn't matter. This is my uncle's farm, right here, and he can send a man with the truck and—"

"You're uncle's farm?" Johnny interrupted.

"That's right."

"Is your uncle's name Jarvis?"

"Nystrom," she said. "Mr. Jarvis just works the land; my uncle raises horses, racing horses." She looked at the convertible, up at Johnny's smiling face, and the light dawned in her eyes. "Golly," she said "You're—you must be—"

"John Hamilton," he said.

There was a silence. She gulped, and then they were both laughing. Johnny wouldn't have believed a half hour ago that he'd find laughter, this day.

"You must think I'm pretty awful," she said finally. "Trying to fool you about the farm—"

"Not too awful," Johnny said. "You're Carol O'Shea. You sing, have your own radio show, or will have. Your uncle is very proud of you."

"Is he really proud? He always talks to me about it as though I'm wasting my talents." Her voice changed. "Of course, I could have made a career in serious music. I had quite a number of really attractive offers in that field, and—"

"I think you'll outgrow it," Johnny said.

And they were laughing again. Johnny offered to take her to the farm in his car and she climbed in. They were just turning into the driveway, between the flanking elms, when she asked, "and how's your father, Johnny?"

"He died—three days ago."

Silence. Johnny turned Her face was white, in shock, and there was moisture in the blue, blue eyes. Impulsively, her hand touched his on the wheel. She remained silent but her slight touch was the most comforting gesture he had known these past few days.

Below the sprawling house here, the fields stretched down to the brook on one side; this was the horse pasture. Directly east of the house, but some distance back, were the stables. Behind them, the half mile track.

This was Johnny's inheritance.

Nystrom was coming up from the stables as they stood there. He was a tall, thin and bony man with a shock of near-white hair, with eyes that seemed to have faded to pastel blue.

Carol greeted him and said, "I've a flat tire, Uncle Ed." Then as an apparent afterthought, she added, "again."

He was smiling. "And the spare is soft—again?"

She nodded. Nystrom gripped John's hand, tried to say something, and then shut his lips firmly.

The plump, amiable Mrs. Nystrom appeared in the doorway and Carol ran to meet her.

Ed Nystrom's gaze followed her. He was still smiling when he turned back to Johnny. "She is the limit, that girl," he said. "But she has a wonderful voice."

It was warm and white inside the stables. Here was the stallion Galahad, a proud and fiery animal, 14 years old this new year, and his races just a memory. Here was the filly Bella, whose record as a two-year-old led all the nation. Here was the colt Adonis. Nystrom and Johnny stopped in front of his stall.

Nystrom said "The best horse in your stable. Don't ever make the mistake of selling him." He paused. "Unless you get what he is really worth."

Johnny said "I wasn't planning on selling anything but the current crop. And not all of them."

Back at the house, Nystrom said, "Ma's made some doughnuts, and I know there'll be coffee."

The doughnuts were light and delicious, the coffee hot and full bodied. The talk was of horses. There was an old proverb, Nystrom recalled, that ran: "One white leg—buy him. Two white legs—try him. Three white legs—deny him. Four white legs and a white nose—take off his hide and throw him to the crows!"

"It almost fits Galahad," Johnny observed.

"A point I was about to make" Nystrom went on gravely. "One of the grooms we had tried to convince your dad we should sell Galahad."

Johnny sipped his coffee.

"That's what I mean about Adonis. I hope you don't sell him."

"Why should I?"

Nystrom hesitated. Then he said "Kovalt."

Johnny knew the name. The Kovalt string had had a spectacular year. The name new in racing, as was the Kovalt money, made during the war. "He's tried to buy Adonis?"

"Often." Nystrom's eyes stared at table top. "He said you'd be selling them all. He wanted first choice at Adonis. Even offered me a job. His own trainer was set down for a year, you know. He says you're—"

Ma Nystrom interrupted, "Edgar, hush, you shouldn't—"

Then Johnny said, "you were going to say he claims I'm broke?

"Busted was the word he used," Nystrom said quietly.

There was another, longer silence, which Johnny finally broke. "Maybe he's right. I'll find out about my finances tomorrow from our attorney."

The trainer nodded, but he didn't look very hopeful.

The law firm of Goodhue, Scully and Parkington was housed in a modern functional office in a streamlined building on North Broad Street. It specialized in estate and probate work, but there was no suggestion of the typical old family retainer about any of them. They were as modern and glossy as their environment.

Sylvester Goodhue was a man in his late forties, almost succeeding in posing as much younger. He was grave, this sunny afternoon.

Johnny had arrived a few minutes before and now he sat beside Goodhue's desk to hear what he thought he already knew.

Goodhue toyed with a pen on his desk. He said, "I don't suppose your dad took you into his confidence regarding financial matters?"

Johnny shook his head. "You're trying to tell me that the estate is in a bad way. I heard some talk yesterday."

Goodhue frowned. "I hadn't supposed it was generally known."

Johnny's gaze was steady on Goodhue's. "Dad certainly would not mention it. There must have been a leak somewhere."

Color, now, in the well-groomed face. "You're not suggesting that this firm would reveal—"

"Certinly not," Johnny said.

Goodhue's voice was soothing. "What you heard is substantially correct. Not that you're a pauper, exactly. You'll be able to finish your education, Johnny. After you've disposed of the house and farm, there should be enough for that purpose plus a small fund for a business venture. More than most young fellows start with."

Johnny said, "I'm not going to sell the farm."

U.N. Made It Possible to Stop Russia--Truman

President Claims States Cannot Win Peace Alone

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman told Congress today the United Nations made it possible to stop Russia. He said "go it alone" advocates in the United States would invite a third world war.

The Kremlin policy of conquest might have been irresistible, he said, "if it had not been clearly and decisively brought to the bar of world opinion in the U. N."

"We can win peace, but we cannot win it alone," the president said. "And above all, we cannot win it by force alone. We can win the peace only by continuing to work for international justice and morality through the United Nations."

Partisan Attacks

Submitting an annual report which detailed United States relations with the international organization, Truman said in an accompanying letter that although these relations have been carried on mostly on a non-partisan basis, there have been partisan attacks.

"Some of these attacks are made in a spirit of impatience that can only lead to the holocaust of world-wide war," Truman said. "Most of those who urge us to 'go it alone' are blind to the fact that such a course would destroy the solid progress toward world peace which the United Nations has made in the past seven years. I am confident that these people will reject these voices of despair.

He did not identify any of the "go it alone" advocates. Gen. Douglas MacArthur used the phrase in his address to Congress last year after Truman relieved him as Far East commander.

Threat To Peace

"The Soviet leaders have been dominated by their doctrines of Communism, by the concept of the use of force, unchecked by ethical considerations," he said. "This concept has led the Kremlin into a course of international conduct which threatens the peace of the world. By stirring up class warfare, subverting free governments, and employing lies, intimidation, asked by the Canadian Federation and conquest, the Soviet Union has pursued a policy of extending its control without regard to the sovereignty of other nations or respect for their rights.

"In Korea the United Nations forces have repelled Communist aggression, they have forced the aggressors to abandon their objectives and negotiate for an armistice, and they have demonstrated that the course of conquest is mortally dangerous."

Since the Korean attack, two years ago, Truman said the free world has made progress which "has now begun to tip the scales toward real security for ourselves and all other peace-loving peoples."

Commonwealth Troops Charged With Crimes

TOKYO (Reuters)—The influential newspaper Asahi today joined a stepped-up campaign against British Commonwealth troops in Japan, charging that men stationed at the former Japanese naval base of Kure were guilty of an increasing number of crimes against civilians.

Asahi, which has a circulation of 4,000,000, called on all foreigners in Japan to "act more like gentlemen," but singled out Canadian, British and Australian troops for particular criticism.

In an article entitled "Terror Reigns over Kure," the paper claimed "British Commonwealth troops are committing an increasing number of offences, and, what is still more serious, many of these offences are the raping of Japanese women."

It quoted Mayor Jutsu Suzuki of Kure as saying that between April 28-June 25 Commonwealth troops in the Kure area committed 88 crimes. He said Canadians were responsible for 58 of them.

The press campaign against Commonwealth troops is linked with Japanese efforts to whittle down their position in Japan now that occupation has been ended by the peace treaty.

"Commonwealth spokesmen have denied the excesses attributed to their men by Japanese papers, and claim that the crime rate is far lower than alleged by Mayor Suzuki.

Aerial Spray Attack on Spruce Budworm Ended

FREDERICTON (CP)—Successful completion of a 300-square-mile aerial spray attack on the spruce budworm, ravager of foliage of softwood trees, was announced last night.

The announcement was made jointly by Hon. R. J. Gill, new Brunswick Minister of Lands and Mines, and Vernon E. Johnson, President and General Manager of New Brunswick International Paper Company.

The announcement said field studies indicate high mortality of the insects. Actual effect upon the forest will not be known for some time.

Cost of the $500,000 project, largest single operation of its kind ever attempted from one airfield in one season, is shared by the New Brunswick government and the company.

Twenty spray-rigged planes and two observation planes carried out the work. They went into the New Brunswick forests, to a specially-prepared airfield, at the end of May.

The area chosen covers about 192,000 acres in New Brunswick's Restigouche county. It was considered the front of the budworm epidemic—an epidemic in which billions of budworms have slowly been travelling eastward, and multiplying, following an outbreak 13 years ago in Ontario.

Primary objective of the operation, viewed as a major step in Canadian forest conservation, was to check the budworm in an area of peak infestation for sufficient time to allow trees to outlive the insect's progress.

REDISTRIBUTION APPROVED AFTER FOUR-DAY DEBATE

Little Business Left Before Adjournment

OTTAWA (CP)—Redistribution of membership in the Commons has been approved after a four-day debate, marked by Opposition charges that the government was guilty of "bare-faced gerrymandering."

The Commons completed consideration yesterday of a bill increasing its representation to 265 from 262 and revising the boundaries of 125 constituencies.

The Redistribution Bill will be called today for third and final reading. Debate will be limited to the principle of redistribution, without reference to the detailed changes. Then it goes to the Senate for discussion and later Royal Assent.

Some Estimates Remain

Before members adjourn until Thursday Nov. 20 they still must pass estimates for a few departments. Adjournment originally was scheduled for June 28 last, but the debate on redistribution prolonged proceedings.

The decennial battle over the redistribution of seats in the Commons on the basis of census figures produced one of the most prolonged and, at times, most bitter debates of the session.

Progressive Conservative members charged that a committee, composed of a majority of Liberals, had redrawn the boudaries of constituencies in such a way as to make it difficult for some Opposition members to be re-elected.

They fought unsuccessfully against changes in the constituencies of two prominent Progressive Conservatives—John Diefenbaker of Lake Centre in Saskatchewan and George Nowlan of Annapolis-Kings in Nova Scotia. Mr. Diefenbaker is a veteran member of the party and Mr. Nowlan is president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada.

Russians Release Three Priests Held 30 Hours

BERLIN (AP)—The Russians late today released three Chicago priests held 30 hours in captivity after they had been seized by sentries on the Berlin-Soviet zone frontier.

The Soviets handed the Roman Catholic clergymen over to American officers in Karlshorst, East Berlin.

The priests came to Berlin yesterday by train for a one-day sightseeing trip. In a borrowed automobile and with a Germa secretary-interpreter, they halted on the frontier between the American sector and Russian zone to take some pictures. Eastern Communist police and a Russian guard forced them to drive into the zone and took them to a Soviet command post.

Canadian Opens New Surgical Field

Taft Juggernaut Rolling But Eisenhower's Backers Beginning to Show Strength

By ED CREAGH

CHICAGO (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft's Chicago juggernaut rolled on to flatten more Eisenhower supporters today.

But backers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, mad as blazes, vowed the Republican party's Presidential nomination wasn't going to be picked by the juggernaut—otherwise known as the Ohio Senator's highly-effective majority on the Republican National Committee.

They predicted Eisenhower strength would flow into Chicago once large numbers of rank-and-file delegates start arriving.

Eisenhower himself set the pitch of his camp's determination to stop the Taft drive.

Demands Clean Conduct

Before leaving Denver on a speech-making train trip to this convention city—he's due Saturday —the General said he would "roar out clear across the country" for clean and decent conduct of next week's convention.

Taft and his backers denied any chicanery.

Whatever the opposition might charge or whatever might happen to change the situation next week, they were in charge of the pre-convention manoeuvrings today.

The 106-member National Committee was called into session to iron out the latest—but not the last —Taft vs. Eisenhower fight to come before it. That was the sizzling fight for votes in the 15-member Louisiana delegation.

Votes are what it takes—604 to be exact—to win the nomination

And the latest Associated Press checkup, based on avowed and conceded delegates and those seated by the National Committee, gave Taft a 493-to-412 edge over Eisenhower at the end of yesterday's tug-of-war.

'Fraud' Charged

The Eisenhower camp cried "fraud" and "smokescreen." But it glumly admitted that at this stage the Taft people had the National Cimmittee votes to grab all the Louisiana delegates if it wanted to—and a number of others to be decided upon later. Two f Louisiana's 15 votes are not in dispute. They are solidly in the Taft column.

Russia Vetoes Proposal For Impartial Inquiry Into Germ Warfare Charges

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Soviet Russia today vetoed an American proposal for an impartial inquiry into Communist germ warfare charges.

The Security Council vote was 10 to 1 for an investigation in Red China and North Korea by the International Red Cross.

Soviet delegate Jakob Malik had warned in advance that he would veto the U. S. proposal because the council refused to invite the Chinese and Korean Communists to take part in the debate.

U. S. delegate Ernest A. Gross said Malik's action in killing the inquiry definitely proved the falsity of the Communist charges.

It was the 49th veto cast by Russia since the council first met in 1946.

Immediately after the vote, Gross submitted a resolution calling on the council to declare the germ charges false and to condemn "the practice of disseminating such false charges."

The resolution noted that the Chinese Communists, North Koreans and Russians had previously rejected offers of the Red Cross to look into the charges. It noted that despite the American denials, the Communists had persisted in spreading the charges.

He did not ask for a vote today on his new proposal, saying Russia should have a few days to study it.

Truman May Run For Senate Seat In November

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The possibility that President Truman may be on the Democratic ballot in November appeared to be increasing today.

In this case, however, the evidence indicated that Truman would be listed as a candidate for the United States Senate—not for re-election as president.

Influential Missouri office holders believe it is entirely possible that Truman's name may be substituted for that of J. E. Taylor, attorney-general of Missouri on the November ticket for the Senate if Taylor wins the nomination.

Although Taylor's friends deny any such deal, critics of the President say they expect such an exchange to be arranged if the Democratic presidential nominee at Chicago is satisfactory to Truman

Stevenson is regarded as one of the most reluctant of the potential candidates for the Democratic nomination. He has said he could not accept any nomination other than that for re-election as governor of Illinois.

Travel Restrictions Eased So Russians Swarm to Beaches

The Russians—under new State Department regulations—are supposed to limit themselves to within 25 miles of Washington or get special permission, but they have it all arranged.

Many of the Soviet diplomats, with their families, have rented cottages for the summer here and at nearby resorts on the South River and Chesapeake Bay. This beach and neighboring areas are a little more than 25 miles from the capital, but the State Department is allowing the Russians to travel to and from the resorts without restrictions.

The Soviets have had cottages here in past summers. This year, changed their beach habits—to the great relief of Woodland Beach residents.

Last year some took over a large residence and others swarmed down in buses on week-ends. They dominated the swimming area—owned jointly by property owners in this section.

'Couldn't See Sand'

"Why, most week-ends we couldn't even find a place to sit," recalls S. Michaelis, a director of the Woodland Beach Property Owners' Association. "Sometimes you couldn't even see the sand."

Overcrowding wasn't the only trouble.

"They'd rent motor boats and drive them into the swimming area where there was usually a lot of kids," Michaelis recalls. "When we'd point out the danger, they'd just shake their heads and hold out their palms. When we mentioned police, they moved the boats out"

This year all is quiet so far. Many Russians are here, but split up into small groups.

DROP IN LIVING COST INDEX MAY BE ABOUT OVER

Higher Prices for Food, Rent Seen in Survey

OTTAWA (CP) —The drop in the cost-of-living index may be just about over.

Higher seasonal prices for some foodstuffs plus a stiffening in the cost of rent may push the prices barometer to higher ground for the first time since last December.

Increases Expected

The latest survey, showing price changes during May, likely will be published by the Bureau of Statistics toomorrw. It may show among other things:

1. A seasonal increases in the price of potatoes and other vegetables which usually are scarce during May.
2. Higher rents showing in a survey made every three months.

The index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, has dropped every month for four months, dropping two points dring April to 186.7 from 188.7 during March.

It was the biggest monthly point drop in 20 years and, together with previous monthly declines, made for a total four-month drop of 4.8 points—the biggest since 1941—reducing the index from its peak of 191.5 last December.

Tumbled Quickly

During April, the consumer price level was shoved back to where it was during May and June a year ago when the index ranged between 184.1 and 187.6. In the first four months of 1952, prices tumbled more than twice as quickly as they had increased in the previous seven months.

The main factor in recent living-cost reductions was the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Westren Canada which pushed meat prices down. The meat price structure now has become more stable, following federal action to buy up and dispose of surpluses in the United Kingdom.

Allied Raiding Columns Knife Into Red Lines

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Allied raiding columns knifed into Communist lines at two points near the truce-talks village of Panmunjom today, while a third group of raiders drove Communist troops off a hill in central Korea.

United Nations troops attacking mist-shrouded hill positions northwest of Kumhwa on the central front ran into heavy Communist fire and called for reinforcements, the Eighth Army said. The hill was secured an hour after the attack began and the raiders were pulled back.

East and south of Panmunjom, raiding columns ran into Red forces and called for artillery fire to wipe out enemy positions.

Jet Fighter Without Guns But Bristling With Rockets Announced by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Development of a jet fighter without guns —but bristling with rockets—was announced yesterday by the U.S. Air Force.

The new plane, the Lockheed F-94C Starfire, has been made so nearly automatic through the use of radar and mechanical brains that it spots the enemy miles away, locks onto the target, tracks, closes, aims and opens fire—all by itself.

The pilot and radar operator do little more than take the plane off, bring it to the general target area and then switch on the "electronic crew." The pilot also must land the plane, but electronics do the rest.

The Starfire has 24 2.75-inch rockets in a ring of firing tubes around the nose, and can carry more rockets in new-type armament pods on the wings.

It has a top speed of more than 600 miles an hour and climbs easily to bomber invasion lanes at altitudes above 45,000 feett.

Its combat radius is more than 500 miles.

The Starfire is described as the first fighter plane equipped with a tail parachute, for quick braking on short airstrips.

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Greyhound bus hurtled into a parked truck near here early today, killing eight persons and injuring about 20 others.

R. C. M. P. early today were still working at the morgue to identify the dead. All were passengers in the bus. Six of the injured were released from hospital.

Killed were five women and three men. Names were withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.

The Northland Greyhound bus, bound from Minneapolis to Winnipeg, smashed into the rear of a huge semi-trailer truck at St. Norbert, Man., 13 miles south of Winnipeg, shortly before 1 a. m. CDT.

Ripped Bus Open

The force ripped the bus open like a giant sardine can. The nose was shredded, the roof pried up and half one side crumpled.

Exact number of the passengers on the bus is not known. Reports indicate it was not completely filled

Ten members of the Regina Rifles were among the passengers. At least two were taken to hospital.

L. Cpl. Allan Rissette of Regina said "all our men were asleep and all of a sudden there was a terrific crash and we were thrown around. None of us actually saw how the accident happened."

Ontario Youth On Bus

Bob Rapelje, 17, of St. Thomas, Ont., quoted the driver as saying he was blinded by the headlights of an oncoming vehicle at the time of the accident.

The truck was loaded with farm machinery. Crumpled boxes and machinery parts were strewn along the highway for 50 feet along with seats and passengers' luggage ripped from the bus by the impact.

Four doctors, five ambulances and four hearses were called to the scene from Winnipezg. A passing American doctor, unidentified, also aided at the scene.

An R. C. M. P. spokesman said "there might be more fatalities."

Passengers in the first half-dozen rows of seats took the brunt of the impact. Several were thrown out on the highway.

"I was asleep," Walter Blendick 23, of Toronto said. "I heard a noise, then the next thing I knew I was lying in the middle of the pavement"

Blendick was seated just behind the driver. Next to him sat a little girl who was killed.

He said the little girl was a Scottish immigrant, coming to Winnipeg with her mother and sister. Their conditions and names were not known.

Trapped Between Bodies

Last man to leave the shattered bus alive was Rifleman George Doyle of the Winnipeg Rifles. He was pried from the wreckage after being trapped two hours beneath a seat.

Doyle said he was trapped between two bodies on the demolished right side of the bus. Workers cut him free with acetylene torches.

He did not appear to be seriously injured. He was on his way home from Valcartier, Que., and was going on leave to Campion, Alta.

More Provincial Aid for Housing Asked by Mayors

CALGARY (CP)—More provincial aid for low-cost housing is of Mayors and Municipalities.

At the annual convention yesterday, delegates passed a resolution asking all provincial governments to use the federal offer to pay 75 per cent of land and construction costs for low-rent housing.

Some provinces are making use of the federal government's offer, but the federation wants it accepted by all the provinces.

Another resolution was passed requesting federal and provincial governments to assume definite responsibility for flood damage, and prevention of flood damage to municipalities.

Australia May Boost Purchases Of Canadian Goods

OTTAWA (CP)—Australia may boost purchases of Canadian goods through funds provided by the International Bank, it was learned yesterday.

The Australian government has applied for a loan from the 41-country bank located in Washington and it is believed here that part of that loan may be granted in Canadian dollars for spending in Canada.

Canada recently made $41,000,000 in Canadian funds available to the bank for lending purposes. Part of this may be turned over to Australia for purchase of strategic Canadian goods to further Australia's defence effort.

Gen. Van Fleet Fully Agrees With Alexander

TOKYO (Reuters)—Gen. James Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander in Korea, said today he fully agreed with British Defence Minister Earl Alexander's statement in London that greater military reserves are needed in Korea.

Van Fleet, in a telephone interview with Reuters, said: "There is no commander in the world who would not like to have more troops. I fully concur with Earl Alexander's remarks."

The Eighth Army commander added, however, that he thought he had enough manpower to hold off a Communist attack.

He was referring to Alexander's statement to a Canada Club dinner in London Tuesday night. The defence minister said:

"I should be very much happier if General Van Fleet had a little more reserves in his own hands. I think if the Chinese attempt a full-scale offensive they will penetrate the front to a depth of some miles in some places."

WATERS AROUND CITY DANGEROUS, FOR SWIMMING

Following analysis of the waters at the government dock, the bay bridge, the Moira River at Victoria Park and the waters around Zwick's Island, the Health Department advises these waters are highly polluted with bacteria and extremely dangerous for swimming purposes.

Parents are urged to keep their children from swimming in these now condemned areas. The waters especially around Zwick's Island and at the mouth of the Moira River are in a great deal worse condition than any where else.

HIGHWAY TRANSPORT TAKES TO FIELD TO AVOID CRASH

A highway transport took to the fields yesterday to avoid what appeared would be a head-on collision with an approaching auto. The incident occurred on the Trenton-Belleville highway when a west-bound transport was forced off the road by an approaching American tourist, who swung out over the solid centre line to pass another car.

In avoiding the accident the transport driver knocked over a mailbox, went across the ditch and through a fence into the field.

CITY COURT ROOM BEING RENOVATED

The court room in the city police station is getting a face lifting this week with workmen installing acoustic tile on the ceiling to cover up the plaster and peeling paint. At the same time the court room will be re-wired to take the load off the present circuit servicing the building.

For several years the city court room has been badly in need of renovation with council only this year authorizing expenditure of the money to have the work done. Details of the work are being looked after by Alderman Wilbur Countryman, as chairman of city property committee.

St. Andrew's Ch. Newly Decorated By Toronto Firm

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church is presenting a completely new appearance these days with decorating by George Stoneman, Toronto church interior decorator, virtually completed.

In striking contrast to the former dark colors, the church interior is now done in caen stone on the walls with the ceiling panels done in mushroom with blue and red border design on a gold background. Ceiling arches and pews and other furniture will receive a coat of varnish.

The new stonework effect on the church walls and on the arch over the organ pipes is particularly striking and pleasing in appearance. Before painting the walls were marked to take on the effect of stonework and in painting decorating darker paint was used for individual blocks to enhance the stonework effect. To complete the effect white mortar lines were painted in to make the stonework effect stand out.

C.N.R. Engineer, G. McGee Retires, 45 Years Service

A 45-year career as a railroader was completed recently by George McGee, 282 Charles Street, when he stepped down from the cab of his passenger locomotive at the north station. Starting with the railroad back in 1907, he had been engineer on the fast passenger service between Belleville and Toronto for the past nine years.

His last run was on June 11, but since then he has been on holidays and officially retired this week.

Peninsula, he started with the G.T.R. as fireman back in 1907 and three years later was classed as engineer. He was moved to Belleville in 1937 and since 1943 has been on the fast passenger service.

It was "smooth sailing" for Mr. McGee throughout his railroad career; he was never involved in any train wrecks. Now he expects to get in a bit more fishing than formerly although so far this year he has had a string of bad luck.

But he and Mrs. McGee will continue to reside in the city, where they are members of Bridge Street United Church. A son, William McGee, is an employee of the Ontario Hydro, while their youngest daughter, Charlotte, also is a Hydro employee at Belleville. Another daughter, Mrs. Ralph Scott, lives at Trenton.

Mr. McGee is a Shriner and a valued member of the Shrine Club.

Legion Will Present Best Bands in Ont.

On Friday evening Branch 99 Canadian Legion will be putting on, once again, their annual band concert and fireworks display at Belleville Fairgrounds.

Supporting these three bands will be the trumpet band from RCAF Station Trenton and the newly formed Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment band from Belleville.

The program will commence with the bands parading at approximately five minutes intervals from the Fairgrounds beginning at 6:50 p.m.

A special attraction of this year's entertainment will be a flying display by aircraft of RCAF, Trenton. This display will take place between 7:30 and 7:45.

Following the concert a draw will be made for several attractive prizes.

The evening will be rounded off with a gigantic fireworks display, featuring both aerial and ground exhibitions.

The Legion has done considerable work in lining up this program of family entertainment. Proceeds will be devoted, half to the Belleville Recreation Commission for children's playgrounds, and the other half to the Canadian Legion Branch Welfare Work.

How to Keep Cool

Since it looks like a summer of intermittent heat waves, the big question in everyone's mind is how to keep cool during one of these fiery blasts of nature. There are many devices in operation today for keeping comfortable ranging from living in an ice house to living in the bathtub.

Most people work for a living. No one will dispute that statement. So the advisability of bringing the bathtub to work would seem a little outmoded, at least to one's employer. So much for the bathtub.

Night time is the time that the heat seems the most objectionable. People want to sleep and who can sleep with high temperatures. In India, the military of forty or fifty years ago were supplied with a wooden saw horse affair which they took to bed with them and wrapped their legs around. This device kept their legs off the sheets and permitted a free circulation of air across the body. The saw horse was shamelessly called a "Dutch Widow."

Body temperature is 98.6 degrees fahrenheit. When the outside temperature rises toward body temperature acute discomfort is experienced. To beat discomfort of this nature, the populace has an idea that applying cold water to the wrists will give relief. It is true a certain amount of relief may be gained in this manner; but there is no reason for expecting any more relief with this practice than would be felt by pouring cold water over any other portion of the body.

A change of footwear, recommended by the medical association, will be refreshing. A cool drink of any kind helps. As for the matter of taking baths, there is only one type that will do any lasting good as far as keeping cool is concerned. A cold bath will only stimulate the blood and cause rising temperatures shortly after divorce from the tub. A hot both only adds to the discomfort. Health authorities advise the lukewarm tub and the skin gently patted dry, not rubbed.

An old timer who usually may be found in Fireman's Park in the summer months has advanced a rather logical theory as far as getting cool goes. When asked how he beat the heat, he had this to say.

"That's the whole dad-blamed trouble sonny, there ain't a hope in the world of beating it! In the summer people rush around looking for a way to cool off and there isn't any way. Me, I like the winter the best, in winter you can always get warm, but I'll be darned if you can always get cool in the summer."

Cherries Make First Appearance On Local Market

Cherries and currants made their initial appearance on the local produce market today with black sweet cherries from the Niagara district selling at $1.30 per 6 quart basket or 30 cents per quart. Red cherries were $1.25 per basket.

Red currants were 25 cents per quart box.

With the exception of Gardenville berries the strawberry season is now over, farmers stated. Gardenville berries of good quality sold at 40 cents per box. Gooseberries were $1 the 6 qt. basket and huckleberries sold at $3 per basket or 75 cents per qt. Vendors said the huckleberry crop would be shorter than normal due to the dry weather. Although berries are of good quality they are smaller than in other years.

String beans were 25c per box and garden peas were 20 cents per box unshelled or 35 cents per pint, shelled.

Council stipulated that the exterior of the building must be comparable with establishments in the vicinity. Building is expected to get underway at once.

Clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry was authorized to refund $185 to each of the three cleaning firms affected by the cancellation of Dry Cleaning by-law. Under the by-law the cleaners had paid a $200 licence to operate in Trenton. Outside cleaners would have to pay a same amount. However, local cleaners found that outside cleaners defied the by-law and increased efforts instead of curtailing them. Only one of the three original backers of the by-law was willing to bear the expense of testing it legally. All were taxed for expenses in connection with drawing up the ruling.

The town's agreement with the Trenton Cold Storage firm to remove sewer waste from their property by the waterfront was extended to October 1. The storage people figured the high level of the water would increase the cost of removal.

Council accepted the W. W. Weaver Co., tender for the supply of a 1952 two-ton truck for the fire department. The Weaver Company allowed the town $661 as trade-in value of old hose truck. The new truck cost the town $2,661 less trade-in.

Mr. Larry was asked to write the department of Highways requesting that the underbrush along the Trent river to the northern limits on highway No. 33 be cleared away and the river-bank cleaned up generally.

Chairman of Finance Councillor Charles Allore presided in the chief magistrate's chair in the absence of Mayor Ken J. Couch, who was away on a fishing trip.

As a high school student young White excelled in all branches of sport and especially as an amateur boxer later.

HOUSING No. 9

BUILDERS AND INVESTORS BUILD FOR RENT

These notes on Housing have been very brief even for notes. Too brief is the only criticism I have received from the many readers who have commented on and encouraged me in my efforts. Although in truth I must admit that one business man summed up his comments in a few brief words, "No one will shoot Santa Claus". I do not agree with the inference. We are not receiving anything like the "presents" we have paid for, and Santa Claus is getting too fat at our expense. If I could afford the time and money for space I would be glad to write the pages required to do justice to each phase of the subject. The public want more information. However, the subject is very comprehensive and I am content with these few short notes to have aroused the interest of a great many readers who are following the series and cutting out the notes as they appear.

A very serious and important phase of Housing in Belleville is the lack of accommodation built for rental. A few reasons are:

1. Investors are scared off by fear of Rent Controls.
2. Builders are not free enough to construct the type of house or apartment that is in demand.
3. Mortgage companies have not encouraged it.
4. Builders generally are not aware of the fact that to build multiple units for rental is more profitable than to build small houses for sale.
5. Up to a short time ago rental units as such were unknown in Belleville except that many years ago a few Terraces or Row Houses were built.

It is suggested that a concerted effort be made by a group consisting of the Builders Exchange, Chamber of Commerce and City Planning Committee to show clearly to local builders and investors that it is profitable from more than one angle to build for rent, and that action be taken to solicit the support of mortgage company and government financing for modern rental accommodation (not barracks) for all classes.

TORONTO STOCKS

Activity dwindled from a slow opening. Volume for the first three hours was 893,000 shares.

Agricultures, foods, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues posted a scattered list of fractional advances. Refining oils and banks balanced gains and losses but papers and steel slipped.

Western oil leaders were mixed but lower-priced issues posted a majority of moderate losses. Calvan Consolidated, Canadian Williston and Okalta climbed but Federated Petroleum, Husky, Pan-Western and Security Free dipped.

Base metal leaders were firm. Barvue, Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Hudson Bay and Mindamar traded higher. Dominion Asbestos and Mackeno eased

Senior golds edged upward as Hollinger, Kerr Addison, Lake Shore and Lamaque strengthened. Junior producers and prospects were mixed.

MACHINES TOO MODERN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Pakistan's delegate to the U.N. Economic and Social Council found a flaw today in western machinery sent to his underdeveloped country—it's too modern. The delegate, Said Hasan, asserted mechanics should be sent along to simplify machinery so the people in countries like his could use it better.

Founded in 1790, Belleville, Ont., was incorporated as a town in 1850 and as a city in 1877.

Republican Party Split Grave As Taft-Ike Feud Quickens

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republicans are building up an intra-party feud and fury which won't reach a peak till next week. After that it remains to be seen whether the party is too badly split to win the Presidential election, no matter who heads the ticket.

At this time Senator Robert A. Taft's forces are in almost complete control of the Republican convention machinery, meaning the Republican National Committee which for two days has been hearing disputes involving 72 delegate seats claimed by rival Taft and Eisenhower factions.

With one exception, the committee has voted overwhelmingly in favor of seating the pro-Taft delegates.

The Eisenhower people can still appeal to the convention's credentials committee to overturn the work of the National Committee. Failing there, they can appeal to the whole convention.

The vast majority of convention delegates, of course, are not in dispute. The disputed delegates total 72 votes for Taft or Eisenhower, depending upon which faction is finally accepted when the time comes to vote on the party's candidate for President.

Corruption Charged

The Republicans, who have been trying to capitalize on charges of corruption in the Truman administration, weeks ago began making the charge against themselves, particularly in Texas where the followers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the General himself accused the Taftites of "stealing" delegates.

Feeling between the Taft and Eisenhower factions already is so intense that Republicans in general face this question:

Now, no matter which man gets the nomination, will the loser and his supporters work for the winner's election in November? Unless they can work together, the party will go into the elections under what may be an insurmountable handicap.

Residents Claim Poison Ivy Growing Along City Streets

A rocky or secluded habitat is not necessary for poison ivy to flourish. The plant which is the bane of holidayers apparently can grow along city streets just as well as along deserted roadways.

For instance residents in the neighborhood of 181 West Moira Street are rather perturbed about what they claim is a patch of poison ivy growing on the boulevard right on city property. They point to the fact that children are playing in the vicinity every day and could easily come in contact with the plants.

And the plants are there all right. An investigation revealed that an area of several square yards was covered with plants having the familiar three similar and shiny leaflets.

A job for the city weed eradicator seems to be in the offing.

Scattered Areas Southern Ontario Get Heavy Rain

TORONTO (CP)—Thunderstorms in scattered southern Ontario areas last night brought rain and caused considerable damage when lightning struck a house near Galt, the public weather office at nearby Malton reported today.

The weather office said rain during June in the southern part of the province was about 1.3 inches half the normal fall. Northern Ontario's rainfall for the period was above average.

Spokesman Says Proposal Contains Lot of Gimmicks

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Communist negotiators today offered a new plan for breaking the Korean truce talks deadlock, but an Allied spokesman said the proposal contains a "lot of gimmicks and potential gimmicks."

Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., said the Red plan "may be an important one and it may not."

The Reds indicated they would ease their demand for return of all military prisoners in United Nations stockades, provided the 20,000 Chinese captives are returned. They asked for secret sessions to discuss the proposal.

Harrison, the senior Allied negotiator, immediately called for adjournment until Friday (10 p. m. EDT Thursday) to study it. He did not reply to the Communist demand for secret sessions.

Allied refusal to repatriate any prisoner who does not want to go home has deadlocked the truce talks for weeks.

Capacity Crowds At Playgrounds

This city's 10 playgrounds were officially opened yesterday with capacity crowds in attendance at all of the grounds.

Beginning today, two playgrounds each day Monday through Friday will be taken under supervision to the swimming pool for a swim.

'Red' Doran, recreational director, says the equipment on the playgrounds is in first class condition. He urges parents not to worry about their children when they are at the playgrounds. They are under constant supervision by trained leaders. Most of these leaders recently completed their course in playground leadership at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac, Moira Lake.

TOT TICKS

TARENTUM, Pa. (AP) —What makes a little boy tick? Bruce Hemphill, 2, had the answer today—a woman's wristwatch. The boy swallowed the watch—without a band—yesterday while playing at his home. A doctor prescribed a diet of mashed potatoes and roughage. Nature is expected to do the rest.

'Persons With Grievances' Good Recruits for Red Cells

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—What accounts for the startling success of the Stalinist Fifth Column? How are its recruits, often highly intelligent and educated persons, persuaded to join an underground conspiracy against their own countries.

The recruitment of the Fifth Column often requires money, but money is secondary. Few of the cases of convicted Communist spies involved the payment of any large amount of money.

Careful Scouting

Prospects are lured into "study groups" or "discussion groups," which in reality are operated by cells of the Communist party."

The recruiting agents concentrate on scientific workers, teachers, students and persons engaged in intellectual pursuits—in particular likely prospects who either work for the government or have a chance of doing so.

Persons with grievances—who consider themselves or their race or their creed to be persecuted—are singled out for special attention and often become easy victims.

"I considered myself a second-class Canadian, not a first-class Canadian," testified one agent in the Canadian spy case. "That is not a laughing matter, Mr. Commissioner. It is serious."

In the study groups, the "student" must be imbued with the idea that in working for Moscow he is working for humanity.

Once the cells have completed the basic program of "development," the second stage is reached. That brings a transfer of loyalty to the Soviet Union, blind obedience to the party, devotion to the "cause."

Works For Mankind

The prospect still believes he is working for mankind, but now the good of mankind and the Soviet Union are becoming synonymous.

Thus Klaus Fuchs, the brilliant atomic scientist, said in his confession in Britain:

"I used my Marxian philosophy to conceal my thoughts, which had to be separated into two compartments. One side was the man I wanted to be. I could be free and easy and happy with other people without fear of disclosing myself, because I knew the other compartment would step in if I reached a danger point. It appeared to me at the time that I had become a free man because I had succeeded in the other compartment of my mind in establishing myself completely independent of the surrounding forces of society."

Thus Dr. Alan Nunn May, caught up in the Soviet spy network in Canada, pleaded in court in Britain: "I did it for the good of mankind."

For Fuchs and May, it was a matter of persuading themselves that they were working for the good of humanity under a system of life which had made fanatics of them. Money was secondary.

BELIEVE GRASS FIRE STARTED BY TRAIN

A grass fire believed to have started from a spark from a passing train, burned over a large patch of ground on the Trent Road yesterday afternoon before it was brought under control by city firemen.

The fire was discovered by George Fralick who said it apparently started in the south corner of his lot and spread rapidly in the dry grass burning over an area about 100 yards in length.

"Had there been much wind, the fire would have spread directly to the water filtration plant property and possibly caused some damage," he stated.

BOLT FOR ALLIED LINES

TOKYO (AP) — Two North Korean soldiers last week made a bolt for Allied lines and surrendered to U.N. sentries, just outside the truce conference site at Panmunjom. The communists were flabbergasted—for a time. Today the Peiping radio claimed both men were "spies" and accused the United Nations Command of using Panmunjom to "facilitate espionage activities."

MUNICIPALITIES PLEAD FOR TAX RELIEF

What appears to be a reasonable request by Canadian municipalities for the Federal government not to impose sales tax, import duties and similar federal taxes on goods purchased by municipalities, has been promised further consideration by Ottawa.

With sources of revenue limited and expenditures extended almost beyond their ability to pay, the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities at their convention in Calgary suggested that some redress could be expected from Ottawa. If revenues could not be increased to meet increased costs, then it was suggested that costs could be trimmed if federal sales and similar taxes were not made payable by the municipalities.

When Belleville decides that an additional fire truck is needed to protect lives and property, it seems odd that the taxpayers in Belleville should be forced to pay the added assessment to Ottawa in the form of taxes and duty levies. It has been estimated that a saving of six thousand dollars could have been realized had the senior government not forced federal tax payments at the time the last fire truck was purchased.

Similarly, when this city recently spent forty-five thousand dollars to purchase equipment for the Works Department, four thousand five hundred dollars could have been saved were the municipality not assessed sales tax by Ottawa. This saving could have been more if customs duties had not been demanded.

Financing at a municipal level has become the greatest problem facing public trustees today. Municipal revenue sources are fixed and the principle target for revenue comes from the property owner who is fast being taxed beyond reasonable limits. Any proposal which would provide easement to these property owners should be received with sympathy and if removal of taxes imposed by federal authorities would provide some easement, then these tax assessments should be removed.

GERMANS STAGING COME-BACK

It is common knowledge that the Germans took a terrific battering during the war, especially from aerial bombardment. The Germans also suffered severe losses in manpower, as well as the loss of that large part of their territory which was seized by Russia. The lost territory was particularly important in the production of foodstuffs, which means that present-day Germany is more than ever dependent upon imported food; one estimate has it that the Germans must now import about 40 per cent of their food.

Whether the Germans are already planning new wars is known only to themselves, but it is no secret that they are already at work, practically around the clock, restoring their industrial power and regaining their export markets. A study of the news dispatches from Germany shows what is going on there.

Because their government, unlike that of some other countries not so far away, realizes the importance of getting out the production, the Germans are working a lot of overtime. Their government, it seems, has evolved an ingenious system of income taxation which rewards the producer by making overtime and extra production tax free. Having observed how food rationing works in Britain and some other countries, the Germans have abandoned it. Neither do they have food subsidies. As a result, food takes nearly 50 per cent of the average German workman's wages, but he and his family have plenty of good food, something which the British and many other Europeans lack.

Perhaps because he is better fed, or perhaps his extra effort is untaxed, the German coal miner's voluntary absenteeism last year was .75 per cent, while voluntary absenteeism in British coal mines was 5.62 per cent. The Germans are building new homes at the rate of 400,000 a year, while Britain, with approximately the same population, is building them at the rate of about 200,000 a year. A good many other figures could be quoted, but they would only serve to accentuate further what is known to be a fact — that the Germans, lacking a rich uncle across the Atlantic, are applying themselves to working their way out of their difficulties, and achieving a measure of success that would have seemed incredible in 1945.

Some people fear the Germans, while others dislike them without fearing them. But however we may feel toward them, we have to hand it to them — they can be beaten, but they refuse to stay beaten.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1952, Edgar A. Guest)

YOUNG "GENERAL" GRANT

Through all his eighty years we find
No bitter word; no act unkind.
Long life; yet he has brightened it
With many a brilliant flash of wit.
As sturdy as a century plant
Is he we know as "General" Grant.

No medaled general wearing stars
And sleeves displaying service bars.
To him that famous title came
From friends to grace his family name;
A habit fixed, that break we can't,
Now none would call him Mr. Grant.

For "General" Grant this verse I pen,
Adored by children, women, men;
Rugged in contest; quick to dare
For victory's sake, yet always fair.
His zest for life still fresh appears
Unwrinkled by those eighty years.

Unspoiled by pride; by sorrow scarred;
But still by bitterness unmarred!
Through eighty years, with all they hold,
Finding delight in growing old.
Mention his age, with twinkling eyes:
"As young as ever!" he replies.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 3rd., 1932.

Mr. Frank Amey of Kingston formerly of Belleville, was in town today.

Mr. Harvey Carleton of Latta has left for Kingston where he will attend Queen's University.

Mr. Bruce Lattimer, who has many friends in the younger set in this city, has returned to Belleville from Toronto and will be associated with the Lattimer Drug Store.

Mr. George Tilley, accountant at the Bank of Montreal here, accompanied by Mrs. Tilley and young son, is spending a vacation at Pottsville, Pa.

Mrs. F. Cornell and family left today for Toronto and will spend several weeks on the island.

Mrs. F. M. Anderson and son Billy of Cleveland, Ohio, is visiting her father, Mr. Arthur Wallbridge, Queen St.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Clarke Diamond of Hamilton, formerly of this city, are spending a two weeks' vacation here and in the vicinity.

30 YEARS AGO

July 3rd., 1922.

The Boy Scouts have gone into camp at Moira Lake.

The city playgrounds in east and west Belleville are open for the season. It is through the kindness and generosity of the late Thomas Ritchie that the children of this city now have these fine play grounds.

In a baseball match last evening the Belleville Red Sox defeated the Rednersville team the score being 14-6. Arnott and Lee twirled for the Red Sox and Mitz and Strand pitched for Rednersville. The following composed the Red Sox team: Welch, Cummins, Cook, Ashley, Joss, Townsley, Stark, Miles, Arnott and Lee. The umpire was Harry Pringle with Myrle Locke the umpire on bases.

The commercial fishermen of this city will hold their second annual picnic tomorrow afternoon at Victoria Park. Two thousand pounds of whitefish and salmon will be cooked at the park and distributed free.

40 YEARS AGO

July 3rd., 1912.

Four iron standards for the purpose of supporting electric lights have been placed on Bridge St. near Hotel Quinte for display purposes. They are of different designs and the members of the city council will inspect them and make selection of a design to be used on the business streets in the city. It is expected that the lights will be burning this evening.

Judge Fraleck and family will leave tomorrow for their summer home at Salmon Lake.

Mr. George Lee is visiting friends in Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Brown have returned home after spending a few days in Ottawa.

50 YEARS AGO

July 3rd., 1902.

The band concert at Victoria Park last evening was largely attended and the music was much enjoyed. The harbor was full of boats and canoes and the scene was delightful.

The steam roller became stuck in a ditch on Sinclair St. this morning.

A complimentary excursion and band concert will be given by Mr. Harry Corby to the citizens of Belleville and friends in West Hastings to Massassaga Park on July 10th. The steamers Niagara and Annie Lake will make numerous trips to and from the park. Games and amusements have been arranged. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Strawberries were plentiful on the market today and sold at five boxes for 25 cents.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A STORY OF GLORIOUS FAILURE

A man who lives in Dayton, Ohio, was telling how he used to have business dealings many years ago with the famous Wright brothers when they ran a bicycle shop. As a young man he used to complain to his father the way the Wright boys were allowing a good bicycle business to slip through their fingers because they were giving so much time to a confounded flying machine that of course would amount to nothing. He often used to remark that if the Wrights would stick to bicycles and give up heir fool notions about flying, they might indeed have a business some day they would be proud of.

How little are we conscious of great movements going on around about us. Jesus once remarked of His generation that they could discern the face of the sky, but they could not discern the signs of the times. Bicycles have largely come and gone, but the flying machine on which the Wright brothers spent so much time that they neglected a good bicycle business, is now engaging the attention of the whole world.

The fate of empires often turns upon some apparently insignificant circumstance. While the world is engaged in some great materialistic project, something happens somewhere in the heart or mind of a humble man which changes human living for centuries.

"My thoughts are not your thought, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord."

I'm indebted to Knute Buttedahl, of the labor unions' Committee to Combat Racial Discrimination, for passing along a challenging article about the tragic conditions in British Columbia Indian schools.

The article appeared in the Indian paper, "Indian Time", and is written by Olive Shore, who has been teaching in such schools. It's a powerful argument for equality in education.

Miss Shore says that the inadequate elementary education stacks the odds against Indians reaching university.

Many of the teachers are unqualified, she says, and properly trained teachers can't be found because salaries are below the level of the "White" schools.

"Furthermore," Miss Shore writes, "when a properly qualified teacher does take a position in one of the native schools and proceeds sharply to raise the general level, the Indian Department's reaction is to fire him for advancing the children too rapidly in academic work and not spending enough time playing little games and singing little songs'."

She says that the Indian schools are woefully short of books and supplies. In one school in which she taught, at Massett, the pupils were provided with only one of three texts required by the curriculum.

"At the grade 3 level a more novel situation presented itself," she writes. "We had one reader for 13 children and no work books. We had to use a series of readers long since gone from the elementary schools.

"That, you may feel, is unimportant. Reading is reading. True, but we learn from what we read.

"Books of this generation take cars, radios, airplanes, ships and trains for granted. Books of another age cannot answer the questions of today's children concerning the world in which they live.

"Besides that, attitudes and conditions change.

"In today's books stories are told of Indian, Russian, European and Oriental living in such a way as to teach the similarity of life all the world over, whereas the books of the last generation taught the difference between races and peoples, always presented with the consciousness of an imagined perfection and infallibility in ourselves for being white, Anglo-Saxon and preferably Protestant."

Miss Shore's solution?

"The sooner all children, white or otherwise, attend the same classes under the same trained teachers, with up-to-date books of adequate number and modernizing influences, the sooner you will find university enrollment showing a strong representation of native youth."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAPPY PEOPLE

Time and again I gave thought about that statement of Stevenson's that "a happy man or woman is a better find than a five-pound note." I would say that you can't give it monetary valuation. It is beyond all that. To find a happy person is to look upon one of God's natural elect!

There is something highly medicinal about happiness. Every function of the body works harmoniously when we are happy. The opposite is true when we are depressed, unhappy and wounded by some unkind word or act. People re-act so quickly to happiness, and when we have caused it in others, there is a rebound that makes our own happiness that much richer.

We should never interfere with the happiness of another. We all have our tastes and our loves and no one should try to take them from us. I am happy at tasks that I know many others would look upon as boredom or trivial. Happiness scatters itself about under scores of names. We should rejoice in the happiness of others. Referring to Stevenson again, he considered it a "duty" for us to be happy, and said by being so "we sow anonymous benefits upon the world."

How instantly we are affected when we see a happy child or grown person. In watching a baseball game, it always makes me feel happy when a player makes an unusually fine play or bats out a home run. I get his thrill, and I believe that all the stands do too. Sharing happiness is really quite a natural thing. And when people learn how it lifts them, they try to be happy every day and try to keep spreading happiness around.

One day George Gissing, the English writer, came upon a child crying as though its small heart would break. It had lost a sixpence. The kindly man—who never had much to spare himself—drew from his pocket the same amount and put it into the hands of the child and watched sunlight come out on that little chap's face! Gissing remarked that he had purchased a sixpence of happiness. Actually he purchased far more. He had paid for at least a day of happiness for a child and himself.

By GREGORY CLARK

Petunias are the most deserving and the most slighted of flowers. For some reason dating back into the last century, petunias have a comic association in our minds. In minstrel shows, the funniest end-man in the blackface front row had a sweetheart called Petunia. Comic songs have been written with petunias for the theme. A friend of mine has a deodorized pet skunk which he calls Petunia. It is fixed in our minds that petunias are somehow funny.

No flower in the whole vast range of garden plants is more eager to serve us. Petunias will grow in dark corners, in neglected borders, in window boxes on sere, sun-baked ledges, or suspended in hanging baskets away up in the air. They will thrive not only in uptown garden suburbs, but down in the beaten slums. Not merely do they grow and thrive. They flower, they multiply, they spread. And they fairly burst with glee to flower for us.

Their flowers offer the most fantastic variety and diversity to be found in any plant anywhere on earth. From plain pink, fire red, pastel salmon, they run to incredible velvet blues, purples and carnival stripes upon white; and snow white itself. From plain they vary to doubles, flounced, pleated, ruffled and curled.

And they are North American. They come from southern and central America originally, and belong to a famous plant family that has done all sorts of useful service to mankind. That family, the Solanum or nightshade family, has given us tobacco, belladonna and the tomato, among other mighty contributions. The name petunia comes from the American Indian word, petun, meaning tobacco.

My summer home is in a rock-ribbed, iron-bitten, moon-cratered area of the pre-Cambrian shield. Nothing grows there save dwarf juniper, lean pine, moss and embattled blueberries. But I called upon petunias. And they filled every crack and crevice wih valiant glory.

Personal Health Talks

THE GRAY LOOK

THE GRAY LOOK

In the pamphlet The Iodin Ration, for which send stamped self-addressed envelope, there is only this allusion to grayness:

"Just as many youngsters, more girls than boys, begin to mope in their teens for want of iodin, so do many mature adults have no pep or ambition, a tendency to doze any time anywhere although they sleep long hours every night to put on more and more slacker flesh, have dry sallow skin, lusterless dry, falling, prematurely graying hair . . . melancholic outlook and manner which, to their friends, is so different from their former cheerful disposition . . ."

Although I am an international quack I do not guarantee or even promise that a suitable iodin ration will restore the pristine color to gray or graying hair. The truth is, all I know about it is what readers tell me. A good many readers in the course of the past 20 years have assured me, in the present tense, that since they got onto the iodin ration their gray or graying hair is getting its natural color again. There may be an occasional report in the files in the past tense, but I still say I don't take much stock in such reports, although I do believe most persons whose hair is beginning to turn gray will find that a suitable daily ration of iodin tends to stay this and other cold gradations.

When one is depressed, blue, tired or melancholy one sees in the mirror the gray hairs, wrinkles and other signs of oncoming age. When one feels cheerful and fit one notices with satisfaction how few gray hairs, wrinkles and sags are showing. Anyway a suitable iodin ration can do no harm.

Another kind of gray look is the nutritional deficiency anemia of women in thirties or forties, a gray pallor that is nearly as characteristic as was the complexion of the younger girl with the green sickness (chlorosis) back in the 19th century. Medical name for the gray sickness is hypochromic anemia. It is commonly attended with brittle, cracked, flattened or spooned nails which show ridging or pitting.

Taxes, Taxes, Taxes

(By Lewis Milligan)

One of my first assignments as a reporter on the old Toronto Globe, before the First World War, was a meeting of the Single Tax Association. It was held in a small back room and the Association appeared to be on its last legs, for there were only half a dozen members present and those were in a state of advanced pessimism about the world in general.

When I returned to the office I told the editor I had nothing to report, and I asked him what Single Tax was. He was indignant and said, "Have you never read Henry George?" I admitted my ignorance and said I had no desire to read him if he was responsible for those cranks. At which my editor fell silent. I later discovered that he was himself a Single-Taxer.

Nothing But Taxes

Since then I have learned something about Henry George's theory of taxation and, although I do not agree with it, I think his idea of reducing taxes to a minimum was a good one. Sydney Smith thought so over a hundred years ago when he wrote: "Taxes on everything that enters the mouth, or covers the back, or is placed under foot. The schoolboy whips his taxed top, the beardless youth manages his taxed horse, with a taxed bridle on a taxed road; the dying Englishman, pouring his medicine, which has paid seven per cent, into a spoon that has paid fifteen per cent, and flings himself back on a chintz bed, which has paid twenty-two per cent, and expires in the arms of an apothecary who has paid a licence of a hundred pounds for the privilege of putting him to death."

But when Sydney Smith wrote that there was no income tax, except as a temporary levy in time of war, and since then the number and variet yof taxes, licences, etc., etc., have multiplied out of all counting. Indeed, taxation has developed into a vast governmental enterprise. In Canada there is a regular scramble for taxes, with federal, provincial and municipal governments competing with each other for the privilege of taking more and more money out of the people's pockets. And they tell us it is all for our own good—they call it "welfare." Our Finance Minister told us quite frankly that we had too much money and he was budgeting to tax away our surplus into the federal treasury. He got our surplus all right and left us with a deficit.

To those of us who are not economists, the theory that the people have too much money seems rather odd in view of the incessant demands for higher wages by labor unions on the ground that their members have not enough money to live on. They claim, of course, that they are not getting a fair share of the profits from their labor. Their employers, on the other hand, complain that the government is filching their profits and working capital by excessive taxation.

Not a Cure

In its efforts to reconcile these conflicting claims, the government is distributing money in the form of bonuses, subsidies and large spending, and thus putting the money back into circulation which it took out of circulation by anti-inflation taxes. This homeopathic treatment of trying to cure inflation by counter-inflation has only aggravated the disease.

According to official statistics, federal, provincial and municipal governments collected from the Canadian people six billion dollars last year in taxes. The total earnings of the people for that period was $17.2 billion, and the six billion dollars extracted from that sum meant that the governments of Canada took 35 cents out of every dollar earned, or more than one dollar in every three. Those governments spent a total of $4.9 billion and their combined surpluses amounted to over a billion dollars. These figures suggest that the high cost of government in Canada has something to do with the high cost of living, and that high taxes themselves are inflationary. The recent removal of credit restrictions seems to me to be an admission by the government that it has taken too much money out of people's pockets by taxation.

With Canadians in Korea

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—Canadian infantrymen recently went into battle wearing body armor.

The experiment was tried by the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment on the suggestion of Commonwealth Division headquarters.

A patrol led by Lieut. Graham Herman of River Hebert, N.S., the night of June 23 wore the vests of laminated steel covered by a nylon-duck fabric. The vests, which "zip" up the front to a tight-fitting collar, are United States Army equipment and were loaned to the division for trials.

(It is reported that the Canadian Army also is producing a type of armor vest for infantrymen, and that prototypes are expected shortly for trials in Korea.)

Has Two Types

The U.S. army has two types—one anti-shrapnel and the other anti-small arms. The Van Doos wore the anti-shrapnel kind on their June 23 patrol.

It was a dark, hot summer's night and enough hell broke loose about the operation to give the armor a fair work-out.

Herman's mission was to get a prisoner from an enemy position 500 yards ahead of the Van Doo outposts. It meant more than 1,500 yards of uphill cross-country travel.

The men touched the foresight blades of their rifles with white paint to sharpen their aim in the blackness of the night

It was a steep climb to the first Communist bunkers. The Van Doos hit nothing.

They climbed higher.

"We got within 25 yards of the main position," said Herman, "before they opened up."

Then we ran into it. We were pinned down. We took another bound, and were within 15 yards when we had our first wounded. I sent three down with Cpl. Fontaine (Cpl. J.C. Fontaine of Ste. Hyacinthe, Que.)"

Then, for the third time in as many patrols, the Canadians encountered the Communists' ew super-concussion weapon. It packs blast enough to bowl a man over, with wounding effect ranging from considerable to negligible, depending on fragmentation.

Said Herman, "we now call them 'six-pounders' — they must have at least six pounds of high explosive in them."

Killed In Assault

Dugal (L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City) charged forward and was killed as he was getting his first rounds away.

Also killed in the assault was Pte. J.G. Tremblay of Amos, Que.

"While we were reorganizing, Pte. Conrad Desroches (of Esquimalt, B.C.) came up and said, 'I'm going to get Tremblay, whether you tell me to or not.'

"I told him I wouldn't stand in his way. But he wasn't able to make it."

Of Herman's original 20, all he had left for the final rush to the top were six—himself, Desroches, Fontaine and Ptes. Gaston Decourcey, Quebec; Joseph Barbeau of Grand'mere, Que., and A.M. Boissoneault of St Apolinaire, Que.

"We went straight up. But we got as far as the same place, and got the same treatment—but good. We were pinned again, made another bound, were pinned again—and then all hell broke loose.

"We were trying to figure out the next move when the colonel (Lt-Col. Louis Trudeau of Quebec) pulled us back.

"It was hop-scotch with Chinese mortar and machine-gun fire all the way back."

Medically, the armor vests had been a success. None of the three killed and five wounded had been injured in chest or back. The third man killed. Pte. Bill Fong of Montreal—who had served with the Van Doos as a sergeant in Italy—died of a head injury. Other wounds were of the head and limb type.

Opinions Divided

Operationally, opinions are divided as to the first work-out.

Senior officers feel that the vests, which weigh only eight pounds, are worth that in gold for the confidence they lend the soldier.

But the men who carried them said they found them too warm, and that while they were loose and roomy, nonetheless the soldier felt constricted in them.

Ironically, no soldier was spared injury by the vests alone—none was found who would have been a casualty had he not worn one.

But unquestionably those who severely wouded than they would have been without them.

Bladder Campion Hard to Control

TORONTO — Bladder Campion is a perennial which, once established on a farm, is extremely difficult to eradicate. Indeed, W. S. Young, Fieldman for the Crops Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, states that it is the most troublesome weed of the Cockle family. It spreads both by means of its running root stalks and the copious amount of seed it produces. He adds that a further complication in eradicating the weed, is that it is almost impossible to remove the seed of Bladder Campion from Clover and Timothy with ordinary seed cleaning mills.

This weed grows as a freely branching plant up to two feet high. Its smooth oval leaves are arranged in pairs on opposite sides of the stem and the white flowers are borne in loose, drooping clusters. After the petals drop, an inflated calyx develops in the shape of a bladder from which the weed gets its name.

Mr. Young says that the control of Bladder Campion starts with the use of clean forage seed, in order to prevent introducing the weed to the farm. If a few small patches are present, the plants may be dug out or sprayed with a chlorate weed killer. Unfortunately 2-4,D does not give satisfactory control.

He recommends that, if the field is badly infested with Bladder Campion, it should be cut early, particularly if it is in hay. Then the field can be plowed and deep cultivation carried on till freeze-up. Cultivation should be started as early as possible the following spring, and carried on till the field is seeded, preferably to a row crop. In suggesting the use of a row crop, Mr. Young feels that cultivation can be carried on throughout the summer, thus keeping the weed under control. If the weed still persists, short rotations including cultivated crops will assist in freeing the farm of this purge. However, Mr. Young states that there is no easy or fast method of clearing up Bladder Campion, once it has become established on the farm.

Pulled Harder Than Red Police

Donald MacDonald, Sydney, N.S., prevented Soviet police from East Berlin from carrying off Olaf Englund, president of the Swedish Salaried Employees Association, into the East Zone. In Berlin for conference with 100 other trade unionists, MacDonald and Englund were on a bridge separating East and West Berlin when a policeman attempted to pull the Swede into the East sector. MacDonald pulled harder than the policeman. — Central Press Canadian.

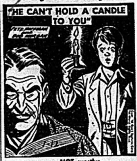
Why We Say--



"HE CAN'T HOLD A CANDLE TO YOU"

. . . NOT worthy

This expression is used today to refer to someone who does not equal your ability in some sphere. The saying alludes to the typical apprentice or boy servant in England who was given the task of holding a candle while his master read books.

No English or Scottish peer can be elected to the House of Commons, but non-representative Irish peers are eligible.

Women of The Moose

On Sunday afternoon a pretty and colorful ceremony took place in Moose Hall on Victoria Avenue when the officers of the chapter for the ensuing year were installed. The officers and co-workers were a pleasing sight in their long gowns of white and pastel shades, each with a corsage of red roses.

The installing officers were, chairman, Kathleen Donovan; regent, Emily Jeffery; chaplain, Lena Connell guide, Gladys Ritch, and the new officers were, Sr. Rgt., Mary Peoples; Jr. Rgt., Olive Roth; chaplain, Emily Jeffery; recorder, Nellie Scrymgeour; treasurer, Lena Connell; guide, Gladys Ritch; assistant guide, May Lenhan; argus, Mary Haslip; sentinel, Luella Bull.

Plans were made for an installation banquet to be held at the Golden Acre Inn in the near future. Co-worker Luella Downs is to look after same with co-worker Margaret Mallette, assisting.

The chairman of the "Shooting Stars" show, Kathleen Donovan, congratulated every member or anyone who had helped in any way with the show as there was a lot of hard work and time spent on the same to make it a success.

An apron donated by co-worker Mary Van Dusen, was drawn for, with Jr. Rgt. Olive Roth, holding the lucky ticket.

The meeting was then closed by the chaplain.

HOW IT WAS IN '42

MONTREAL (CP) — The "red light" district in Montreal's north-central area was so wide open around 1942 that one bawdy house operated a loud speaker inviting patrons in from the street, Dave Rochon, City Councillor, testified yesterday before Montreal's vice inquiry. The inquiry is into alleged non-enforcement by the police of anti-vice laws for a period of years prior to 1945.

It was decided to ask for the extension service "Aids To Effective Speaking" Part 1, for either October 9, or 16, of this year.

A committee was appointed to make arrangements for a bus trip to Peterborough during the 2nd week of July.

Mrs. G. Bartindale, and Mrs. H. Coulter, who were delegates to the Provincial Conference in Guelph, on May 1st and 2nd, gave complete reports on that conference.

Mrs. J. Campbell reported many current events of local interest.

After the meeting adjourned, the hostess and committee served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

The July meeting on "Agriculture" under the convenership of Mrs. F. Lindenfield will be held at Mrs. N. Parks' home.

MELROSE W.I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Melrose Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. J. English with an attendance of 26 members and 18 children present. Mrs. A. English, the president, was in charge of the meeting.

One minute's silence was observed in honor of a former member, Mrs. C. English, who passed away last month.

A discussion was held regarding a display to be shown at Shannonville Fair and any member who carees to donate any article was asked to put a price tag on same for sale, but any article shown does not necessarily have to be for sale.

Some current events were read by Mrs. W. Embury.

The motto "Cross the Bridge With Me", was given by Mrs. C. Weese.

Mrs. K. McMechan, the leader gave a reading "How Do You Rate as a Parent?" Mrs. N. DeMill followed with "Twelve Ways to Kill the Institute".

Mrs. R. MacFarlane gave a paper on "Housecleaning", followed by a poem "The World is Mine", by Mrs. F. MacFarlane.

A scrap book on the Royal Family was on exhibit and Mrs. E. Lazier gave an interesting talk on the Royal Family followed by a contest which was won by Mrs. C. Weese.

A "Guessing Box", was passed around and each person who guessed had to pay five cents. The lucky winner, Mrs. R. McLaren, received the prize.

Afternoon tea was enjoyed and a social half hour was spent.

NOISIER BELLS FOR U.S.

LONDON (AP)—R. A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, gave British bicycle bell makers a tip yesterday on how to sell in the United States market: "Make the bells a little bigger and a little noisier than the ones for the home market." Butler told the National Union of Manufacturers one small bicycle bell maker adopted that as his motto and is doing well.

Food for Thought

Home Freezing Guidance

The readers are getting ahead of the writer or the students are forging beyond the teacher or modern preserving methods are becoming so varied there isn't space in food columns to keep pace with the rapid progress—or maybe I'm sleeping at the switch.

Anyway—here's the second instalment of deep freeze instructions that were requested by Mrs. Irving L. and others.' I want to thank her again for jarring me into giving you these.

Last week I gave you detailed instructions for freezing blueberries, sour cherries, yellow peaches, raspberries, strawberries, asparagus, snap and lima beans. Then I ran out of space. Now I have some more.

Broccoli—Select tight medium-sized heads, newly cut. Immerse broccoli heads in solution of 1-2 cup salt to 2 quarts water for 1-2 hour to remove insects. Wash under running water, trimming of any woody portions. Scald 5 minutes in boiling water, using cheesecloth bag or wire basket to hold vegetables. Chill in ice water at once for 2 minutes, moving vegetables in container in ice water to speed cooling. Drain. An efficient method for broccoli is to wrap in moisture-vapor-proof freezer paper or cellophane. Fold sides of paper towards centre, over broccoli, roll up and seal. Use an outer wrapping of stockinette or locker paper, to protect package. Freeze at once.

Brussels Sprouts—Same as for broccoli—using dark green freshly cut sprouts, trimmed as for table use.

Carrots—Use only young small, freshly dug carrots. Never freeze mature carrots. Wash and scrape and sort for even size. Scald in boiling water 3 minutes. Chill in ice water (using cheesecloth bag or wire basket for container). Handle only 1 lb. at a time. Alternate tops and bottoms when packing in freezing boxes. Pack tightly. Freeze immediately.

Whole Grain Corn—Scald on the cob 1 1-2 minutes. Corn should be newly gathered and young. Milk is thin when corn is young. Chill 7 minutes. With sharp knife cut off kernels not too close to cob. Pick out bits of silk or cob among kernels. Package. Freeze.

Corn on Cob—Same as whole grain corn. Alternate each cellophane wrapped cob, with a base end beside a tip end. Wrap several cellophane-wrapped cobs together in locker paper. Be sure cobs are thoroughly cool before wrapping and freezing.

Green Peas—Peas must always be immature and gathered early in morning. Wash and shell at once. Scald shelled peas in blanching bag or basket in boiling water 1 minute. Chill 1 minute. Drain. Package. Do not do more peas than will take one hour between packaging time and freezing.

Pumpkin — Well-ripened winter pumpkins only. Peel, cut in 1-inch cubes, cook till tender. Cool. Force through sieve. Add spices and salt as required for pie. Package. Freeze.

Squash — Select immature squash. Test this by piercing with finger nail. It should puncture easily. Wash with brush. Same as pumpkin from here on but do not add spices and salt.

Sweet Potatoes—Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hour. Cool. Remove skin. Cut in 1-2-inch slices lengthwise or quarters. Roll each piece in granulated sugar. Package. Freeze.

Mrs. Irving L. asked for freezing instructions for pastry, sandwiches, fillings, etc.

Wrapping of cooked foods is of utmost importance—Moisture will evaporate from cooked foods causing them to dry out and lose flavor and texture unless perfectly air-tight so use moisture-vapor-proof locker papers.

Freeze pies after baking—Double-crust pies are best for freezing. Fruit or berry or mince pies are best. Optimum freezer life of a fruit or berry pie is 2 1-2 months. Mince pies keep well for 4 months. The only precaution you should observe in making berry pies is to add extra thickener—instead of 2 tablespoons flour or cornstarch or minute tapioca add 4 tablespoons. Use same shortening as you do for fresh pies—preferably dehydrated.

Sandwich filling for frozen sandwiches—Cream cheese, tuna fish, crabmeat, lobster, devilled ham, peanut butter and chopped egg are good. Toasted sandwiches are highly recommended. Wrap and seal and pack in large freezer box that will hold about 6 2-slice sandwiches. Be sure package is completely moisture-proof.

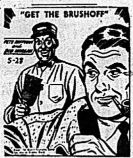
Fashion Flashes

COMES THE OCCASION when that nice little Summer bag of straw or plastic just won't do. For important daytime costumes, there's a treasure chest box-bag of washable white calf, the curved lid richly hand-tooled in gold.

COOLISH DAYS bring out many faille suits in town, but too many of them look alike, giving an impression of a uniform. Something different is a gay faille suit with an all-over embroidered cord pattern that lends a quilted appearance.

GOING NICELY with navy, white, black or gray is a cardigan of golden yellow woolknit, the front appliqued with white cotton lace, lightly studded in tiny pearls and rhinestones. Good shipboard or resort number!

A NICE DESIGN for the larger woman is a sun dress of white cotton with an airy, over-all pattern of red carnations and buds with green leaves and stems. What we like is the fact that the halter bodice has shoulder straps wide enough to hide lingerie, and that the dress is cut fairly high in back. Skirt has unpressed pleats.



. . . Train talk

This expression started in the 1900's with pullmon porters who were said to give their best service to "high tippers", while other passengers would be dismissed at the end off a trip with just a quick brushoff with a whisk broom.

Skin Eruptions

Not only does MOONE'S EMERALD OIL promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds but boils and simple ulcers are also relieved.

In skin affections the itching of Eczema is quickly stopped. Pimples—skin eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum, Itching Toes and Feet and other inflammatory skin disorders.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Jilted Because She Was An Adopted Child

It scarcely seems possible, but it actually happened.

A young girl who apparently has all the qualities that a young man should want in a wife has been rejected by her fiance for just one reason—that she was an adopted child. It was the young man's family that broke up the romance on this ground alone. How cruel can parents be

The foster mother of the girl, who is now in college, writes me story:

"My husband and I had no children of our own, and because we loved children we adopted a baby, less than a year old, whose parents had been killed. She has turned out one of the finest and most intelligent young women I have ever known.

"During her school days she was loved by teachers and classmates alike, and in her senior year of high school, she started dating a boy several years older than she. We thought he was a fine boy. After 18 months of happy companionship, they became engaged and set the date for their marriage. My daughter was planning her wedding and had invited the friends she wanted to be her wedding attendants.

"Then all of a sudden, she came home one night, crying. She said her fiance had told her their wedding would have to be postponed; that she should go on to college as she had planned, and they would marry as soon as she had graduated. By then, he said, he would have saved enough money so they could go to housekeeping."

"Although my daughter was deeply hurt, embarrassed, and quite bewildered by this sudden turn of events she did as he suggested and went on to college. She accepted his point of view and began planning again for the future, using money of her own to buy silver, household linens, china and practically everything they would need for their house except furniture.

"However this boy gradually saw less and less of her, stopped writing to her entirely and had no contact with her other than a very infrequent phone call. We were all at a loss to know what the trouble was until finally a friend of ours, who was also a friend of Bob's family, came to us and told us that Bob's father objected to his marrying an adopted girl about whose family history he knew nothing.

"This experience has made our daughter lose all faith in men. She dates other boys but says she will never trust another as long as she lives. She is now seeing a lot of a fine boy, a college graduate who is working on his master's degree. They both will finish their studies about the same time. He knows she is adopted. He wants to give her a ring, but she will not accept it because of her past experience.

"Do you think it possible that she never will forget that first love affair? Our feeling is that the first boy is not worth worrying over or he would never have permitted his father to come between him and the girl he loved. Do you agree?"

I certainly do agree. And to your other question about whether or not it is possible that your daughter can never forget her disillusioning experience, I would say this: That while of course she will never forget it, since none of us ever forget crises in our lives, in time, as she matures, I am sure she will come to realize that the untrustworthy people in the world are far outnumbered by the trustworthy.

If the young man who is now courting her is understanding, tender, loyal and, above all, very, very patient, there is every reason to believe that he will eventually win hr over. He, probably more than anyone else, can do much to rebuild her faith in men, if he consistently shows these qualities. If you have not already done so, it might be useful if you could sometime manage to have a quiet little talk with this young man pointing out all his to him. And as for your daughter, you might just once drop into her mind one question, which, cliche though it be might still have its own effect. Ask her is she would never eat another apple in all her life because she had once found a bad one in a barrelful.

GOOD MANNERS

Correct For a Widow's Son to Give Her in Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been a widow for ten years, and now I am planning to be married in about two months. A very simple, small, informal wedding in the chapel of the church to which my fiance and I have both belonged for many years. I have a 22-year-old son, my only child. He and I are devoted to each other, he and my fiance are great friends (they have such good times together, fishing, hunting and so forth), and he is most enthusiastic about our marriage. So it seems to me the most natural thing in the world that he give me in marriage. But he maintains that it is not correct for him, connected with my first marriage, to have a part in my second marriage. I've told him that I'm asking you about this, and he promises to abide by what you advise. So, Mrs. Beeckman? S. E. S.

Please assure your son that he is not right in his point of view. He is the one who should escort you up the aisle, and have the honor of giving you in marriage. Since he is your son, your only son, for him not to do this might, and most unfortunately, suggest that he disapproves of your marriage. (If you had not told me of his approval of your marriage, I would have thought his hesitation might mean his disapproval.) Please explain to him, too, that I believe he may be confused between the correct procedure at the wedding of a widow and of a divorcee...when the bride is a divorcee it is not good taste for her to be given in marriage by a son by her former marriage, or to have any of her children as attendants.

Men in Wedding Party All Wear White Dinner Jackets, or All Wear Black Jackets

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

My wedding is to be the last week in July, in church, in the evening at 8 o'clock. The wedding party will consist of a maid of honor, two bridesmaids, a flower girl, best man, and four ushers. My fiance and I think it would be a good idea for him to wear a white dinner jacket with black tuxedo trousers, and for the other men in the wedding party (best man and ushers) to wear black dinner jackets. But we have been told by several friends that this would not be correct. What is your advice?

Annie L.

The groom, best man, and ushers should all wear white dinner jackets, or all wear black dinner jackets. It would definitely not look right for the groom to wear a white dinner jacket, and for the best man and ushers to wear black dinner jackets. The only difference in dress between the groom and the other men in the wedding party is a difference of boutonnieres.

In Processional, Junior Bridesmaids, no Senior Bridesmaids

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) In my August wedding I sional be correct; the two junior bridesmaids only, no other bridesmaids. Would this be proper? (2) If so would this processional be correct: the tow junior bridesmaids (age 13); next, the maid of honor; next, the two flower girls; last, bride and father?

(1) Yes, if you choose, it is correct to have junior bridesmaids only. (2) Any ushers? If so, they lead the procession, two by two. Then the rest of the processional as you have indicated.

Congregation Honors Retiring Minister

Despite the unusually hot and humid evening, the members and friends of Wesley United Church, Bayside, assembled in good numbers to bid farewell to the Rev. A. C. McCallum and his sister, Mrs. H. J. Mooney, who are leaving the Bayside pastoral charge at the end of June. Mr. McCallum is retiring from the active ministry of the church after 37 years' service.

Mr. Harold Gooding, clerk of session, occupied the chair. In his opening remarks, he explained that the purpose of the social evening was to pay tribute to their minister, who had so faithfully served the congregation for the past eight year; also to his sister, Mrs. Mooney, for her untiring efforts in the women's organizations of the church.

Interesting Program

An interesting and entertaining program of vocal and instrumental music, included two duets by the Misses Lorna Wallis and Barbara Christopher, accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Downey, and two pianoforte solos by Mrs. Harold Hancock, of Centenary. All these items were much enjoyed, as was evidenced by the rounds of applause following each number. As a further entertainment, two film strips were shown with Mr. Gooding at the projector.

Mr. McCallum and Mrs. Mooney were asked to occupy special seats at the front of the church, when Mr. J. L. Stewart, secretary of the Board of Stewards, read an address expressing the regret of all in the pending departure of their minister, and his sister, and deep appreciation for the services so faithfully and efficiently rendered.

Presentation Made

Mr. Everett Windover, on behalf of the congregation, presented Mr. McCallum with a well-filled purse as a token of their esteem, for which Mr. McCallum in his reply, thanked the donors and referred to the happy associations of the past, and to the many manifestations of kindness shown to himself and to his sister. He also attributed any degree of success to the hearty co-operation of the congregation, paying special tribute to the Session members and the Board of Stewards for their constructive efforts in connection with the church property and the general welfare of the church.

"I know," he said, "we are leaving behind us many kind friends, and we also feel sure you will manifest the same warm-hearted affection to my successor."

Mrs. Mooney was the recipient of a beautifully designed English china cup and saucer. Mrs. H. M. Rutter, president of the Woman's Association, read an address and Mrs. Fred Denyes made the presentation. In her reply, Mrs. Mooney thanked the ladies for all their kindnesses and invited them to visit her in her new home in Trenton.

As a fitting postlude to the evening, the congregation sang, "Bless Be the Tide That Binds". Mr. McCallum offered prayer and pronounced the benediction.

The ladies served strawberries and ice cream with lemonade and cake. A social hour was enjoyed by all.

The Rev. W. T. Middleton, B.A., of Newboro, Ontario, will take over the pastoral duties next Sunday.

Finnish Beauty is "Miss Universe"

Armi Kussela, 19-year-old Finnish entry in the beauty contest at Long Beach, Cal., is Miss Universe now. In winning the title, she has, among other prizes, an offer of a $250-a-week job at a Hollywood movie studio. But she hasn't made up her mind to accept the offer. She may go back to Finland to be a gymnastic teacher. — Central Press Canadian.

Mrs. Young graciously thanked the ladies for their thoughtful gesture.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and a social half hour was spent.

HILLIER LADIES' GUILD

The Hillier Guild met recently in the church basement for its regular monthly meeting with 19 present. The president, Mrs. Weese, opened the meeting. Psalm 32 was read. Rev. J. Heaven led the devotional period. Roll call, secretary's and treasurer's reports were given and approved.

It was decided to hold an afternoon tea on July 9th. in Hillier Hall. Miss Ruth Kerr sang which was much enjoyed by all. Refreshments were served and Mr. Heaven closed the meeting.

WHITE'S SUNBEAM M.B.

White's District — The Sunbeam Mission Band held its June meeting at Quinte View School on Wednesday afternoon with the president, Asa Copeland, in the chair.

The Bible stories: "Jesus Choose Four Friends," "Jesus Preaches from a Boat" and "The Story of the Loaves and Fishes" were read by Barbara Shoemaker, Anne Blong and Gary Reid. All joined in singing "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross" and Sandra Farrar led in prayer. The offering was dedicated by the leader.

The roll call was answered with a donation of one cent.

The invitation of Mrs. Clifton Rush to be present at her home for a picnic on Wednesday, July 2nd. was accepted.

Mrs. Leonard Young read "Suppose," "What's Your Name?", and the Study Book, 'The Twins Make Friends."

Contests were enjoyed by Grades 1-2 forming words from a picture; Grades 3-5 telling the story of a picture and Grades 6-8, the names of girls and boys. The winners were Nancy Hockaday, Diane Dale and Barbara Shoemaker.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — Ontario has many beauty spots, but few are more lovely than the Trent River Valley along the famous "Iroquois Trail."

This summer, an extensive clean up campaign is in full swing along Highway 33 in the stretch between Trenton and Frankford. Underbrush has been cleared away all along the river, giving motorists a good view of the stream at all points. Guard fences are being erected in all danger spots, and the generous application of white paint to roadside fences and sign posts adds to the beauty of the drive.

Unfortunately, residents of the district take the "Iroquois Trail" for granted, and will drive for miles to see country which cannot begin to compare in beauty with this part of the Trent River Valley. American tourists and visitors from other parts of the province say that the drive from Trenton to Stirling via. Highway 33 is one of the most beautiful trips one could make. Perhaps it's about time some residents in this district woke up to the fact that they have something to really be proud of in the "Iroquois Trail."

Presentation

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery Thursday evening to say "au revoir" to Shirley Fox, who leaves Frankford this year after teaching for two years in the Batawa Public School. Shirley has made a host of friends in the village and will always be welcome in Frankford.

Shirley has been the joint leader of the United Church C. G. I. T. and a member of the Frankford Bowling League. Next season she will be teaching in a Trenton school and everyone hopes that Shirley will still be able to take part in her activities in Frankford.

The group enjoyed piano selections by Lelia Wyatt, following which all took part in a couple of games.

Shirley was presented with a desk set, and a brooch from the "gang" as a parting gift. She thanked everyone for the presents.

Refreshments were served to complete a most enjoyable evening.

The pupils of Mrs. Arbuckle's class of the Frankford Public School held a picnic in the Frankford Memorial Park on Friday morning, the last day of school. Games and races were enjoyed by the pupils as well as the picnic lunch.

A Donkey for a Democrat

The summer rally of the Kingston Presbyterial W.M.S. met in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Trenton, last week. An executive meeting was held at 11 o'clock at which the president, Mrs. C. A. Smart, presided.

Following a delicious luncheon served by the Trenton ladies, the president opened the regular session with the call to worship: "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that He send forth laborers into His vineyard", then do all you can to answer your own prayer, pledge yourselves to this work of the utmost importance.

Devotions

The devotions were by Mrs. Clifford Glenn, of Amherst Island, and taken from Psalm 100. Mrs. Glenn presented three aspects of this matter; the W.M.S. should be a great league of prayer; it should look upon the financial allocation and giving as an act of worship, as well as an obligation; and it must seek out leaders and officers who will regard their work as a divine trust and as a call from God to serve Him.

The Rev. R. C. MacLean, of Trenton, welcomed the rally and hoped that new life might be revived.

An "In Memoriam" service for the late Mrs. M. W. Heslip, of Madoc, who was 1st vice-president and a former president of the Barrie Presbyterial, was conducted by Mrs. Smart, who paid a great tribute to the life and work of Mrs. Heslip in the W.M.S. and Mission Bands and work of the children, and of her own congregation.

Mrs. Heslip possessed a rare loving heart and untiring zeal for the W.M.S. A prayer and hymn closed this service.

Miss M. Nesbitt gave an encouraging financial report, Mrs. M. Penwarden's report for the membership drive, was read by Mrs. J. Roth.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Miss G. Irvine, was introduced by Mrs. Smart. Miss Irvine is youth secretary of Toronto, and was assisted by Mrs. H. Keefer, in giving a playlette, which was most instructive, consisting of an attempt to convince a worldly lady who had called one afternoon, that there was something worth while in the work of the W.M.S.

Miss Irvine's wide knowledge of the facts and figures concerning the work in the various fields made her reasoning all the more convincing. Mrs. Keefer (the lady who called), also emphasized a truth when she said that "surely Presbyterians are the world's best advertisers."

Mrs. W. H. V. Walker thanked the speakers, and Mrs. J. W. MacDonald gave the highlights of the synodical in Lindsay, and pleaded for more interest in the work of the welcome and welfare departments. Love and kindness should reign throughout with one's hand in that of God; one should go forth glean.

Reports of the secretaries included those by Mrs. M. Houston, for the Evening Auxiliaries; Mrs. Milton Shaw, for Girls' Work; Miss B. Fleming for Mission Bands; Mrs. Pigden for Home Helpers; Miss Tena Watts, for Library and Literature.

Fine Book Display

Miss Watts had a fine display of books; Mrs. Baragar reported for Welcome and Welfare, and requested that a close record be kept of sick calls made. Miss M. MacIntosh, for Glad Tidings, expressed a great need for an increase of subscriptions; Miss M. P. M. Henry reported for the press, and asked that reports be sent in early to avoid the Christmas heavy mails.

Mrs. W. Shaw, the historian secretary, reported two anniversaries for the year.

The reports of the auxiliaries' presidents were presented, and the report of the executive meeting. It was decided to hold the next executive meeting on November 17th, at Kingston, and the annual meeting in Belleville in January.

Mrs. Gollan asked that each auxiliary send its bale direct to the Mission field and pay its own freight, but to send to her the report of the same. Mrs. Gollan will send each auxiliary full instructions as to what mission the bale is to be sent.

Mrs. George Darling's resignation from the nominating committee was accepted with regret. Mrs. F. Fleming was asked to assist Mrs. Penwarden on this committee. The Picton women invited the rally next year to Picton.

Mrs. Smart, after thanking all individual members for their share in this noble work, urged them to carry on to the full measure of their ability.

Mr. MacLean closed the meeting, following which, the Trenton ladies served a cup of tea, and a fine spirit prevailed.

MAN SHOT TO DEATH

COLLINGWOOD (CP)—Douglas Young, 50, was found in the cellar of his home yesterday, shot to death. Police said they were unable to decide whether he fired the .22-calibre bullet that killed him into his own chest. The rifle was found in the cellar. An autopsy will be performed. Young, a railway employee, was the father of two girls.

Pearson Suggests Patron Saint For Jittery Age

CALGARY (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson last night suggested a patron saint for this jittery age: St. Vitus.

St. Vitus dance is the common name for a disease involving nervous twitches. Mr. Pearson nominated the saint, speaking to the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, because of the "tense and impatient" nature of the times.

He also proposed a variation on grace before meals, for those interested in social-welfare benefits:

"For what we are about to receive, make us truly conscious of the fact that we will have to pay for it."

International Conference Of Canadian, U.S., Overseas Mayors May be Convened

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP)—An international conference of Canadian, American and overseas mayors may be held next year at Montreal.

George Mooney of Montreal, executive director of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said yesterday the idea may be adopted before the Federation winds up its annual convention here tonight.

Mr. Mooney said the Federation hopes to hold an international conference in 1953 which will be attended by the United States Minister and the premiers of France and Great Britain.

The international meeting would be held in two parts. The Canadian the representatives of all counties consider Canadian problems, and the represetatives of all countries would meet to consider problems common to all.

The final day of the conference is crowded with last-minute business. There is a discussion on ways to meet the problems of municipal growth, a speech by Mr. Justice Sir Brian Dunfield of the Newfoundland Supreme Court, decision on several resolutions and election of officers.

Yesterday, External Affairs Minister Pearson told the delegates the Allies should soon reach the point where they need not rely on the atom bomb to deal with Russia. But he warned that their biggest mistake would be in yielding to the temptation to cut down on the Defence Program

"The danger remains great and pressing," he said.

On recent events in Korea, Mr. Pearson told reporters Canada had not been consulted on the bombing of power installations on the Yalu River, but "a strong case for argument exists for the opinion that it was strictly a military decision."

Sees Retaliation

He said the Chinese Reds might attacks for the Yalu River air attacks by bombing South Korean ports from Manchurian bases.

He declined to say whether he agreed Manchuria should then be attacked, commenting: "We can't expect the air force to sit back and do nothing."

Princess Beatrix Performs First Public Duty

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—Crown Princess Beatrix, 14, performed her first public duty alone yesterday when she opened the miniature four-acre model city of Madurodam.

The model has been built as a memorial to a young college-boy hero, George Maduro, who died in the Nazis' Buchenwald concentration camp.

The Princess was installed as first burgomaster of the tiny but complete municipality which has its own airport and harbors, streetcar and bus services and a 1¼-mile electric-railway system

A miniature pine forest has been planted as the gift of Mrs. J. E. Read, wife of the Canadian judge on the International Court at The Hague. It is a memorial to their son, killed in the battle of the Falaise Gap in 1944 and to all Canadians killed in Holland in the Second World War.

Charges Denied By Premier Of Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S (CP)—Charges that "wild government spending" had brought Newfoundland to a shaky financial position were hurled at the Liberal administration yesterday by Progressive Conservative leader Peter J. Cashin.

The charges were denied by Premier Smallwood as the stormy Throne Speech debate continued in the second day of a special session of the Legislature, called to authorize a $10,000,000 provincial bond issue.

Mr. Cashin started a sharp flurry with a claim that the government had "made away with" nearly $40,000,000 since coming into power.

"We loaned quite a bit," said Premier Smallwood. "That's not gone. We invested quite a bit, and that's not gone either."

PLAN FILM LECTURES

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Association of Film Councils and the Department of Education will sponsor institutes on films and community leadership at the University of Western Ontario, London, and Queen's University, Kingston. Lectures from July 17 to 20 at Western and Aug. 7 to 10 at Queen's will concern program planning for rural and urban groups.

Still Hope U.S. to Join Seaway

In Washington, still hoping that the U.S. will participate in the St. Lawrence seaway project, Canadian Ambassador Hume Wrong, Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier and U.S. Acting Secretary of State David Bruce, discuss the note in which Canada notified the U.S. that work on the project has been started. Congress can still order U.S. participation. — Central Press Canadian.

Sidelights on Canadians In Korean Fighting

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—Nine of 27 men wounded on a patrol by the 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment were able to avoid evacuation and to remain on duty with the battalion.

Of the 18 others several had to be rounded up by the medical officer, Maj. David Jeffey of Brockville, Ont., so they could be "sent down the line." After treatment they had gone back to their company to avoid evacuation. . .

The divisional artillery, directed by Capt. C. R. Davidson of West Kildonan, Man., laid down one of the heaviest Canadian barrages of the year to screen off the patrol's withdrawal after it was frustrated within an inch of success. The success. The smoke was so thick that at one point it was feared the Chinese might attempt to follow in behind it.

Other happenings that night:

The patrol planted a sign—cryptic, under the circumstances—telling the Chinese, "You ain't seen nothing yet." It was painted in Chinese characters.

Cut Hole In Cap

Sgt. B. C. Robinson of London, Ont., was knocked to the ground by an almost-spent piece of shrapnel which cut a hole in his cap but stopped just short of penetrating the flesh of his head.

Lieut. Bert Ritchie of Brantford. was knocked to the ground four times by concussion but not wounded.

Pte. J. A. Amero of Saint John, N.B., though wounded, carried another mah back to safety with him.

Regimental linemen, such as Pte. M. R. Cantwell of Ottawa, though wounded, maintained the patrol's telephone lines to the last

Pte. C. M. Ray of Dryden, though slightly wounded, left shortly after the operation to attend a driver-operator course at Kure, Japan.

The body of the one man killed on the patrol—Pte. A. J. Gosselin of Winnipeg—was retrieved by Sgt. J. L. Mazerall of Dalhousie, N. B, and two others. While they were carrying it down the steep, shrub-covered slope they were protected by a trio fighting a rearguard action. The three were the assault platoon leader, Lieut. E. Gibson Bauld of Halifax, Sgt Don Desroches of Vancouver and Cpl. Robert E. Clark of Komoka, Ont.

Although individuals on the patrol claimed a total of five Chinese killed, the battalion has not listed the claims.

WAR NURSE DIES

TORONTO (CP)—Margaret Isabel Thirsk, 72, awarded the Oak Leaf for bravery during the First World War, died yesterday in Sunnybrook veterans' hospital. Born in Mount Albert, Miss Thirsk trained as a nurse at Cobourg and later served at hospitals in St. Catharines, Chatham and Walkerton. She retired in 1925.

FIRE RAZES BARN

PORT DOVER (CP)—Five calves and a bull died yesterday in a $25,000 fire of undetermined origin which destroyed a barn on the farm of Lorne Roberts near here.

Trade Officials None Too Happy Over Controls

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian trade officials are none too happy about the latest modifications to United States cheese import controls, but there will likely be no more protests, not before the Presidential elections anyway.

The latest changes are contained in the U.S. controls legislation extended for 10 months last Monday. It continues the old quota restrictions but allows the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture to ease them by a maximum of 15 per cent if they are found to injure U.S. relations with foreign governments.

Officials here said yesterday the modifications make the restrictions a "little less onerous," but the fact that "quantitative restrictions" were not removed was "very disappointing."

The original quotas were fixed on the basis of shipments to the U.S. market during the three-year period, 1948-50 inclusive.

Canada exported only tiny amouts of cheese to the U.S. during that period and a result the quota was less than 2,000,000 pouds a year, far short of the amount available for shipment.

Canada, along with other dairy-exporting countries, protested against the curbs which they stated were breaches of the multi-lateral general agreement on tariffs and trade.

However, officials said that with a Presidential election coming up they could see little advantage in making any further protests until the political air clears.

B.C. Election Vote Count Starts That Will Decide Result of 44 of 48 Seats

VANCOUVER (CP)—Count of alternative choices marked on ballots cast in British Columbia's June 12 general election was to start today. It will decide the result in 44 of the 48 seats.

The count will probably take several days. Some returning officers said the results in all ridings may not be known until as late as July 31.

Before the second count could start today, the absentee ballots had to be added to the previous totals to make complete first counts in all ridings.

Defer New Counts

In big ridings, this may take several days. Returning officers in Vancouver constituencies said they do not expect to be able to start new counts until next week. Others said they will count first choices all over again before they start on new counts. For instance, Alan MacFarlane, returning officer for Victoria, said he will not be able to begin the second count until Saturday.

The new counts are made necessary by the province's use for the first time of the controversial alternative voting system.

First-count returns, completed only Monday, showed only four seats had been definitely decided. They went to three Social Crediters and C. C. F. leader Harold Winch.

Of the remaining 44, the C. C. F. was leading in 20, Social Credit in 11, Liberals in nine, Progressive Conservatives in three and Labor in one.

Pre-Vote Standing

Standing in the last Legislature was: Liberals 23, Progressive Conservatives 11, C. C. F. eight, Coalition three, Independent two and Labor one.

Under the alternative voting system, a candidate must have a majority of votes to win a seat.

Electors may mark their preferences for the various candidates on the ballot instead of simply putting an "X" beside the name of one candidate.

If a candidate doesn't have a majority of votes after the count of first choices, the candidate with the fewest number of votes is dropped and his ballots distributed among the other candidates as indicated by the preferences marked by electors. The process continues through a third or further counts until one candidate has more votes than all other candidates combined.

Old Cures Sometimes Worked

In out-of-the-way places home remedies are invariably tried before doctor is called, and some of the home cures do the trick admirably, Thyrza Young Burkitt writes in The Lethbridge Herald.

In the far north most of the remedies used by the Eskimo and the Indian are tried by the white people with good results.

Bear Remedy

A cure for boils, blood poison, proud flesh and the like is made from the gall bladder of the bear, (after the bear has been in hibernation all winter its bladder is much larger than at any other time.) For use it is shaved like soap. Then to these shavings alcohol or coal oil is added. The mixture thus formed is spread over the wound or otherwise diseased tissue. Then liquid balsam gum is poured over this. In a day or two this covering can be lifted off, with the proud flesh or other dead tissue adhering to it. The flesh beneath is left sterilized and in condition to heal rapidly.

The Indians in Alberta used to have several sweat baths on each reserve and used this substitute for the Turkish bath of the white man as a remedy for cold and other ailments.

Herbal remedies for external and internal use are made from plants found growing wild on the reservations. Powdered toadstools were supposed to stop bleeding.

When available warm blood was often given to the new-born papoose.

Anti-Rheumatism

Beds were placed on the ground. To ward off rheumatism, sciatica, etc., the Indians wore strings of beads, bracelets, necklet, rings, etc., of brass.

I wonder who remembers the old stocking foot filled with hot salt placed on the cheek, for that aching tooth, or on the ear for that earache.

The early-day mothers used to say that when the new baby cried often it was longing for something the mother wished for. Some women fed the child cooked rabbit's brains to satisfy this longing.

Some of us still have the scars from the assafetida or camphor bag worn around the neck as a preventive of contagious diseases.

When a child was born with a birthmark the mother was supposed to kiss the mark before breakfast each morning.

Butter for Bumps

Butter rubbed over a swelling bump would reduce the swelling.

Some of the pioneers carried potatoes in opposite pockets as a cure for rheumatism.

An idea of some grandmothers was to pierce the ears of a child for earrings, to strengthen its eyesight.

A piece of copper wire around the wrist and around the opposite ankle or one around each wrist was supposed to cure arthritis.

To remove ringworm one was advised to rub a copper penny on the diseased spot.

Garlic was eaten to bring down high blood pressure. Parsley was used to take odor away from the breath.

The rose colored leaf of the herb called the "horsemint" is called the "manikapi" by the Blackfeet Indians. It is gathered and placed in hot water, and is used as an eye wash to allay inflammation.

"Spy" Found Things Easy

A touch of realism was added to war exercises held in London, Eng. A "spy" landed unnoticed during the firing of anti-aircraft guns, collected information on a new type of airplane, and, firing a signal flame in the midst of the defenders, summoned an enemy helicopter and flew out. Here the spy nonchalantly climbs a ladder into the hovering helicopter. — Central Press Canadian.

Provincial Police Promise Patrols To Stop Rustling

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Provincial police have promised the Elgin Beef Cattle Producers' Club extra night patrols to guard against rustlers.

They said the modern rustler uses trucks to slip up to pasture fields at night. Choice steers or heifers, usually only one or two, are selected and butchered on the spot and hides with identifying brands or tattoos buried.

Livestock men in the area say they have noticed an increase in rustling as beef prices climb

CADI DISMISSES CHARGE

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Magistrate John Grudeff Monday dismissed a charge against Carol LeClair, 28-year-old dancer arrested June 21 at a reunion dinner of Windsor's Essex Scottish Regiment, of appearing in an indecent performance. He said there is no basis in Canadian law for the laying of the charge against the Detroit "exotic dancer."

Lawn Bulletin Now Available

TORONTO — A well-managed lawn adds value to both the city and farm home. It is the base on which trees, shrubs and flowers are set to make the home surroundings pleasing. These statements found in the introduction of the revised bulletin on Lawns which has just been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, emphasize the importance of good lawns. The remainder of this bulletin, which was prepared by J. C. Taylor and J. S. Shoemaker of the Department of Horticulture, Ontario Agricultural College, is devoted to giving ways of growing the kind of lawn we would all like to have.

The first section of this publication deals with establishing a new lawn. Consideration is given to soil preparation, the species of grass which may be used, methods of seeding, the use of sods and other items to be considered. Another section deals with the care of established lawns. In addition information is given on the control of weeds, insects and disease. Plenty of illustrations serve to show clearly how the jobs may be done and the results which may be obtained.

Those interested in establishing a new lawn or in improving an established lawn will find the publication helpful. It is Bulletin No. 448, entitled Lawns and is available to Ontario residents free of charge. It may be obtained from the Agricultural Representative in your County or District or from the Statistics and Publication Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario.

BOY CRUSHED BY SPOOLS

TORONTO (CP)—Danny Collins, 8, was crushed to death Monday between two huge spools of telephone cable wire. Police said boys were rolling the spools back and forth when he was trapped between two.

Spraying Better Than Burning Tent Caterpillars

TORONTO (CP)—Spraying is better than burning to combat tent caterpillars, officials of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests said today.

The department told the many persons suggesting fire control that such is "extremely dangerous." The flames will damage trees and, with the current dry weather, is likely to spread.

BIG STOCKPILE

PRETORIA, South Africa (CP) — Automatic telephone equipment valued at nearly 1,000,000 pounds is waiting here for buildings in which it can be installed. Postal authorities had built up a big supply of telephone material but the program of official buildings has lagged. New post office buildings may not be ready for months yet.

Rail Unions Seek $80 Million In Wages and Concessions

MONTREAL (CP)—Non-operating railway unions, representing 125,000 workers, today place before the railways wage demands that would total more tha $80,000,000 annually.

The submissions come as the unions open negotiations for a new contract to replace one expiring Sept. 1, and brought about by a federal arbitrator under the government's back-to-work legislation that ended the general rail strike of August, 1950.

Authoritative union informants, representing 18 unions, said these are the main points of the new submissions:

1. A general wage increase of more than 30 cents an hour.
2. The "union shop," under which employees in certain jobs must become union members.
3. The checkoff, whereby the companies would collect dues of union members.

In the August, 1950, settlement, the majority of employees got wage increases of 26 cents an hour generally, made up of a straight seven-cent-an-hour increase and a shortened work week that averaged another 19 cents.

One-Year Contract

It is understood that the unions seek a one-year contract, compared with previous two-year terms. Reason for this, union officials said, is that under the longer contract, wages have fallen behind living costs by some 20 cents an hour.

Based on figures used by the railways in the 1950 dispute, the request boost would cost the carriers about $125,000,000 as such increases are generally also given all 165,000 employees.

The total payroll of the two railways now is about $565,000,000—$350,000,000 for the Canadian National Railways and $215,000,000 for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Crawfords Whip Northern 13-11 For Third Win

By JACK BRETT

Sid Spiegel's Crawford Metals coming from behind, won their third game in 13 starts as they downed sixth place Northern Electric 13-11 in a Belleville and district Softball League game last night at the CNR recreation field.

Northern took an early lead in the first frame as two singles, a triple and a home run off the bat of DeRushie were good for four runs. Crawford's were blanked in the bottom half of the first. Crawfords yanked Kent from the mound in the second and replaced him with Massey. Upper and Temple walked, Taylor and Galbraith singled, Jeffries doubled and Duesbury pounded in a home run as Crawfords made it 6-4 in the bottom of the second.

Hatfield singled and Young doubled in the third to tie the score 6-6, and in the fourth Northern took the lead again as Doc Jones doubled, went to third on a passed ball and stole home to make it 7-6. Northern was blanked in the fifth. Two singles in the bottom of the fifth off the bats of Watson and Galbraith were good for two more tallies for Crawfords to put them in the lead again 8-7. Mulvihill's single for Northern tied the score again in the eighth.

Crawford's Score Five

Crawford's made their pitch in the bottom half of the sixth and put five runs across the plate on three doubles, an error and a walk to make it 13-8 for Crawford's. Northern rallied in the eighth with a triple, a double and a walk being good for three runs, to make the score 13-11.

Neither team scored again.

Kent started for Crawford's, striking out one, walking none and giving four hits for four runs. Massey relieved him in the second to strike out none, walk three and give up 10 hits for seven runs. For the losers Junior Day struck out none, walked two and gave up four hits for six runs in two innings. LeClerc went to the mound in the last of the second to strike out none, walk two and give up six hits for five runs. Holmes went to the mound for Northern in the sixth to strike out two, walk one and give up five hits for two runs.

Canuck Girls Par With Europeans Says Track Coach

TORONTO (CP)—Lloyd Percival, Toronto track and field coach, said last night he has received a cable from Britain containing information that indicates the records set by Mary Lawrence and Jo Brennan compare favorably with those set by the best women European athletes in the discus and shot put events.

A furore has been raised by the Canadian Olympic Association's action in leaving the two girls off Canada's Olympic team. Miss Lawrence, a Toronto girl, and Miss Brennan, who comes from Hamilton, broke Olympic standards and Canadian records in the shot put and discus, respectively, at the Olympic trials in Hamilton last week-end.

Outclassed Abroad

The Olympic selection committee said they were left off the team because it was believed they would be outclassed against international competition.

Percival, who coaches both girls, said the cable he received from Jack Crump, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Association in Britain, lists distances achieved by the 12 finalists in the shot put and discus in the 1948 Olympics and also the best marks achieved this year by the 10 top European women in each event.

Percival said the information shows that "both girls are of international standing, and would certainly reach the final in their events."

U.S. Decathlon Champion Sets New World Mark

TULARE, Calif. (AP)—Decathlon champion Bob Mathias set a world record of 7,825 points last night and with 18-year-old Milt Campbell and veteran Floyd Simmons, won berths on the United States Olympic decathlon team.

Mathias climaxed his greatest scoring spree with a tremendous javelin throw of 193 feet, 10⅝ inches that set the record after nine events, and added to it in the 1,500-metre run which would up his two-night, 10-event grind.

The javeline throw netted 713 points for 7,531 points and the 1,500 metres added 294 to erase the 7,444 world mark now on the books.

Campbell, high school star from Plainfield, N.J, finished second with 7,055, and Simmons, who finished third to Mathias in the 1948 Olympic Games, was third with 6,804.

Mathias won the Olympic decathlon with 7,139 points under a scoring system since downgraded. In 1950 Mathias recorded 8,042 but this total was scaled down to 7,444.

TAFT JUGGERNAUT

Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, here to help the Eisenhower forces, saw a marked movement toward the General. He stood by his own prediction of what will happen—40 delegates from various parts of the country will switch from Taft to Eisenhower after the first ballot.

Moreover, Dewey said even some of the governors supporting Taft were among the 23 governors who signed a statement at Houston, Tex., yesterday backing Eisenhower's views on the conduct of next week's convention.

The governors turned thumbs down on Taft's willingness to let contested delegates to the convention vote on the admission of other contested delegates.

The governors telegraphed a statement to Guy Gabrielson, chairman of the Republican National Committee, which said in part: "We believe that if the contested delegations are permitted to vote on the seating of other contested state delegations, the Republican party—no matter who may become the Republican nominee—would enter a vital and difficult campaign under a serious moral cloud."

One Taft aide, asking not to be identified, said the Senator was "dumbfounded" by the governors' action.

The issue of the states' disputes is an important one, involving 72 delegate seats from seven states. Three state contests have already been decided by the National Committee.

It voted to seat an 18-man Florida delegation, 14 of whom favor Taft. It unseated 14 Georgia delegates who favor Eisenhower, and ruled in favor of 17 Georgians who are solidly for Taft. And it decided in favor of one Eisenhower backer in a single contest in the Kansas delegation.

PETES TONIGHT!

The Redmen will be gunning for their sixth straight victory in overall competition and their seventh win in Central Ontario Baseball League circles here tonight when the Peterborough Petes are their guests at the Exhibition grounds. The Petes, who are rounding into a powerful squad, defeated the Kingston Monarchs in their last time out after absorbing some five defeats and will be out for Redmen diamond gore this evening. Rivalry is rather keeen between the two squads and each meeting thus far has produced one or more rhubarbs. The cry of "river" is usually heard when the Redmen-Petes clash so perhaps Lefty Whitman had better take along a pair of water-wings or a bathing suit, just in case. It should be a typical Belleville-Peterborough battle and that usually calls for plenty of action, excitement, good baseball and a flurry of fireworks. Game at 8:30.

UP, THE JUNIORS

The boys along the softball rialtos with memories of a former great junior softball team that brought the championship bacon to Belleville, are perking up their ears and eyebrows at the performances of the 1952 edition of the voteless buckaroos that wear the livery of McNevin's Glen Roys.

The youngsters at present leading the Belleville District Softball League have an enviable record in the won and lost column and bid fair to cop the city honors. They have a team batting average of approximately .290, a mark that would be considered good even in a Stalin loop. The two Bobs, Hunter and Green, have achieved fine hurling records todate while the team as a whole is well-balanced, and powerful in all departments.

The Glens will be the first juniors, we believe, to represent the city since a Belleville team ousted Hamilton in two straight games for the provincial title. The second game of the series had an aftermath that resulted in the suspension of a Hamilton manager and several of his players. Seems they "rung in a ringer," a bolo expert, which, after all, was a waste of time since the locals handed them a fancy trimming on the Alemite field to take the series two in a row.

"A rose by any other name . . ." goes the adage and you can call Satchel Paige, "Ole Satch," "Elder Statesman," "Methuselah of Baseball" or whatever you will, the fact remains that when the ageless Negro goes out there on the mound he "jes' pitches and pitches."

When the call comes to Satch to go to the relief of a suffering team-mate, he yawns, lifts his slim aging body from the luxury of Bill Veeck's easy chair, a special gift, shuffles to the mound, yawns again and proceeds to whip the ball past opposing batters with a dexterity nothing short of amazing.

The endurance of Paige has everybody from medical experts to physical master-minds baffled. No one knows his age. And Satch isn't telling. Like Jack and Joe, Benny and Walcott respectively, Ole Satch "aint saying a world," just letting the mystified ones guess to the best of their ability.

Some say he was washing his ears with large slabs of watermelon at the turn of the century. Others claim he saw the light of day in various periods since the 20th century began. But "Satch" like Ole Man River "jes' keeps rollin' along" tossing 'em up and strikin' 'em out much to the satisfaction of Master Veeck, the St. Louis Browns and the win-column freezing of much of the opposition.

When showman Veeck decided to write a new book of baseball for the Browns, one of the first things he did was to acquire the old "Paige" for the volume. And paradoxically speaking the "Paige" is writing a new chapter of baseball history for the erstwhile cellar dwellers of the American League.

The fabulous flinger so far this year has pitched in 24 games, all relief appearances, working 63 2-3 innings for a 6-3 record. He has allowed 45 hits, fanned 441 and walked 31 while allowing just 16 earned runs.

His most amazing performance to date was that of Monday when he flung eleven innings holding the Cleveland Indians scoreless until the 19th. He gave up seven hits and two runs. The Tribe won the game 4-2 behind another amazing relief job by Lou Brissie.

And "Satch" had previously gone 10 innings against the Washington Senators in relief, giving up five hits in a game that ended in a five-all deadlock after 18 innings. Add to this a 5 2-3 inning relief bit in which he allowed the Senators four hits in a 17-innings 3-2 St. Louis victory June 4, it gave Paige a total of 15 2-3 consecutive shutout innings against the Senators.

The Monday marathon against the Tribe was Satch's first defeat in more than a week. Last week he pitched four times, winning two games and saving two others. It was 1.11 a. m. Tuesday morning before Satch weakened a bit to give up two hits for the winning Tribe run and tie the major league record for length.

Satch's remarkable efforts have not gone unnoticed by other clubs and baseball bigwigs. As a fine tribute to his astounding endurance and ability, he has been named to the American League All-Star team by Manager Casey Stengel.

POWER PLUS

Speaking of the annual All-Star game being played next Tuesday in Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Dan (New York Mirror) Parker bemoans the fact that Carl (no-hit) Erskine of the Dodgers got the go-by by the National League managers who picked Leo Durocher's pitching staff for him. It does seem rather odd, since Carl's record of seven and one would seem to justify his nomination even if he had not tossed the no-hitter.

Reduce Brooklyn Margin to 3 With Double-Header Victory; Four Teams Threaten Yankees

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Fatherly Steve O'Neill has discarded Eddie Sawyer's austerity program and replaced it with a more popular plan that appears to be putting new life into Philadelphia's awakening Whiz Kids.

Under his guidance, the Phillies have been taking the curse off their early-season reputation as the biggest disappointment of the year.

Since the 61-year-old O'Neill took over as Philadelphia manager last Saturday, the Phils have won four of six from Brooklyn and New York, the top two clubs in the National League. That's .667 baseball. Under Sawyer, the Phils won 28 and lost 35 for a .44 percentage.

Austerity Out

Steve refuses to take the credit, but in his first meeting with his new team he told the players all of Sawyer's austerity program except the curfew was out. There was to be a midnight and 2 a.m. deadline for day and night games but the players could have cars, cards, wives, golf clubs and swim suits with them.

Brilliant pitching by Robin Roberts and Russ Meyer plus timely hitting by outfielders Bill Nicholson and Mel Clark yesterday gave the Phils a sweep of their doubleheader with Brooklyn, 5-3 and 2-1, and three wins in the four-game series.

The double defeat cut the Dodgers' first-place margin to three games over the Giants who lost a grand opportunity to pick up more ground by dropping a 2-1 decision to Boston Braves.

Cleveland Indians picked up a full game on the front-running New York Yankees in the American League, taking their second straight overtime tilt from the Browns 3-2 while Boston Red Sox were beating the champions 5-4. Chicago White Sox nipped Detroit 3-2 and Philadelphia's Athletics dropped Washington into fifth place with a 4-1 victory over the Senators.

Leaders Bunched

Four games separate the first five clubs in the American League. The second-place Indians are three games off the pace, a half-game in front of Boston and Chicago and a game ahead of Washington.

Chicago Cubs solidified their hold on third place in the National, pasting a pair of defeats upon Pittsburgh, 8-3 and 3-0.

Harry Brecheen pitched St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-0 victory over Cincinnati Reds for their 12th victory in the last 16 games. Enos Slaughter continued his batting rampage, driving in all St. Louis runs in the eighth with a bases-loaded double off loser Herman Wehmeier.

A home run by pinch-hitter Nicholson following a walk to Connie Ryan in the eighth gave the Phils the nightcap win after Roberts had registered his 11th victory with a six-hitter in the opener. Clark collected three of the Phils' 12 hits in the opener and scored what proved to be the winning run after a leadoff sixth-inning triple.

Braves Edge New York

A home run in the eighth inning by rookie Jack Dittmer, the kid infielder's first major league fourbagger, gave Warren Spahn his victory over the Giants.

Hank Sauer blasted his 21st homer as Warren Hacker pitched a two-hit shutout for the Cubs after three hits by catcher Toby Atwell and a bases-loaded triple by pinch-hitter Bill Serena won the opener.

Bobby Shantz chalked up his 14th victory against two defeats for the Athletics, limiting the Senators to four hits.

'Grandpop' Named For Olympics

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Most grandfathers would rather relax in a hammock under a shady tree but not John H. Deni.

Deni is one of the United States' hopefuls in the 50,000-metre (about 31 miles) walk at the Olympic Games in Helsinki this month.

This is the fourth time the 50-year-old Deni has been named. He was an alternate in 1932 and was named again in 1936. He was unable to make the trip either time.

His next opportunity came in 1948 at the Games in London. He finished 12th but led the U.S. contingent.

Yorks, Mimico Lacrosse Victors

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Yorkers moved into second place in the senior Ontario Lacrosse Association last night by defeating Owen Sound Crescents 11-7.

In another game here Mimico Mountaineers stretched their first-place lead to six points as they edged St. Catharines Athletics 12-10.

The Yorkers now share the runner-up spot with Peterborough Timbermen.

Playing coach Don McPhail led the Yorkers to their win with two goals and four assists. Wimpy Timpson, Frank Facto and Nick Ferri were other two-goal scorers for the Yorkers while Bob Hilson, Frank King and Leo Teatero each got one. Bunhite counted two goals for the Crescents and was the only Owen Sound player to get more than one.

In the Mimico-St. Catharines game, league-leading scorer Ken Dixon counted three goals and two assists for the Mountaineers and teammate Denny Peterson got three assists Derry Davies potted two of the other Mimico goals. Jimmy McMahon and Ted Howe were the top St. Catharines snipers with two goals each.

Moran Denies Toronto Argos Will be Sold

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Moran, president of the Toronto Argonaut Football Club, yesterday denied that the Big Four club would be sold in 1952.

"The Argonauts will not be sold this season," he insisted at a party given to the press and radio to publicize the Argo-Hamilton Tiger-Cat exhibition game in Buffalo, Aug. 24. "We have not even received a bona fide offer for the club."

Dunnell suggested Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the International League Toronto Maple Leafs, as the most likely buyer.

Moran admitted Cooke was interested in buying the Argos and had asked him the purchase price. Moran told him he would have to bring the matter before the club executive.

Cooke, who purchased the Toronto Baseball Club only last summer, refused to comment.

During the gathering, Coach Frank Clair announced the signing of Bob Stratton, a backfielder from the University of Cincinnati. He also said the team had lost Bob Cooper to Detroit Lions who outbid them for the ex-Nevada University end.

Leafs Clip Wings As Royals Down Baltimore 9-8

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie Frank Marchio is the big reason why Montreal Royals today are three games out in front of the slumping Rochester Red Wings in the International League pennant race.

Not only did Marchio, the Royal left fielder, bat in a pair of runs with three hits as Montreal downed Baltimore Orioles 9-8 last night, but he came up with a diving catch that nipped an Oriole rally in the final frame.

In other night games the Red Wings couldn't cope with the big bat of Andy Anderson and fell 10-4 before Toronto Maple Leafs while Buffalo Bisons moved into sixth place with a 10-4 victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

Montreal had a 9-1 lead via 13 hits, two of them doubles by Marchio, going into the top of the eighth when Baltimore put across five runs to chase winner Jim Romano (3-3). In the ninth, the Orioles scored two more runs with one out and had the tying run on first when Marchio made a tumbling shoestring catch of Buddy Kerr's sharp line drive to end the game. Ken Peterson (0-3) was the loser.

Anderson drove in five runs with a pair of doubles and a single to give Duke Markell (8-6) a shaky victory over the Red Wings who picked up nine hits. Fred Martin (7-6) took the loss. The win was Toronto's third in the four-game series.

Buffalo chased Syracuse starter and loser Art Hartley (1-7) with a seven-run fifth inning as Wayne McLeland (4-2) lifted the Bisons a notch in the standings past Baltimore.

Giant Esthonian from Shale Mines Said Most Formidable Russ Athlete

By TOM WHITNEY

MOSCOW (AP) — Perhaps the most formidable Russian athlete to compete in the Olympic Games at Helsinki is Heino Lipp, a 224-pound giant Estonian from the shale mines.

He is six feet, three inches tall. Incredibly long arms dangle close to his knees. Undoubtedly he is one of the most talented track and field stars in the world.

He is Europe's best shot putter and holds the record of 55 feet, 7½ inches. Jim Fuchs of the United States holds the world mark of 58 feet, 10½ inches.

Stars In Decathlon

Lipp also is a star decathlon performer. He has the Soviet record in this all-around specialty with a score of 7,780 made in 1948. This is among the best half-a-dozen showings of all time but is below the world record of the U.S.' Bob Mathias—8,012 points.

Lipp is 28 and didn't enter athletics until after the war. That was when his brother, Endel Lipp, brought him to a professional trainer, Fred Kudu of Tartu University.

The trainer gave Lipp special training, emphasizing the shot and discus, and before the end of 1946 the Estonian giant was tossing the shot more than 53 feet. It also became evident that Lipp, despite his size, was an excellent runner and jumper.

Kudu became convinced that Lipp was potentially the world's outstanding decathlon man.

Many Questions

There still are many questions surrounding the big Estonian and none of them have been answered by Soviet sports writers, who predicted he would storm the world record in the decathlon.

Is Lipp too old? Has he given up the decathlon for good? Are the jumping events too much?

These are interesting questions which may be answered at the Olympics later this month.

Barons' Borrowed Bucks Bar Entry in Natl. Hockey League

That was evident yesterday when the big-league owners considered Cleveland Barons' bid for a berth under the big tent—for the third time—and politely turned thumbs down on the idea. They termed Cleveland's financial set-up unsound and, in effect, told Baron officials to try again.

The Barons haven't a hope of advancing into the N.H.L. for the 1952-53 season but the gate has been left open for them to make another try and, in all probability, crash the select six in the 1953-54 campaign.

Loans Block Deal

The stumbling block to the whole thing was an interpretation of what is considered working capital:

The Barons, told May 14 at a meeting here that they could advance into the N.H.L. if they raised $418,000, an arbitrary figure set by N.H.L. owners, raised the necessary money by loans from stockholders, repayable in two years. At yesterday's five-hour closed meeting the Barons were told the financing was unsound.

"If they said in the first place that we couldn't borrow the money we wouldn't have done so," said General Manager Jim Hendy of the Cleveland Arena. "They knew we were borrowing it and now they say they don't believe it's the best way. Yet, no place in the original motion—presented at the May meeting when the N.H.L. issued terms of admittance—did it say how the money was to be raised."

Conditions of entry, as laid down at the May meeting, called on Cleveland for a $50,000 franchise fee, $57,500 for the league reserve fund and working capital of $318,000 to be earmarked for hockey and not to be used for any other purpose.

Cleveland raised the necessary amount and was all set to make the N.H.L. circuit a seven-team league next season but the major-leaguers voted otherwise.

"There was a uniform declaration by every club in the league that they wanted Cleveland in as a partner, but on a workable basis," N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell told reporters after the meeting.

Owners 'Technical'

"We are not in because the owners were very technical," Hendy said.

"If we were in the N.H.L. and only took in as much money as we did last year, plus funds from advertisers, we could meet all our payments. We know the cost of operating a team."

Hendy said he didn't know whether the Barons would take advantage of the offer to make another application or whether they would operate in the American Hockey League next season. He said it now is up to the shareholders to decide.

A meeting of shareholders is scheduled for next week in Cleveland.

Two United States eights scored easy victories at Henley-upon-Thames yesterday in the first heats for the Royal Henley Regatta Challenge Cup.

Tabor Academy of Massachusetts rowed the mile, 550-yard course in 7:15 to down Cambridge University by 2½ lengths, while the University of Pennsylvania took 16 seconds longer to make it, but at the same time took a 2½-length win from Britain's Bedford Rowing Club.

Boxing referees in New Jersey will be sitting pretty from now on. A. J. Greene, the state's athletic commissioner, yesterday ordered all promoters to have a large-sized stool available in a neutral corner for use of refs during long bouts or hot weather.

Florence Chadwick will be wearing six pounds of grease and shark repellant tonight when she steps into the Pacific on the famed Santa Catalina Island channel swim. The 32-year-old San Diego mermaid will be spotlighted by radio and TV.

Wellsville Rockets of the Class C Pony League yesterday told their fans the club may fold without continuing funds from donations. The club has lost $3,000 since the start of the 1952 season and called a public meeting Monday night to find a remedy.

Thirty-five players checked in at the Winnipeg Blue Bomber training camp yesterday. Coach George Trafton said the camp was two weeks ahead of last year's with the club holding nine practices a week.

Middleweight champion Ray Robinson was ordered yesterday by his physician to take a complete six-week rest. It means Robinson's proposed trip to Israel, where he was to fight in two exhibition bouts, has been cancelled.

The daily double of $1,966.20 yesterday was the largest of the Chicago racing season. It was recorded at Arlington Park before a crowd of 15,000. The winning tickets were held by only 33 persons.

Ashby's Defeat Electric Girls In Semi-Final

Northern Electric ladies' softball squad bowed to the Peterborough Ashbys 12-9 in the first of best-of-three semi-finals series in the Peterborough District Ladies' Softball League playoffs at Alemite Field last night. The second game is scheduled for Peterborough next Monday.

Leading 4-2 going into the fourth inning the Ashby's won the game with a five-run outburst from four hits that sent Summers, starting pitcher to the showers. Anne McGrath relieved her and held the Ashby's to three hits for as many runs over the rest of the route.

Electrics battled hard in an effort to reduce the margin scoring one in the fourth, three in the sixth, two in the eighth and a single in the ninth.

Electrics outhit the Ashby's 15-8 getting all their hits off Moser who went the distance for the winners. Nine errors did not help the Belleville cause any. Ashbys committed one miscue.

S. Bovay paced the Electrics attack with a home run and two singles. R. Butler also homered and added a single with B. Reeves connecting for three singles. D. Harris contributed two one basers, with Waite, H. Reeves, J. Seguin, Taylor and McGrath adding singles.

B. Anderson pounded out two singles for the winners.

Veteran Hurler Going Strong

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)—Earl Caldwell, as secretive about his age as an old maid but one of the oldest active players in professional baseball, is having another big season.

At the halfway mark of the Class B Gulf Coast League season, Caldwell has won 13 games pitching for Harlingen's Capitols. Last season he won 22 games.

Eleven 'Fixers' Get Varying Jail Sentences

NEW YORK (AP)—With a blistering blast at college sports, Judge Saul S. Streit yesterday sentenced 11 fixers as a climax to the U.S. basketball scandal.

They drew prison terms ranging from six months to as high as four to seven years.

Judge Streit urged jail penalties for college alumni, boosters or officials who subsidize players.

"When the next scandal breaks," said the judge, "it may destroy intercollegiate sports."

Then, turning to the game fixers, the judge lashed out at "creeping mice. . .grown bold like. . . vicious, cunning brown rats. . .and all this for a sure-thing dollar."

The stiffest prison sentence—four to seven years—went to Joseph Benintende, 43-year-old ex-convict, described as the leader of his own betting ring.

Elgins Blank London Majors; Sox Edge Galt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While St. Thomas Elgins, holding cellar spot in the senior Intercounty Baseball League, were snapping a six-game losing streak last night, Brantford Red Sox were picking up their sixth straight win.

St. Thomas blanked London Majors 7-0 and Brantford edged Galt Terriers 6-5.

A game between Guelph and Waterloo was postponed to make way for Waterloo county's centennial celebration.

Seventh Elgin Win

The Elgin win was the seventh in 26 starts. Don Summers tossed a six-hitter for the winners, walking four and fanning nine. He also helped at the plate with two hits in four trips.

The Majors started southpaw Arnold Early and replaced him with Cam Church, finishing with Joe Mitro. Early was the loser.

Both Galt and Brantford sent two pitchers to the plate. Frank Parker stayed six innings for the Sox before being relieved by newcomer Buck Tanner of Plant City, Fla.

Pat Rockburn started and Schupp finished for the Terriers. Tanner was credited with the win and Schupp was tagged for the loss.

Outhit Sox

Galt took a 4-0 lead at the end of the fourth and added another in the seventh Brantford tied it up and added the winning run in the ninth. Galt outhit the Sox 12-9.

Third baseman Lipka was Brantford's top hitter with three for five while leftfielder Kaiser rang up the same performance for the losers.

No games are scheduled for tonight. Brantford goes to Kitchener; Galt to Guelph and Waterloo to London tomorrow.

Toronto Gets Cincy Hurler

The big righthander, who was obtained from Brooklyn May 29, pitched 12 innings in nine games, for Cincinnati. He neither won nor lost a game.

Two referees as yet un-named will attempt to restrain Whipper Billy Watson and Lord Athol Layton from committing organized mayhem when the pair clashes for the third time in Memorial Arena tomorrow night. The last two encounters have ended in wild and wooly brawls that saw infuriated spectators clamoring for the Layton "gore." With four men in the ring on Friday, anything can happen and with the Whip and the Clip "rarin" to get at each other's throats again, it looks like another enjoyable evening for the faithful. Ray Villmer stacks up against the rough toughie Fred Atkins while the opener sees Lou Petrocia, (Layton's manager of last week) tangle with Sonny Kurgis.

United States Ousted From British Tennis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Herbie Flam, America's last color-bearer, fell in heart-breaking defeat before Jaroslav Drobny yesterday in a sensational five-set semi-final match that ended a five-year United States domination of the men's singles in the All-England Lawn Tennis Championships.

A packed house of 13,000 fans gave Flam the greatest ovation an American has received on the famed Wimbledon centre court since Ted Schroeder won the tournament in 1949, cheering for fully 15 minutes as Flam and the veteran, self-exiled Czech walked slowly back to their dressing rooms.

After losing the first two sets to the 31-year-old Drobny, the youngster, from Beverly Hills, Calif., fought back in a stirring rally to square the match at 2-2 But Drobny outlasted his 23-year-old rival to win 6-2, 6-4, 0-6, 8-10, 6-4.

The victory put the bounding Czech into tomorrow's final for the second time in 10 years of trying. He will meet Frank Sedgman who ousted Mervyn Rose, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5, in a drab all-Australian match that suffered badly in comparison with the dramatics of the Drobny-Flam battle.

Flam's defeat meant that the United States, which has held the title since Jack Kramer won in 1947, won't have a man in the final.

Tiger-Cats Sign Waggoner, Shinn

HAMILTON (CP)—Coach Carl Voyles announced yesterday that halfback Hal Waggoner and outside wing Joe Shinn, with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four football union last year, have been signed for the 1952 season.

Voyles told a press conference that the two American imports from Tulane College have been exempted from the army draft in the United States until December. Last season both players believed they would be drafted during the league schedule, leading Shinn to return to Tulane after playing with Tiger-Cats for part of the season. For the last two weeks Waggoner commuted by plane between New Orleans, La., and Hamilton.

Who makes you bid when he should pass and does you so much dirt? The crabby partner with the brass to beef at you when hurt.

Then came the deal shown here:

NORTH

WEST
♠K J 9
♥Q 9 8 2

♣9 8 6 5

SOUTH
♦K 10 9 8 6 5

North opened with a club. East stepped in with a simple bid of one heart. South should have passed. Although he has tricks enough, he lacks the two high cards for a true responding bid.

Avoid bidding with some lack of values until you have warned partner of such lack. When the contract has been kept open for your partner, all the more reason for sticking to such a policy.

So, when east kept the bidding open there was no excuse for a south immediate bid. On the next round, south can back-in with his diamond bid. By then partner is warned of his lack.

But in this deal, south did not pass east's simple overcall of one heart. Instead, south waltzed right in there with a bid of two diamonds. Just as if he was in his right mind.

North, of course, assumed south had an honest response. Natch! If south did not have a bid that was legit, couldn't he have passed? Or is partner supposed to read it by signs of the zodiac?

Anyway, with competition from opponents, north finally took it to five diamonds. Which was doubled. South was so intent on blaming his partner, he muffed the play that could have made it.

The logic behind a back-in bid is easy to see. If partner has a correct bid, nothing should stop him from showing it. If he does not have a sound bid he shows it with a pass.

If he later comes in when not forced, he plainly says: "You know I am missing something partner. So, leave me alone unless you can make up what may be my deficiency."

With a heart lead, how should south plan his plays.

Movie Column

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—True, everybody in Hollywood wants to be someone else—actors wish they were directors; directors wish they were producers and so on.

But when Virginia Mayo says she wants to look like someone else, let's face it. That's carrying dissatisfaction too far!

I learned this bit of intelligence after seeing Virginia in "She's Working Her Way Through College" in which she plays Hot Garters Gertie, a burlesque stripper. This picture accents a well-known Hollywood fact, to wit:

Virginia Mayo is the possessor of the movies' most beautiful body. And she's got the face to go with it.

Little Makeup

For one thing the makeup departments at Warners and other studios reveal that she needs only powder and rouge to look her best before the cameras. That's something that can't be said of all glamor girls in this town.

Armed with all these facts and figures, I asked Virginia what she thought of cheesecake.

"I like it very much," she replied unsmilingly. "It tastes real good."

"I didn't mean that kind of cheesecake."

"Oh," she smiled. "You mean the other kind—leg art. Frankly, I don't mind posing for it but I don't enjoy seeing cheesecake or any other kind of pictures where I look like me. I like pictures of myself where I look like someone else, preferably, Vivien Leigh."

Now Miss Leigh is a beauty and undoubtedly one of the world's greatest actresses but one will get you 10 that she would gladly trade the Oscar she won last March if she could look like Virginia in a bathing suit. Or play Hot Garters Gertie.

Wants To Act, Too

I asked Virginia if this business of wanting to look like Miss Leigh harbored a secret yearning to be a great dramatic actress.

"Naturally, I'd like to be a great actress. And the studio gives me enough versatility in my roles so I can try; but basically, I'm a song-and-dance girl. I love musicals and wouldn't care if I did nothing but musicals. That's all Betty grable does look where she rates in this business."

Firemen Recover Body of Child, Search for Second

BRANTFORD (CP) —Firemen last night recovered the body of John Guesy, a seven-year-old drowning victim, and continued their search for a second, whose identity was unknown.

John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Guest, lost his life in an offshoot of the Grand River—the hydraulic canal in the Holmedale section of the city. Playmates said the boy had been swinging on a rope suspended from a tree.

Police believe the second victim was seven-year-old Kenneth Wheatley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wheatley.

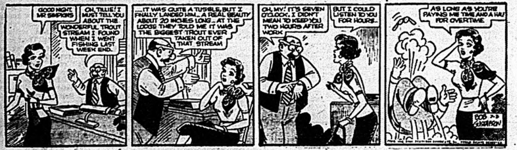
TILLIE THE TOILER — By Russ Westover



GOOD NIGHT, MR SIMPKINS
OH, TILLIE! I MUST TELL YOU ABOUT THE WONDERFUL TROUT STREAM I FOUND WHEN I WENT FISHING LAST WEEK END.
...IT WAS QUITE A TUSSLE, BUT I FINALLY LANDED HIM... A REAL BEAUTY ABOUT 20 INCHES LONG... AT THE LODGE THEY TOLD ME IT WAS THE BIGGEST TROUT EVER TAKEN OUT OF THAT STREAM
OH, MY! IT'S SEVEN O'CLOCK. I DIDN'T MEAN TO KEEP YOU TWO HOURS AFTER WORK
BUT I COULD LISTEN TO YOU FOR HOURS...
AS LONG AS YOU'RE PAYING ME TIME AND A HALF FOR OVERTIME

I MEAN, I WOULDN'T DREAM OF DOING ANYTHING SO UTTERLY ADOLESCENT AND CHILD-LIKE TODAY.
TODAY I TRY TOO LOOK AND ACT LIKE AVA GARTNER.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, July 4, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Give thanks to God this historic day that we can have our individual dignity, and be free to enjoy so many blessings. Indulge holiday pleasures sanely. Be happy.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Aggressive activity, is honored by benefic Mars and Saturn aspects today. Healthy sports, civic and military interests among favored.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Colorful, stimulating activities rate high. It is a great day for rejoicing and for thanksgiving for all who live in lands free from dictatorships. Let us pray for the liberation of all peoples.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) —Should be everyone's duty to pause this day and ponder what its historic message means. Do not evade "mean" duties nor neglect anything that aids harmony, good will.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) —Mild tendencies for purely personal wishes but it is a stimulating, generous day for courageous deeds, for thanksgiving to God.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Grand indications. Can be a happy period if we have right attitude and keep our faith and if we strive firmly, loyally to keep free from ungodly practices.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—No selfish desires are in order, but wholesome endeavors and essential work have splendid Mars, Mercury, Saturn and other benefic aspects.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Both Saturn and Mars are encouraging, offer stimulus for all healthy activities requiring energy, courage, endurance. A day for sensible fun, too.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Not wholly favorable for money matters and extravagant spending, but all honorable activities, work or pleasure are favored by benefic aspects from several planets.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Not a cloud in your promising planetary sky! You in armed forces: have faith in God and know you are defending principles free peoples cherish.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Don't be restless or impatient over your duties, chores. Be grateful for all privileges and the opportunity to serve God, country, family. Fine aspects for honest interests.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Sort of day one would anticipate with pleasure for 4th of July celebrations. Healthy sports, parades, social gatherings. Prayers, too, are highlighted.

YOU BORN TODAY: Alert mind, engaging personality; full of good humor; kindly, courteous; these are some of your attributes May tend at times to feel "low" without reason, again will be up in the clouds with high hopes. Always try to keep your sunny side out. Birthdate: Nathaniel Hawthorne, author; Calvin Coolidge, 30th U.S. pres.; Geo. Michael Cohan, actor, playwright.

Sets Many Fires for "Excitement"

Irving Green, 27, a Brooklyn, N.Y., porter, arrested on charges of starting a fire which brought death to seven persons, told officers, "I've been setting fires for years. I like the excitement." He will be examined by psychiatrists. — Central Press Canadian.

First Girl Guide National Camp To Be Opened

OTTAWA (CP)—The first Girl Guide national camp to be held in Canada on a large scale will open at nearby Connaught ranges July 14 with some 1,200 Girl Guides and Rangers attending the 12-day camping meet.

The camp will be officially opened July 15 by Prime Minister St. Laurent who will take the salute during a march past of provincial contingents.

The girls, between the ages of 13 and 17, are chosen from across Canada on the basis of their character, adaptability and achievement in Guide training. They must have at least two weeks previous camping experience, knowledge of tents and their care, and outdoor cookery over trench fires.

To add international spice to the meet, 26 guests from Brazil, France, Great Britain, The Netherlands and the United States will attend.

Captain Made Heroic Effort To Save Dredge

PORT STANLEY (CP)—A coroner's jury yesterday heard a previously undisclosed story of the heroic but futile 40-minute effort of Capt. John Howell and his crew to save their Federal Works Department dredge from sinking here May 29.

The captain stayed with his 570-ton craft to the last and died at its control station, disregarding warnings to save himself.

Peter Solomon, assistant engineer, testified that he beckoned the skipper to hurry to safety in the remaining few seconds before the dredge heeled over and sank.

Deckhand Harold Brisseau said he shouted: "Come on, Cap," but at that instant a wave struck the captain and swept him from the controls.

Witnesses testified a gaping hole was torn in the five-inch wooden bottom of the dredge, which was being towed by the tug Hercules, by the violent swing of a large turn-buckle and lug which gave away.

The coroner's jury, inquiring into the captain's death, returned a verdict of accidental drowning and agreed that all precautions had been taken on the foundering vessel. A crew member, William Sweet, also was drowned when he jumped into the water.

The central experimental farm at Ottawa and four branch farms in other parts of Canada were established in 1886.

REDISTRIBUTION

In all, eight amendments were proposed by the Progressive Conservatives to recommendations of the redistribution committee. The amendments were defeated by the Liberal majority.

No Commission

Early in the debate, members defeated a Progressive Conservative motion to turn the work of redistribution over to an independent commission.

Citizenship Minister Harris, chairman of the redistribution committee, said the government will consider whether an independent commission should be established to handle the next reallocation of seats, due in 1962.

As a result of the 1951 census, this is how membership in the Commons will be divided in the next Parliament, with the existing division in brackets:

Newfoundland 7 (7); Prince Edward Island 4 (4); Nova Scotia 12 (13); New Brunswick 10 (10); Quebec 75 (73); Ontario 85 (83); Manitoba 14 (16); Saskatchewan 17 (20); Alberta 17 (17); British Columbia 22 (18); Yukon-Mackenzie River 2 (1); total 265 (262).

The life of the present Parliament expires in August, 1954. There has been speculation that the next election will be held in the fall of 1953.

Drew Led Fight

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, led his party's fight against the redistribution legislation. He said no government could claim any virtue for the way in which it has handled the redrafting of boundaries of constituencies. The party in power always sought to gain political advantage through redistribution.

For that reason, he said, an independent commission should be appointed to do the work.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, a veteran of 38 years in politics, said the Commons commitee had done just as good a job as any independent commission. As for political advantage, he always preferred to have the redistribution done "by the other fellow."

The Liberals, he said, had gained rather than lost seats as a result of a Conservative redistribution in 1933.

Mr. Drew said it was not mere coincidence that led to the lumping together of Conservative constituencies in Ontario and in Manitoba.

Six Seats Created

Ontario gained two seats as a result of population increases, but a total of six new constituencies were created through merger of several seats.

Frontenac-Addington, Hastings-Peterborough and Kingston City were amalgamated into two constituencies. Two members will be elected in place of the existing three. Frontenac-Addington and Hastings-Peterborough are held by Progressive Conservatives.

Huron North and Haldimand, also Progressive Conservative ridings, are being amalgamated with neighboring cnstituencies—one a Liberal and one Conservative.

Glengarry and Prescott, both held by Liberals, are being made into one constituency.

Three seats are being added to the York area around Toronto and one to Northern Ontario. The Liberal riding of Welland will be split into two constituencies.

Amendments Rejected

Members rejected a series of amendments which would have left the Progressive Conservative constituencies in Ontario practically unchanged.

Mr. Drew protested strenuously against changes in the constituency of Mr. Diefenbaker.

Because Saskatchewan is losing three seats, Mr. Diefenbaker's constituency was extended to take in some Liberal territory as well as the constituency of Moose Jaw, now held by Ross Thatcher of the C.C.F.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) proposed that Mr. Nowlan's Nova Scotia seat be left unchanged. Mr. Nowlan said that as a result of the committee's recommendation the population of his constituency will be 20,000 greater than that of neighboring Liberal ridings.

The addition to Mr. Nowlan's constituency resulted from the elimination of the constituency of Queens-Shelburne, held by a Liberal. The seat was established in 1947. Part of the constituency will be given to Mr. Nowlan and part to nearby Liberal constituencies.

No Maritime Changes

No changes were made in Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island or New Brunswick.

Two seats were added in Quebec, one in Montreal and the other on the outskirts of the city.

Manitoba will lose two seats—Souris, held by a Progressive Conservative, and Selkirk, represented by the C.C.F. Souris will be merged with Brandon, also a Progressive Conservative riding. Selkirk will be split seven ways and added to different constituencies.

In Saskatchewan, Melfort, held by the C.C.F., and Swift Current, represented by the Liberals, will disappear. In addition there will be the change to Mr. Diefenbaker's riding.

In Alberta, four rural constituencies will be united into three. A new seat will be established in Edmonton. Calgary seats, which now take in rural territory, will be made into strictly urban ridings.

Four B.C. Seats

British Columbia will have four new seats—one in Vancouver, one on Vancouver Island, one in the Okanagan Valley and the other on the outskirts of New Westminster.

When the schedule of the Redistribution Bill was reached, members began dealing first with the boundaries of constituencies in Ontario.

First seat without objection was Algoma East, represented by External Affairs Minister Pearson. Not far behind was Brantford, represented by Speaker Ross Macdonald.

The first objections came on a proposal to unite Brant constituency with Haldimand constituency. Brant is represented by John Charlton, Progressive Conservative, and Haldimand by Earl Catherwood, also a Progressive Conservative.

Murphy Defeated

J W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West) moved that the existing constituency of Brant be left practically unchanged. His motion was defeated on a standing vote of 63 to 22. It was a straight Liberal-Progressive Conservative division; C.C.F. and Social Credit members abstained.

Progressive Conservative members then asked that Haldimand be retained as a constituency by giving it some of the territory now in Lincoln riding, represented by Harry Cavers, a Liberal.

They suggested that the townships of North Grimsby, South Grimsby, Caistor, Gainsboro and Clinton and the towns of Beamsville and Grimsby be taken from Lincoln and added to Haldimand. The move would reduce the population of Lincoln to 70,000 from 90,000.

Members rejected the proposal by a vote of 59 to 19.

W. J. Major (L—Glengarry) unsuccessfully pleaded for reconsideration of a proposal to unite his constituency with Prescott, represented by Raymond Bruneau, also a Liberal. He said the change should be delayed at least until it is seen what effect development of the St. Lawrence Seaway will make on the area.

Lose Other Issues

Progressive Conservatives also tried unsuccessfully to keep the constituencies of Frontenac-Addington, Hastings-Peterborough and Kingston city left practically unchanged.

Members voted 59 to 17 against a proposal to make no change in Frontenac-Addington, represented by W. R. Aylesworth, Progressive Conservative. They voted 61 to 19 against no change in Hastings-Peterborough, held by G. S. White, Progressive Cnservative.

L. E. Cardiff (PC—Huron North), whose constituency would be amalgamated with another, moved that his riding be maintained and consist of the county of Huron. His motion was defeated by 67 to 25.

Six Persons Escape

PENETANGUISHENE (CP)—Six persons escaped early today when fire broke out in the 100-year-old Canada House in this Georgian Bay town 30 miles northwest of Barrie.

Damage was estimated at thousands of dollars. Cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

FIRE SWEEPS WOOL MILL

STRATFORD (CP)—Fire, causing an estimated $25,000, swept the Newton Woollen Mill, 20 miles north of Stratford, Monday. The owner, John From of Hespeler, alone in the plant at the time, said the fire was caused by sparks leaping from a picking machine.

103 ON DOMINION DAY

WALLACEBURG (CP)—Canada and Mrs. Susan Smith yesterday celebrated their birthdays but Mrs. Smith is 18 years older than her country. Born at Madoc in Hastings county 103 years ago, Mrs. Smith moved to this southwestern Ontario town, 20 miles northwest of Chatham, in her teens. Married twice, most of her family is dead.

Praises Syntona For Help From Stomach Disorders

This Woman Who Suffered Badly with Gas, Indigestion, Headaches and Dizzy Spells, Tells of Grand Relief. Now Wouldn't be Without It, She Says.

When you are suffering from stomach disorders, gas, indigestion, sour, upset stomach and heartburn you may need something more than ordinary alkaline medication to bring relief. Syntona has helped so many people, because in addition to aiding in elimination of excess acids and impurities, it stimulates the action of normal digestive juices, gives better tone to the stomach and promotes liver, kidney and bowel activity.

That is why Syntona has helped many people like Miss Christina Pirie, Forsyth Place, Hamilton, Ontario, after ordinary things had failed.

"I had indigestion, gas, and sour stomach very badly," said Miss Pirie. "I didn't feel like eating my meals and became subject to sick headaches and dizzy spells."

"A friend told me about Syntona and then afterwards I read about it in the paper, so I decided to try some. Even the very first bottle helped me, relieving the discomfort and I could eat better. As I continued taking this medicine the distress all cleared up and headache and dizzy spells went away.

"That is over a year ago and now I wouldn't be without Syntona. If I have any trouble of this nature it is the first medicine I think of to get relief."

MISS CHRISTINA PIRIE

Syntona is effective because it contains no less than 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It is safe, pleasant to take and has no unpleasant after-effect.

Stake Horse

By Larry Sternig

Goodhue smiled gently. "I'm afraid you'll have to, Johnny. Your father left some debts which must be satisfied." He looked down at the pen again. "You're not 21, you know. Until you are, the decision would be mine." He looked up. "I'm afraid —I don't share your viewpoint."

"Horses are all I know," Johnny protested.

"You're going to engineering school," the lawyer reminded him. "Dad's idea, not mine." Johnny glanced up stubbornly. "I've already quit."

Again, Goodhue seemed preoccupied with his pen. His evasiveness angered Johnny, and he rose saying, "I'll move out of the town house any time you want. But I wish you'd take your time with the farm. The racing season starts at Atwater this month. We'll pick up some money there."

Goodhue went over to stand in front of the windows. What he was thinking, Johnny couldn't guess. But when he turned to face him, he said "Okay. I'll take my time— with the farm." His eyes didn't meet Johnny's. He looked sad, not at all stream—undecided, Johnny guessed finally.

Johnny moved out to the farm that same day. He took only his personal belongings from the big house, and the picture of his mother. There were no portraits of his dad, only a few snap shots. But Johnny had that picture in his heart.

He told Nystrom about his conference with Goodhue and the trainer said worriedly, "A stable takes money, Johnny, an awful lot of money."

Johnny nodded. "I probably won't have a stable like this long. But I'll have a stable. Even if it's only a one horse stable."

Nystrom smiled. "You're a Hamilton, all right," he said.

They held the spring sales two days later. There were no black foals in this group; two years in a row Galahad had sired that rarest of the thoroughbreds, and the bidding had been lively each time. Adonis they had kept. The other of the unusual pair had gone to a southern buyer.

Goodhue was at the sale, acting as cashier. The prices were high; it was a moneyed year.

Johnny said "that should take some of the pressure off."

Goodhue looked at him squarely. "All right. It's like this. Your dad signed some notes. He borrowed some money from friends. Somebody bought up those notes at a discount, I've learned. His attorney was in to see me."

"Somebody in a hurry for his money?"

Goodhue nodded. "A man named Kovalt, Roger Kovalt."

Johnny tried to read the lawyer's eyes. He asked, "How much time have I?"

"They were due today. I got three months' extension out of him."

"Three months," Johnny mused aloud. "And how much will I have to raise by then?"

Goodhue expelled his breath slowly. "Nearly $100,000."

Three months . . . Well, Johnny had Bella, who had been a sensation as a two-year-old. He had the unpredictable Adonis. They'd pick up a couple of claimers the next three months, and lose a couple but there wasn't that kind of money in claimers. He had Bella—and Adonis . . .

He also had the greatest jockey for his money, in the country. A boy named Tod Lacep. If anybody could bring Adonis home in the Atwater Stakes, it was Tod. He'd been with the Hamilton stables six seasons. He came to see Johnny that afternoon, at the cottage.

Tod looked unhappy. "You know Mr. Hamilton, my contract with your dad was up last week, and you didn't say nothing about —"

"Don't worry," Johnny interrupted. "We'll fix that up right away."

"I wish you'd told me that before," the jock said uncomfortably. "You see, there was no option or anything, and I thought —"

Johnny felt a coldness grip him, and his voice was rough. "Lou've signed up with someone else?"

The jock nodded miserably. "With Mr. Kovalt yesterday afternoon."

It was almost funny. This man, whom Johnny had never seen, was seemingly determined to block his every move. Johnny fought for control. He said "it's all right, Tod. I should have taken care of you sooner."

Tod gulped, "I'd like to quit him, right now, Mr. Hamilton. But the racing commission would have my scalp. Kovalt told me you were broke and selling out." Johnny shook his head and turned away.

He sat there, after Tod had left, feeling the anger grow in him, hating this mysterious Kovalt. Finally he went out, climbed into the convertible and drove off.

Kovalt Enterprises was in a fairly large suite, in the Bradford Block, on the second floor. There were two girls and a young man in the outer office. One of the girls, a condescending blonde, said Mr. Kovalt wasn't busy just at the moment but just what was the nature of Johnny's business with him?

"It's about some notes," Johnny evaded. "Some money I owe him."

The blonde smiled and showed him in.

He was slim, this Kovalt, with a sunlamp tan, with beautifully tailored clothes and perfect white teeth. He looked 30, but was probably older. The white teeth shone in the confident smile with which he greeted Johnny. "I was rather expecting you," he said, and held out his hand.

Johnny ignored it. "I didn't come to pay you any money. I came to ask you some questions."

Kovalt seemed not to notice the fury in Johnny's voice or the denial of the handshake. He waved Johnny to a chair.

Seating himself, Kovalt said pleasantly, "I hope the questions won't prove too embarrassing. Is it another extension you want?"

Johnny shook his head. "I was just wondering why you were in my hair. Why can't you find somebody else to haunt for awhile?"

Roger Kovalt studied his nails. "Try to be rational Mr. Hamilton, I haven't any idea what you are talking about."

"You know what I'm talking about Mr. Kovalt."

"Do I?"

Johnny's hands clenched and he leaned forward in his chair. "Even before I knew it, you knew the estate was in a bad way. You tried to hire my trainer, you did hire my best boy. You bought up dad's notes at a discount, and now you're screaming for your money. Do you consider your actions rational?"

Roger Kovalt's smile was humorless. "Well, perhaps my actions aren't rational, but I assure you ilton. The "Mr." was stressed ilton. "The "Mr." was stressed, as though taunting Johnny's youth.

"All right, they're legal. But why do I get all your attention?"

Kovalt was looking through Johnny now, as though remembering something. "A year ago, about this time, I wanted to buy some horses from your dad. One of them was Adonis; the other Gay Blade. He refused both my offers. A month later, he sold Gay blade— at a figure lower than my bid."

"Perhaps he didn't want you to have the colt," Johnny said.

"Perhaps." Kovalt's eyes came back into focus. "But I swore then I'd get Adonis. And I will. I'll get Bella, too, but it's the colt I want."

"There must be something else. You wouldn't be so stirred up by that alone."

"Wouldn't I?" Kovalt's smile was a farce now. "All right. He was instrumental in having my trainer set down for a year, the best trainer in the business, I like to think."

"For using ephedrine," Johnny pointed out.

"I can't see that it was any of your father's business."

"Anything detrimental to honest racing was dad's business," Johnny affirmed. "Just as it is mine, or any self - respecting stable owners."

"Spoken like a true Boy Scout" Kovalt snorted. "I'll tell you something, kid. It's a man's work, bucking me. Take my advice, and sell out."

Johnny rose. "I may do that. But it won't be to you if I can help it."

Arriving back at the farm, Johnny's mood was enlightened only a little at sight of Carol's car in the driveway. She was walking toward the house. She looked unhappy.

"Trouble?" Johnny asked.

She nodded. "I've lost my job —to the sponsor's niece." She shook her head. "It's a man's world, and I hate them all."

Johnny grinned wryly. "That wouldn't include me. I've just had that explained to me."

She came over to lay a hand on his arm. "I've been raving about my troubles, and you have plenty of your own."

"Plenty," he said, and his eyes took in her dark beauty. Then, "Why don't we forget them? Let's have some fun in our adolescent way."

They went to dinner first, and it was a slow dinner, punctuated by dancing, by conversation, and further delayed by the appearance of a torrid pianist they both agreed they couldn't miss.

When that was over, he showed her the ticket to a play he had planned for them to see. "It must be the middle of the second act by now," he explained. "But it probably isn't much of a show."

So they went to the Wheel Room, a vast place, unusual in that its manager had the quaint idea that people who liked to dance might want room in which to do so and an orchestra which furnished good music.

And when they came out again, into the night, it was warm and clear, with a high-riding full moon and theatrical, almost artificial-looking stars.

The top was down on the convertible and Carol's head was back on the soft leather cushion, and she softly sang while he listened. Johnny kept his eyes firmly on the road ahead, because he had promised to drive carefully.

"No 62 miles an hour tonight, Johnny," Carol said.

"No sense going so fast with a pretty girl in the car," Johnny grinned. "Who wants to get home quickly?"

When he stopped in front of her apartment, he turned to face her. "I've never had a better time in my life," he said.

"Nor I," she said quietly, and the stars seemed to be reflected in her eyes, looking up at him.

He bent his head downward, and she didn't move. He kissed her, and her arms went around his neck, pulling him close. Then he felt moisture on his cheek, and he drew back.

She was crying.

His hands gripped her shoulders. "What is it?"

Liberal Defeat In B.C. Confirmed, Socreds Make Gain

C.C.F. and S.C. Parties Running Neck and Neck

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Liberal government soundly beaten, C.C.F. and Social Credit parties ran almost neck-and-neck today for a minority-government prize in British Columbia.

Yesterday's first day of delayed final counting of alternative votes in the province's June 12 provincial election brought the personal defeat of Premier Johnson. With 21 of the 48 Legislature seats decided, only one of his Liberal supporters had won election. Liberals led in five seats.

Social Credit, which had never before elected a member in this bustling coastal province, had won 12 seats and led in seven. The C.C.F. counted eight members elected and 12 candidates leading.

However, no party seemed likely to capture the 25 seats needed for a bare majority in the House and observers looked for a new election within a year.

This was the party standing when counting finished for the night:

ELECTED
Social Credit	10
C.C.F.	8
Liberals	1
Progressive Conservatives	1
Labor	1
LEADING
C.C.F.	12
Social Credit	7
Liberal	5
Progressive Conservatives	3
Total	48

Lyle Wicks, president of the B.C. Social Credit party, will discuss another possibility—coalition—at a party caucus July 15. He emphasized there was only a remote possibility of coalition with the C.C.F. The C.C.F. had said earlier it had no intention of joining forces with any other party to form a government.

Mr. Wicks said main purpose of the caucus was to select a Social Credit House leader.

For more than 10 years, the province was governed by a coalition of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives. They joined forces after an inconclusive election in 1941 and split last January.

Non-Operating Railway Unions Give Demands

MONTREAL (CP)—Seventeen non-operating railway unions announced officially today they are demanding a wage boost of 45 cents an hour in negotiations with the railroads for new collective agreements to become effective Sept. 1 next.

Other demands, an official statement said, include a cost-of-living bonus of one cent an hour for each one-point rise in the official cost-of-living index, a union shop and check-off of union dues by the railways.

At the same time, union officials announced that a conference between the unions and the railways has been arranged for Monday next.

The union demands went to the railroads yesterday by letter.

Railways Affected

Railways affected are Canadian Pacific Railway Company and Canadian National Railways and their subsidiaries, the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway and the Ontario Northland Railway.

The announcement came from the office of Frank Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee representing the unions, two of which are Canadian and 15 international. They represent 125,000 non-operating railway workers—those who do not actually operate the trains.

Girl Dancers Must Cover Their Knees

This edict was issued by the committee of the Braemar gathering, parent show held during Royal residence at Balmoral for the fall shooting season.

Both gatherings are famed for competitions in highland dancing—and for a considerable number of years the kilt for such occasions, worn with silver-piped velvet jacket and lace-ruffled blouse, has been knee-length.

Now, after two years' research, the standard dress is: Fully-gathered, calf-length tartan skirt with plaid to match, tight-fitting sleeveless corsage laced in front and white crepe blouse. The hair is tied back with velvet or tartan snood and the clan badge is backed by a tartan bow. No stockings are worn.

The alternative is a kilt covering the knees, white blouse with traditional double-laced ruffles, military belted plaid and black lisle stockings.

One of Canada's Most Colorful Soldiers Recently Shot, Killed Canadian Private

OTTAWA (CP)—The Army said today that Maj. Guy D'Artois, one of Canada's most colorful soldiers, recently shot and killed in Korea a Canadian private who had been threatening his comrades and shooting off his rifle.

Pte. Joseph Emile Hector Sanscartier, 20, of Cantley, Que., was killed the night of July 1 in the lines of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

An Army statement said Maj. D'Artois, Sanscartier's company commander, shot the Quebec soldier to protect the lives of other men.

A board of inquiry is investigating the incident.

Maj. D'Artois, a slim, dynamic 36-year-old Montrealer, won the D.S.O. for parachuting into France and playing a prominent role in the resistance movement which fought the Germans in the months before D-day, 1944.

He won the George Medal in 1948 for leadership in the spectacular Arctic rescue of Canon John H. Turner.

The Army said several shots were fired during the incident.

"Further details are being obtained by army headquarters," it said, "but from information already received from Korea it appears that Pte. Sanscartier threatened a number of his comrades, including his company commander (D'Artois) and fired several shots from his rifle.

"It is understood that in the ensuing efforts of the company commander to protect the lives of the other soldiers, Pte. Sanscartier was struck in the body by a shot fired by Maj. D'Artois and died half an hour later.

"The 25th Brigade provost marshal is investigating the incident and a board of inquiry has been convened."

HOUSE, SITTING SINCE FEBRUARY WILL END TODAY

Parliament to Adjourn Until November 20th

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament, sitting since Feb 28, is due to end its sessional business today.

The legislators will adjourn until Nov. 20 and soon after that are expected to prorogue and start off a new session that will run into 1953 and constitute the main sitting for that year.

Business of the current sitting drew within striking distance last night when the Senate gave quick approval of the bill for redistributing Commons representation, most controversial measure of recent weeks.

Hoist Defeated

Earlier in the day, the Commons itself gave the bill third and final reading after a concluding attempt by the Progressive - Conservatives to give it the six-months' hoist. The hoist was defeated by a vote of 90 to 27.

But with that controversy out of the way, the progress towards prorogation slowed up somewhat as the Commons gave over part of the afternoon sitting and most of the night to discussion of Post Office Department estimates.

In this it heard:

1. A demand by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that the use of the mails be barred to Communistic material such as that put out by the leftist Canadian Peace Congress.

2. A renewal by about a dozen members of the annual call for improvement in the system of paying rural mail carriers.

3. Urgings by some members that the Post Office Department revive the two-a-day mail delivery in urban residential areas, discontinued last year.

Can't Censor Mail

Postmaster-General Cote, piloting his estimates through the House for the first time, said his department objects to censoring the mail and must have evidence that an offence is being committed before it can act to bar the mails to an organization.

Mr. Drew said the department has shut off mail service for lotteries, and it should take similar action against "seditious, disloyal and scurrilous" material being sent by the Peace Congress.

Texas Delegate Contest Involving 38 Votes May Elect Republican Candidate

CHICAGO (CP) —The bitterly disputed Texas delegate contest involving 38 votes that may prove decisive in nominating the Republican Presidential candidate at the national convention next week is up before the party's National Committee today for decision.

One delegation — calling its opponents thieves and worse — wanted to vote for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The other — denouncing the Eisenhower forces as mostly Democrats in disguise —was for Senator Robert A. Taft.

The 106 - member National Committee has the job of deciding —for the time being, at least —which crowd to let into the convention.

Taft in Control

With Taft forces running the committee, nobody here has much doubt that most if not all the the Texans winning recognition today will wear Taft buttons.

But that was far from being the end of it.

Delegates who lose their contests before the committee, and this year that means Eisenhower delegates with few exceptions, can appeal to (1) the convention's credentials committee, and (2) a vote of the convention delegates themselves.

There, on the convention floor, with the microphones and the television cameras telling the whole story to the voters, is where the real fight is going to be.

Two Democratic aspirants to the Presidency viewed the Republican turmoil as a sign of lasting party disunity. President Truman said it looks better for the Democrats all the time.

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee told Kansas Democrats in Topeka last night that "a breach is forming in the Republican ranks that will not heal" after the Republican convention.

Averell Harriman, the Mutual Security Administrator, said in a speech at Hibbing, Minn., that "the branches of the Republican tree are withering."

Truman Confident

Truman told his Washington press conference yesterday the Republicans will help the Democrats win in November. And that, he said, will serve the people best.

Truman repeated that he will not accept another Presidential nomination himself, and will not run for the Senate.

His own choice for the Presidency, he said, will be known at the Democratic convention starting July 21 in Chicago.

In St. Louis, the Post-Dispatch reported that Truman has told friends he will support Harriman.

As the Republican National Committee turned to the Texas delegate contest, Gen. Eisenhower rolled across Nebraska and Iowa predicting a convention revolt against the forces of Taft.

Speaking from his special train en route to Chicago from Denver, Eisenhower referred to the way delegate decisions were going in favor of Taft and said: "If I know the American people, this ruthlessness in Chicago will boomerang."

Booms MacArthur

This temporary political capital of the country was intrigued by a remark Gov. John S. Fine of Pennsylvania made on a television show last night. Although expressing the belief that either Taft or Eisenhower will walk off with the Presidential nomination, he added:

"I think Gen. Douglas MacArthur probably could unite the forces of the Republican party better than either Eisenhower or Taft."

Taft 510; Eisenhower 415. A total of 604 is needed to nominate.

Mute Demonstration Starts To End British Rule in Cyprus

ATHENS (Reuters)—A "silent demonstration" to end British rule on Cyprus and unite the Mediterranean island with Greece started through Greece at dawn today.

For four hours town and cities came to a standstill in protest against Britain's attitude on the issue.

The main cities were ghost towns —not a soul to be seen, not a car on he srees. All raffic, including ships, rains and planes, halted; all workers, bank employees and civil servants stopped work.

The Pan-Hellenic committee for the union of Cyprus with Greece, calling for the mute demonstration today, said it was meant as a friendly gesture towards the British people "in request that they should stop rejecting our friendly feelings."

Britain took over the administramittee of the Braemar gathering, tion of Cyprus from Turkey in 1878. The island, located in the far eastern bight of the Mediterranean some 600 miles from Greece, now is a British Crown colony and also serves as an important British Mediterranean base.

The 20-per-cent Turkish minority on Cyprus opposes any change in the status quo. The articulate section of the other four-fifths of the population, Greeks, would appear to favor union with Greece.

Foreign Office Says Reports Are Exaggerated

TOKY (Reuters)—A high Japanese Foreign Office official yesterday described press reports of a "reign of terror" by Commonwealth soldiers in Japan as greatly exaggerated.

Conditions are not as bad as people have been led to believe, said Yujiro Izeki, director of the Foreign Office's International Cooperation Bureau, at a press conference after he returned from Kure.

"Certainly crime in Kure is no worse than in towns where American troops are stationed," he added.

Japanese newspapers have accused Canadian, British and Australian troops of dozens of crimes including rape, assault and burglary at the former naval base of Kure on the south coast of Japan's main island.

Izeki said most of the crimes committed at Kure were of a petty nature such as "soldiers under the influence of alcohol breaking window panes."

"Reports that Kure and the surrounding district are riddled with sex crimes by foreign soldiers are not true," he declared.

Excesses Denied

Commonwealth authorities have denied the excesses attributed to their men and last night a Commonwealth spokesman issued a public statement analyzing the military offences in the Kure area.

"The majority of cases were of a minor nature," the statement said, "wilful damage being the breaking of a drinking glass or a chair, theft being the removal of a bottle of sauce from a cafe and assault being the forcible rejection of professional amorous advances."

REPORT SHOWS LITTLE USED FOR FOOD BY FUND

$535,801 Collected In Aid for Britain

TORONTO (CP)—A report of an investigation into the United Emergency Fund for Britain says that less than 15 percent of the $535,801 collected by the Fund was spent for food.

"It is impossible to determine" said Public Trustee Armand Racine, "how the 1,800 pounds of food represented by this item were disposed of."

Mr. Racine, appointed to investigate the Fund, reported yesterday to Attorney-General Porter that only $771 was spent for food out of its general collections.

An additional $148,157 worth of food was sent through the Canadian Parcel Service, through which parcels were prepared for shipment to Britain and sold to individuals in Canada. A further $12,481 in personal food parcels was sent through the Fund's reduced shipping rate service.

Publicity Costly

Mr. Racine reported that salaries and wages took $185,689 while $188,535 went for advertising and publicity.

The Fund was started March 15, 1948 by eight Canadians headed by Sir Ellsworth Flavelle of Toronto. Its charter was surrendered Feb. 13, 1951. The Racine probe was instituted following the raising of the question in the Legislature by E. B. Jolliffee, Ontario CCF leader and then head of the Opposition.

Mr. Racine's report said a goal of $3,000,000 was set and a coast-to-coast organization was set up. But it was found "that the sights had been set too high and that the Fund was not meeting with the success expected."

Marriage Offer 'Just a Joke'; Milan Student

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Marco Mauri's offer to marry a former Hollywood dancer who advertised for a husband with $15,000 "was just a joke," he said today.

The 18-year-old Milan student thought the story about "Mrs. Anonymous" which he read in an Italian magazine "was just a joke, too."

Mrs. Anonymous advertised in a Hollywood trade paper offering to marry any "solvent gentleman who will advance me $15,000 immediately." She disclosed Marco's reply in Hollywood today.

Marco wrote "I am not as desperate as you but wish to marry you. I am an Italian student. My father has $15,000,000."

His father does not have $15,000,000 Marco said today, "nor anything like that"

Pilots Will Learn to Fly Jets Without Ever Leaving Ground

MONTREAL (CP) — R.C.A.F. pilots in training will soon learn to fly F-86 Sabre and CF-100 Canuck jets at speeds verging on the supersonic in planes which will never leave the ground.

The pilot will climb into the cockpit, close the canopy and roar down the taxi strip, but his aircraft won't be going anywhere.

If the pilot muffs his landing, fouls up his approach pattern, loses himself between Montreal and Toronto or freezes at the stick in bumpy weather, he'd better watch out.

The new gimmick, the F-86 and CF-100 flight simulator, is built to simulate the performance of a plane. The cockpit will duplicate that of the F-86 Sabre jet and the CF-100 Canuck.

A contract has been obtained by Canadian Aviation Electronics Limited from the Curtiss-Wright Corporation and the trainers will be built for the R.C.A.F. as soon as negotiations are completed.

Although a single simulator will cost about $275,000, officials say its use will cut the cost of training to a fraction of what it now is.

While the pilot sits at the controls a row of electronic brains houses in a metal cabinet outside the cockpit of the simulator instantly solve flight and engine power problems.

In the rear of the simulator's cockpit will be a "hell box" designed to produce flight difficulties ranging from fires to abnormal fuel consumption.

The simulator is designed to teach pilots to fly one particular type of aircraft with emphasis on its peculiar problems. Some of the major problems it overcomes are complete cockpit familiarization, procedures and characteristics of the plane and how to meet emergency situations through endless repetition and solution of the problems.

U.N. Artillerymen Unlimber Every Gun On Front

Air Fight Second Biggest Jet Victory of The War

By JIM BECKER

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Allied Sabre jets today shot down 12 Communist MIGS while Allied artillerymen unlimbered every big gun on the Korean battlefront for a double-barrelled Fourth of July blow against the Reds.

The toll of 12 MIGS shot down, one probably destroyed and six damaged made the air battle the second biggest Allied jet victory of the Korean War, the Fifth Air Force said.

Few MIGS have been seen over North Korea for more than three months. But Friday the Reds hurled 115 of the swift swept-wing fighters against U. N. fighter bombers and the 97 Sabre jets flying protective cover.

Unidentified Target

The air force did not identify the target of the big force of F-84 Thunderjets. However, it said the Communist installation was about 20 miles southeast of Suiho, site of a giant power plant smashed June 23.

Some observers said the secrecy and the unusually big fighter cover gave the raid the appearance of something out of the ordinary.

Allied plane losses, if any, were not announced.

The MIG toll was just short of the all-time record set Dec. 13 when 13 MIGS were shot down, two probably destroyed and one damaged.

The total number of MIGS destroyed, probably destroyed and damaged topped the earlier battle, 19 to 16.

Two wings of F-84 fighter bombers pounded the unidentified target with 1,000-pound bombs and napalm, the air force said. Then the jets dived low to strafe anti-aircraft positions with .50-calibre machine-gun fire.

Returning pilots said it was impossible to evaluate damage because of dense black smoke.

Fighting broke out in three sectors of the ground front as Allied artillerymen wheeled every big gun on the 155-mile line into action for a murderous barrage.

On the western front, a Chinese Communist battalion of 750 men swarmed up two hills three times) Twice Allied guns hammered the charging Reds back, but still they came.

Korean President Wins Amendments From Assembly

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—President Syngman Rhee tonight won his fight to shift election of a Korean president from the National Assembly to the people.

The Assembly adopted a series of compromise constitutional amendments which may mean an end to Korea's political crisis.

The 77-year-old President also won adoption of his demand for a two-house Legislature, replacing the present one-house Assembly.

Under the compromise, the Assembly gained the right to overturn the Cabinet by a vote of non-confidence, and the Prime Minister rather than the President will name the cabinet.

The Assembly voted 163 - 0 approval of the amendments, climaxing six weeks of feuding with the President. Three members abstained.

The session was called amid reports that Rhee intended to dissolve the Assembly and call for new elections. Attendance was greater than at any time since Rhee declared martial law May 25. Some members were rounded up by police.

The compromise retains the President as executive head of the states and commander in chief of the army and navy—Rhee's source of power during the crisis.

He will continue to name the Prime Minister.

Moira Lake Camp Will be Opened On Saturday

It will be all roads lead to Moira Lake on Saturday as a happy crowd of boys converge on the YMCA camp to commence a period of camping which for some of them will not end until July 26. With the exception of the last week, the camp is filled to overflowing according to a statement made today by A. J. Davis the General Secretary at the YMCA. Unfortunately many boys will be disappointed as accommodation has been taxed to the limit and no place could be found for them.

Bernard Grady the camp director, and Mrs. Grady and the camp staff have been on the grounds for the past few days to make sure that everything is in readiness for the first arrivals. Walter Pierce, camp committee chairman, has also been busy organizing work parties putting the finishing touches on the job of property preparation undertaken by the Rotary and Y's Men's Clubs.

As soon as the boys' period of camp is concluded, the girls will take over and already registrations are at the point where only a few more campers can be accommodated.

Capt. Brightwell Salvation Army Arrives in City

A stranger to Belleville but an old-timer in the Salvation Army, Captain Fred Brightwell; accompanied by his wife and 10-year-old daughter, Sylvia June, has arrived here to replace Major Herbert Honeychurch, who left recently for Saint John where he will head the Salvation Army in that city.

According to Captain Brightwell, an attempt will be made to increase Salvation Army personnel here to cope with the growing need for social welfare and increase the evangelistic phase of the Army.

Captain Brightwell said he would attempt to stress religious training and youth work within the group.

A native of Toronto where he was commissioned into the Army in 1938, Captain Brightwell came to Belleville from Hamilton. Earlier he served at Port Arthur, Port Hope, Newmarket, Walkerville, Simcoe and London.

Like Major Honeychurch, Captain Brightwell expressed the hope that he would be permitted to join the local Kiwanis Club and continue his interest in young people's activities and serving under-privileged children.

Water Cut Off

People living on the east side of the river experienced a water cut-off for a time yesterday. The night before a car driven by Clarence Squire, 10, Chester St., St. Thomas, rammed into a fire hydrant at the corner of Dundas Street East and South Sidney St. The driver told police he was blinded by approaching lights as he was proceeding east at the top of Gilmour Hill. He ran off the travelled portion of the road and struck the hydrant. Damage to his car amounted to $150. The hydrant was broken and water mains had to be closed off while it was being repaired.

A car driven by Harold E. Anderson of Front Street came to a sudden stop the other day when it ran into a big elm tree at the Mayhew mill corner on Front Street. The part that holds the front axle straight dropped down on the pavement and the driver could not straighten his car out as it rounded the bend. Colorful 'Musical Ride' By RCMP Will Be Main Feature of Local Fair

While a number of new outstanding attractions have been secured for the 1952 edition of the Belleville Fair directors today said they believe they have acquired one of the most colorful exhibitions ever shown to a Belleville Fair patronage.

"Here come the Mounties" could well be the slogan of the exhibition this year, for none other than the colorful mounted "ride" of Canada's famous police organization will be here to perform for the first time in fair history.

The scarlet - and - gold of the dress uniforms; the broad-brim familiar Stetsons, the white lanyards, and pennant-tipped lances will provide one of the most colorful sights ever seen here.

But the dress of the Mounties is secondary. The magnificent horses, trained to the nth degree to dance, prance, canter, lope and gallop to the strains of music in precision motion is a sight that every red - blooded Canadian should see. It is by far one of the best attractions, if not the best, ever brought to this city.

The mounted ride will be shown for the first day of the fair only, Monday, August 11th. Performances will be given in front of the grandstand during afternoon and evening.

Following their performance here the Mounties will go to Toronto, where they have been billed as one of the main attractions at the Canadian National Exhibition. Their appearance here is the only one in this part of Ontario.

Speaking of other phases of the fair, Secretary Thomas Walker said today that nothing has been spared to make the 1952 edition one of the best in the fair's long history.

Three Days of Racing

For lovers of harness racing, some of the best horses in the district and province will be here for a three-day meet. The races will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and some outstanding events are being anticipated with the cream of Ontario's pacers and trotters taking part. The various classes will be announced later.

The prize list has been increased again this year and is the most imposing of its kind for many years. Entry lists are rapidly filling and exhibits are expected to be as good if not better than any previous year.

Interest of merchants, business men and others who annually display their merchandise in the fair buildings has reached a new high. This is evidenced in the fact that the display space in all the buildings is practically sold out.

The grandstand performance this year is another stellar attraction. The directors have secured the Billy Garden stage extravaganza, and this is said to be a variety show of music, mirth, and comedy that outstrips any of its predecessors.

The directors have not forgotten the younger folks. Every day from the opening Monday to Thursday, August 14, will be "Kiddie Day". Children twelve years and under will be admitted free during the four-day exhibition.

Work at beautifying the grounds and buildings in readiness for the fair is proceeding apace. The horse barns are being given a coat of fresh white paint while other improvements are under way.

And last, but by no means least, there will be colorful Conklin's Midway with its rides, gaily-lighted booths, sideshows and other attractions that are part and parcel of this important phase of the fair.

HOUSING No. 10
LUXURY VERSUS ECONOMICAL LIVING

Catch selling phrases such as "After all these years of paying I have only rent receipts whereas the big fat landlord has my money and the house," were used when I was a boy and still appeal to many. Be not misled.

It is a luxury to own your own home. It is not necessarily the most economical way to live. Outside of business it is a luxury to own a car, but people buy them.

The great mass of people in the United States are tenants. That is one reason they can afford to have expensive tastes otherwise and enjoy a different type of living than ours. Here the large majority are home owners. To enjoy this luxury we must sacrifice many conveniences and living luxuries that our neighbors to the south enjoy. Well-informed as the people are by reports and findings of various research departments sponsored by the government and public bodies, this is a phase of living about which the public is not fully informed by any department.

A tenant can move at will. If a tenant's earning power increases, he rents better accommodation. If it diminishes, he is free to rent cheaper accommodation. Whereas an owner is faced with a rigid overhead. Renters enjoy flexibility to suit circumstances. A small heated apartment is more desirable and economical for a young married couple than a house especially if the wife goes to business, and particularly if the husband desires to do extra work after hours. Homes demand constant personal attention.

All those services and conveniences that are necessary to comfortable living can be supplied by a landlord to apartment dwellers under one roof for less cost than a tenant could supply same in a home of his own.

Lack of rental accommodation has unfortunately forced couples to buy homes beyond their means. This condition must be and can be overcome by co-operation.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market prices showed little trend today in slow early afternoon dealings as traders hesitated to take a stand without direction from New York, closed for Independence Day.

Industrial trading remained in selected leading issues and few golds, metals or oils attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours was 670,000 shares.

Retail stores posted a scattered list of fractional advances to form industrials' strongest sections. Agricultures, refining oils and manufacturing companies also drew firm support but papers, steels, foods and miscellaneous issues slipped.

Base metals eased as Chromium, Consolidated Smelters, Mackeno, Mindamar. Quemont, Steep Rock and Yukeno traded lower. Sherritt-Gordon and United Asbestos showed strength.

Western oils were mixed. Canadian Devonian, Del Rio, Highwood and Okalta strengthened while Britalta, General Petroleum A, Punch and Selburn weakened.

Senior golds dipped. Kerr Addison and Lake Shore lost fractions. A scattered list of leading secondary issues climbed moderately.

Root and Field Crops Benefit By Heavy Rain

Late strawberries, root and field crops received a new lease on life today with the rain which fell over the district early this morning. Officials at the local water filtration plant stated that roughly three quarters of an inch of rain fell during the shower.

Farmers stated that peas as well as the late grain would benefit from the rain as the recent drought had shortened prospects of anything like a normal crop. Drying pastures were expected to show greener following the rain.

Threat of Closure Looms for 9,000 Steel Employees

HAMILTON (CP)—The threat of closure loomed today for the 9,000 workers in the Steel Company of Canada and Dominion Foundries and Steel Company Limited and shopkeepers and business men in the city faced prospects of an $18,000,000 cut in business during next winter and early spring.

The threat of shutdown was said by company representatives to be due to the fact that the influx of iron ore to local foundries has been cut by half and that by the end of the fall it may trickle away to nothing.

It is estimated that the total weekly wage bill at the two steel plants is in the neighborhood of $650,000 a week, nearly all of it spent in Hamilton.

Shipments of ore, according to company reports are seriously affected by the steel strike in U.S.A. and the opening of a big new blast furnace at Stelco would boost ore requirements there by 400,000 tons more per year.

At Dominion Foundries and Steel Company Limited a company vice-president said operations might have to end in September unless supplies of ore were resumed immediately.

"There is a certain amount of stock," he said, "so output may not be affected till mid-September. But, the position looks grim for the winter. We have only a short shipping season to look forward to in order to cover our needs and we do not think there is enough time to build up our reserve stocks."

Labor circles in Hamilton area said they "did not regard the threat seriously."

Larry Sefton, supervisor in Hamilton and Niagara area, for United Steelworkers of America, said he thought the statement that had been issued was "a tongue-in-the-cheek" statement.

Steel Company of Canada officials say so much time has already been lost that it will be impossible to make up the leeway in time to lay in big enough ore stocks to tide them over the winter.

Blood Disorders A Hazard Of Chloromycetin

WASHINGTON (AP)—Blood disorders and several deaths traced to use of the antibiotic drug known as chloromycetin have touched off a government investigation into "possible hazards" of its use by humans.

The drug—its scientific name is chloramphenicol—is used for treatment of typhoid fever, Rocky Mountain fever, typhus, whooping cough, boils and other infections.

The Food and Drug Administration said today it had asked the National Research Council to help it evaluate results of a country-wide survey which turned up 200 cases of blood disorders and "a number of deaths" among patients who had been treated with the drug.

F.D.A. made it clear that beneficial effects of the antibiotic have been proven and that its use would not be ended when it said:

"Doubtless thousands of lives have been saved through its use in serious diseases. . .several million people throughout the world have been treated with chloramphenicol apparently with-

Steel Union Charges Companies Conspire to Prevent Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board plans an immediate investigation of charges by striking C.I.O. steelworkers that major steel producers have "entered into a conspiracy" to prevent settlements with any affected company unless the "big six" agree.

President Truman made virtually the same charge at a press conference yesterday. He accused the major steel companies of conspiring to draw out the strike, and said the situation does not call for use of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Won't Invoke Act

Truman indicated strongly he did not plan to follow the "request" by Congress that he try to end the 33-day work stoppage by asking the courts for an 80-day injunction against the strike, as provided for in the Taft-Hartley law.

The union said, shortly after the President's press conference, that the purpose of the alleged conspiracy is to "prevent any one of the (Big Six) companies or any other smaller company from reaching final agreement on a new work contract."

The six major companies named by the union are: U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Jones and Laughlin, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Inland. Together they produce 70 per cent of total U.S. output.

A spokesman for the six companies issued a statement saying the union "apparently will go to any length, ridiculous though it may be, in its effort to force employees in the steel industry to join the union."

This referred to a union demand for the union shop, a form of compulsory unionism. That demand is generally considered one of the main obstacles to settlement.

Truman's mobilization chief, Dr. John R. Steelman, told another press conference that a new contract agreement had been reached in New York recently "pleasing to some of the companies" and mentioned Bethlehem as one of them.

Agreement Spiked

That purported agreement, not acknowledged and not denied by the companies, was said to have been spiked when others of the Big Six refused to go along.

George J. Bott, general counsel of the N.L.R.B., will start an investigation of the union's charge this week-end.

The Taft-Hartley Act imposes on labor and management the obligation to bargain in good faith. The Union's conspiracy charge means it questions whether the steel companies are bargaining in good faith.

Two Ocean Queens in Atlantic Race Seek Mythical Blue Ribbon Award

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States sailed yesterday on her maiden voyage and—possibly—history's greatest ocean race.

Unofficially, British shipping authorities were reported spoiling for a battle. They could turn loose the giant Queen Elizabeth, already 1½ days out of New York, and try to outspeed the United States.

'No Race'

A Cunard Lines spokesman in London said frotily:

"We are not racing."

But Commodore George Cove, soon to retire as skipper of the Elizabeth, was quoted earlier as saying it might be a good idea to climax his career with a "memorable fast voyage."

Down the years, Britain has held the blue ribbon, mythical emblem of trans-Atlantic speed, oftener and longer than any other country.

The U.S. last held it in 1851 when the S.S. Pacific steamed from New York to Liverpool in nine days, 19 hours and 25 minutes.

The skipper of the United States, Commodore Harry Manning, wouldn't say yes and he wouldn't say no when asked if his $73,000,000 superliner will take a crack at the record on her first crossing.

In London, newspapers treated the United States' departure as though the great race were already on.

The printed tables of statistics, a sort of box score on the 990-foot United States, the 1,019-foot Queen Mary, and the 1,031-foot Queen Elizabeth.

Mary Holds Record

The ribbon has been held by the Queen Mary since 1938 when she crossed in three days, 20 hours and 42 minutes at an average speed of 31.69 knots.

The United States is reported to have done 34 knots in trials.

The Queen Elizabeth was a troop carrier during the war and it has been whispered ever since that she topped 35 knots on occasions.

Predict 430 Would Die Over Holiday

CHICAGO (CP)—Millions of Americans took a brief holiday from their normal round of affairs today to celebrate United States Independence Day with parades, ceremonies and picnics.

The National Safety Council estimated that some 90,000,000 persons, riding in 40,000,000 cars, would take to the highways during the extended week-end holiday. Of these, the council predicted, at least 430 would die in accidents between 6 p. m. Thursday and midnight Sunday.

In the first few hours of the holiday the death toll in traffic accidents was 16.

In the May 30 Memorial Day week-end the final toll was 363 traffic deaths, 8 drownings and 62 violent deaths from miscellaneous causes.

Six persons were killed last night at Monroe, La., when their automobile was destroyed in a crossing collision with a Missouri Pacific train.

54 Out of Every 100 Canadian Families Have Car

TORONTO (CP)—A report by the Canadian Automobile Manufacturers' Research Service says that 54 of every 100 Canadian families own one or more cars. In 65 per cent of these families the chief bread winner earns less than $60 a week.

Almost half of all Canadian families whose main wage earner receives less than $2,000 a year own at least one car. Two-thirds of them paid cash for their vehicles. In the highest income group studied, $4,000 and over annually, the number paying cash was only three per cent higher.

Ontario householders lead the provincial averages with 65 per cent owning a car. The Maritimes has the lowest average, 34 per cent.

Almost half the 800,000 cars on Canadian roads are 10 years old or more.

Labor Members Propose Big Cuts In Royal Family's Annual Income

LONDON (Reuters)—Two Labor members of Parliament announced today they will make a bid to cut the Queen's proposed annual state income of 475,000 pounds by nearly half.

They will also demand that allowance proposed for her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, be cut 75 per cent.

Left-wing Labor members James Carmichael and Emrys Hughes issued seven amendments to the royal payroll worked out by a House of Commons committee and due for debate in the House next Wednesday.

Their motions would cut the Queen's allowance from 475,000 to 250,000 pounds a year.

The committee report granted the Duke a life annuity worth 40,000 pounds a year. This, the amendments would cut to 10,000 pounds.

VOTED DOWN

There were several Labor party members on the House committee, including leader Clement Attlee. Several economy moves proposed by him were voted down by the committee.

The left-wingers also seek to wipe out the extra 9,000 pounds a year which Princess Margaret, the Queen's sister, will get when she marries. At present Margaret gets 6,000 pounds a year.

They also want to cut out altogether the 150,000 pounds which the committee seeks for Prince Charles, 3½-year-old heir to the throne, to cover his maintenance and education until he is 18.

OBJECT TO PROVISIONS

Hughes and Carmichael object to provisions made for other royal children—10,000 pounds a year at the age of 21 for sons with a further 15,000 pounds on marriage, and 6,000 pounds a year for daughters rising to 15,000 pounds annually when they marry.

The M. P.s called for the nationalization of the Duchy of Cornwall, the royal estate of the monarch's eldest son, which yields about 90,000 pounds a year from valuable London property and thousands of acres in the west of England.

The amendments have little chance of success in the House of Commons. Most attention will be focussed on the proposal by Labor leaders that there should be less formality at the Queen's court.

CHEESE CONTROLS LIFTED

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Agriculture Department yesterday lifted import controls on Swiss, Gruyere, process roquefort and several Italian varieties of cheese. It increased the import quotas for blue mold, edam and gouda combined to 6,000,000 pounds a year. The quota has been 4,700,000 pounds.

Red-Planned Armed Uprising Alerts Japan

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan today was on the alert against a possible Communist armed uprising.

Police reported increasing outbreaks of violence through the country. Though they felt the Communists are not yet strong enough to stage an armed revolution, they said they anticipate Communist plans for such a rising.

All city and provincial forces were warned of possible danger from Communist attempts to mobilize on a national basis a suspected Korean fifth column, numbering at least 5,000 North Koreans living here.

Mobs clashed with police in half-Stern, 34, died of internal land. Communist activity against the police included cutting a police communications line and firing police boxes with home-made bombs.

Police also expected the Communists to mobilize for heavy fighting July 15 to mark the 30th anniversary of their party's formation in Japan.

Osaka police arrested 19 persons early today after clashes with 500 demonstrators marching on a railroad station. Thirty-four police were injured in the melee.

Everyone Dislikes One Mail Delivery But No Change

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Cote yesterday said in the Commons his department is not contemplating a return to twice-a-day mail delivery.

He made the statement in reply to G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) who said postal carriers are dissatisfied with the one-a-day delivery because they are asked to do two or three rounds in different areas.

Mr. Fraser said postal carriers also feel their salaries should be more in line with those of police and firemen in their communities. They also want overtime pay since office workers in the post office receive it.

Mr. Cote said the matter of salary is dealt with by the Civil Service Commission.

During discussion of mail delivery, Mr. Cote said the department is investigating the difficulties created for business firms in residential areas who now receive only one mail delivery a day.

WAR IN THE RANKS

If November's presidential election in the United States makes half the amount of fur fly as is now flying between the two hopefuls who seek the Republican nomination, it should be a really hot election.

Perhaps never in the history of American politics have two candidates, allegedly representing the same party, gone at each other with less abandon than the opposing political camps representing Taft and Eisenhower. And this is merely the warm-up for the knockdown battle in Chicago next week when the Republicans stage their nominating convention to pick a presidential candidate.

While the two factions continue to criticize each other, the feeling persists that this conduct cannot enhance the prestige of the Grand Old Party because the party is bound to suffer a few black eyes as a result of the warring, with no punches barred, between the opposing forces within the party.

As the nomination race now stands, it is possible that a one-time hero will emerge a forgotten man. We refer to General Douglas MacArthur who rode high in public esteem even though he was relieved of his command by President Truman. In a dramatic display of emotions which were interpreted to mean that MacArthur was ringing down the curtain on his army career, the General iced his valedictory with "old soldiers never die; they only fade away."

Those who expected the Old Soldier to "fade away" were fooled. Instead, he took to the road and criticized President Truman and the entire administration for their foreign policy. It is now reported that General MacArthur will be the "keynoter" at the Chicago convention and is suggested as a possible running mate for Mr. Taft if Mr. Taft is nominated over General Eisenhower.

But should General Eisenhower carry the convention, it is unlikely that General MacArthur will be given an opportunity to run for "veep." He will have no choice but to keep his earlier pledge and "fade away."

Meanwhile the fight is on. May the best man win!

.280 + .300 = 1

A Canadian Press dispatch from Ottawa last Wednesday said, in part: "Defence Minister Claxton disclosed tonight that Canada was intervening directly in the Anglo-American rifle dispute by launching a search for a bullet acceptable to both of them."

After reading the entire dispatch carefully, several times, we concluded there was something wrong somewhere. "A bullet acceptable to both of them," we decided, could only mean and must have been intended only to mean "a cartridge which would fit either of them," that is, either the British or the American military rifle.

It is known that the new British rifle XXX is a .280 calibre weapon. It is also known that the Americans use, or were using until very recently, a .300 calibre weapon.

Since our own knowledge of firearms is extremely limited, we asked our ballistic expert how he would go about designing or manufacturing a cartridge that would fit either a .280 or a .300 rifle. Our ballistics expert opined that any cartridge designed for a .280 rifle would not fit a .300 rifle, and that any cartridge for a .300 rifle would not fit a .280 rifle. "It's just impossible," he said.

Our ballistics expert then likened this proposed new cartridge to the German rifle which came into use just before the end of the last war and which was described by some enthusiastic journalists as possessing the ability to shoot around a corner. This device was greeted as something marvellous, as indeed it would have been if it had actually been able to shoot around corners.

When specimens of this German gun fell into Allied hands, it was discovered that the laws of physics had not been shattered, even by the ingenious Germans, and that the new gun was merely an orthodox rifle fitted with a periscope, which enabled the operator to shoot around a corner only in a metaphorical sense.

A top secret which isn't a secret at all is discussed by a correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor. It is to the effect that if the Reds launch a big offensive in Korea, there is a stockpile of baby atomic bombs for use in the battlefield. Otherwise in guns, men and planes, the Communists have a big superiority.

The Ottawa Journal notes that Mr. Churchill has been making faces at a tank of strange Brazilian fish. But perhaps the reporters have it wrong — the fish may have been making faces at Mr. Churchill.

OLD CRANKMIRE ON NOT VOTING

He asked: "What difference will it make
If time to vote I fail to take,
And should it be a rainy day
If from the polls I choose to stay?
One vote to nothing will amount,
It will not change the final count.

"Why should I go and stand in line
To cast that single vote of mine?
I'm busy. I've no time to mix
In state or city politics.
What's more, when all the votes are in
The best men running seldom win."

Old Crankmire said: "Of course they don't.
While others think as you they won't.
Suppose a million men believed
By one vote nothing is achieved,
The end result would be the cost
Of causes that should not be lost.

"Busy or not, or snow or rain,
I'll stand in line and not complain.
One vote I have, and come what may
My ballot I'll not throw away.
One in a million I may be,
But precious is my vote to me."

LIBERTY

"Now the Lord is that spirit, and where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

This is the Biblical version of the Declaration of Independence. It says that liberty is an inner matter, not an outer; that it has to do with the heart, rather than with the form of government. People may live under free institutions and yet be slaves, if they have not yet freed themselves from the tyranny of evil in their lives. Jesus found His contemporaries boasting that they had never been in bondage to any man because they were the sons of Abraham; but this Jesus questioned. They were still slaves, He said, who had not yet freed themselves from the bondage of evil within their own hearts.

We may well ask ourselves at this season whether or not we are free. Is America free? America is free if her people are free, and her people are free if they are free on the inside of their lives. Only political freedom is to be found in the instrument which Jefferson wrote, spiritual freedom abides in the new spirit that Jesus brought into the world by bringing it into the hearts of men. The Master put it very bluntly when He said, "If the Son, therefore, shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE LONG WAIT

Miss Sally Gram Swing, of British United Press, returned to America recently after two years abroad and has written a provocative article on the temper of the people of this continent.

The story appeared in the back pages, yet somehow I think it was the day's most important news. For Miss Swing was unable to find a truly happy person.

"Before I left Paris," she writes, "Jean Paul Sartre, the existentialist philosopher, asked me to ask people how happy they really were. I tried it out on a pretty, dark-haired salesgirl in Fairfield, Conn.

"Happy?' She looked surprised. 'I guess I have more than I ever had before—better hours and all—but I wouldn't say I was happy. I suppose we over here just want too much.'

"Many others, however, said they were just too busy to think about it much."

Miss Swing gives some first-hand evidence of encounters with short-tempers, complaints, discourtesy, unpleasantness and the general sourness of these restless days, a kind of mass dyspepia that's remained the mood of the post-war world.

Her report is sketchy, but you and I know it carries an awful load of essential truth. The truly happy people, like the North American bison, seems to be a vanishing breed. There are no bureau of statistic charts on the subject. None is needed. You feel it moving through the streets of any city or in the snug home of a friend or just in your own bones.

There are, of course, some fairly obvious reasons for this disturbing state of affairs.

There were a hundred other news stories in that edition guaranteed to wipe the smile from the most optimistic face.

Sometimes when I find my own portable cloud of gloom settling over me as I read the papers I wonder if it wouldn't be smarter just to ignore the news. One of the few really happy people I know is a self-made moron who limits her reading to Dorothy Dix and the funny papers. She is an extreme case of It-Pays-To-Be-Ignorant School, but sometimes I wonder. She looks so cheerful there in her vacuum.

In looking over my list of close friends, a typically glum lot, this outside, global influence seems to be the direct reason for their lack of real happiness.

They remind me of an English family I was visiting one night during London's "little blitz". A bomb fell a few blocks away and failed to explode. It was either a delayed action or a dud. We sat there in the kitchen, waiting and disconsolate. Then the bomb blew up. The windows rattled. A cup fell from the table and shattered. Then the "all clear" went and we smiled and the tension was gone.

That is the way it is now with most of us. Some of us choose to believe that the bomb is a dud, but we still must sit and wait and there'll be no clear, pure happiness until we know.

Miss Swing quoted the girl who said she guessed we just wanted too much and that's a thought that goes deep into our way of life.

There's hardly a friend or acquaintance of mine who isn't up to his ears in debt and worry in pursuit of material things — a new frigidaire or a record player or a new car or any of the ten thousand things that the Jones' always seem to have.

This mania for possession on easy credit terms surely has a link with the uncertainty of the times. Maybe we're all frantically building up a wall of gadgets and home appliances, surrounding ourselves with a fortress of shiny hardware to blot out the black clouds on the horizon.

This kind of domestic rearmament is crowding out too many hours of real happiness. It's a rare person who isn't lashed to the mast of instalment plans, working with more intensity and with more fear of security than ever before.

The result is precisely what Miss Swing discovered: People are just too busy to think much about happiness.

There is the problem, but where is the answer?

About all we can do as individuals is to look around us and note the new green leaves in the alders and smell the scene of the summer breeze, just about the way it always was. We can watch the kids on the playground and the young lovers in the park, undaunted by any real or imagined trouble ahead, and maybe we can sit back and laugh at ourselves awhile.

It looks like a long, tiresome wait and we'd better get all we can from it until the "all clear" goes, as it surely will.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Exuberance is one of the better human failings. But it has its limits. I am going around with my right hand all bandaged up because of it. You will find exuberance amongst salesmen, advertising men, greeters and joiners. You seldom meet it in bank managers, hotel clerks or secretary-treasurers.

It goes generally with a man's or a woman's trade. An exuberant woman is a holy terror. The hearty, effusive, overpowering type who rush you off your feet can not only make you lose your balance, but they can pretty nearly burn the hand off you. I was standing modestly among the wallflowers at a recent cocktail party for a visiting celebrity and had just got a cigarette going nicely when I was spotted by a friend I had not seen for two or three years. He was born exuberant. He was a hugger from his cradle. He practised slapping his father's back from infancy. He was giving three cheers by the time he could toddle. He whoops. He hollers. At a cocktail party, he greets six people at once. He shakes hands with both hands, as he bulges through the crowd, as if it were a square dance. Boy!

Out of nowhere, he burst hollering upon me. With a glad cry, he reached and grabbed my right hand before I could duck. The cigarette was between my fingers, protruding outward, fortunately for me. The glowing red coal was crushed against the back of my hand. It got him in the palm. Such was his exuberance that he squeezed so tight he did not at first feel the savage bite of the red hot coal. My wild yell was first. His was second. I just wanted to stand there and be mad. But no such luck. From among the startled mob around me, he stampeded me out of the room and down the hotel corridor, hollering for the first aid kit, demanding the way to the house physician. We met a waiter in the hall who put some butter on our wounds. I got my hat and went home. He went exuberantly back to the cocktail party.

Woman Reporter Declines to Name Her Informer

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Francois Caron, presiding at Montreal's vice inquiry, yesterday held a woman newspaper reporter in contempt of court for declining to name bookies who gave her information for a newspaper story about gambling.

The Superior Court justice deferred sentencing of Mrs. Jacqueline Sirois Moore, now a staff writer for Weekend Picture Magazine, until today.

She was found in contempt for objecting to revealing the names of bookies to whom she talked for information for a story appearing in the Montreal Standard Aug. 3, 1946. The story bore the headline: "Bookie says he paid $80 a week for protection."

Asked by Mr. Justice Caron whether she knew the penalty for refusal to answer, Mrs. Moore said she didn't.

No Penalty Limit

Mr. Justice Caron said: "There is no limit to the successive terms that could be imposed. You have heard of the man in the United States who got 15 years for contempt. I cannot go back on my decision. A judge's order must be followed until he is reversed."

The inquiry is into alleged non-enforcement of anti-vice laws by the police department over a 10-year period.

Joseph Cohen, Q.C., counsel for some persons concerned in the inquiry, told Mr. Justice Caron he felt a journalist's sources of information should remain secret.

Mr. Justice Caron said: "The privilege of not testifying depends on the kind of person questioned. In the case of a priest it applies for the confessional. A doctor is the sole judge of whether he should answer. A barrister has to be relieved by his client. And so on.

"I do not believe that a journalist is privileged. . ."

IMMUNITY FOR THE BABY

In my opinion — and please remember I'm not an authority—every baby should be immunized against smallpox at the age of four to six months and against diphtheria at the age of six months to two years.

Immunity to smallpox is conferred by vaccination, and infants from four to six months of age are less likely to have untoward reactions to vaccination than at any other age. Just which technique may be most desirable for vaccination is a question best left to the judgment of the family physician.

Of 12,289 children under 15 years of age who were immunized 90 developed diphtheria but none died. Of 14,536 children of the same age group who had not been immunized 160 developed diphtheria and 17 died.

Whether a preliminary Schick test is necessary, to determine whether the individual is susceptible, is for the physician to decide. Many good physicians omit the Schick test for children under six years of age and proceed directly to active immunization.

Immunization against diphtheria is most important for children from six months to six years old. After the age of six or seven years, susceptibility to diphtheria diminishes steadily, so that immunization is no longer necessary.

With the toxoids developed in the past decade immunization against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus (lockjaw) may be combined in a course of three injections given over a period of 9 weeks — three weeks between injections.

Immunization against typhoid, para-typhoid, cholera or other disease to which infants or children may be exposed when on vacation, travelling or sojourning in foreign countries is a question to discuss with the family physician.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHY WAR ANYWAY?

The progress of the world during the past half century has been amazing. Our scientific advances have been so great that we have conquered in many a battle against disease. We have even added to the life of human beings ten or more years simply by learning more about food and nutrition. And getting out in the sunshine more.

Miraculous have been the inventions of man — the automobile, telephone, moving picture, radio, television, and an endless number of other useful additions to the home. What the genius of America has brought to light is looked upon by all the other nations of the world with both admiration and envy. No nation in all the world hates war and wishes for permanent peace more fervently than does America. Yet within less than half a century, we have experienced two great wars and another that some people merely refer to as "a police action." But it's a full fledged war just the same.

Why war anyway? I was reading from a letter that the English novelist George Gissing, wrote to his son, December 29th, 1899. Referring to the Boer War he said that it was "a thing to be ashamed of, and not to glory in. It is wicked and dreadful for the people of one country to go and kill those of another. Never suppose that victories in war are things to be proud of. Some day people will be astonished that such things could be done."

That letter of Gissing's was written more than fifty years ago, yet it is the sentiment of millions of human beings all over the earth. There isn't a nation in the world today that can conduct a successful over-all war. Two world wars have impoverished every nation engaged in them. But we are right at it again, draining the substance of the people, their strength and their savings, in preparation for more war — why?

It is a savage and tragic thing to kill people in war. It is against the law of life and all the precepts of religion. There isn't a nation in all this world whose people I would like to see shot or blown to bits. Why should they be? Live and let live is the natural law. Why war anyway?

Winnipeg Woman Quits Hospital To Stand Trial

WINNIPEG (CP)—Mrs. Lillian McCullough of Winnipeg will be released from Selkirk mental hospital to stand trial for the bludgeon slaying of her seven-year-old foster daughter, Martha Louise.

Detective Inspector George Blow said the 52-year-old woman will appear Monday for preliminary hearing.

Mrs. McCullough was charged jointly with her husband, Gavin, after the child's bludgeoned and strangled body was found in their suburban Elmwood home Jan. 25. Her husband, 51-year-old former office manager for the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce, was acquitted May 22 on the murder charge.

Defence counsel successfully pleaded he was insane at the time and under the influence of his wife. He was ordered held in jail "until the pleasure of the lieutenant-governor is known," a sentence equal to an indefinite term.

Members Request Government To Give Carriers Better Break

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of the Commons yesterday asked the government to give the rural mail carrier a better break.

The couriers get their jobs on a four-year tender basis, and members said the system results in their being underpaid.

Robert McCubbin, Parliamentary assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner, said he does not think the government is being fair to them on wages. They were not paid what they deserve. He suggested that the government make a general supplementary payment to the carriers.

System 'Wrong'

Hugh MacKenzie (L—Lambton-Kent) said there is "discrimination" in the way the carriers are paid. The system was "wrong" and "allowed for a lot of injustices." There should be some degree of equality of pay across Canada.

H. A. Hosking (L—Wellington South) said the tender system of farming out rural mail routes is a good one. However, in some cases the tenders were accepted before the cost of living increased to its preset rate. As a result, the remuneration hardly covered the cost of delivery. He suggested an adjustment.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said he has been hearing complaints about payment of rural mail carriers for 21 years and still nothing satisfactory has been done about the situation.

It was "something of a scandal." The carriers were "most inadequately compensated." The pay of some of them was "pitiful."

Wants House Committee

He hoped a committee of the house would be set up to "devise something better than the cut-throat competition" of the tender system.

Arnold Darroch (L—Wellington North) said the system should be improved, but he would not want to see it get into the hands of civil servants who might demand that carriers have a "a couple of years at a recognized university."

He also suggested there should be a realignment of rural routes before any restorations of two-a-day urban deliveries of mail.

George Fulford (L—Leeds) said the rural mail carriers are in "a very sad predicament." The system was "abominable."

H. O. White (PC—Middlesex East) also criticized the contract system for carriers. He expressed the hope, too, that rural routes might be realigned and mail service extended to as many people as possible in the country.

Have Few Votes

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said the present system is obsolete and should be replaced as quickly as possible. "But I have not much hope that anything will be done," he said, "because the mail carriers don't have many votes."

Postmaster-General Cote said he will refer the matter to a departmental committee for study.

Lawyer Guilty Of Black Market Baby Adoptions

NEW YORK (AP)—Marcus Siegel, 53-year-old lawyer accused of heading a black market baby adoption ring, last night was found guilty of inducing others to commit perjury and illegally placing a child for adoption.

Siegel was found inocent of 16 other counts—three charges of forgery and 13 charges of subornation of perjury. Two other charges were dropped earlier.

He was continued under bail until sentencing. Under the verdict he could get a maximum of six years in prison and a $5,500 fine.

Siegel was accused of masterminding a baby adoption ring in which babies were taken from unwed mothers and sold for fees up to $4,500.

Seven others also were indicted on charges that they ran a baby ring that reached through the eastern U. S. and as far south as Florida. Their indictments were returned elsewhere.

BIG EFFORT

ESTHER, Sask. (CP) — Four hunters armed with rifles and a lot of miscellaneous equipment trailed what they thought was a lynx to a lonely badger hole. But the animal they flushed out of the hole turned out to be a house cat.

Briefs From U.K.

LONDON (CP)—A report by the Royal Commission on Marriage and Divorce included a conversation between 15-year-old girls, children of divorced parents. One was quoted as saying: "Don't ever get married; your husband might be unfaithful to you." The other replied: "Yes, men are all the same —never trust them."

THIRSK, England (CP)—A two-year-old race horse named Canongate threw his jockey at the track here, raced off the course and dashed down a main road. A motorist gave chase for four miles before catching the horse, which was to have run in the Busby Stoop Stakes.

HUNSTANTON, England (CP)—A local entertainment manager warned the public not to pet baby seals, because it condemns them to death. He said that once a baby seal is befriended it will not return to the herd, but will keep coming to shore.

MALTON, England (CP)—Among articles at an auction sale here was a life-size statue of a man sitting suffering from tooth-ache. Joyce Wise, 24, paid a little more than a shilling for the old store exhibit, and hired a truck to take it away.

CRANBROOK, England (CP)—This Kent county village has found a new export to earn dollars. Authorities Move To Crush Menace In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—The known number of school-age users of narcotics here jumped to 18 today as authorities moved to crush the menace and rehabilitate its victims.

As Vancouver became the first city in Western Canada to be confronted by possible widespread use of narcotics by juveniles, Attorney-General Gordon Wismer and Police Chief Walter Mulligan met yesterday to discuss methods of treatment.

Police revealed they have the names of 12 more juveniles who have been taking drugs and they reported the arrest of two others, a boy and a girl, as suspected drug addicts.

These arrests brought to six the number of teen-agers picked up by police since Saturday.

Detectives were said to be hunting for a man described as a "key figure" in the distribution of narcotics.

So far six persons have been charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency in connection with the narcotics distribution.

Going separate ways, the Progressive Conservatives fared almost as badly as the Liberals. They held one seat and led in three after yesterday's counting. Their leader, Herbert Anscomb, was beaten by a Liberal in Oak Bay.

Resume Count

Counting went ahead again today. It was thought possible that in some constituencies final results might not be known for another week. Although results from the first day of counting were not general enough to establish a province-wide trend, results from 22 constituencies indicated that a majority of C.C.F. voters were giving their alternative choices to Social Credit candidates. And Social Credit voters were making C.C.F. candidates their second choice. A similar cross-choice pattern showed as between Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

Social Credit alternative votes for the C.C.F.'s Rae Eddie enabled the Socialist candidate to come from behind to defeat Mr. Johnson in New Westminster.

Conversely, C.C.F. support of Social Credit in Yale enabled Irvine Corbett to defeat Liberal veteran Dr. J. J. Gillis.

Ministers Defeated

Two of Mr. Johnson's ministers were defeated with him. Health Minister Douglas Turnbull was turned out in Rossland-Trail by Social Credit. Mr. Turnbull was administrator of the province's compulsory hospital insurance scheme, chief issue in the election campaign.

Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman was beaten by Socitl Credit in Fort George.

By midnight last night, after 15 hours of counting, only 31 of the 48 seats had reported complete first counts and of these just 22 had swung into new counts.

Tabulating of the absentee vote elected one candidate without a second count being necessary. Frank Calder of the C.C.F., only Indian member of a Canadian Legislature, was returned in far-north Atlin.

U.N.

One Allied unit finally was cut off and some forward bunkers were overrun. But the U.N. troops rallied around tanks which poured lead into the attacking Reds at point-blank range.

At 2:30 this morning, four hours after the attack began, the Chinese pulled back to their own lines, the army said. A spokesman said 100 Reds were killed and 200 were wounded.

Slightly to the east, a somewhat smaller Communist force of about 150 men hit a newly-won Allied position under cover of a heavy mortar and artillery barrage. The army said the attack was stopped cold.

A UN. armored raiding column shot up Communist positions near the Panmunjom truce talks site Thursday, killing an estimated 50 Reds and wounding 50.

Another tank-supported raiding force knifed into Communist lines northwest of Kumwha, the old "iron triangle" anchor city on the central front. An army spokesman said every Red soldier on a jagged hill was killed or wounded before the column pulled back.

HOUSE, SITTING

The night debate on that point was a sequel to an earlier discussion in which Prime Minister St. Laurent expressed the personal view that Dr. James Endicott of Toronto, head of the congress, is guilty of breaking Canadian laws in recent statements concerning the Korean War.

Conviction Unlikely

But the Prime Minister, in response to questions from Progressive Conservatives, indicated the government doubts the chances of getting a conviction on the available evidence. He said nothing to change a previously-announced decision against prosecuting Dr. Endicott.

On the long-standing issue of the rural mail carriers' pay, Mr. Cote said he will refer the question to a departmental committee for study. They now get their jobs on a four-year tender-contract basis, and several members said this results in their being underpaid.

Mr. Cote said his department is not contemplating a return to the twice-a-day urban delivery.

PRIVATE TOWN

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—Reeves and councillors from some of Manitoba's 189 local government areas toured the province's "190th municipality," the new Manitoba School for Mental Defectives. The school is a municipality in its own right with elected officials.

REPORT SHOWS

Sir Ellsworth said at the time of the investigation's start that the original object of the Fund had been to publicize and advertise the need of British citizens, to co-ordinate the flow of parcels to Britain and also to purchase and supply food.

He added that the campaign caused more than 1,000,000 pounds of supplies to flow to Britain, even if not purchased with money from the Fund.

First officers of the Fund included Senator Thomas J. Vein, (L-Quebec), Senator Salter Hayden (L-Ontario) and Lady Eaton of Toronto. Each officer contributed $1,000 to start things rolling.

In Britain an advisory committee was set up whose membership includes Countess Mountbatten of Burma, the Countess of Limerick and the Marchioness of Reading.

Spent $759,897

During the period of the Fund's existence $759,697 passed through its hands. A report of Fred Page Hgigins and Company, auditors, showed expenditures of $15,851, exclusive of salaries, which were unsupported by invoice or other documentary evidence.

Mr. Racine did not comment on his investigation, nor did he make any recommendation. Following Mr. Jolliffe's questions the Legislature passed amendments to the Charities Accounting Act. The chief of these provided that judge on receiving a written complaint about a charitable organization could recommend if advisable that the public trustee investigate it.

Woman Drowns

CHATHAM (CP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Vink, 23, was drowned yesterday when a cement well cover on which she was standing gave way and sent her plunging into six feet of water. An 11-year-old girl also dropped into the well but was rescued.

Mrs. Vink was trapped under the cement cover at the bottom of the 18-foot well.

The girl, Clair Duivenvoorde, held on to a plank floating in the water and was rescued when her father lowered a long pole to her.

WEDDINGS

CAMPBELL—HARRIS

Baskets of pink and white peonies, ferns and lighted candles, decorted Cooper United Church for the marriage of Margaret Luella Harris, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, to Donald Brown Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell, of Eldorado, on Saturday, June 28. Rev. George Crabbe officiated.

Mr. Harris gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a graceful gown of lace and nylon marquisette over satin, a tiara trimmed with seed pearls held her three-quarter length veil and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Shirley Fox, of Cooper, gowned in sky blue lace and marquisette over taffeta with matching headdress, was the bride's only attendant. Her bouquet was of bronze roses.

Mr. Allen Pigden, of Oshawa, was the best man and the ushers were Mr. Francis Woods, of Cooper, and Mr. Harold Chambers, of Eldorado.

Miss Erma Burris, of Madoc, played the wedding music. Miss Marylin Parks sang "Because" before the ceremony, and "I Will Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register, and "Bless This House", while the bridal party stood at the chancel.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bridal party received the guests numbering over eighty, on the lawn. The bride's mother wore navy crepe with a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother wore grey faconne crepe with navy accessories and corsage of red roses. Refreshments were served in the living room, dining room and on the lawn by six of the bride's girl friends.

The color scheme throughout the house was pink and white, with baskets of spring flowers.

In the dining room, a three-tier wedding cake centred the table, flanked with bowls of red roses and silver candles.

After the reception, the bride changed to a smart suit of navy blue with pink accessories and shoulder bouquet of Sweetheart roses. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left with many good wishes for their future, for a short honeymoon in the eastern provinces. On their return they will reside at Argyle, Ontario.

LAROCHE—COLE

Before an altar banked with mixed summer flowers, the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the setting of a pretty wedding on Saturday, June 14, at 10:00 a.m., when the Very Rev. Dean Garvin united in marriage Carmel Margaret Cole, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cole, to Reginald Vincent Laroche, of R.C.A.F., Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Laroche, of Corbeil, Ontario.

Sister Wilhelmina rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Carolyn Forhan, who sang "Ave Maria", "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "Bless This Day".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her full-length bridal gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with fitted bodice having a portrait neckline and long sheath-like sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt fell in graceful folds into a cathedral train, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses tied with satin bows. Her full length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet encrusted with seed pearls.

Mrs. Barbara McCurdie, of Belleville, was matron of honor, attractively gowned in yellow nylon net over taffeta featuring a fitted, strapless bodice with cape, and full-length bouffant skirt. She wore a matching picture hat, and accessories, and carried a hand bouquet of rust colored roses.

Miss Barbara Joudwa, of Belleville, little cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl, dainty in her frock of salmon pink taffeta with tiny coronet of matching flowers. She carried a nosegay of summer flowers.

Mr. Ivan Laroche, of Corbeil, Ontario, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman; Mr. Harry Cole, of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ambrose Gilhooley, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

The wedding breakfast was held at the bride's home, which was beautifully adorned with summer flowers, pink and white ribbons and white wedding bells. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing black sheer with white accessories and corsage of white gardenias. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore mauve sheer with grey accessories and corsage of white gardenias.

For travelling to Chalk River, North Bay, and Espanola, the bride chose blue nylon sheer with white hat and accessories, and red rose corsage. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Laroche will reside in Belleville.

DEROCHIE—SHORT

A lovely summer wedding was solemnized on Saturday, June 21, at 10:00 a.m., in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, when the Very Rev. Dean Garvin, rector of the church, united in marriage Kathleen Loyola Short, Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Short, to Leonard Patrick Derochie, of Amherstburg, son of Mr. Harry Derochie and the late Mrs. Derochie. White peonies, roses and ferns in white standards adorned the chancel and altar for the occasion, while white satin bows, pink and white roses and mauve pansies designated the guest pews.

Sister Mary Wilhelmina rendered the traditional wedding music, and the soloist, Mr. Bob Burke, sang "Ave Maria", "On This Day", and "O Lord, I Am Not Worthy".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming full-length gown of slipper satin ending in a chapel, lace-edged train. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and she wore a single strand of pearls and wrist watch, the gifts of the bridegroom, and carried a white pearl-covered prayer book crested with pink Sweetheart roses and Rubrum lilies.

Miss Catherine Schrieder was maid of honor, gowned in yellow nylon net over taffeta with bolero jacket over a fitted bodice, and bouffant skirt. Miss Wendy Hood and Miss Frances Schrieder, were bridesmaids gowned alike in mauve nylon net over taffeta fashioned on lines similar to that of the maid of honor. Miss Barbara Ann Short, niece of the bride, was flower girl, demure in her pale green nylon net frock over taffeta with matching headdress. All carried cascade bouquets of gladioli and carnations.

Mr. Dale Short, of Belleville, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Harry Derochie, of Stoco, and Mr. Albert Short, of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for about one hundred guests, where beautiful flowers adorned the room, and pink and white streamers and white wedding bells added color for the occasion. The bride's mother received, wearing dusty rose nylon net taffeta with blue accessories and corsage of blue feathered carnations. She was assisted by the groom's grandmother, who wore blue crepe with white and black accessories and corsage of pink feathered carnations.

For the wedding trip to eastern and northern points, the bride donned a copper-tan suit with dark brown accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Derochie will reside in Belleville.

Two Hastings Girl Guides Qualify for National Camp

At the first Girl Guide national camp to be held in Canada on a large scale to be opened at Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, on July 14 by Prime Minister St. Laurent, where 1,200 Girl Guides and Rangers will assemble for the 12-day meet, Hastings division will be represented by two Belleville Guides, Eleanor Clarke daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clarke, 28 Sinclair Street, and Barbara Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Brown, 327 East Bridge Street.

The girls ranging in age from 13 to 16 are chosen from across the Dominion on character, adaptability and achievement in Guide training, and have at least two weeks previous camping experience in the knowledge of tents and their care, and in cooking over trench fires.

Camp in Groups

The Guides will camp in groups of 25, each group having three leaders and bearing the name of a Canadian river, lake, mountain or national park, with a program containing songs and dances, as well as simple dramatics on a Canadian theme. They will also learn the meaning of citizenship as Canadians, not as Newfoundlanders or British Columbians, and in so learning, will come to know each other by means of a Home Town Gossip Forum when they will talk about life in their home towns.

One day will also be free for each girl to explore the city of Ottawa for herself, as well as being taken on all-day sight-seeing tour of the various points of interest.

The girls attending the camp will function as teachers upon their return to their home community, instructing the other girls who were unable to attend, on what they had learned at the national camp.

An adult voluntary staff will oversee at the meet. Transportation has been pooled with the fee totalling $60 which covers railway fare, camp fee. Guests from Great Britain, The Netherlands, United States will be present, as well as a host of dignitaries and their wives who will attend the official opening.

Bride-To-Be Feted by Friends

About 35 ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. Delos Fox, Cooper, recently, to honor one of their friends, Miss Margaret Harris, bride-to-be. The rooms were gaily decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells.

Following the interesting program in which Miss Helen Roache gave a reading stealing all the pomp and glory for the bridegroom, the assembled guests were invited to the dining room, where Margaret was given the seat of honor, colorful in its pink and white bows and streamers, above which many innocent-looking balloons were suspended, which burst at the psychological moment, showering the bride-to-be with confetti.

An address was then read by Miss Shirley Fox, chairman of the occasion, in which a poem incorporated all the good wishes of her friends for happiness in the future.

The presentation of many gifts was made for which Margaret thanked the givers, both for the lovely expressions of remembrance and for their wishes on her behalf. She also thanked Mrs. Fox and Shirley for their kind hospitality.

After the presentation, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

Would you please give me a good salad dressing recipe also that French dressing that does not separate. . .also good home-made ice cream recipe.—Mrs. W. F. R., Mitchell.

ANSWER:

I hope you saw the homemade ice cream recipes in last Monday's column.

ALL-PURPOSE SALAD DRESSING

Combine in this order 2 beaten egg yolks, 1 teaspoon each mustard and salt, and 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 tablespoons vinegar. While constantly beating, add 1 cup ice cold salad oil, 1 teaspoon at a time. When this becomes quite thick from emulsification, 1 tablespoon oil at a time may be added. Stir together in top of double boiler 2 or 3 tablespoons sugar and 1-3 cup flour. Add 3 tablespoons butter and stir over boiling water until blended. Slowly add 1 cup boiling water and stir until thick. Cook covered ten minutes, stirring twice. Chill. Beat well after it is cool to smooth it out, then slowly beat it into the first oil mixture until well blended. This is economical and a great favorite. Once you've made it and used it you will want to keep it on hand.

NON-SEPARATING FRENCH DRESSING

In an ice cold bowl mix together 1-3 cup cider or other vinegar, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1 1-2 teaspoon salt, shake of red pepper, 1-2 clove garlic or 1-2 teaspoon garlic salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 whole egg—cold. Mix these all very well together. Then add by teaspoonsful 1 cup cold salad oil, while constantly beating. Do not hurry the addition of the oil. Give at least 25 turns of the hand electric beater between additions. electric beaten between additions. Store covered in refrigerator. This keeps well.

QUESTION:

About 2 months ago you had a recipe for raviolas. I wonder if you would repeat these. — Mrs. Ernest P., Redcliff.

ANSWER:

RAVIOLI PASTE

Melt 1 1-2 teaspoons shortening and mix with 1-2 teaspoon salt, yolk of 1 slightly beaten egg, and 1-2 cup lukewarm water. Sift bread flour and measure 2 cups. Add 1 1-2 cups and stir in. You want a medium dough that does not stick. Add more flour until you have a dough that can be handled. Knead it on floured board to make it smooth—this will take about three minutes. Let stand covered on board for 1-2 hour. Roll out into a sheet about 16 x 18 inches. Brush half of dough with well-beaten egg white. Arrange one rounded measuring teaspoon of filling at perfectly even intervals with 1-inch space between them over the brushed half of dough. Cover with other half of dough. Press down dough, starting at centre, between each section, to press out air, and to stick together top and bottom dough layers. Cut into squares with ravioli wheel (or sharp knife) and pinch ends together with fingers if some of them are open. Place on floured wax paper as you make them. Let stand 1 hour, turning them over two or three times to prevent filling settling. Twenty minutes before serving time lower gently into rapidly boiling salted water. Do not overcook or they may break. Serve on warm individual plates with Italian Tomato Sauce, sprinkled with Parmesan cheese.

POPULAR FILLING FOR RAVIOLI

Saute 1-2 lb. freshly ground meat in 2 tablespoons butter or oil for 5 minutes. (If using left-over cooked meat grind it and saute only 2 minutes.) Add 1-4 cup finely chopped cooked spinach, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-8 teasp. pepper, 1 finely chopped clove garlic, 1 finely chopped small onion, 1 tablespoon grated old cheese, and cook together slowly 5 minutes. Add egg and beat hard. Remove from heat. Cool and use as is, or put through food chopper. This amount is sufficient for the above ravioli paste, which makes 24 medium-sized ravioli.

If you learn to make ravioli you will open up a new field of cookery for yourself—economical too—for the fillings and sauces are numerous.

Sunday School Lesson:

If We Forget the Past

IF WE FORGET THE PAST

By ROY L. SMITH

Through a period of almost 400 years following their escape from Egypt, the Hebrews lived under an informal type of government in which justice was administered by a succession of individuals who relied, for their authority, upon their reputation for fairness and the confidence of the people in their character.

It was the most rudimentary type of democracy of which there is any recorded history. Each judge, according to his own judgment, interpreted the simple legal code left by Moses, adapting its provisions to the local needs as occasion might demand.

It was an idyllic period in Hebrew history with few wars, no conquests, no taxes, and no royal court to support. The reverence in which the name of Moses was held was very great and the universal obedience accorded to his code issued in peace and some prosperity.

A New Generation

Then, as a much later historian explained it, "a new generation arose which knew not Jehovah; nor yet the work he had wrought for Israel."

In a word, they graduated from the horse and buggy age and began to feel themselves smart and important.

They were far enough away from the wilderness that they could no longer feel the terrible pressure of the desert. They were still farther removed from the bondage of Egypt and could not feel the lash of the taskmaster's whip on their backs. They began to look with a certain good-natured contempt on their fathers, and their heroic sacrifices.

Discarded Religion

It was not long until they became restless under the strict requirements of their ancestral religion. They began to talk about the "new morality," and think of themselves as "advanced thinkers."

In the name of "liberalism" they professed a broadmindedness which was in fact, nothing more than spiritual illiteracy and indifference.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 6: "In the Time of the Judges," Judges 1:1-3:6 21:25.

They were unable to appreciate the shocking risks their fathers took when they struck out from Egypt under Moses' leadership, and probably rated their elders as "old timers."

And thus it came about that they turned their backs on the very thing that had given them their chance—the ancient faith in Jehovah. It was an infinitely pathetic period in the nation's history, as it is in the life of any people when they discard the faith that has made them great.

Great Freedom and Great Peril

It was the period of the nation's greatest freedom, and it was also the period of its greatest peril.

Because no one spoke with authority no one accepted any standards. Because no one demanded obedience no one could enforce morals—no one, that is, except the judges of whom we have spoken.

To the credit of the occasional individual of character, who remained true to the ancient faith, and who held himself to a strict accounting, must go the credit for the survival of the nation. It can truly be said that Jewry today owes its very existence to a little group of perhaps no more than 50 individuals who, in the face of a general letdown, held themselves up.

A few individuals can save a nation in a crisis, if they really know where they are going! And who their God is!

BODY RECOVERED

ESPANOLA (CP)—The body of Dennis Lachance, 22, was recovered from nearby Clear Lake late last night.

Bill Thompson, a swimming companion, said he and Lachance were attempting to reach a rocky point half a mile from the beach when the latter became tired. Thompson said he supported Lachance for some time with one arm but Lachance became panicky and struck him. When he came to the surface after the blow, Lachance had disappeared.

Redmen Defeat Peterborough 14-7 To Rack Up Seventh COBL Victory

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BIFF, BANG, BASH-

We've seen a lot better baseball games but if hitting is a source of enjoyment for the fans then they got full value for their admission shekels last night at the Fair Grounds. Thirty-five — count 'em — base clouts sailed into the wild blue yonder and spikes beat a merry rataplan on the "dish" as 21 runners galloped home.

There seems to be no holding these Reds when once they start swinging their hot shillalaghs. Twenty hits, three triples and five doubles included, rattled off their bludgeons as they maintained their blistering pace at the plate. They have rapped out forty-seven base knocks in the last three games.

"Mouse' 'Bush came up with a sterling display last night. He drove out four hits, a triple, double and two singles and drove in three runs. He played a fine defensive game and anybody who doesn't forgive him for the lone bobble, is an old meany.

Tony Pettitt, having recovered from a fractured finger, is back again in the battling limelight. The youthful catcher blasted out four hits last night, one a double. Pat Gilmour kept up his pace following that "four-for-four" in Kingston with a triple and two singles against the Petes.

And the Red pitching is nothing to be scoffed at. The Red hurlers are coming through with fine performances. They have gone the route in nine of the twelve games played this season, counting the interlocking schedule tilts with the St. Lawrence League teams. Last night's win was the tenth in eleven seasonal starts.

And they'll be questing for their eleventh victory on Saturday when they trek to Prescott, way down upon the St. Lawrence river, to keep an interlocking date with the team representing the riverside town.

THAT'S IT

There's a note in the latest Ontario Amateur Softball Association that should clear up that mild argument some of the senior Redmen indulged in after the Kingston game the other night. The point of discussion was the "strike zone" so here's the definition as laid down by OASA Secretary Frank Feaver. He quotes a rule. "Between batter's armpits and the top of his knees, when the batter assumes his natural stance". Now boys, kiss and make up.

OFF THE COB

(Inspired after being the target for the night of "Benny" Mike Rodden and "Groucho" Der Maxie Jackson in the Megaffin Stadium press box the other evening).

Sez Mike, "I like this pitcher's name,
For he'll be Bunton all the game".
Back comes Der Max (and this one stank)
With "This one's out — the batter's Rank".
Then Miguel squinted through the flies,
They ranged to bumble bees in size
He strangled two with a wheezing "Whoosh",
And quipped, "The Ump's behind a Bush",
Der Max was stumped, said "I don't get it—
Hey, hit that ball, don't try to Pettitt".
But Mike was quick with a corny poke
Quoth he, "That was a Rodden joke".
The press box was, by this time, shakin'
E'en the batter at the plate was Aitken,
As "Benny" Mike and "Groucho" Max
Regaled the box with their maizy cracks,
But ill wind, tis, no washing dries
These punsters killed off all the flies.

FUTURE FUN, FOOD

"Musky" fishermen of the city and district won't go without their sport if Elmer (Sandy) Sandercock has anything to do with it.

"Sandy" minus hat, coat, necktie, with shirtsleeves rolled to the elbows and little rivers of sweat trickling down his face paused yesterday to show this department 1,000 of the "purtiest" liveliest little muskies that ever broke an egg.

With Mr. H. R. Jackson, manager of the Deer Lake Hatcheries, "Sandy" was assisting in transporting the fighting little ones to a new home in the Bay of Quinte off Point Anne and in Muscote Bay.

The seven-weeks old, four and one-half inch muskies were in large cans topped with large pieces of ice. A hand lowered to near the water surface sent the little fellows into a frenzy of excitement. They darted and flashed in the water like miniature streaks of lightning.

Mr. Jackson said that 50,000 fingerlings and 100,000 fry will find their way to new homes in the Bay of Quinte area this summer. Already 40,000 fingerlings have been planted. The overall planting of fry in the province will amount to four million.

Then the working M. P. from Hastings West "butted in". "Can't stand here all day gabbing to newshounds" he grinned. "Come on, we've got work to do."

"Got to keep these fishermen busy" he sang out as the fish-laden pickup truck drove away.

Maintain Torrid Batting Pace With Twenty-Hit Offensive; Wright Yields 15 in 4th Win

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Redmen-Petes bludgeons blasted heavy barrages here last night as Belleville defeated Peterborough 14-7 in a wide-open free-hitting Central Ontario Baseball League game. The win was the seventh in eight league starts for the Redmen and further strengthened their hold on first place.

Thirty-five base hits bounded off the collective bats, with the Reds collecting 20. A homer, four triples and seven doubles were included in the barrage with the Petes getting the round-tripper, two triples and two doubles and the winners coming up with two three-baggers and five two-basers.

"Mouse" Bush and Tony Pettitt spearheaded the Reds' attack with Bush lashing out a triple, double and two singles driving in three runs and Pettitt getting a triple and three singles. Mulholland clicked for a double and two singles. Gilmour was good for a triple and two with Wardhaugh, Kelleher and Semark getting two each.

Hit Homer, Triple

Young paced the Petes offensive with a homer and a triple Garvey and Dadson each had three singles with Edger getting a double and single and Clancy two loners.

Art Wright, racked up his fourth victory for the Redmen and was touched for fifteen clouts over the nine innings route. He whiffed six and walked two.

"Lefty" Dadson started for the Petes and worked for 4, 2-3 innings when he was relieved by Clancy after giving up eleven hits for ten runs. Clancy was hit freely, yielding nine hits for four over the rest of the route.

The Redmen scored in every inning but the eighth and ninth piling up a five-two lead at the end of the fourth. They tucked the game away in the fifth with a six-hit, six-run explosion that sent Dadson to the showers with two out.

Explode For Six

Triples by Bush and Gilmour, Mulholland, double and singles by Pettitt, (two in the innings), and Wardhaugh accounted for the six tallies before Clancy finally put out the fire.

Doubles by Bush and Kelleher and Semark's single with a Petes error were good for two in the fourth while another Petes miscue and four Red singles accounted for three winners runs in the sixth.

Wright held the Petes' bats to five hits and one run for five innings, but they found the range in the next three heats scoring two runs in each off eight hits. They started a belated rally in the eighth when two successive singles by Dadson and Garvey, Edger's double and a single by Stewart were good for two runs. Wright settled down and quenched the outbreak before it got too serious.

Young started the assault on Wright in the sixth. First man up he blasted a scorching first-base line drive that went outside the edge of the fence for a home run. Dugan got on by an error. Clancy whiffed and Dadson went out on an infield tap. Dugan raced home for the second run on Garvey's single to centre and Menzies flied out to end it all.

Young drove in both runs in the seventh with a blistering triple in the same spot as his circuit clout. Edger who had singled and Stewart, hit by Wright, scored on the blast.

The Petes had runners on first and third in the ninth before Wright finally retired the side.

RCAF United Edges Trenton 1-0

RCAF United edged Trenton Bells by a 1-0 score in a Bay of Quinte Football League game last night.

The only goal of the match came after 20 minutes of play in the first half when MacAuley booted the ball home

Due to injuries Trenton was able to field only 10 men, so they concentrated on defensive play and did well to hold the Flyers to one goal although better shooting by some of the airmen forwards might have increased the score.

Trenton got one or two breakaways but apart from Salisbury they rarely looked like getting the ball past Sweet in the RCAF goal.

Leafs Take Three From Rochester; Montreal Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Rochester Red Wings ever hope to catch the International League-leading Montreal Royals, they will have to start beating Toronto Maple Leafs.

After being only two games behind the Royals at the start of this week's play, the Red Wings dropped three of four at Toronto and then came home last night to lose the opener of a five-game series 5-3 to the same Leafs.

Meanwhile, the Royals extended their margin to four full games as Tommy Lasorda (7-4) blanked the host Syracuse Chiefs 5-0.

Baltimore Orioles moved one percentage point ahead of the seventh-place Buffalo Bisons with a 4-3 decision over the Cubs at Springfield. Tail-end Ottawa beat the Bisons in their home park 9-5.

Fails In Clutch

The Red Wings had the bases loaded and one run already over with two out in the ninth and player-manager Harry Walker, the league's leading batsman, at the plate. But Ray Shore, hurling in relief of winner Red Fahr (3-7), retired Walker.

Lasorda was backed by nine hits pace for the second night in a row, driving in the winners' only earned runs with a pair of doubles.

Baltimore cut a ninth-inning Cub rally short to save Jocko Thompson's sixth win in 13 starts. Blix Donnelly put out the fire in the final frame as three Cubs dented the plate after Thompson had a two-hit, 4-0 shutout for eight innings.

Charley Bishop (8-6) was tagged for 12 hits but managed to turn back the Bisons as his Ottawa mates picked up a like number. Bishop himself and Jack Littrell homered for the winners, while Hal Daugherty and Frank Carswell connected for the opposition.

Player Spanks Another's Child; Sent to Minors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It came out yesterday why rookie outfielder Jim Piersall was demoted to the minors by the pennant-hungry Boston Red Sox.

Not that Piersall wasn't a good ball player, Red Sox shortstop Vern Stephens told a reporter, but "because of a number of crazy things that made our manager mad."

And when Piersall spanked Stephens' four-year-old son in the Boston clubhouse last Friday night "that was the climax," Stephens reported. Manager Lou Boudreau ordered Piersall sent back to Birmingham of the Southern Association.

Boudreau insisted "the Piersall incident is closed" but he didn't deny the report.

The story was reported first by Ed Costello, sports editor of the Boston Herald. Costello quoted Boudreau:

"When I heard Saturday morning about the Piersall incident with Stevie's son Friday night, I knew that to prevent a serious incident that might involve Stevie and Piersall, it was best to send Jim away."

Stephens said he was "pretty angry" when he heard about the spanking "as any father naturally would be."

At New Orleans, Piersall admitted the spanking but "I ain't got anything more to add."

Clip and Whip Ready for Fray

There's no truth in the story that a battery of trench mortars seen heading in the general direction of Memorial Arena today, was being brought in for the Lord Layton-Whipper Watson main bout tonight.

At that they might come in handy if the Clip and the Whip renew their blood-letting feud after the official nod has ended the bout. Two referees with power extraordinary are being packaged here from Toronto with the tab "Do not open till bout time." Likely 'twill be that portly pair, "Bunny" Dunlop and Bert Maxwell.

The Clip-Whip duo is far from the "making-up" point. There's no love lost and neither makes any bones about the fact. Should be a neat, gaudy brawl.

Baseball 1846-1952
Always a Winner
Since the first game of record, in 1846, when catchers didn't wear masks and caught the ball on the first bounce, baseball has been a top favourite with sports fans. Today enthusiastic crowds at Canadian ball parks prove that baseball is . . . always a winner.

Red Rolfe Walks 'The Last Mile'

DETROIT (AP) — They call Red Rolfe the lame duck manager—lame duck being a term that means you're out of a job although you're still holding it.

Being a lame duck, Red felt at home yesterday as sheets of rain cascaded over Briggs Stadium's playing field and forced postponement of Detroit's game with Cleveland.

The rain washed out a hope of Red's. He had hoped to win three straight ball games and have the Tigers' longest winning streak of the season in his pocket when the club's directors meet to fire him Saturday.

Now he only has two more games to play—both today—and since he lost the last contest against Chicago he can't achieve a record.

President Spike Briggs will recommend Red's dismissal and the board will undoubtedly approve the dismissal.

Chicago White Sox Trounce St. Louis Twice To Vault Into Second Spot

Red Rox Demoted to 5th Spot; Giants Squeeze Brooklyn 4-3, Slash 'Bums' Lead to 2 Games

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

You've heard of the tradition that the Fourth of July leaders are supposed to win the major league pennants.

That has been true more than 50 per cent of the time. But it didn't happen last year. Then the leaders were Brooklyn in the National League and Chicago White Sox in the American.

New York Giants, New York Sox this year for both were in the Yankees clashed in the World Series last October. Where were they July 4 In second place.

This should be a comforting thought to the Giants and White Sox this year for both were in he runner-up spot as the Fourth of July fireworks began with doubleheaders in eight major league parks.

Can't Take Lead

The Sox, 2½ games behind the pace-setting Yankees in the American, can't possibly take over the top spot today even if they should win two from St. Louis Browns while the Yanks drop two in Washington. The best the Giants can do is tie the Dodgers for first.

The Giants moved to within two games of the Dodgers yesterday, taking their sixth straight from Brooklyn, with a 4-3 decision.

Don Mueller starred for the Giants. He tripled in two runs in the sixth inning and then scored on a single by George Wilson. He also brought in the first run following a walk. Jim Hearn turned in his ninth triumph for the Giants. The loss went to Billy Loes.

The White Sox thrashed the Browns twice, 6-3 and 12-3, to move past Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians. They picked up a full game on the Yanks who were held to a split by Washington. The Senators won the second game 6-4 after losing the opener 9-6.

Philadelphia Athletics dropped Boston into fifth place with a 4-3 verdict. Cleveland, rained out of Detroit, fell from second to third.

Cards, Phils Hot

St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies continued their torrid pace in the National. The Cards, behind the five-hit pitching of Joe Presko, defeated Chicago Cubs 4-1 for their 13th win in the last 17 games. The Phils made it five wins in seven starts under their new manager, Steve O'Neill, as southpaw Curt Simmons turned in a four-hit 2-0 shutout over Boston Braves.

Bubba Church pitched Cincinnati Reds to a 5-1 victory over Pittsburgh.

Eddie Robinson banged in 7 runs in the nightcap with a pair of three-run homers and a single to give the White Sox their sweep over the Browns. The first game was a continuation of a game suspended since April 27. The homers were Robinson's 11th and 12th.

Eddie Yost's bases-loaded single in the fifth inning of the nightcap off Bobby Hogue snapped a 4-4 tie and gave the Senators a split in the doubleheader with the Yanks. New York came from behind with four-run splurges in the seventh and ninth innings to win the opener. Jackie Jensen, former Yankee, hit safely in each game for the Nats to extend his hitting streak through 20 consecutive games.

Seventh for Simmons

Billy Hitchcock's bases-loaded single with two out in the last of the ninth broke up a 3-3 tie and gave Carl Scheib of the A's his second victory. Dick Grenert's homer with two on in the sixth accounted for all Boston's runs.

Simmons did not issue a base on balls as he spun his fourth shutout and his seventh victory against two defeats for the Phils. A home run by Del Ennis was all he needed.

Schwabs Trounce Paul's Motels 6-2

Schwab's peewee baseballers handed the league-leading Paul's Motel their first defeat of the season last night, turning back the hitherto unbeaten team by a 6-2 score.

Jack Elliott went all the way for the winners, holding the Motel batters to three hits. He struck out nine.

Discus Champion

Roy Pella, University of Michigan's tosser from Sudbury, Ont., tossed the discus a record 157 feet 3¼ inches in the trials at Hamilton to win a place on Canada's Olympic team at the Helsinki events. He bettered the 1937 mark of 145 feet, 9¾ inches set by Eric Coy of Winnipeg. Sixteen men and seven women will represent Canada on the track team. — (CP Photo.)

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An "exasperated" member of Mickey Mantle's Miami, Okla., draft board yesterday disclosed that the United States Selective Service Board has suggested a third army physical for the 4-F New York Yankees outfielder.

Board secretary Joe Payton said Mantle's case will be re-opened next Monday. He hoped there will be no discrimination against "a highly-publicized ball player."

Mantle, 21, has been three times classified 4-F because of osteomyelitis, a bone disease in his left leg resulting from an old football injury.

Nearly 200 athletes and officials from 15 countries have already arrived in Helsinki for the Olympic Games, opening there July 19. Most have settled in the Olympic village which has a restaurant providing British, American, Oriental, Latin-American, Scandinavian and Central European cooking. The Japanese have been teaching the staff how to cook rice.

Cincinnati Reds yesterday sold infielder Eddie Kazak to Buffalo Bisons of the International Baseball League. The National League club gave him up in a straight cash deal. Kazak came to the Reds from St. Louis Cardinals last May in the exchange which sent outfielder Wally Westlake to Cincinnati for first baseman Dick Sisler and shortstop Virgil Stallcup.

Four yachts racing from Bermuda to Halifax yesterday became separated from their escort vessel and a plane is to leave Halifax today to search them out. Only Canadian ship is the Wanderer, IX, skippered by Cmdr. J. C. Reed of Halifax with a crew of 10.

Six open powerboats gather on the Detroit River today for the annual Silver Cup event of the Detroit Memorial races. Miss Pepsi owned by Walter and Roy Dossin of Detroit, is the favorite after winning last Saturday's Maple Leaf event at the Windsor Yacht Club. Miss Supertest will represent Canada.

Art Chapman, former National Hockey League player and general manager of Buffalo Bisons of the American League, yesterday was appointed general manager and coach of Vancouver Canucks of the Western Canada Hockey League. Chapman is to help expand the Buffalo interests and eastern junior farm system.

Thompson Leads Field In Golf Tournament

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Thompson, long a contender in tournaments for assistant golf professionals in Ontario, goes after bigger game today.

The dapper assistant from Toronto York Downs yesterday led the 18-hole qualifying round in the Ontario Open with a 67, four under par at the Toronto Weston course where he served for 2½ years as an assistant before moving to his present club.

Tough Rounds Ahead

But Thompson has his work cut out for him in the remaining 36 holes of the medal-play tournament today. Right behind him with a 68 in the opening-day's round was Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, who clinched a spot on Ontario's Willingdon Cup team.

Back of Kesselring came a string of Ontario "name" golfers, any of whom could swing into the lead.

The heat bothered some players yesterday.

Thompson, who had played only eight rounds this season, was still a bit groggy after a siege of jaundice. However, he one-putted every green but three over the 6,395-yard course. The 27-year-old pro pulled off five birdies and was one over par on only the par-four fifth hole.

Kesselring played partly through an afternoon shower and wound up by sinking a 22-foot putt for a birdie three on the last hole. A long-ball hitter, the Kitchener golfer hit 16 greens in regulation figures, had two birdies and one

Few Beat Par

Only four other players beat the humid day and Weston's 35-35-71 apiece—hugh Borthwick of Toronto Scarboro and William Lamb of Toronto Lambton. Amateur Phil Farley par. Two pros came in with 69 of Toronto Scarboro and pro Bill Kerr from Montreal Beaconsfield carded 70s.

Sixty-seven of the original 110 turned in qualifying cards. Low 60 and ties made the final.

Desk Is 'Littered With Complaints' But No Action Indicated by Dawes

MONTREAL (CP)—President A. Sidney Dawes of the Canadian Olympic Association said yesterday that, returning from a one-day holiday with his family, he found his desk "littered with complaints about the selections made by the track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada."

The complaints followed the Olympic track and field trials at Hamilton last Friday and Saturday.

Dawes said complaints were about non-selection of Mary Lawrance and Jo Brennan of Toronto, in the women's field events; Fred Ruish of Niagara Falls, in the men's shot put, and Bob Bazos of Toronto in the decathlon.

None Met Standards

Dawes said none of these athletes during the Olympic trials "made the equivalent of sixth place at the 1948 Olympic Games, which was the standard called for by the C.O.A." For this reason they were not selected.

Other than outlining reasons why selections were not made of athletes about whom protest has arisen, Dawes' statement did not indicate what further action, if any, would be taken by the C.O.A.

Dawes said that in the 1948 games the women's shot put was won with a heave of 45 feet, 1½ inches. Sixth place was 41 feet. Miss Lawrence, at the trials, tossed the shot 40 feet, 3¼ inches.

Similarly, in the women's discus throw, the winning 1948 Olympic mark was 137 feet, 6½ inches; sixth place was 127 feet, one inch. At the trials Miss Brennan's throw was 123 feet, 3 inches.

(Both Miss Lawrance and Miss Brennan set Canadian native records in their respective victories. The standards given the press for these events in Hamilton were 37 feet for the shot put and 120 feet for the discus. Track sources told The Canadian Press last night that these were the standards established but said also that entry forms, filled by all athletes, stated that bettering standards at the meet would not necessarily mean an athlete would be on the team, now bound for the 1952 games at Helsinki, Finland.

Oakland Pitcher Throws No-Hitter

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Lefty Roger Bowman, Oakland pitcher on option from New York Giants, pitched a no-hit, no-run game last night against Hollywood, leader of the Pacific Coast League. Oakland won 5-0.

It was the league's second no-hitter of the season, both turned in by Oakland hurlers. Hal Gregg, now with the Giants, pitched a seven-inning no-hit game May 1 against Portland.

Northern Alone In 6th Place Blast Wooler 19-9

Northern Electric came from behind with two big innings last evening to beat off Wooler's challenge for sixth place in the Belleville and District Softball League by dropping Wooler 19-9 at the Alemite Field.

The game, delayed for a few minutes by rain in the fifth inning, was called at the end of 8 innings because of darkness.

Wooler started strongly with McColl blasting in two runs with a double to right field. Wooler loaded the bases with two out but failed to score again in the first inning. They crammed in three more tallies in the second frame on two singles, a walk, and a fielder's choice.

Northern scored once in the first inning, picked up two in the second frame, and one in the 3rd. In the fourth the Electrics paraded 10 men to the plate and when the carnage was over they had seven runs on a walk and seven hits, including a two-run homer by Bob Hatfield, and a grand-slam home run by Cal York.

Both sides traded home runs in the fifth with Istead belting a beaut into centrefield for Wooler and Mulvihill connecting for Northern. Singles by Hatfield and Pete Jones, and a sacrifice by Al Young produced another run for Northern in the fifth.

Another Big Rally

Northern wheeled out the heavy artillery again in the sixth as 11 men came to the plate. Three walks, four singles, and 2 dropped third strikes aided the Electrics cause in this frame even though they tried to strike out in order to get in the seven innings required to constitute a game.

Junior Day ran aground on a three run Wooler rally in the 7th and Holmes came in with none out to cool off the Wooler bats He toiled for two frames walking none, striking out two and being nicked for a single and no runs.

Brian Mulvihill led the 20 hit Northern attack with four singles and a home run in six official trips. Hatfield and York had three for five, each connecting for a home run in the fourth.

McColl, Rosenplot, and Stacey did the firing for Wooler and were blasted with abandon. Junior Day started for Northern and in six innings walked four, struck out two, and gave up ten hits for nine runs.

Catalina Swimmer One-Third Across, May Crack George Young's Record

AVALON, Calif. (AP)—Swimmer Florence Chadwick completed one-third of her swim from Catalina Island to San Pedro early today in calm seas.

Fred Beltz, an Amateur Athletic Union official in a nearby boat, said Miss Chadwick stood a good chance of beating the record of 15 hours, 40 minutes for the 21-mile course, set by Toronto-born George Young 25 years ago.

Miss Chadwick, slightly ahead of schedule, took nourishment of vitamin pills and sugar. She was eight miles across the channel at 1:15 a.m. PDT.

She swam along at 28 strokes a minute, four strokes less than when she started. Her form was brilliantly illuminated by lights from a nearby television barge.

Slowed by Fish

Shortly after completing the first eight miles she ran into a school of fish which slowed her course for several minutes. The fish apparently were attracted by the glare from the lights.

She dived into the fog-shrouded channel at 8:50 o'clock last night and headed toward the mainland as press and pilot boats chugged nearby.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Chadwick, covered her with a heavy coating of lanolin, dyed black to keep from attracting sharks and barracuda. Miss Chadwick chose the night hours because the Pacific is least turbulent than in this area. If she completes the grind she will be the first woman to swim the choppy, shark-infested channel.

Spurred by Song

Her manager, Bert Rovers, a former opera singer, was spurring her on by singing her favorite songs, "Amapola" and "On the Road to Mandalay."

Miss Chadwick's attempt at crossing is her first major swim effort since the death of her father, Richard W. Chadwick, last November. He was her trainer during her two successful English Channel crossings.

Rain Washes Out British Tennis

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Rain washed out a full day's play in the all-England Lawn Tennis championships yesterday for the first time since 1923 — the year this huge tennis plant was opened.

Officials waited five hours and 15 minutes past the scheduled start before giving into the elements.

The loss of a love set to the weather set the schedule-making department in an uproar. After much juggling, it decided to play the two all-American women's semi-finals, scheduled for yesterday, on the same bill as today's men's singles final between Frank Sedgman of Australia and Jaroslav Drobny, the self - exiled Czech.

Ready to play yesterday, if they could, for the right to be the women's champion, were Maureen Connolly, Shirley Fry, Louise Brough and Mrs. Pat Todd.

South is declarer at five diamonds, doubled by west after east had bid hearts. Although south had fooled his partner with a bid, he blamed north for being reckless; reaching five diamonds.

While in such a mood, south failed to plan correctly and blew a chance to make it. Because south ruffed the second heart lead and led a trump for a finesse through west, the doubler.

Trump jack won the finesse and trump ace cashed another trump round. But now south must lose the contract. West has queen and one more trump that will block the club suit from being safe.

To draw the west trumps, south entered his own hand by a ruff of dummies third heart. But now he is down to two trumps, the same number as west. And only south king is big.

If he forces the west two trumps, opponents will get tricks in hearts. No matter how declarer handles the rest, he will lose enough tricks to go down to defeat. Moral: Don't get mad.

Too often declarers are bent on blaming partner for something done in the bidding. No records are kept of the contracts lost by it. But the number of such cases is considerable.

In countless cases the accusing player is originally at fault. Some wrong bid of his may have influenced partner. It may have caused partner to make a bid that later turned out wrong.

But who am I to talk? At the start of each game, I take out insurance and lay it on the table; an axe and a loaded gun.

Can you see how south could have made the contract?

Movie Column

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The movies are up to one of their old tricks—re-discovering an actor who has always been great.

The actor is Eddie Albert and the amazing thing about his re-discovery is that it came about in competition with the actor who is generally regarded as the world's greatest—Sir Laurence Olivier.

Albert is the brash, travelling salesman of "Carrie" who woos heroine Jenifer Jones, an Oscar-winner herself, and then loses her to the suave Olivier.

Good as Olivier and Jones were, many a critic came out of the press showing with comments something like this:

"That Eddie Albert sure is a great actor. Where's he been lately"

Pre-War Star

The 44-year-old Albert (he looks much younger) was a popular movie star before the war. He started off strong in "Brother Rat," the same role he had played on Broadway.

Then came a hitch with the U.S. Navy in the south Pacific, and Hollywood soon forgot. His post-career never quite hit the big time.

I thought I'd find out from Eddie why Hollywood, constantly searching for new faces, just as constantly overlooks its own proven performers.

I picked the wrong day, it turned out. I looked up Eddie at a local television station where he has been a 25-hour-a-week disk jockey on a daytime program.

Another Film

It was his last day on the show before a summer layoff. He was leaving for Rome the next day. Willie Wyler, the director who made "Carrie," had just signed Albert to make "Roman Holiday" with Gregory Peck and Audrey Hepburn.

Midway in Albert's TV stint, an old movie is shown. This gives him an hour's break—long enough, I had hoped, to learn what I wanted to know.

He dashed from the set, grabbed me by the arm and headed for the parking lot.

"Come along to my lawyer's office with me. I have to sign my will."

His lawyer gave him a copy of the will.

"It's so legal, I can't understand it." He signed it without reading it.

He grabbed my arm again and soon we were riding along in the car.

"Eddie," I began, "now that. . ."

He interrupted with: "Wait a minute. I have to stop here and pick up my watch."

Two more stops and we were back at the TV station.

"One of my sponsors is a re-upholstering firm," he said.

"Eddie," I began again, "now that Hollywood has re-discovered you. . ."

An assistant handed Eddie a rebuilt vacuum cleaner. He was on.

"Gosh, that hour went fast," remarked Eddie, shaking hands. "Hope you found out what you wanted to know"

Welcomes Mayors

Brandishing a tomahawk and dressed in native buckskins, Chief Walking Buffalo of the Stony Indians welcomes delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Calgary. The bison head marks him as a medicine man of the tribe. A survivor of the days when there were only a few white men in western Canada, Walking Buffalo recently retired from his place in the conduct of tribal affairs. Seated beside him is Ald. George C. Miller of Vancouver, federation president. — (CP Photo.)

Diesels Defeat CNR AA 5-0 For 10th Win

By JACK BRETT

The C. N. R. Diesels copped another win last night as they blanked the C. N. R. AA team 5-0 in a Belleville and District Softball League game. It was the Diesel's tenth win in 12 starts and the AA's secured the cellar for themselves with 12 losses in 14 starts.

Al Adams went the route for the Diesels to strike out five, walk two and give up five hits for no runs. The loss went to Fred Waite as he struck out two, walked one and gave up nine hits for five runs.

Widge Adams drew first blood of the game on his single to right field in the bottom of the second. Culkin advanced him to 3rd on a double and Al Adams' single brought Widge in for the tally. In the fourth frame Widge Adams gained first on the first baseman's error, second on the pitcher's error, stole third and came home on a passed ball for the 2-0 count. Doug Sword went to second on fielder's error in the fifth and crossed the plate on Leo Goyer's double to make the score 3-0. A single and a double off the bats of Corbett and Al Adams in the sixth inning added the two final tallies of the game.

Lockyer and Moon were good for two hits each for the AA's and Al Adams had two hits for the Diesels.

NAME UNCHANGED

THURCROFT, England (CP)—Mrs. Bernice Booth appealed to the National Association of Parish Councils to have the "horrible name" of her street in this Yorkshire town changed. But local historians vetoed her proposal and decided it would remain as "Hangman's Lane."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, July 5, 1952.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Will have to work for your credits today. This does not mean that things aren't generally favorable. On the contrary, rays are fine for honest, energetic endeavor.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—The up-and-at-it Taurean will get the jump (and gains) today. Follow a good plan, give yourself some leeway for originality, and you should reap generous returns.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Fine planet aspects. But don't take foolish risks, don't wait out too long either. Nothing ventured, nothing gained, applies now. Romance, marriage highly favored.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) —Many good possibilities are attended by uncertainties, especially concerning money, properties. Don't risk too much and you should average good returns.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) —Excellent outlook for smart, well planned business or professional activities. Don't commit yourself unwisely to anything not thoroughly known.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—All-in-all you should come out the better for this generous day. Each of us has a coveted idea planned goal to achieve. Study yours well, then go after it with confidence and determination.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Stars warn against undue optimism, false security. Some uncertain trends evident. Most of day says don't expect too much. But keep alert, trying always.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—If you are firm but tolerant you can turn in a fine day's return. Go about tasks without anticipated doubt or fear of trouble. You have a keen sense of balance, see openings quickly.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Stars are in very favorable trend. Make your ideas work by hard, honest endeavor. Build strong reserves; protect family, loved ones and again God's blessings.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Some confused notions that could be troublesome if you fall in with them. Resist every idea that breeds discontent, dissension.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You can make good headway if you don't think you have all the answers. Look around, investigate, ask some questions. Investments favored.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Concentrate on the essentials especially during early hours. Afternoon promotes branching into the untried, but always with sound planning knowing what you really are about.

YOU BORN TODAY: You have keen humor, often wit. Are romantic, at times adventurous. Generally very active and determined. Sometimes tend to have gloomy moods. Dispel these and you can accomplish much more in life, feel healthier, happier. Birthdate of Admiral David Glasgow Farragut, U.S. Civil War hero; P. T. Barnum, noted showman.

Profitable Dairy Cows
More Essential Now Than Ever
Due to years of cultivation and growing of crops the soil becomes depleted of many necessary minerals, etc., consequently many grains do not contain adequate nutritive value.
This is one reason for the need of supplementary feeds to make a properly balanced ration for dairy cows.
You can't get milk without feed. The more a cow will eat the more milk you will get. But the feed must be properly balanced and contain the necessary amounts of vitamins and minerals as well as proteins and carbohydrates.
To make more money, keep only well bred cows and feed them to the limit with Blatchford's Dairy Meal which is very palatable, contains abundant quantities of all the essential vitamins, minerals and is the most economical feed you can buy.

Stake Horse

By Larry Sternig

She smiled. "I'm just happy. I mean, we're both so young, and it never lasts when you're young, does it? I'll bet you've kissed lots of girls."

"This is the first time I've ever been in love," Johnny answered.

"Me, too." She gripped his hand tightly. "But — Oh, we've got these troubles, Johnny. Will it last if we wait?"

"And why should we wait?"

She shook her head. "I don't know. Only—" and she looked at him anxiously "only I'm not sure. I...want to be a full-time wife when the time comes, Johnny. I've spent so many, many hours on my music, and I—I'm not sure Johnny."

"I am," he said, "but I won't rush you. You're right, we've both got problems to solve. I'll know, by fall, just what I'll have to do for a living. I don't know now." His voice was even.

"There'll never be anybody else," she promised. "Never!"

"That's right," he said; and bent down to kiss her again.

For a man who had just fallen in love, Johnny looked pretty solemn as he drove back to the farm. Maybe falling in love was what he needed. He had Carol to think of now.

Johnny Hamilton told Nystrom the next morning about his talk with Kovalt. The trainer's eyes were bleak. "He's a tough one to fight, Johnny." He laid a friendly hand on Johnny's shoulder, "You're kind of young to be making hundred thousand dollar decisions."

"If you were in my shoes, what would you tell him?"

"I'd tell him to go jump in a lake." The trainer smiled. "But I was never very sensible." His smile faded, and he looked thoughtful. "You know, all you have got is Goodhue's word for all this. Maybe you ought to check it more closely."

"You mean get another lawyer?"

Nystrom looked doubtful. "Not exactly. It's pretty touchy, you know, one attorney checking on another. They have their ethics, and it would tip our hand."

"What then?"

"I could look up Judge Garry. He was a friend of your dad's."

"I'd appreciate that," Johnny said.

They'd be moving to Atwater this morning. Johnny went down to the stables to supervise the preparations while Nystrom went to town to see Judge Garry.

They were taking almost the entire string, headed by Bella and Adonis. They'd have to sign a top rider. Their only boy, Rusty Sloan, was young, but learning fast, and could handle the cheaper mounts.

They walked the horses some quarter mile to the siding where they were being loaded, and Johnny conferred with the agent there. They would arrive at Atwater Fields late that afternoon, he learned.

Ed Nystrom was back by noon, and the pale blue eyes were bleaker than ever. He said "The judge didn't like what I had to say. This Goodhue, it seems, is a sort of protege of his. He helped put him through law school. He even landed him with your dad."

"You don't even think I should see another lawyer?"

"You'll have to decide for yourself. I've a lot of faith in Judge Garry's word. His judgment is pretty sound."

Johnny gulped, and his eyes went to the stables. "Okay. It's up to the horses then. I can't raise the money any other way."

If Adonis lived up to what they had a right to expect, if Bella continued the streak she had enjoyed as a two-year-old, then $100,000 wasn't too much to hope for in three months' campaigning. But nothing is as uncertain as a horse race, and Adonis was exceedingly unpredictable.

Some horses love to win; fight every step of the way to win, outclassed or not. Adonis liked to run, but there seemed no impulse in him to answer a challenger's threat. He'd had some thrilling wins and some humiliating defeats as a two-year-old. He was impervious to the lash; deaf to any pleadings of his rider. Johnny could only hope that the winter's rest had changed his temperament.

He wrote a letter to Carol before leaving. He tried to express some part of the revolution she had caused in his plans for the future. And he told her that if everything went as he hoped, they could be married this summer.

Nystrom rode up to Atwater Fields with him in the convertible, and Rusty Sloan followed in the pick-u-p. The rest of the crew went by train with the horses.

It was a well-managed track, and the purses generally high. Expenses would come out of the cheaper races, the claimers. On the big ones, they'd have to shoot for the purse and whatever they could pick up at the autuel windows.

This last, Nystrom would have no part of. It was his boast that he'd never bet on a horse race, his claim that he never would.

The entire string got a workout the next morning. Even in the elm-shaded stable area, the air was hot and lifeless. It didn't seem to bother Bella, or the two year old Challenger, but Adonis sulked, dogging his morning workout, feeding half heartedly.

Rusty said, "There was a time when you could deal with a colt like this. But the S.P.C.A. would be on your neck in a minute if you tried it now."

Nystrom's voice was reminiscent. "You can discipline kids the old fashioned way, but not a horse."

"Isn't there some other way besides beating?" Johnny asked. "Maybe we could try a little psychology—"

Nystrom laughed. "You can call in your child psychologist. I'll have a talk with the vet."

"No pill will cure whatever's wrong with Adonis," said Rusty. "It's in his head—like I've been telling you.

When the trainer had left them, Rusty said, "You find another boy yet, Mr. Hamilton?"

Johnny shook his head, scrutinizing Rusty. He was a thin youth, bony, with a freckled, serious face and a mop of auburn hair. He was, Johnny knew, a potentially great rider. He had the hands, the poise, the courage.

Johnny grinned. "I'll probably have to string along with you, Rusty. Think you can handle them all?"

"I can try. If you can't get another boy, I'll have to." Rusty looked down at his big hands, his freckled face screwed up in thought. "Mr. Hamilton, if it's help, I'd work for less. We could keep it to ourselves."

Johnny ruffled the youngster's hair. "You let me do the worrying around here."

A big yellow hard top convertible came slowly along shedrow. It was driven by Roger Kovalt. Johnny went over to the fence to wait for Rusty to breeze a two-year-old.

Here was the sun and the infield green before him. Here were the thoroughbreds, showing their wares, the empty stands, the rail birds. Here I am, Johnny thought, with all this and Carol too. I should be a lot happier than I am.

Rusty came through the gate aboard the two-year-old filly, Annabella. "When she's warm enough," Johnny said, "give her a two-furlong sprint. She might have the stuff for the Futurity."

He hadn't noticed that Kovalt had come up from behind. When he did, he turned away.

Annabella went into the first turn easily, under wraps. A rail bird at the turn was looking at his watch. Through the backstretch Annabella ran, the pace lifting. Halfway through the north turn, Rusty shook her free.

She moved nicely, close to the rail, with a compact, powerful stride that ate up the dirt.

Kovalt said, "Likely looking animal."

Johnny turned, but it wasn't he Kovalt had been addressing. A tall, white-haired man in gray flannel had joined Kovalt.

Uptrack Rusty turned and came back. When he reached the gate he said, "I'll take Challenger for the Futurity, Mr. Hamilton. This filly hasn't got his speed."

"I think you're right," Johnny agreed. "We'll try him next."

As Rusty rode away, the white haired man detached himself from Kovalt's side, and came over. He was smiling. "You're John Hamilton's boy?"

Johnny nodded. He liked the looks of this elderly man; he could not picture him as a friend of Kovalt's.

"My name is Garry," the man said. "I was a friend of your dad's."

"Judge Garry," Johnny identified him. "I've heard Dad talk about you." They shook hands.

The judge glanced uncomfortably over at Kovalt. "I—uh — hope you'll have a successful season. Mr. Nystrom has told me of some of your troubles. If there's any way I can help—"

"Thanks," Johnny said. "There isn't much anyone can do for me unless I do have a successful season."

The judge nodded. "It's a tough game, son. Try to play it as well as you can. But there are bound to be disappointments—"

Johnny managed a grin. "I've found that out already, sir. I hope I've inherited the ability to take it."

"I'm sure you have," the judge told him, "And I sincerely hope everything turns out for the best. He went back to stand next to Kovalt.

Rusty was bringing Challenger out onto the track now. The sorrel colt was acting up.

Challenger wanted to run; Rusty was having a time trying to rate him down. Then they were spanning the backstretch. Rusty had evidently given the colt his head.

Dust rose on the north turn, and through the dust the sorrel streak came, running smoothly, with great strides, looking all legs and straining neck. Rusty rode high, his bat idle in his hand, gaining speed. Into the grandstand lane now, getting bigger, the hoof-thunder louder, the stride all out. Johnny forgot his troubles for the moment, and the watch in his hand, as the colt hammered by.

This was the one for the Futurity, all right.

The judge and Kovalt were walking toward the stables. Rusty brought Challenger over to the fence and he was grinning. "Well—?"

Johnny nodded. "I wish Adonis had his heart."

Back at the stables, a little later, Nystrom said, "The vet says Adonis is sound as a bell. It's all between his ears."

Johnny wasn't listening. He said ,"Judge Garry here— with Kovalt."

Nystrom frowned.

Johnny's smile was bitter. "He is not only a friend of Goodhue's he's a friend of Kolvalt's, too. Still think he gave you good advice yesterday?"

Nystrom nodded. "There's never been any doubt in my mind about Judge Garry."

On Saturday they had entries in only two of the cheap races. In the third, the Hamilton entry was a filly named Melody. Melody, to Johnny, looked like a sure hunch bet. When the mutuels opened, he laid three hundred across the board, a hundred each way.

Carol was at the window with him, and when she saw the money, her eyes went wide.

"It's the only way I can get enough dimes to pay the notes," he explained to her.

She couldn't in her feminine way, understand that, despite his explanations. To her, gambling was losing, not winning. Even the fact that Melody won, and paid off seven, four and three, didn't change that, "Johnny, I wish you'd promise me one thing. Don't bet. You'll get the money. I know everything's going to be all right. But don't bet."

He grinned at her. "Nothing but cinches. That's not betting; that's just a fast investment."

Ana Pauker Fired From High Post In Romanian Govt.

One-Time Darling of Reds Ousted From Party in May

BERLIN (AP)—Ana Pauker has been fired from her job as foreign minister of Romania, the Soviet-licensed news agency ADN reported today from Bucharest

The news agency said Simion Buchici has been appointed to take the place of the one-time darling of international Communism who was purged in May from the Romanian Communist party's high command.

The ADN report said Mrs. Pauker, the hefty, 59-year-old daughter of a rabbi, was fired "by decree of the great National Assembly of the people's republic of Romania."

Ouster Expected

Her ouster had been expected since she was purged from the nation's politburo for "errors and deviations."

At that time she and several other top Romanian Reds were denounced as counter-revolutionary. Western observers said they were being made scapegoats for Romania's current economic woes.

Jut-jawed Mrs. Pauker had been foreign minister of Romania since November, 1947. She spent the Second World War years in Moscow, returning to her native land when it was overrun by the Red Army.

She was reputed to enjoy the special privilege of being able to telephone Stalin at any time she pleased.

Although there have been previous unconfirmed reports that Mrs. Pauker had been kicked out of the foreign ministry after the Politburo purge, today's ADN account was the first mention in any Russian-controlled organ.

Rumor Imprisoned

Unconfirmed rumors have had her in prison in Bucharest and also on her way to Moscow in chains.

An, fat, ugly heroine of millions of women Communists through the world, fell from favor after her close friend, Vasila Luca, was expelled from the Communist party's central committee as a "right-wing deviationist" last May.

Stalin himself apparently did nothing to save his onetime favorite, whom he once described as "the cleverest woman Communist outside Russia."

After she took over the Romanian Foreign Office, she lived in style with three houses and seven servants. Paris creations garbed her substantial figure. Her auto was bullet-proofed and armored.

Nothing is known of her husband, Marcel Pauker, an engineer. Some reports say he was arrested in Russia and shot.

But she has always been the "perfect Communist mother" to her three children, taking part in their home life and often appearing with them at the opera or theatre—complete with a bodyguard of half-a-dozen men.

Should Speed Civil Defence Says P-C Leader

OTTAWA (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, yesterday said in the Commons the government should speed civil defence if the international situation is as explosive as External Affairs Minister Pearson described it in Winnipeg recently.

During discussion of an appropriation of $6,508,000 for civil defence, he said that, if the next two or three months are as critical as Mr. Pearson said, the government should be doing more to tackle the civil-defence problem with urgency and reality.

Health Minister Martin, under whose department civil defence is handled, said the government is trying to model civil defence on the organizations in Britain and the United States.

The aim was decentralization because without good local authorities no amount of central authority could help.

Mr. Martin said he wanted to stress that a considerable amount of civil-defence activity is going on. The government was taking the matter seriously.

The general plans were sufficient to justify the statement that Canada's preparations were comparable with those of any other country.

Textile Workers Accept Agreement In Secret Ballot

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking textile workers here and at Valleyfield, Que., voted to end their three-month wage walkout.

The vote came yesterday in a secret ballot as members of the United Textile Workers of America T.L.C.-A.F.L., decided to end the walkout that started April 12 in plants of the Dominion Textile Company here and at Valleyfield.

The workers voted on an agreement reached Sunday between union representatives and company officials which provides a general wage increase of 11 cents an hour; an increase of 10 per cent retroactive to September when the last agreement expired; two cents an hour, in addition to the 11 cents, for 600 maintenance workers and skilled help; increase in statutory holidays from six to seven.

143 Against

Figures given out by the union said 3,274 of the 4,600 eligible voters went to the polls and that 3,006 voted to end the strike. The number voting against was given as 143 and there were 125 spoiled ballots.

Shortly after the result of the vote became known, the company announced that the strike-bound plants would be reopened Monday morning.

Back for Repairs

OTTAWA (CP)—The C. D. Howe, Canadian government ship which left Montreal on the annual eastern Arctic patrol June 27, is steaming back to Quebec City for repairs, the Transport Department announced yesterday.

The Howe was found to be leaking in one of its forepeak plates after passing through a field of ice off the Labrador coast.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Fine summer weather covers most of the continent from the Prairies to the Maritimes and Atlantic states today. Showers and Thundershowers which are occurring east of the Rockies may edge into northwestern Ontario by Sunday evening but elsewhere the weekend will continue fine. Sunday will however be a little warmer with gradual increasing humidity.

HOUSE ADJOURNS UNTIL NOVEMBER, ALL BILLS PASSED

Prime Minister Hints Of Conference in Fall

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament is adjourned until Thursday, Nov. 20.

The lawmakers headed home from Ottawa's mid-summer swelter after a closing rush of work ending in a non-stop Commons sitting yesterday of 7½ hours just before getting Royal Assent to the late-session batch of legislation.

Major items in the legislation were the controversial Redistribution Bill—increasing Commons representation to 265 from 262 and reshuffling ridings—and the first pension plan for long-service members of the Commons.

Conference In Fall

Shortly before rising, the Commons learned from Prime Minister St. Laurent that a commonwealth conference is in preparation. The Prime Minister, in a guarded statement, did not say when or where it would be held. John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) suggested it would be in November.

Other developments at the closing sitting:

1. Immigration Minister Harris announced that numbers of immigrants for the first five months of this year are well ahead of the corresponding period in 1951, but it is expected the 1952 total will be below the record 194,391 of last year. The Minister said the entry of workers will be slowed during the cold-weather period of reduced employment, starting Nov. 1.

2. Revenue Minister McCann announced the CBC will add an Ottawa television station to its proposed Montreal-Toronto network, and the capital's station should be in operation by next spring. It will cost $300,000.

3. The Commons cleaned up the final millions in the $4,412,000,000 spending program set out in departmental estimates for 1952-53. Estimates of several departments were approved.

Drew Critical

In a lengthy debate on immigration, members heard criticism from George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, of the visa frauds disclosed some months ago in the smuggling of Italian and German immigrants into Canada.

Mr. Harris said an R.C.M.P. investigation is about completed and the Justice Department is considering what action should be taken against those involved. Some Immigration Department employees in Canada and abroad have been reported as participating in the irregularities.

SIGN WASN'T THERE

TORONTO (CP) —The Ontario Highway Traffic Act says stop signs must be within 50 feet of an intersection and not more than eight feet from the ground. Therefore, John J. Kelly argued yesterday, the stop sign his client was charged with disregarding does not exist because it is 72 feet from a corner and nine feet from the ground. Charge dismissed.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—William Tisdall, 67, was killed here last night when his motorcycle crashed into the side of an automobile.

Coalition Govt. Expected in B.C. As No Party Claims Majority

VANCOUVER (CP)—Results in four Vancouver seats may decide whether the socialist C.C.F. or conservative Social Credit forms the next provincial government in British Columbia. Either way it will be a minority government—neither can command a majority in the 48-seat Legislature.

As official counting of alternative votes cast in the June 12 provincial election dragged on—it started Thursday, three weeks after the election—C.C.F. and Social Credit rank cheek-by-jowl in the race to obtain the largest group in the new house.

Early today, final returns had been tabulated for 32 seats. In another, the unofficial count immediately after the election, decided the outcome. Fifteen were in doubt.

As returning officers began the third day of counting, this was the party standing compared with results of the 1949 election (number of candidates leading in the 1952 election shown in brackets):

	1952	1949
CCF	14(6)	7
SC	14(3)	0
Lib	2(4)	26
PC	2(2)	13
Lab	1	1
Ind	0	1
Totals	48	48

(In 1949, Liberals and Progressive Conservatives ran as coalition candidates. The parties broke off the coalition last January.)

The four key seats which may settle the issue are the two-member constituencies of Vancouver-Burrard and Vancouver Centre. The C.C.F. led after the second counts in the Burrard seats and in the unofficial first count in Vancouver Centre. However, second-choice counting in Burrard indicated that Social Credit candidates had a chance to move out in front.

If the C.C.F. holds all four and if other leading candidates go on to win election it will have 20 seats to 17 for Social Credit. But if Social Credit, which holds power in neighboring Alberta and never before won a seat in B.C., overcomes the C.C.F. lead in two of the Vancouver seats it could wind up with 19 seats to 18 for the socialist party.

Cost-of-Living Index Takes Upward Jog Due to Rise In Cost of Food, Rents

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher prices in May for fresh vegetables, pork and rents stopped a four-month decline in the cost-of-living index and jogged it upward again.

The index rose three-fifths of a point in May to 187.3 from 186.7, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

It was the first increase in the index since the peak of 191.5 was reached last December. In the following four months the index eased 4.8 points and gave rise to hopes that the battle against inflation was over. The index is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

Spud Prices Up

Prices of fresh vegetables — chiefly potatoes—pork and rents increased enough to overbalance decreases during May in a long list of items including beef, butter, bacon, coffee, oranges, coal and coke, electrical equipment, furniture and floor coverings and some items of clothing.

The food sub-index showed its first increase since last December in climbing to 237.0 from 235.3. It was still well below the peak of 251.4 in July last year.

Rents were surveyed for the normal quarterly period and that sub-index jumped 1.6 points to a new high of 147.9.,

Joining in the decreases were fuel and light, to 149.8 from 150.6; clothing to 209.3 from 210.1 and home furnishings and services to 197.2 from 198.2. The miscellaneous group stood pat at 147.4.

Wholesale Prices Down

The Bureau of Statistics also announced that during June wholesale prices appeared to be continuing a decline that began last year. The index for 30 industrial materials dropped to 249.4 on June 27 from 250.5 on May 30. The average for June last year was 304.0.

Farm prices also dropped. The index for Canadian farm products at terminal markets stood at 248.9 on June 27, down from 250.6 on May 30.

The wholesale and farm prices indices both are based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

Taft Gets Texas Delegates Needs 74 More Votes To Win GOP Nomination

By JACK BELL

CHICAGO (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft's Texas-borne surge toward the Republican Presidential nomination faced ab listering challenge today from supporters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The two major contenders, arriving here during the day, were ready to take over personal direction of a round-by-round battle in next week's convention for the 604 votes needed to give one of them the party's nomination.

Needs 74 Votes

Taft has moved within 74 votes of the needed nomination total in the Associated Press tabulation.

This scoreboard includes contested delegates awarded to Taft by the Taft-controlled Republican National Committee. Since the committee's decisions are being appealed, only the events of next week can determine just how high Taft's total will be.

As of now, the count showed: Taft 530, Eisenhower 427, other candidates 131, still uncommitted 118.

The Ohioan increased his lead yesterday when the National Committee voted 60 to 41 to give Taft 22 of the 38 Texas delegates and assign 16 of them to Eisenhower.

This was exactly what Taft proposed and what Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, campaign manager for Eisenhower, rejected as a "compromise with fraud."

Lodge and other Eisenhower leaders said they will carry their protests to the Credentials Committee which handles the seating of delegates and to the convention floor itself.

The fight over the Texas delegation started when Eisenhower men swamped local conventions in the state but were thrown out by the Taft-controlled committee when the time came to name the Texas delegation to Chicago. Eisenhower backers held a rump convention and the result was two Sexas slates — one pro-Taft, the other pro-Eisnhowr.

The National Committee took the Taft compromise on Texas yesterday after rejecting, 58 to 43, a substitute motion to seat a pro-Eisenhower delegation.

Arthur Summerfield, Michigan National Committeeman who is credited with being able to swing a substantial bloc of his 46-vote delegation to either major candidate, voted with the Eisenhower forces.

Similarly both California members of the committee supported the Eisenhower view, a possible forecast of what might happen if Governor Earl Warren should decide he has no chance for the nomination.

Members from Pennsylvania and Maryland—holdout states in the nomination battle—split their votes down the middle.

FORMER J. P. DIES

HAMILTON (CP) — Charles G. Bird, 71, for many years active in city government, died yesterday. In 1908 he was elected president of the Labor Educational Association of Ontario and in 1932 was elected alderman. He was appointed a justice of the peace for Wentworth County in 1928 and retired in 1940.

INCO Employees Want Increase Of 28½ Cents

TORONTO (CP) — A 28½-cent hourly wage increase is asked by the 16,000 employees of International Nickel Company of Sudbury and Port Colborne in a brief presented to a conciliation board hearing a contract dispute between the company and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.)

Judge H. E. Fuller of Welland is chairman of the board.

In addition to wage increase, the workers want three additional paid statutory holidays and improved vacation provisions.

The union said net profits of I.N.C.O., which produces 91 per cent of Canadian nickel, last year were almost 50 per cent higher than in 1950.

The brief said the hourly rate for miners is $1.71½, an increase of 42 per cent over 1939 rates. The brief said miners' rates have not kept pace with the cost of living or with the rate of increase in other industries.

Shad Ruining Beaches

TORONTO (CP)—"Crazy shad" are ruining swimming along 35 miles of Lake Ontario shoreline, Dudley Hitchcox, Halton county game warden, said yesterday.

The fish are littering the shoreline from Toronto to Burlington. Several beaches have been closed because of the decaying bodies and consequent odor.

Mr. Hitchcox said the shad enter shallow water, swim around in a crazy manner, then die. No explanation has been found for their behavior nor for the cause of their death.

NOTED MUSICIAN DIES

TORONTO —(CP) — Frank Squire Welsman, 79, organizer in 1906 of the original Toronto Symphony Orchestra, died Wednesday at his summer home on Lake Joseph, in the Muskoka district. He was associated with the Canadian Academy of Music and for three years commuted to St. Thomas to serve as musical director of Alma College.

MAN KILLED IN CRASH

TORONTO, (CP)—William McIvor, 57, was killed and three women were injured last night in a head-on collision between an automobile and a truck on the Dundas highway a few miles west of here. John Rice, 26, of Seaforth, identified as the driver of the truck, was taken to hospital with cuts and severe shock.

KILLED BY FALLING LOG

Watford (CP) — William Smith 60, of the Kettle Point Indian reserve, was killed near here yesterday when a log toppled on him. He was one of a crew loading logs on a truck in a bush lot.

FEDERAL SURPLUS FOR TWO MONTHS IS $241,100,000

Abbott Says Costs To Be Heavier Later

OTTAWA (CP) —Federal financial surpluses, a big political issue last year, are back on the doorstep of Finance Minister Abbott.

Mr. Abbott reported yesterday in a statement that revenue surpassed expenditures by $241,100,000 in the first two months of this fiscal year, starting April 1, even more than in the corresponding months of the last fiscal year.

'Don't Mean Much'

But the man whose 1951-52 monthly surpluses became a political football painstakingly stated that the figures don't really mean much because federal expenditures are heavily loaded in the last six months of the year.

At the same time, he said the Finance Department now is trying to give a truer picture of the government's financial position month by month by spreading over the year certain charges which in the past have been concentrated towards the end. Interest payments on the public debt were cited as the major example.

Despite this new redistribution, the Minister's statement showed that budgetary revenues for April and May exceeded expenditures by $241,100,000 compared to the comparable total of $233,900,000 for the corresponding months of 1951. The latter figure includes the charges which the department now is spreading over the year.

Mr. Abbott ended 1951-52 with a surplus of $355,000,000 compared to the $30,000,000 surplus for which he budgetted. At one time during the year it soared to $700,000,000 and brought Opposition complaints that the government was overtaxing the people.

Revenues for April and May totalled $667,500,000 compared to $571,300,000 for the corresponding months of 1951. Income tax collections were up to $248,300,000, a $57,200,000 boost reflecting "higher levels of personal incomes and higher tax rates."

The same went for corporation taxes, up $41,400,000 to a total of $189,700,000.

Spending Below Peak

Spending was $426,400,000 compared to $337,400,000, a boost of $89,600,000 mainly due to a soaring defence spending.

But, Mr. Abbott said, defence spending is still well below the peak it should hit this year. Of the $2,125,000,000 due to be spent in that field, only $167,500,000 was spent in the first two months.

Canada Dollar Jump Highest Since Start of Joy-Ride in Dec.

LONDON (Reuters) — The Canadian dollar took another upward leap yesterday, the most spectacular of any day since it started its joy-ride last December.

In late dealings in London the Canadian dollar rate reached 2.675 dollars per pound sterling, making the Canadian dollar worth $1.04 in terms of United States currency.

Even Canadian bankers had thought the rise would stop when it reached a value of $1.03 U.S.

Bankers agreed the chief reason for the climb was the movement of capital from the United States into Canada. The great rise in the Canadian dollar was started by a movement of capital to Canada from Switzerland, but this, though it still goes on, has become much smaller than the capital movement to Canada from the United States.

United States banking statistics for the week ended Wednesday show a jump of $40,000,000 in the total of U.S. dollar investments held by foreign central banks.

All of this large sum may be due to the movement of United States capital to Canada, even though the Canadian central bank repelled some of the money by allowing the rate to rise.

Red Headquarters Left Flaming Ruins By U.N. Pilots

21 Communist Jets Destroyed or Damaged

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United Nations pilots destroyed or damaged 21 Communist jets and levelled a big Red military school without losing a single plane in a raid yesterday near the Manchurian border, the U.S. Fifth Air Force reported today.

About 70 U.S. Thunderjet fighter-bombers hurled explosives and flaming gasoline on a large headquarters building and barracks structures at the school, 20 miles south of the Yalu River. Intelligence reports estimated 1,500 Communist officer candidates were to have been graduated there this month.

Eighty-five American Sabre jets ripped into formations of 115 Russian-built Mig-15s bent on thwarting the strike.

The Sabres bagged their second highest toll of Migs for any single day of the war, the Air Force said—12 destroyed, two probably destroyed and seven damaged.

The Air Force said camera film had confirmed 10 kills, one probable and four damaged.

Sabre pilots last Dec. 13 shot down 13 Migs.

No Planes Lost

The battle ended a week in which no Allied planes were lost over North Korea, the Air Force said. It was the first such week since last August.

Other U.S. Air Force and Marine, Australian, South Korean and South African planes joined in attacks on the Reds' North Korean supply system yesterday. The Air Force said night bombers knocked out 41 supply vehicles in a strike near Pyongyang.

Allied pilots claimed they killed 45 Communists in three air strikes against enemy troop positions near Panmanjom.

The U.S. Eighth Army said the roughest ground action was in the same area. Defenders of an Allied outpost forced Communist attackers to withdraw after an hour's exchange of grenade and small-arms fire early today.

Five Miners Die As Air Supply Fails in Shaft

POINT OF AIR, Wales (Reuters)—Five men died fighting for breath 95 feet underground here early today as the air rushed out of a coal mine pressure chamber and shaft flood waters poured in.

An accident on the surface fouled the air supply to the chamber, in which the men were working to deepen a new shaft at a 100-year-old coal mine near here.

A sixth man, experienced in high pressure work, was able to reach a steel ladder and clamber out ahead of the rising flood waters.

The surface accident killed another man—making a total death roll of six—and seven other surface workers were taken to hospital.

The accident occurred when a heavy crane bucket fouled the air lock seals.

Low Standard In Composition At McGill Seen

MONTREAL (CP)—One-quarter of first-year McGill students are defective in English composition, Dr. George Ian Duthie, professor of English at the university, said yesterday.

Disturbed at a continuing low standard in English composition among freshmen, the university required the class to write a special exam last September on the mechanics of writing and reading comprehension.

Dr. Duthie said results of the September exam showed that "one-quarter of the students were really defective in a subject in which they should have been expert long ago."

In September, 26 per cent failed and only three per cent had first class or near first class marks.

Dr. Duthie said the cause of the sloppy English was, first, need for more discipline in school to develop "habits of close and methodical study," and, second, the fact that high school students read fewer good books due to competition for their leisure time from movies, comic books and radio.

Believe Mystery Tribe Existed On Manitoulin

SHEGUINDAH BAY (CP)—Crudely-fashioned stones found along the shores of this Manitoulin Island community have brought archaeologists on the run to look into what may be one of the most important discoveries made in Canada.

Experts believe the discovery is evidence that a mystery tribe existed in this district during the Stone Age. Its members probably were shaping their tools by hand long before the pyramids were built.

Thomas Lee, 38-year-old anthropologist of the National Museum at Ottawa, and a group of experts in less than a week have uncovered more than 1,000 artifacts on Manitoulin.

Mr. Lee said he believes the race he is trying to find lived at least 1,000 years before the bow and arrow was conceived.

Tentatively it is believed the tribe existed 5,000 to 10,000 years ago. Mr. Lee believes that traces of the race should reveal members of the tribe were considerably smaller than the modern human.

Canadian Legion Band Concert, Fireworks Display Enjoyed By Over 5,000 at Fair Grounds

A donation which is expected to exceed $500 will be given to the Belleville Recreation Commission as a result of last night's band concert and fireworks display at the Fair Grounds. The attraction was sponsored by the Canadian Legion and profits will be shared by the Legion and the Commission to provide playgrounds and other recreational facilities for the city's youngsters.

During the program, L. W Digby, chairman of the concert committee, presented a "token" cheque to William Van Tassel, chairman of the Recreation Commission, as evidence that the Legion intended to share 50-50 with the Commission. A similar donation was made last year.

An estimated 5,000 people crowded the grandstand enclosure to hear three bands and trumpet bands. Bands taking part in the program included the Royal Canadian Regiment from Petawawa, under Lieutenant W. Armstrong; the Royal Canadian Air Force Training Command band from Toronto, under Flying Officer C. Hunt, and the Belleville Municipal Band under Larry Bond.

Trumpet bands included, the band from Trenton Air Station and the recently-formed Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment band under Lieutenant A. Duffy.

An exhibition in aero acrobatics was given early in the program when four Mustangs from Trenton gave a flying display which was originally scheduled to last 15 minutes but was extended to half an hour.

A Maze of Color

Children remained up long past their regular bedtime to watch the display of fireworks, which filled the sky with a maze of color. During the fire works session, many children strayed from their parents but were recovered following "lost" announcements over the public address system by Master of Ceremonies, Eugene Lang. An estimated $500 was spent to provide the fire works display.

Winner of the feature prize was Mrs. Arthur Brown, of the Ontario School for the Deaf, whose lucky ticket entitled her to a television set.

ST. THOMAS (CP)—L.H. Dingman, 81, one of Canada's old-time newspapermen, died early today.

A newspaper man for more than 70 years, Mr. Dingman was president and publisher of the St. Thomas Times-Journal and the Stratford Beacon-Herald. He died in his sleep after a long illness.

L.H.," as he was widely known, used to say he hardly knew when he started in newspaper work. At the age of 10 he started to run errands, learned to set type and did odd jobs around his father's paper.

Family All Newsmen

He was a member of a family which made a great contribution to the newspaper profession in south-western Ontario and to Canada generally. He was the St. Thomas member of The Canadian Press.

His father, Absalom Dingman, ran the weekly Dispatch at Strathroy 75 years ago. Of six brothers who predeceased L.H Dingman, one, W.S. Dingman, was publisher and editor of the Stratford Herald and another, Charles, became managing editor and director of the Stratford Beacon-Herald.

The latter's son, Charles, is the present managing director of the paper. Among nephews surviving are George M. Dingman of St. Thomas, vice-president and managing director of the St. Thomas Times-Journal, and W. Hugh Agnew of the editorial staff of the same paper.

Lewis Hervey Dingman was born on a farm in Sombra Township, Lambton County, on March 12, 1865. His family were United Empire Loyalists.

The grandfather of "L.H" bought a farm at Sombra. One of his sons, Absolom, with a growing family of nine, became interested in newspaper work and in 1874 bought the Strathroy Dispatch. Mr. Dingman, Sr., was a close friend of Sir John A. Macdonald and the conservative leader, Canada's first Prime Minister, appointed him inspector of Indian Agencies for the district in 1884.

Buy Herald in '86

In 1886 W.S. Dingman and L.H. Dingham bought the Stratford Herald, then a weekly. Two years later they turned it into a daily.

One day in 1889 "L.H." received a telephone call from J.S. Brierley, then owner of the St. Thomas Journal. Mr. Brierley had just bought the Montreal Herald and wanted an editor and manager for his St. Thomas paper. Three years later Mr. Dingman purchased the rival paper, The Times. In 1918 he bought the Journal and merged the two papers.

As an editor, Mr. Dingman took special pains in selecting clippings from North American papers and magazines for his editorial page. He read hundreds of them, culling the best for his paper. It was said that lazy editors throughout Canada got their clippings from the Times-Journal.

Liked Theatre

A life-long lover of the theatre, Mr. Dingman recalled with nostalgia the days when good travelling shows visited St. Thomas and London. There was hardly a year since his first visit to New York in 1890 that he hadn't visited it again to take in the best shows.

Mr. Dingman never married. Three nieces and one sister, Mrs. Winifred Agnew, also survive He lived with his sister in St. Thomas.

Legislative Council Undisturbed By Coming Quebec Election

QUEBEC (CP)—One segment of the Quebec Legislature will remain undisturbed by the province's July 16 election.

That branch is the Legislative Council, which corresponds to the Canadian Senate, and whose 24 members are appointed for life. It is the only provincial Upper House remaining in Canada.

Like the Senate, the Council functions as a sort of legislative "safety-valve," reviewing and giving its aproval to legislation coming to it from the elected 92-member assembly.

Though most provincial legislation originates in the assembly, the councillors are allowed to initiate bills so long as they do not commit the government to spending. All money bills must originate in the Assembly.

Liberal Majority

At present the Liberals hold a substantial majority in the council, partly through filling vacancies when that party was in power from 1940 to 1944. There are 16 Liberal councillors, seven Union Nationale representatives and one vacancy in La Valliere division. The Liberal incumbent, Joseph C. E. Ouellet, died last January.

It is the red-carpeted, 19th century Chamber that the Lieutenant-Governor goes to give Royal Assent to legislation once it has been approved by both Houses.

It is here, too that distinguished visitors are received when they come to this old history-steeped capital. The most recent of these visitors was Queen Elizabeth, visiting Quebec with the Duke of Edinburgh during their tour of Canada last fall.

That was the second time in little more than a decade that the Chamber has been visited by royalty. In 1939, Queen Elizabeth and the late King George were received there.

CROC WAS HOT

MUEHLACKER, Germany, (Reuters)— A sweltering crocodile escaped from its circus cage Thursday and sought relief from the heat wave by lounging in a nearby river. While a search party was being organized, the refreshed croc came back to its cage of its own accord.

WOMAN SLAIN IN HOTEL

MONTREAL. (CP)—A young red-headed woman was found choked to death yesterday less than 15 hours after an unidentified couple registered at a downtown hotel. Police termed it a "likely case of murder." Discovery of the woman's nude body touched off a hunt for the man.

Trip to Taboga's Isle of Flowers Tourist Bargain

Panama, Republic of Panama — The biggest tourist bargain for a visitor to the Isthmus of Panama is the launch trip one hour out into the harbor from Balboa, Canal Zone, to the historic isle of flowers—Taboga. It costs $1.50 round trip in a powerful, safe, United States - Government-operated; 50-foot radio - equipped launch.

Even the trip out is filled with interest. From the dock at Balboa one passes the naval installations at the Pacific terminal of the Panama Canal, the ferry connecting North and South America, tuna boats and shrimp fishers in for supplies and repairs, visiting yachts from around the world at the Balboa Yacht Club, the three-mile causeway, connecting the mainland with three islands in Panama Bay, and other interesting sights.

Part of the Taboga launch route follows the channel of the Panama Canal and one passes the giant liners and slower freighters that make up the more than 600-a-month transits through the waterway.

Filled With History

Taboga looms up out of the sea, a bright green triangle, a dozen miles from the mainland.

The island is crammed with history. It was in 1515, just two years after Balboa discovered the Pacific Ocean, that the Spanish set up a settlement here. Taboga has been gaing ever since.

From Taboga in 1524 Pizarre set out for Peru where he found the gold which later came to Panama by the thousands of tons. This was almost a full century before the Pilgrims came to New England.

For nearly two centures, it was a stronghold at times for pirates who preyed on the ocean traffic bound for Panama. Morgan visited here and so did other maritime highwaymen of that era.

Taboga has a promontory reaching up some 1,600 feet which was a perfect signal station and lookout point. It served pirates and honest sailors equally well, it is reported.

Because it has a deep-water, sheltered anchorage large enough to hold a sizeable fleet, Taboga was the aiming point of ships coming up the West Coast of South America in the early colonial days. When the gold rush stimulated shipping between Panama and California, Taboga gained even more activity.

Until the early part of the 20th century, the island of Taboga furnished pure, sparkling water for all ships touching Panama or this part of the coast.

An English shipping organization, the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, which ran ships from Panama to Peru and Chile, purchased El Morro, which might be called an adjunct of Taboga. At high tide El Morro is an island; at low tide it is part of Taboga. The tides here range 18 feet in divergence, between high and low.

The small area of El Morro became practically a tiny British colony with its own homes, workshops, and dry dock.

Everybody Walks

One thrill is found on Taboga —there are no traffic problems. There are no automobiles on Taboga — even the President of Panama has to walk when he vacations there. There are no horses, either, nor cows or other animals. It's very much the way the pirates found it two centuries before!

The streets are meandering, clearly the product of folks who never thought of highways. Houses are perched here and there to suit the convenience of those who erected them. The over-all effect is helter-skelter.

Artists and poets come to Taboga to record the beauty of its flowers. At certain seasons of the year, Taboga looks like a multi-colored bouquet laid on a giant green leaf floating in a sea of tropic blue. Taboga is the Provincetown, the Gloucester, of Panama painting.

Panamanians are intensely proud of their island so close to the capital and claim, "From Canada to Patagonia, there is no climate to compare to Taboga."

In a broad way, Taboga has been catering to tourists—including pirates—since 1600. It's a fine day spent amid the vivid memories of bygone days. And it's inexpensive!

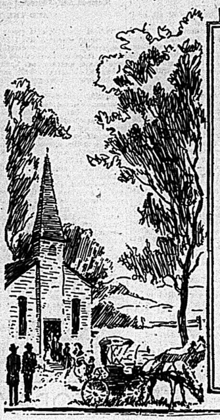
Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL



Love Divine, All Loves Excelling

Love divine, all loves excelling,
Joy of heav'n to earth come down,
Fix in us thy humble dwelling;
All thy faithful mercies crown.
Jesus, thou art all compassion,
Pure, unbounded love thou art;
Visit us with thy salvation;
Enter ev'ry trembling heart.

Breathe, O breathe thy loving Spirit
Into ev'ry troubled breast;
Let us all in thee inherit;
Let us find that second rest.
Take away our bent to sinning;
Alpha and Omega be;
End of faith, as its beginning,
Set our hearts at liberty.

Come, almighty, to deliver,
Let us all thy life receive;
Suddenly return, and never,
Nevermore thy temples leave;
Thee we would be always blessing,
Serve thee as thy hosts above,
Pray, and praise thee without ceasing,
Glory in thy perfect love.

Finish then thy new creation;
Pure and spotless let us be;
Let us see thy great salvation,
Perfectly restored in thee;
Changed from glory into glory
Till in heav'n we take our place,
Till we cast our crowns before thee,
Lost in wonder, love and praise.

Writing, for the most part, under inspiration and to give expresion to the music that was ever in his soul, Charles Wesley gave the world more hymns than any other poet of the church. He composed more than 6,500 religious poems and, though many of these have long been lost or forgotten, a goodly number have survived through the years and are still counted among the brightest hymn gems of Christendom.

Some of Wesley's hymn poems were written on horseback as he rode about England on his religious errands. Others came to him as he travelled by train or stagecoach. Still others were actually written from his bed; it is said that he dictated his final poem to his wife as he lay ill, shortly before his death.

The love of God was the theme to some of his grandest hymns. It inspired his "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling," "Loving Jesus, Gentle Lamb," "O Love Divine, How Sweet Thou Art," "Jesus, Lover Of My Soul," and a host of others.

"Jesus, Lover Of My Soul" is generally conceded to be the prize hymn in the Wesley list and because of it many students of hymnology are agreed that Wesley must ever share the pinnacle of hymn-writing fame with Isaac Watts, whose hymn, "When I Survey The Wondrous Cross" is sometimes referred to as "the finest in the English language." But "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling," a popular example of the devotional poetry for which Wesley was so widely known, is just as precious to most lovers of religious song.

It was written in 1747 and first appeared that same year in a collection of "Hymns For Those That Seek And Those That Have Redemption In The Blood Of Jesus Christ," published by the author's brother, John. Other Wesley favorites are the hymns, "Soldiers Of Christ, Arise," "A Charge To Keep I Have," "O For A Thousand Tongues To Sing," and his popular Easter Day poem:

"Christ, the Lord, is risen today,
Sons of men and angels say:
Raise your joys and triumphs high,
Sing, ye heavens, and earth reply.

Lives again our glorious King!
Where, O death, is now thy sting?
Once He died our souls to save:
Where's thy victory, boasting grave?"

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

MASCARA

Many birds appear to use some kind of eye make-up. Not by any means all, but the majority of these are lady birds, that naturally need some beautifier because they lack their husbands' bright coloring.

Quite a number favour mascara, touching up their eyes with discretion. Among these may be counted several of the ducks: Mrs. Mallard, Mrs. Baldpate, Mrs. Shoveller, and Mrs. Bluewinged Teal. Some of the hawks also daintily carry the line of the eyelashes well beyond the eyes, taking away that round look.

Much the same thing is done by both species of redpoll, the white-winged crossbill, golden-crowned kinglet, Philadelphia vireo, several kinds of sparrows, the godwit, curlew, woodcock, and some of the sandpipers.

Foster's tern and the rock ptarmigan use mascara only in winter — but then they go about it boldly. The red-breasted nuthatch and both types of shrikes also make the black through the eyes overly plain, but all waxwings, besides making the line prominent, also lengthen it out.

The cardinal let the brush go out of control, putting on such a supply of mascara that it dripped down beside and even under its bill.

Horned larks allowed the brush to slip. The blue jay fixed up its eyes very nicely, and then went ahead, painting a wonderful black pattern around its face and head.

More Attractive

A different way of making their eyes more attractive is followed by another group. Dark shadows are put under them by both hairy and downy woodpeckers, the Savannah sparrow, the cerulean and black-throated blue warblers. Myrtle, magnolia, and black and white warblers all overdo this, painting the shadows really black. The black-throated green warbler and the white-breasted nuthatch combine the dainty eyelash line with a shadow under the eyes. This is one method used, too, by Mrs. Cape May Warbler, while her husband uses a bright chestnut paint instead of the dull shadowy color.

To emphasize the eyebrow line is another trick. For this yellow and white are the two favorite colors. Some wrens, northern water-thrush, wheatear, water pipit, pine and palm warblers, and Savannah sparrow prefer yellow eyebrows. White is the style for several of the plovers, red-eyed vireo, chipping sparrow, and Mrs. rose-breasted grosbeak. The white eyebrows of the screech owl and the burrowing owl slant upwards. The warbling vireo both makes up with mascara and paints white eyebrows; the Tennessee warbler uses all three kinds of eye beautifiers. A few touches in this way give many birds individuality.

PEDESTRIANS HAVE RIGHTS, TOO

With vacation travel now in full swing and adding to already-congested highways, more and more automobiles are being funneled through Belleville as vacationers seek sites for their summer pleasure. Already plans for No. 2 highway to by-pass the city have passed the blueprint stage, but until the highway becomes a reality Belleville will experience a traffic problem not shared by many municipalities of similar size.

It has been suggested that left hand turns should be abolished to expedite the flow of traffic at the Bridge Street-Front Street intersection. The view has been expressed that enforcement of such a regulation would tend to erase some bottlenecks along Bridge Street and Front Street caused by blocking traffic in two directions while negotiating turns to the left.

So far little concern has been evidenced for pedestrians, who also happen to be people and who also happen to have a traffic problem at the self-same intersection.

With both right and left-hand turns permitted for vehicular traffic, the pedestrian, of necessity, has difficulty making a crossing on a green light. His way is blocked by moving automobiles which are permitted to proceed on a red light if making a right-hand turn. The frustration which pedestrians now experience at this intersection could be minimized if vehicles were not permitted to turn on a red light. Traffic lights which recognize the right and plight of pedestrians are in use in other centres and could possibly be made to work here.

BROWN BADGE OF HONOR

Time was when a proud home owner could boast of a well-kept lawn around his home, the edges neatly trimmed and the green grass glistening. He was admired by his neighbors for the constant care he gave his property.

But not so these days. With the existing heat spell taxing the facilities at the filtration plant to the limit, home owners have been asked to go easy on the water. This means that lawns may not receive the amount of water they should. In other years a green lawn was a badge of honor, while today a brown lawn indicates that the owner is co-operating with his neighbor and not using water which is in short supply.

MONEY IS NOT ENOUGH

A little girl of four and her baby sister of 13 months were struck by an automobile. The baby was killed, and the four-year-old, now six, "suffers paralysis of both lower limbs, her feet being insensible to cold and heat."

In a Toronto court the other day Mr. Justice Treleaven awarded this girl $23,000 damages from the driver of the car, remarking that no amount of money could be adequate compensation for the injuries she had suffered.

Surely there could be no more effective sermon than this on the subject of safe driving. This child of six condemned to a half-life is a warning and an object lesson.

We read of somebody injured in a traffic accident, and if a stranger think no more of it. But the statistical item covers such pitiful cases as this small girl. It covers children, and men and women too, whose faces are slashed and permanently disfigured by shattered glass. It covers passengers and pedestrians condemned to painful and costly months in hospital and perhaps crippled for life. It includes a child whose legs are paralyzed, and no amount of money could make up for what she has suffered and lost. — (Ottawa Journal.)

BAGPIPES DEFLATED

Ye Wonna believe this, Mac, but bagpipes were invented in the highlands of central Italy, and not in the Highlands of auld Scotia.

A Scot has let the cat out of the bagpipe. He is Thomas Pewston, vice-director of the Bagpipe Players College of Glasgow.

His research shows that in 1515, a Scottish tourist in Italy heard a bagpipe band made up of the family of Baxianus del Bruno. He invited them to Scotland where they changed their names to McKrimons and skirled the bagpipe into a national instrument.

And just the other day the councilmen of Aberdeen were threatening to go to war if a group of bonnie cornfed lassies from the University of Iowa dared invade their town as bag-pipers! Who can tell? Maybe they are some buxom American girls of Italian descent coming out of the state where the tall corn grows. — (Detroit Free Press.)

The domesticated cat was an object of veneration among the early Egyptians.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Coypright, 1952, Edgar A. Guest)

APPEARANCE

A missing button from his coat
He would be very quick to note.
A garment needing such repair
He was too proud a man to wear.

His ties were always neatly tied.
A shirt worn through he put aside,
And even though the pair was new
He wouldn't wear a squeaky shoe.

Yet, loud of voice and rude he stayed.
Ill-temper often he displayed.
He dressed himself with care, but he Still kept his faults, for all to see.

Appearance is what money buys.
He gave his thoughts to coats and ties
And bought the finest on the shelf,
But stayed untidy with himself.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 5th., 1932.

Miss Dorothy Sager of Tweed, who is the guest of Mrs. J. F. Houston, Charles Street, was guest soloist at Bridge Street Church on Sunday and sang in a highly excellent manner, "Ninety and Nine." Miss Sager was gold medalist at the Toronto Exhibition last year.

Mr. John Phillips was home from Ottawa to spend the weekend.

Mrs. Benson has returned home from Ottawa where she visited her brother and sister.

McAnnany Street and Market Street have been made one-way streets for traffic.

Alderman Woodley, acting mayor in the absence of His Worship Mayor Geo. O. Tice, cast the deciding vote against the motion introduced by Ald. R. P. White with regards to the fixing of assessments, when a deadlock occurred in the vote, five for and five against the motion. Those in favor were Aldermen Brickman, Imlah, Morgan, Sprackett and White; those against were Aldermen Bennett, Marshall, Armstrong, Donahue and Foster. Ald. Woodley's vote defeated the motion. Those absent from the meeting were Mayor Tice, Ald. Walker and Hill. The latter was at the meeting, but was called away before the vote was taken. The city solicitor, Mr. A. B. Collins, gave his opinion that the motion was not according to the statutes.

30 YEARS AGO

July 5th., 1922.

The highly gifted fourteen-year-old child preacher, Mary Agnes Vitchestain of Pittsburg, Pa., will preach in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church here every evening commencing July 11th., to July 14th, at eight o'clock. The pastor of the church, the Rev. C. G. Smith, will assist in the services.

Close to eighteen thousand people attended the performances of Ringling Bros.' and Barnum and Bailey's circus here yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pearsall are visiting friends in Chicago, Ill. and Detroit, Mich. They will be absent about three weeks.

Mr. John Herity is home from Toronto to spend his vacation.

40 YEARS AGO

July 5th., 1912.

It is many years since the bass fishing in the Bay of Quinte has been as good as it is at the present time. Many anglers are getting their limit.

A team of horses attached to a wagon laden with gravel ran away on Front Street yesterday. The driver was a man named Kiser and he was astride the tongue of the wagon when the horses were running. A young man named Callaghan bravely tackled the horses near Dundas Street and brought them to a stop. Had it not been for his prompt action the driver would have been seriously if not fatally injured.

The Rev. Dr. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist Church, preached in the Tabernacle on Sunday. This is Dr. Carman's home church and he always receives a hearty welcome from the congregation.

Mr. E. Gus Porter, K.C., M.P., is spending some time at Mount Clements, Mich.

Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank, and Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, barrister, will leave shortly to spend some time in the Old Country and places on the Continent.

50 YEARS AGO

July 5th., 1902.

Mr. Arthur L. Johnson is home on a visit.

Mr. James Cummins, Jr., is home from Chicago, Ill., on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Cummins.

Miss Lillie Mills is home from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mills.

Miss Mary E. dePencier, matron at the Belleville General Hospital, will spend the month of July at Burritt's Rapids.

This was the hottest day of the season; at 2.40 this afternoon the thermometer registered 91 degrees in the shade.

Forepaugh and Sells' Circus attracted a large crowd here today. The street parade was excellent.

Provincial detective William Grier was in town today; he is attached to the circus showing here today.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

WATER-PROOF

This newspaper's Free Swim Classes begin today. Unaccustomed as I am to being nice to the management, I want to tell you it's a wonderful deal.

The porpoise I call my daughter learned to use her fins at the Sun's school some years ago. I can thank her instructors for many hours of peace of mind. She learned to swim properly, for one thing. More than that she learned how to be sensible in the water. I won't see much of her for the next two months. But I won't worry about her. At least, not while she's in the briny.

I've a more than transient interest in this because I seem to be fated to be a witness at aquatic tragedies. On three occasions I've been a saddened spectator at drownings. In each case, the real tragedy was that they were so unnecessary.

The Sun's school and, of course, the other schools operated by various groups are teaching youngsters to have fun in the water. They are also saving lives. The Red Cross figures, for example, show that there's been a 50 percent reduction in the national drowning rate in the last quarter century. Some of the credit obviously goes to these water safety training programs.

Even so (and again I'm quoting from Red Cross facts) there aren't enough people who can handle themselves properly in the water. Only 10 percent of bathers can swim well. Forty per cent know how to swim slightly. Fifty per cent can't swim at all. And it's the non-swimmers, particularly, who need to know the dangers of the deep.

I've been reading an interesting report on this, titled "Don't Drown This Summer," by Orville Cox, Red Cross director of safety services. It ought to be read by every parent and particularly those [illegible] of the maritime breed

Cox says that the reason for the large number of deaths by drowning each year is the simple fact that nine out of every 10 persons who go swimming and boating aren't properly prepared to enjoy water sports. It can be the most hazardous fun of all, or it can be the safest.

Most of the drownings, could be eliminated by using common sense, but like traffic accidents which could be cut down, too, by pedestrians looking before crossing, too many water enthusiasts leap before they look.

The young show-off, as the Sun instructors always point out, is the worst risk in the water. Many a youngster has paid with his life for his bravado or because he had too much pride to holler "Help"! when he found himself in trouble.

More than half of all the drownings are among persons from 15 to 19 years and — here's the tragic aspect of it— most occur in water not more than nine feet deep and not more than 10 yards from shore.

Men meet death by drowning more frequently than women primarily because a good many men try to show off skills they don't possess. For every 100 drownings 87 are males.

Director Cox gives some elementary safety rules that can bear repeating over and over again:

Unless you're a skilled swimmer never go beyond your depth. Know the limitation of your swimming ability. Always select a safe place to swim, preferably one supervised by a lifeguard.

Never stay in the water until you become fatigued. Tired swimmers have no endurance and their buoyancy is impaired.

No matter how well you can swim never go alone.

Even a non-swimmer can be a help in an emergency. If you happen to be near a dock or in a pool within reach of the victim you can draw him to safety by falling to your stomach and reaching out over the water as far as you safely dare, grasping the victim's wrist, drawing him slowly to safety.

Another immediate action to take is to grab any handy item, a towel, a shirt, a branch or pole and extend it to the victim. He'll grab it and you pull him in.

And here's a rule if you should be in an overturned boat; Stick with the boat until help arrives.

Coyotte Joins Moose, Deer, Elk To Get Goodies from Motorists

Written for The Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

Black bears, a grizzly bear on occasion, moose, red deer and elk are more or less taken for granted as visitors in Banff, Jasper and other Rocky Mountain centres. After all Canada is their native land and the creatures of the wilderness, theoretically at least, have a right to wander at will.

But even Banff folk have been more than a trifle surprised recently to see a coyote squatting patiently by a roadside near town, and at the same old stand, awaiting motorists who produce chocolate bars, cookies, and other delicacies. This self-elected member of the clan of mendicant bears declines to let bruin monopolize the business. He has won a lot of friends by his gentleneess.

Invasion By Raccoons

Suburban Toronto is currently seeing a mild invasion by racoons. One of the ring-tailed fellows visited the writer's garden and goldfish pool the other day. Deserted by their mother, four baby racoons were found atop a cold stove in a gospel hall. Residents of some parts of suburban Rosedale and Hogg's Hollow, report racoons as "common." Garbage cans in other suburbs have been raided by the animals.

Happiest of all the memories of this Toronto observer of wildlife was a magnificent golden eagle, flying low over a valley just beyond the city limits. Even in the Canadian Rockies where such a sight is not uncommon, the close-up view has always eluded observation to some extent. But the Toronto visitor, flying west, was flying so low that the very hues of the sunset, reflected on the eagle's plumage, could be seen plainly without binoculars.

A Canadian Rose

There is a Canadian rosebush that grows so near to tree size that it may reach a height of 12 feet at its tip and at shoulder height it may be close to 15 feet wide. A conservative estimate estimate would be that it bears 500 creamy-yellow roses of exquisite fragrance.

It is a hybrid-rugosa rose named Agnes. It is a creation of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, and because of its extreme hardiness and pest-resistant qualities should be more widely known and more widely planted.

Nor should this planting be confined to gardens, for it is admirably adapted for naturalizing at the fringe of farm woodlots or for roadside decoration. It has been so successfully used to adorn sections of the beautiful river road, bordering the Niagara river from Niagara-on-the-Lake to Fort Erie.

Just how far its range could be extended across Canada has not been learned. Inquiries to the experimental farm receive prompt and courteous attention.

Every true naturalist is interested in making the roadside scene in Canada more attractive. Hybrid-rugosa Agnes, with its glorious, if brief period of bloom and fragrance, is one of the better ways of achieving that aim.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

AND EKE THE RHEUMATIZ

This is the 12th of a series of talks about calcium, and I hope readers appreciate how carefully I have refrained from calling any one stupid, knucklehead, Yankee wiseacre, old geezer, $400 snob, sophomoron or poor geek in these talks.

Getting right down to business, I assert, without fear of contradiction, that such impressive names as chronic arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, arthritis deformans, atrophic arthritis, degenerative arthritis, osteoarthritis and hypertrophic arthritis are $50 words for $1.80 rheumatism.

To that I must add, for the benefit of the— watch out, Brady, the probation term has four days yet to go!—then for the benefit of rheumatiz sufferers who may have bought one or more of these fancy titles, they don't mean anything more than that there is apparently something the matter with the patient's joints.

Arthritis, derived from arthro, joint, and -itis, inflammation, and that's all

Rheumatiz, derived from, heck, the derivation of rheumatism goes back to catarrh and other absurdities, so we may as well settle for stiffness of joints with pain or motion.

I have a well defined view or concept of the pathology of the rheumatiz but, believe it or not, sympathy for sufferers constrains me to withhold my view — I'd rather let you have it in easy installments.

I have been taking treatment for my rheumatiz for about a year and with highly satisfactory results. The second joint of middle finger began to crackle a bit, became somewhat tender and stiff compared with opposite middle finger (I do not use it much, being a two finger typist) and swollen to spindle shape. So I added to my daily ration of vitamins and minerals an extra daily ration of calcium and D. The swelling and stiffness steadily diminished and now there's little more than the memory.

Aside from injuries, strains or acute infections, the rheumatiz is a manifestation of nutritional deficiency, I believe. Especially, but not entirely, calcium and D deficiency.

Mind you, fa—— please keep in mind that it is hardly possible to correct nutritional deficiency by taking vitamins or minerals or anything else for a few weeks or months as you might take medicine. If you have the notion to "try" something in that way, my advice is: Don't.

I wish every one who has or is training for the rheumatiz could read Nutrition and Physical Degeneration, by the late great Weston A. Price, M. S., D. D. S., F. A. C. D. Not that Dr. Price says anything about the rheumatiz, but he makes clear the meaning of physical degeneration. The book may be available in the public library. Just looking at the pictures is an education.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SIMPLICITY AND SIMPLE THINGS

People who live simple lives always seem to be the happiest. Having less responsibilities, they have less worries and less obligations. Simple things are translated into a universal language that needs no interpretation.

It's the simple songs of our childhood that stay with us, no matter how familiar we may later be with the more classic examples of songs and music. Millions of children have been brought up on the simple nursery rhymes and stories. Once lodged in the child mind, they never fall out!

Simple pleasures are the ones that give to us the greatest satisfaction. When I see a happy family sitting by the roadside having a picnic in the summer time, my thoughts go back to when I was one of those happy creatures, celebrating in the joy of a picnic.

There are devices in most every home that are simplicity themselves. They are useful because they are so simple. Fortunes have been made through the creation and invention of simple things of value and use in the average home.

Simple art is the most interesting. "Grandma Moses" became famous because she painted simple things that everyone could understand. I am a lover of etching art. I have learned that the first states always are sought for by those who know. It's because the first state is always so simple and attractive. Many a plate has been destroyed by putting too much in it. This is true of many a painting and many a piece of writing. The newspaper editor keeps calling for simplicity, simplicity.

I have been told that motion picture people will not consider a manuscript or scenario until its story has been reduced to three hundred words. Brief books live longer and are read by more people than those that are so long that a reader early loses interest. Things are wonderful in nature, but they are not complicated. They are simple. All nature may be our school room.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Up a tree in my garden, a telephone linesman was swung in his heavy strap supporter, moodily repairing a length of cable and fitting wooden protectors on the wire where it chafed against an elderly maple's trunk. It is interesting to converse with a man up a tree.

"It must be quite a job," I sympathized, "keeping telephone lines in repair in old districts like this, with all the trees."

"Yes, and the dang squirrels," said the telephone man.

"Squirrels?" I checked.

"Squirrels and dogs," said the linesman, sadly. "Squirrels are the worst-tempered animals in the world. They love to travel around the neighborhood on these telephone wires. And we have no objection to that, you understand. But where there is a dog in the yard, look out! No squirrel likes to be disturbed when he is doing a high-wire act on the telephone cables. Even if he is pretty nimble in trees, telephone wires require a special sort of balance, particularly if it is windy.

"Well, sir," said the telephone man, shifting his seat in the big strap, "when a dog disturbs a squirrel on the cable, the squirrel gets mad. He's a very short-tempered crittur to start with. So he stops and swears back at the dog. And works himself into a small fury, and starts chewing the lead insulation on the cable. You would be astonished the way that little beast can gnaw lead. Soon the damp gets in the wire, and we have to repair it.

"We can always tell where they keep a dog by the amount of squirrel-chewing there is on the cables. The bigger the dog, the worse the chewing. You know that Great Dane down the street from you, here? Well, sir, the cables down there are chewed to ribbons every six months."

Lead poisoning may account for the frowsy appearance of some of the squirrels around the neighborhood.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PRESENT-DAY PARADOX

That we live in a bewildered and tense age everyone will admit. But the strangest thing about the age in which we live is not the fact that new inventions have brought new dangers and that privilege has been purchased at the cost of frayed nerves. The most amazing phenomenon of modern times is the dark despair which lines one side of our street and the bright sunshine which floods the other side.

We live in an age of moral decline. We cower every time we hear a siren blow, feeling that perhaps enemy planes are over our city. Our nation is fast getting itself into the toils of alcoholism. All this is the dark side of the street.

But look at the other side of the street. The churches are crowded as they have not been crowded in decades. Religious books are listed with the best sellers. With moral conditions in our colleges as a very low ebb, some of the finest religious work among students that has ever taken place in American universities is taking place today. Evangelists of a very high order of ability and character are proclaiming the gospel. Our ministers are well prepared and fully consecrated to their work.

Darkness on one side of the street, light on the other! Or, to change the figure, the tide of declining morals running out, the tide of a spiritual revival running in. It is bewildering; but it is also hopeful.

McCallum's theme for his farewell address was Philippians 4: 7, "And the Peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." These were the words of St. Paul to the church in Philippi. When these words were spoken Rome was enjoying a period of peace, and Philippi, a Roman colony, felt secure. By the peace of Rome, St. Paul was able to continue his missionary journeys and established the church of Philippi. But Paul knew of a better peace, the peace of God which stood sentinel over the lives of his followers.

Mr. McCallum's nephew, Mr. Jack McCallum, A.T.C.M., of Toronto, a Presbyterian church organist, ably assisted in the service giving piano solos, prelude and postlude, which were much enjoyed. WEDDINGS

PATTERSON—THOMPSON

White gladioli decorated the altar of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton, on Saturday, June 28, when the marriage took place of Patricia Jean Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Lester Storms, Picton, and Joseph Patterson, son of Mrs. Annie Patterson, Oshawa. Rev. W. G. H. Swayne officiated and Frank Bronskill played the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Lester Storms, the bride was lovely in a ballet-length gown of white nylon net over taffeta with insets of lace on the bodice. Her headdress was of white net with bandeau of violets, and she carried a cascade of pink roses and white carnations. Miss Doris Patterson, bridesmaid, wore a similar gown of yellow eyelet over taffeta, and a cap of velvet with yellow leaves. She carried mauve and white gladioli.

Stephen Peleshok, Whitby, was groomsman.

The reception was held at Maple Inn, where pink and white decorations were used. The three-tiered cake, surrounded by tulle and white roses; centred the table. The bride's mother wore beige and rust linen with corsage of red roses.

For travelling to Montreal and Quebec, and later to Gravenhurst, the bride donned a grey suit with wine accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson will reside in Oshawa.

WATSON—BRADDEN

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty June wedding on Saturday, June 14th at 9:00 a.m., when Lenore Rose Bradden, of Belleville, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bradden, became the bride of Lewis James Watson, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Watson. The Rev. J. J. Buckley, officiated before a background of pink and white peonies, gladioli and sweetpeas.

Miss Dorothy Grant, church organist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Carolyn Forhan, who sang "Ave Maria" and "On This Day".

Given in marriage by Mr. C. H. Jezzard, the bride was lovely in her imported bridal gown of white embroidered swiss over organdy with molded bodice and bouffant skirt. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a matching Juliet cap, and she carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. J. T. McCabe, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, attractively gowned in forget-me-not blue nylon marquisette over taffeta with matching petal hat. She carried yellow roses.

Mr. Gerald Cooper, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Donald Boyle and Dr. Campbell Cameron, of Kingston, were ushers.

The reception was held at Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, where the guests were received by the aunt of the bride, Mrs. H. Friedman, who was gowned in black and white with black picture hat and wearing a white gardenia corsage. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. L. Watson, wearing a grey figured dress with black accessories and corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid, New York, the bride chose a brown pleated nylon dress with white picture hat, brown and white accessories and white gardenia corsage.

Out-of-town guests were present from Kingston, Port Hope, Toronto, Granville and New York.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

I have several friends who seem to have the same problem as I—every time we make a cake with mixmaster it rises perfectly while baking but on cooling falls in a matter of seconds. . . I follow recipes to the letter. . .I have often tried baking the cake 5 or 10 minutes longer. . .that hasn't helped either. . . would you please print recipe for rye bread. —Mrs. A. C., Calgary.

ANSWER:

There seems to be a widespread epidemic of fallen cakes. You have stymied me on most counts but there are two questions I want to ask. Have you checked the accuracy of your oven thermometer with a portable oven thermometer? Do you stop beating your cakes under the electric beater after eggs, butter and sugar are thoroughly beaten? If you use the instruction book put out by the manufacturer of your beater be sure not to overbeat your cake after leavening agent is added, watching beating time and speed exactly.

LAYER CAKE

(Standard for electric beater)

Shortening eggs and milk should be at room temperature.

Two-thirds cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 tsp. vanilla, 2-3 cup milk, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 4 1-4 tsps. standard baking powder. Sift flour, measure and sift it together with other dry ingredients. Beat sugar and shortening together at medium speed for 2 1-2 minutes. Add eggs and beat 1 minute. Add dry ingredients and milk mixed with vanilla simultaneously, and mix 1 1-2 minutes using spatula to wipe batter down from sides. Bake in 2 8-inch layer cake tins dusted with flour after buttering, in oven of 375 deg. for about 25 minutes or until cakes shrink slightly from sides of pan.

Try that and let me know if it falls. It is a standby with me and never falls. If yours does it is because you are living in a high altitude and should raise the baking temperature to 400 or 425 deg. Fahr.

RYE BREAD

Six and one-third cups sifted rye flour, 4 1-2 cups sifted hardwheat flour, 5 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 cups lukewarm water, 2 cakes moist yeast, 3 tbsp. sugar, 5 tsps. salt, 2 tbsps. melted fat. Sift the rye flour with the white flours. Dissolve the yeast cakes in 1-2 cup of the required 3 cups. Add the sugar, salt and fat to the remaining lukewarm water and stir until dissolved. Add dissolved yeast. Stir in. Add half of the mixed flours and beat very thoroughly. Cover and stand in warm place to rise overnight. In the morning add the remaining flour to make a firm dough. Knead on floured board until very smooth and elastic and squeaky—about 10 minutes. Cover and stand in warm place until doubled in bulk. Knead again. Mold into long pointed loaves, place on greased shallow pan dredged with cornmeal. Rub fat lightly on top of the loaves. Cover and let rise until bulk has increased by 1 3-4 times. Slash top of loaf 3 times with sharp knife at an angle. Bake 1 lb. loaves for 30 to 35 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. A pan of water should be placed in oven during baking period. Remove loaves from oven and glaze with mixture of egg white and water or cooked starch paste.

QUESTION:

Could you please send me recipe for cream pie made with cornstarch for 9-inch pie. . .also meringue that does not stick when it is cut. . .how to prevent fruit pies from running over in oven.—Mrs. J. A.

ANSWER:

CREAM PIE

'One tbsp. butter or margarine, 8 tbsps. flour, 2-3 cup sugar, 1-4 tsp. salt, 2 beaten egg yolks, 2 cups milk (1 cup milk and 1 cup cream makes richer pie), 1 tsp. vanilla. Melt butter in top of double boiler. Stir together the flour, sugar, salt and when blended, stir the yolks and milk into them and add all to melted butter and stir over boiling water until thick, and cook covered 10 minutes. Add vanilla. Pour into baked pie shell. Cover with meringue made by beating until frothy 3 egg whites with 1-8 tsp. cream of tartar. Very slowly begin to add 6 tbsps. sugar and beat until glossy and stiff. Spread over filling to completely seal it in at edges. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes.

To prevent pies running over seal edges more tightly, make gashes larger, use more "thickener" mixed with the sugar, and a little less liquid in pie. If frozen fruits are used in pie double the normal required amount of thickener.

CANADA

O Canada, our native land,
The soil we hold so dear,
How bountiful on every hand
Thy golden gifts appear!
Thy prairie lands and mountain peaks,
Thy lakes and rivers free,
With farms and homes and fruitful plains
A chain from sea to sea.

O dear Northland, our love, our pride,
We hear the spirit call
Of those who for thy dear sake died,
Who gave their life, their all,
That every race beneath the sky
Be free from tyranny,
And 'neath the folds of freedom's flag
Might dwell in unity.

The thistle, shamrock and the rose,
The fleur-de-les of France,
United on our life bestow
The spirit of romance;
As long as dear old Britain's flag
Waves over land and sea,
Canada will stand with heart and hand
For truth and liberty.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She Has Seven Children and an Alcoholic Husband

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My first husband died, leaving me with four very small children. A few years later I married a fellow much younger than myself. He is a very good worker, but the money doesn't help much because he is such a heavy drinker. He will not let me handle any money, and he even buys what food we have so he will know how to save out money for his drinking.

We have three darling little children of our own, and the four I had by my first husband. I used to work, but had to give it up because it was so hard to find someone to care for so many children while I was away. When I did work, I always had to turn over every cent to my husband or live in constant fear of him, and now if my own children earn any money themselves, it all has to be turned over to him. We just have to make the best of the little he gets for us, and the only clothes we ever have are when we get some for Christmas or some outsider gives us some.

My husband now stays out all night two or three nights a week drinking. When he does come home, he always has bottles with him. I am alone all the time with the children.

Is there any way out for us all?—J.

Dear J.: It would seem to me that your affairs may have reached a point where it would be better for you to be separated from your husband, for a time at least. When a woman and her seven children have neither enough to eat nor enough clothes to wear, it is obvious that some drastic step should be taken. Your husband has evidently settled down into such a definite pattern of living that it would need something out of the ordinary to shake him out of his rut. I feel quite sure that nothing you can say would have any effect on him.

The best advice I can give you is for you to consult a social welfare agency where you could be advised on what is wise for you to do. It might be possible for some arrangement to be made to have your children cared for during the day so that you could return to work. If you will look in the telephone directory of the large city in which you live and find an organization called the Family Society, you could then either write them a letter or call on the telephone and make an appointment to talk over your problems. Will you do this and then let me know how you make out?

A Minister's Daughter Has a Real Problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My father is a minister and doesn't approve of attending movies, picnics, parties, dances or going to the beach on Sunday, which makes quite a problem for me because it means I am left out on a lot of fun. I go around with about 20 boys and girls, and when all of the kids go out Sunday afternoons I have to stay home. I have a steady boy friend, and he is torn between me and the crowd, because of course he wants to stay with me, yet he wants to go out with the crowd and I do, too, and I am afraid I may lose him if things go on this way.

Should I conform to my parents' wishes and be unhappy, as I am quite often, or should I break off with my boy friend so he won't be subjected to these peculiar ways of my father? I have a sister, 19, who does not have a boy friend, so possibly that is the reason I am shackled down. Do you have any suggestions?—K. G. H.

Dear K. G. H.: You do have a real problem and I don't wonder you are troubled about it. I know that it is very hard for young people today, when their parents' ideas conflict with the changed ideas of modern times. On the other hand, I can also understand the feelings of parents who believe that Sunday should not be just another day of pleasure, like all the other days in the week, but should be reserved for quieter activities.

Do you think there would be any possibility that you and your father could arrive at a compromise? For example if you agreed to conform with his wishes most Sundays, couldn't he be persuaded to let you go with the crowd, say, one Sunday afternoon a month? Naturally, I am assuming that since your father is a minister you would want to go to church Sunday mornings.

Undoubtedly, you are allowed to have good times with the crowd during the week, and summer vacation is here, you will have plenty of chances to go to the beach and on picnics and to do all the other things you mention. It doesn't really seem to me that it should be such a great hardship to spend one day quietly. But if you cheerfully go along with your father most of the time, perhaps he would be willing to let you have that one Sunday a month to do as you please.

If I were you, I wouldn't get it in your head that your sister's lack of a boy friend has any bearing on your own problem. Thinking that way could lead to unpleasantness that certainly wouldn't help your situation any.

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson

Ways of Saving Face

Usually a good complexion, with pleasing color, spells health. Women so fortunate as to possess this attribute of beauty are, as a rule, more highly energized, more animated, more ambitious than those with pallid skins. A good color, like religion, comes from within. A wholesome diet, plenty of sleep, and outdoor exercise contribute to find texture and to cheeks that need never come in contact with the rouge pad. The glow of vitality prevails.

Given a dazzling complexion, almost anything in the way of beauty can be achieved; it possesses immense good-looks possibilities. That is why the girl or woman who is thus blessed should take every possible means of preserving her facial covering. It is subject to change. Like any other part of the human composition, it is subject to ills that usually can be prevented by fastidious care. Neglect shows up quickly.

Presupposing that your general systemic condition is good; that you have a certain amount of exercise every day and breathe deeply; that you have a diet that is balanced so that you will consume the necessary food elements; that you sleep in a well ventilated room, all your complexion will require will be fastidious cleanliness and the free use of soothing oil cream.

If the skin rebels against contact with soap suds, it is possible that you are not using one that is bland enough. While all toilet soaps these days are high grade, it may happen that one is more suited to an individual than another, Try out various kinds. The right one will lather freely.

Wrap a Soft Towel Around Both Hands

If the thorough soapy overhauling is done at bedtime, as it should be, soap need not be used at any other time. Some beauty specialists recommend the use of shaving soap. It foams up quickly and is seldom irritating. This procedure is a particularly happy one if blackheads are present. Friction the lather lightly into the flesh. It will be more likely to penetrate the pores and dislodge the dark points.

Warm water, which removes soap more quickly than cold water, should be used if a cream is to be applied, because then the flesh will be warm. When drying your complexion, wrap a soft towel around both hands and pat from collar bone to forward hairline. These movements "up" the fibres act as a thirty-second facial treatment.

A heavy massage cream is best to use at bedtime and, unless the skin is excessively oily it should remain on. By morning, it will have disappeared, lapped up by the oil-hungry tissues.

Crop failures occur more often in India than elsewhere because of its dependence on the monsoon rains.

Men's Socks

One of our friends was bemoaning the amount of sock darning she has to do for her husband and son the other afternoon. We told her she was absolutely wasting her time to be devoting, even five minutes, to darning in this day and age.

It seems this woman is one of the many who haven't realized the contribution nylon has made in our day. All she has to do, is to buy two or three pairs of men's nylon hose and enjoy the long hours formerly wasted with the needle.

It is surprising how slow women are to make use of nylon items for men. Socks dry in no time and never wear out.

Cost of Keys

Canada's first native Governor General, Vincent Massey, is not being presented with an actual key to the city of Port Hope at a civic reception in his home town, according to newspaper accounts. Reason for discarding the usual presentation by the City Fathers is the cost of the key quoted at $28.

We often wonder what all these famous people actually do with all the fancy keys they pick up at civic receptions. It seems such a waste to spend a good sum of money on such a useless and non-artistic item. Surely if this amount or more is spent, somebody could do a bit of scouting and hit on some presentation which would really be valued by the guest.

The idea of receiving a key to a city is an old one and has its points. Why the city fathers of Port Hope and others couldn't get an ordinary key silver plated and attach a ribbon to it for about $5 is a question.

Sixteen Girls Enjoy Holiday In Argyllshire

KILMORY CASTLE, Scotland (CP)—Sixteen triumphant girls returned to their office desks this month, happy in the knowledge they proved themselves tough enough for anything.

For two weeks, at a cost of four pounds each a week, they made 14-mile hikes, lived in tents, went canoeing in driving rain and scrambled over rough Argyllshire hillsides and moorland.

It was all part of an experimental course arranged by a national association of girls' clubs and mixed clubs. "So many girls complained that boys have far more opportunities for this sort of holiday," said Miss H. Harford, the general secretary.

The girls, 11 Britons and five Germans, aged between 16 and 20, came mostly from towns and had few ideas about how to get along in the wide-open spaces. But they survived such experiences as that of Jean Andrews, 19, of Birmingham.

Jean was scared of water so they tucked her into a small collapsible canoe—plus a life-jacket—and launched her on the wind-swept waters of Loch Gilp.

"When you're in a canoe it's such fun you haven't time to be scared of the water," she said later.

Two sisters from Buckinghamshire, Jeanetta and Valerie Blattner, had to find their way over the hills with only a map and compass to guide them. "And we did," said Jeanetta, 18. "The compass went wrong but we got there and back before anyone else."

Another adventure was two days living on an uninhabited island off the coast. Torrential rain blew in the side of one tent and soaked its occupants in their sleeping bags—but the girls enjoyed it so much they didn't want to leave.

Reserves of U.S. Dollars and Gold $1,828,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's official reserves of United States dollars and gold climbed to a peak of $1,828,000,000 on June 30, Finance Minister Abbott announced today.

This stockpile of gold and dollars, to cushion the blow should the Canadian dollar suddenly recede from its current high levels, has been climbing steadily all through 1952.

The reserves climbed from the previous high of $1,787,000,000 on March 31 to $1,803,000,000 on April 30 and to $1,807,000, on May 31.

Informants said this was an indication that the government's foreign exchange fund has been continuing to buy American dollars, possibly as a means of keeping the exchange value of the Canadian dollar from reaching such high ground that Canadian exports would be simply priced out of world markets.

Climbed Steadily

The world demand for the Canadian dollar has been so great since it was freed in 1950 that it has climbed steadily to a point where it is more than three cents above par in comparison with the U.S. dollar.

That means that on a comparison, of dollar values alone, a foreign importer can buy goods more cheaply in the American market than he can in the Canadian.

Informants said that in terms of Canadian funds, it was true that the value of the reserves depreciated every time the Canadian dollar climbed. In fact, every time it rose one cent, the fund had to write off a bookkeeping loss of about $18,000,000.

However, they said if the fund stopped buying American currency—thus distributing more Canadian dollars on foreign money markets—the exchange value of the Canadian dollar might go far higher than its current levels. This might injure Canada's trading position.

HOUSE ADJOURNS

The Minister said immigration for the first five months of this year was 82,088, well above the 60,636 for the corresponding period last year. But he expected it to start slowing down this month.

The fall-winter curb on workers coming to Canada, he said in an interview after the House rose, will be applied to the general run of labor, particularly persons without definite job commitments here. It will be eased when the labor market picks up with warm weather.

Labor Favors Move

The move is partially in line with representations made to the government by labor organizations following last winter's increased unemployment. Some labor bodies wanted immigration banned altogether during the winter months.

In his television announcement, Revenue Minister McCann said it has been decided to go ahead with the Ottawa transmitter before reaching into the Maritimes and Western Canada.

Plans for expansion into the other areas have "by no means been rejected," he added, but the government feels they should have further study.

After the final clean-up, legislation approval was given Royal Assent by Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting administrator. The session was opened by the Governor-General, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Feb. 28—the first time a native Canadian Governor-General performed this function.

May Be Recalled

Parliament now is adjourned until Nov. 20, though Prime Minister St. Laurent has indicated members may be summoned earlier if developments warrant. On resuming, they are expected to prorogue fairly quickly and immediately start off a session that will stretch into 1953 and constitute the normal sitting for that year.

This will permit prorogation earlier than usual, to allow members to go to Britain for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth early next June.

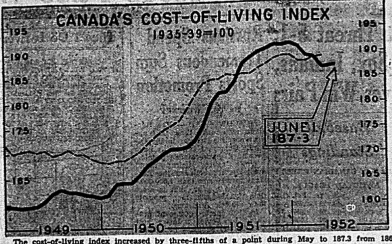
Index Rises



The cost-of-living index increased by three-fifths of a point during May to 187.3 from 186.7, ending a four-month, 4.8-point decline from the peak of 191.5 last December. The Bureau of Statistics, which prepares the index, said the main causes of the climb were higher prices for some foodstuffs and higher rents. The dotted line shows the United States Consumers' price index. These indexes measure percentage changes in prices in each country but should not be used to compare actual levels of prices between the two countries.—(CP Photo.)

With Canadians in Korea

By BILL BOSS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—It's soon going to be a little cooler around the legs for the Canadian soldier in Korea.

Supplies of Canadian Army summer pants have arrived finally and soon will be issued throughout the brigade.

The summer gear the troops have been wearing since the latter part of May has been half United States-made, half Canadian. The bush jackets were Canadian, the pants American.

But the 10,000 pairs of pants incredulous officers discovered when the shipments arrived not only were American, they were winter pants—the light wind-proof variety chemically treated to retain body warmth

Doffed Battledress

While cable exchanges flowed between Korea and Ottawa, the brigade doffed its battledress and, for the time being, wore the warmth-retaining pants.

Senior officers here are reluctant to discuss how the U.S. pants came to be sent. It is known that they were purchased in the United States for the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps and that they were sent to the central ordnance depot, from where they were transshipped to Korea.

One senior officer said only: "All we can say here is that Ottawa was told, and when it was told, Ottawa moved fast."

The natty bush jackets have been the sensation and envy of the theatre, together with the dark olive-colored summer shirts the Canadians are wearing.

Meanwhile, the War Office in London has been busy on next winter's clothing for British elements of the Commonwealth Division.

Several Canadian wrinkles have been adopted.

British troops next winter will wear Canadian-type string vests of cellular cotton. Their parkas will be cut more along Canadian lines. And their sleeping bags, while not of nylon, will embrace the Canadian idea of an inner washable bag that may be removed for cleaning.

Communists Appear to Be Using New Weapon on Canadian Front

By BILL BOSS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—The Communists appear to be using a mysterious new weapon on the Canadian front.

So far it has not been reported from other sectors.

Actually, staff officers still are puzzled as to whether it is a new weapon or a new tactic for the employment of an old one.

It has two types of manifestation.

The first became known when the Communists repulsed patrols by the 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment in engagements highlighted by the same phenomena.

Hit Patrol

Three tremendous explosions, greater than any mine, bomb or grenade until then encountered, hit each patrol. They were not heralded by any whistle or whine. The explosion from a projector was not heard. There was no flash.

The second type of manifestation was on a patrol by the 1st Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment.

The same tremendous explosions were encountered, knocking soldiers to the ground, dazing and stupefying them, but not necessarily wounding them. This time missiles were seen hurtling through the air leaving a trail of sparks. The missiles were reported very large.

The Van Doo experience seemed to reduce the possibilities to a variety of grenade, perhaps a super-charge type developed by the Russians.

Meanwhile, officers at United States Eighth Army headquarters ventured that the weapon might be a new type of rocket, similar to the bazooka bomb.

Grenade Theory

The grenade theory was supported by the R.C.R. patrol which captured several super-charged Russian grenades from the bodies of dead Chinese. They resemble the RPG-6 type, which is an anti-tank grenade capable of penetrating 3.94 inches of armor, and were for use in an anti-personnel role.

Officers at 25th Brigade headquarters, however, still are not convinced that this grenade is the weapon used against the first Patricia and R.C.R. patrols.

They consider that to have been either the new 60-millimetre mortar bomb or a known weapon in a new role. The 60-millimetre bomb, they say, fired at low range and high trajectory might conceivably account for the lack of sound.

Reds Well Equipped

Another contribution made by the R.C.R. patrol was added information on the superior type of Communist soldier now manning the front, and the better equipment he carries.

Brooks Extend Lead In National; Yanks Keep Pace With Twin-Win Sox

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BACK AGAIN

Last winter when D. A. McGillis, sponsor of the Peterborough Eagles senior hockey club refused to take his team to Kingston in protest against the use of an "imported" goalkeeper he drew down the wrath of the OHA gods to the extent of personal and team suspension.

Being possessed apparently of the memory of the fabled elephant and feeling, perhaps rightly that his team was the subject of a "raw deal," Mr. McGillis has bounded back into the hockey arena with the statement that the Eagles Hockey Club will operate again in hockey circles this winter. Right pleasing news for hockey enthusiasts down thisaway.

McGillis tossed a party the other evening for his Eagles, filled 'em with Chemong chicken or Kawartha turkey, presented them with windbreakers, received a neat engraved tray in return from his "feathered" pucksters, and combined with Coach Ned Vitarelli in putting a biting blast on the Ontario Hockey Association.

According to Pal Perdue's version of the fiesta, both "Cousin Ned" and Papa McGillis, blistered the OHA. Twas said both players and club executive alike feel they have been given a "raw deal" by the OHA master-minds and they plan to hitch up their britches, and shirtsleeves and go to the mat about it.

Whether McGillis was right or wrong in refusing to take his team to Kingston on the afore-mentioned occasion doesn't matter. What is important, that the Ontario Hockey Association should set its house in order insofar as its printed rules and regulations are concerned. If our memory serves us correctly the Redmen had a run-in with the big boys over Peterborough Eagles playing junior players after the Triple Links were ousted from junior "B" competition.

Redmen officials took the issue to the OHA after learning the Petes had secured "permission" (said permission being the word of a resident Peterborough member of the OHA) and were informed that the rule had been "wrongly printed" in the book of words.

And in the printing it might not be a bad idea to have the rules and regs "set up" in "English" so that club officials and others can arrive at the same interpretation as that of the gentlemen who write them.

And it might not be a bad idea to have the matter straightened out before the season gets under way and thus eliminate the petty bickerings and creation of hard feelings that inevitably result from "protests" that are as inevitably thrown out because few understand them, or at least arrive at a different interpretation to those of the parent body. Cool, aint it?

STARRY FIELD

With the U. S. national champion an avowed entry and with first-prize money standing at an all-time high, Royal Canadian Golf Association officials are expecting great things of the Canadian Open championship at the St. Charles Country Club in Winnipeg July 16-19.

Thirty-two-year-old Julius Boros, who dethroned Ben Hogan as U. S. champion in mid-June said after his upset victory that it wouldn't make any difference to his plans to go after the Canadian title and the Seagram Golf Cup.

"I was going to Winnipeg for the Canadian Open before this happened," he said. "I don't see that this has changed anything." Maybe it hasn't changed anything to Boros but it sure makes a difference to the Canadian Open because Boros has sprung suddenly from relative obscurity into the most-talked-about golfer on the circuit.

Ed Oliver, who ran second to Boros in the U. S. Open, is expected to be at Winnipeg too. He never misses the Canadian event, in which he tied for second spot last year. Ben Hogan, who placed third in the U. S. event, says he is through with tournament play for the season and probably won't be at Winnipeg. But Johnny Bulla, George Fazio and Dick Metz, who finished in that order behind Hogan are all habitual performers at the top Canadian show and probably will be on hand at Winnipeg.

SERVICE

According to Peterborough Pal Perdue there's an organization in the United States called the National Baseball Placement Bureau that thrives on sending American players to Canadian, and we presume, American teams — for a price. Here's the way "PPP" puts it.

"It lists a flock of available minor pros in the States. For instance, one guy on the rather lengthy list is John Mazzilli, a first-sacker, 28 years old, five foot 10, weighing 165. He bats and throws left, and he rates a salary of $200 a month. They range from $150 up to $325. The bureau gives their previous experience and the terms are $50 for rookie (no down payment) if kept 30 days; $100 for experienced players — $25 down and $75 if player kept 30 days. Hm, quite a service. So that's how John Harris gets 'em in bundles at Oshawa. If they don't suit, ship 'em back."

Rolfe Expects 'To Get The Gate' At Meeting Today

Detroit, (AP)—"The next guy will have a lot of headaches too," says Red Rolfe, who expects to be fired tonight from his $45,000 job as manager of the last-place Detroit Tigers.

Who will inherit his headaches for the rest of the season? Probably first-base coach Ted Lyons. Longshot candidates are farm director Muddy Ruel, coach Rick Ferrell and several others in the Tiger organization.

Prior to tonight's game with St. Louis Browns, the board of directors will discuss the managerial question in President Spike Briggs' office adjoining the grandstand.

Tiger players and perhaps even Rolfe will be dressing for their pre-game workout at about the moment Spike tells newspaper men the board's official decision.

Rolfe hasn't been told by club officials that he'll be fired. But Red knows Spike will make such a recommendation. Briggs will also recommend that third-base coach Dick Bartell be fired. Tiger spokesmen said irritated fans asked for removal of both men.

May Stay Home

Normally Rolfe would be in the clubhouse getting dressed at the meeting time. "But I may just stay home and wait for a phone call," said Red. Bartell said he plans to be at the stadium.

The Tigers are 20 1-2 games out of first place and 7 1-2 games behind seventh-place St. Louis. The Tigers are the only major league club that's never finished last.

After the Tigers suffered two of their worst 1952 defeats yesterday to Cleveland Indians, 11-0 and 10-1, Rolfe commented:

"What a way to finish up!"

Turn Back Giant Threat 5-1; Bombers, White Sox, Indians, Bucs, Cards, Braves Win Pairs

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees clash in the 1952 world series it will make the fulfillment of an old baseball tradition for the first time in three years.

According to tradition, National and American League teams holding first place after games of July 4 will win the pennants.

The Dodgers and Yanks lead their respective leagues today but they're not counting the World Series cash yet. Last year the Dodgers led the National League at this stage of the grind and Chicago showed the way in the American. Both missed the boat.

The last time the leaders in each league after games of July 4 went on to win the pennant was in 1949. They were the current pace-setters, the Dodgers and Yanks.

Brooks Three Up

Brooklyn yesterday turned back the runner-up New York Giants 5-1 in the opener of a doubleheader. The game was called after eight innings because of rain and the second game was postponed. The victory, gained at the expense of Sal Maglie, an old nemesis, moved the Brooks three games ahead.

The Yanks safeguarded their 2½-game edge by tripping Washington 9-4 and 4-3 while the second-place Chicago White Sox defeated St. Louis Browns 3-1 and 2-0 and the third-place Cleveland Indians trounced Detroit 11-0 and 10-1. Boston Red Sox whacked Philadelphia 10-5 but the A's bounced back to win the second game, 4-3.

Pittsburgh, St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves all won doubleheaders in the National League. The Pirates brushed back Cincinnati 4-2 and 5-2, the Cards whipped Chicago 13-7 and 4-1 to take over third place from the Cubs and the Braves downed Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 and 3-2.

Maglie, who boasted a string of eight straight victories over Brooklyn, including three shutouts, this season, lasted only two innings. He walked home a run in the first and was tagged for a two-run homer in the second by Pee Wee Reese. Relief ace Clem Labine blanked the Giants on five hits after spelling Preacher Roe in the first inning. The largest National League crowd of the season, 49,433 fans, turned out.

Sixteen Hits For Cards

The Cardinals, victorious in 15 of their last 19 starts, creamed five Chicago pitchers for 16 hits including a grand-slam homer by Hal Rice and a two-run blast by Dick Sisler in the opener. Gerry Staley shut out the Cubs after Gene Hermanski's first-inning homer in the second game to run St. Louis' winning streak to six games.

Rookie shortstop Dick Groat clouted a two-run single in the ninth inning to beat the Reds in the first game at Cincinnati. Recruit Harry Fisher gained his first big league victory for the Pites in the second.

Yearling Ed Mathews homered in the 11th inning to beat Karl Drews and the Phils in the first of two at Boston. The blow was Mathews' 14th. Vern Bickford bested Ken Heintzelman, making his first start of the season, in the second.

TOPS IN RELIEF

Air-tight relief pitching by former Brownie Bill Kennedy figured prominently in Chicago's sweep over St. Louis. Kennedy surrendered only two hits in 5 1-3 innings in the first game and yielded one blow in two innings of the second.

Early Wynn allowed Detroit only two safeties and his mates backed his strong pitching with a 14-hit assault that included home runs by Jim Fridley, Merril Combs and Harry Simpson. Newcomer Joe Tipton drove home six runs on a bases-loaded homer and single to ease Bob Lemon to victory in the second game. The twin bill probably marked the end of Red Rolfe's tenure as Tiger manager. He is expected to be replaced today.

Starter Killed In Auto Race

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Ed Bellefleur, official starter and flagman at the Jacksonville Speedway, was killed last night when he was struck by a racing stock car at the track.

The 48-year-old French-Canadian, who used to race under the name Ed (Speedy) Eng, was former Florida big car racing champion. He was a native of Nashua, N.H.

Bellefleur was struck by a car driven by Marvin Gilhousen which went out of control after a sideswipe by another racing stock car. Bellefleur was thrown 50 feet.

Russians Spend Tremendous Sum Sports Promotion

By TOM WHITNEY

MOSCOW —(AP)— The Russians, who make their first appearance this summer in the Olympic Games at Helsinki, have become a sports-minded people.

While exact figures aren't available, it's believed the Russians spend more than 1,000,000,000 rubles a year, that is more than $250,000,000, to promote their athletic programs.

In 1951 sports equipment produced by Soviet industry cost 2,000,000,000 rubles— more than $500,000,000.

A large part of this money comes from Soviet trade unions, which support a far-flung array of sports clubs.

Government Aids

The Soviet army also spends large sums for promotion of athletics on its own fields and the government appropriations for physical education in schools and universities are huge.

The supreme authority on all sports in the U.S.S.R., no matter where played, is the Sports Committee.

The full title of this important organization is "The All Union Committee of Affairs of Physical Culture and Sport of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R." It's name makes clear it is a branch of the Soviet government and its appointments are approved by the powers that be.

The committee's present chairman is Mikolai Romanov, a man of wide experience in the organization and control of athletic activities. He and his committee sets the rules for all sports and organize all major competitions and meets.

Allie Reynolds, ace hurler of New York Yankees, is lost to the club for an indefinite period with a sprained right wrist. Reynolds requested that Manager Casey Stengel remove him from the American League All-Star game squad.

Scheduled to pitch against the Senators in Washington yesterday, Reynolds said he didn't know how he suffered the injury but believed it might have happened while carrying his luggage off the train upon arrival in Washington. He has a record of 10 wins against four losses this season.

Brendan Macken of Montreal and Lorne Main of Vancouver won the doubles title in the Quebec tennis championships yesterday at Montreal, defeating Jim Macken of Montreal and Don Fontana of Toronto 6-8, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. The women's doubles crown went to Mrs. Louise Brown of Toronto and Dorothy Hurst of Toronto who defeated Mrs. Hanna Sladek and Pat Macken of Montreal 1-6, 6-2, 7-5.

The finals in both the men's singles and women's singles will be played today with the Macken brothers fighting it out for the men's crown and their sister meeting Mrs. Sladek for the women's title.

Dick Mayer and Ted Kroll yesterday took over joint leadership of the $15,000 motor city open tournament at Detroit with 11-under-par 133s for the halfway mark. Mayer fired a seven-under-par 32-33—65 over the Red Run Golf Club course to add to his previous 68. Kroll did just the opposite, adding 35-33—68 to his first-round 65. Only two strokes back of the two leaders was defending champion Lloyd Mangrum with rounds of 68 and 67.

Miss Pepsi, the Dossin brothers' sleek speedster, won her second straight Detroit Memorial Trophy Race yesterday on the Detroit River. Miss Pepsi captured all three heats of the 45-mile race as driver Chuck Thompson set a race record of 93.197 miles an hour and finished the race with the fastest lap of the day at 97.694 miles an hour. Miss Great Lakes was second and Jack Schafer's Such Crust IV finished in third place.

Harold Eidsvig, Winnipeg Niakwa pro, yesterday won the Manitoba open golf championship with a one-over-par 141 for the final 36 holes of the 54-hole tournament. Eidsvig turned in a disappointing 80 Thursday over the par 70 Winnipeg Elmhurst course, but yesterday he came from far back to post rounds of 71 and 70 for a total of 221.

At Istanbul, four members of the Turkish Olympic Wrestling team—three of them gold medal winners in the 1948 games at London—were ousted yesterday on charges of professionalism. All were reported to have received homes after their London successes.

At Inglewood, Calif., Admiral Drake won the $50,000 American Handicap before 52,000 fans yesterday, with Sturdy One second and the heavy favorite, Intent, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, third in the Hollywood Park Independence Day feature. The win was worth $32,700 to Abe Hirschberg, owner of Admiral Drake.

Gerry Kesselring, Kitchener Star, Wins Ontario Open Golf Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Long-hitting Gerry Kesselring defied high winds and big pro names yesterday to capture the Ontario Open golf championship.

The 23-year-old Kitchener amateur, only player to break par in the last round of the tournament over the tough 6,395-yard suburban Weston Club layout, beat off a determined threat from veteran pro Bob Gray.

Kesselring's score of 211 was two under par for the 54-hole medal-play tournament. Gray was five strokes behind with 216.

Wins Trophy

Kesselring, who won the Ontario amateur crown in 1949 and 1951, took the Carling trophy yesterday and a $100 camera. Gray, from the Toronto Scarboro club, won $705.

Kesselring, playing out of two Kitchener clubs, Westmount and Rockaway, was the first amateur to win the $2,000 open since Windsor's Nick Weslock did it three years ago. Weslock, still an amateur, was third yesterday with 217. Fourth was Murray Tucker of London, whose 218 score took $400. Tied for fifth at 219 were pros Willie Lamb of Toronto Lambton and Bob Burns of Ridgeway's Cherry Hill, and Bruce Castator, Islington amateur. Lamb and Burns received $250 each.

The sensation of the opening day, Bill Thompson, assistant pro at suburban York Downs, finished just in the money with a 222. He won $25. On Thursday he led the field with a sparkling 67.

Scores High

High winds caused scores to soar in yesterday's final round.

But Kesselring said later he likes it "when it's blowing and windy. It adds a bit of skill."

Kesselring was eight strokes up on Gray at the 17th tee. He was aided greatly by an eagle three on the 525-yard 16th when his drive and a two-iron shot rolled within two feet of the pin. Gray had a par five.

A two-over par by Kesselring on the next hole, when he overshot the green for a six, cut the margin to five when Gray birdied the hole. It stayed that way when they both parred the final hole.

Whip Slips Clip Two Flips In Another Exciting Tussle

By GEO. H. CARVER

(Sports Editor)

The British Humpah wrestling crown still sits jauntily atop the noggin of one Whipper Billy Watson.

True it was jarred askew several times by His Ludshop Athol, scion of the noble family of Layton, who used to ride to hounds on his Surrey estate, but a timely assist or two by one "Bunny" Dunlop, Grand Vizier of the Fleet Street Tooney's Looneys, Referee's Local 17869, jolted the bauble back in position.

In short the Whip slipped the Clip two flips last night in Memorial Arena while nearly 1,800 of the faithful shrilled their approval, and surged about ringside in another mob scene as five men slugged, hugged and plugged one another in another riot-out post-bout melee.

Even the mosquitoes, all of which wore Watson pins abaft of their wing stilettos, forgot to prod the pewsters as a triumphant Whip struck a Statue of Liberty pose on two occasions while two opponents lay prone in oblivion on the mat.

Pinch-Arbiter

The tilts were a bit lopsided at that. His Ludship whose lone supporter was his manager Lou Petrocia, spotted the Whip one utility man. The Whip after tossing for sides found he had "La Bunny" and one Cliff Fox who jumped in the ring to relieve the Bunny the minute he spotted perspiration on his fourth chin.

In fact the jobs of La Bunny and Brer Fox appeared to be to keep Signor Petrocia's attention from playing Tickle-toe with the Whip's size 14s whenever the opportunity presented itself. The Signor would wrap a Watsonian leg around the other like a yard of spaghetti around a fork by merely reaching through the ropes.

Now this is strictly against the ethics of the more successful graduates of the College of Applied Pachydermy, and Ole Prof. Dunlop, who wrote several tomes on the subject, and doesn't remember one, took offense to the signor's unfair methods. In fact, he slugged the big lu . . . pardon,—fella several times during the bout and took him on during the hilarious post workouts.

The Whip nipped the Clip for the first fall after thirteen minutes of intermittent brawling with the Briton, and Dunlop, Foxet Cie with Signor Petrocia. The Whip applied his famous Canadian Commando piggy-back hold and the tall Surrey blueblood sagged slowly to the mat as the birdies cheeped a recessional.

English boy chop-chop in the second heat. He chopped the Whipper, hamburged La Dunlop, slugged Brer Fox and on one occasion nearly garroted the signor when Watson, the oaf, ducked a vicious jugular slash and the signor obligingly stuck out his Adam's apple. The Whip went down and the Layton chops descended like the baton of a conductor with St. Vitus Dance. The Whip's Commando backfired when Layton fell backwards. Came the chop-attack again and that was it.

Horribly Boring, Old Chop

The Whip prodded Clip into a near frenzy in the third chukker by ruffling the regal locks and ducking out of the way. Probably tiring of the white-shirted company, the two rolled out of the ring where Whipper promptly stretched 'Is 'Ighness prone on the cement, and when the signor bull-dozed to the attack, the Whip cut him down. The two refs went into conclave and decided that by merging forces they could count to ten and the numbers racket started.

The Whip rolled in, followed by a dazed Layton. Came the Commando again and the Humpah crown stayed put. But don't go away. There was a jolly old free-for-all afterward as the infuriated Layton and his man Friday tore into the attack. Brer Fox and La Bunny got in it. Bunny body-slammed the signor then leaped up and, with Fox clutching a Layton leg, pinned the Briton's arms back while the Whip boloed punches to the regal button. Dunlop went down from a judo chop. So did Fox. The Whip punched the Layton-Signor duo to earth and Bunny staggered to his feet and again raised the Watsonian arm in token of victory.

A surging mob crowded the ringside as Layton and Petrocia headed for the showers. A few took "pokes" at the signor and he dashed for the dressing room entrance. Lord Layton survived a shower of paper and verbal attacks and so endeth another chapter in the feud between the Clip and the Whip.

Ray Villmer and Fred Atkins in a thrilling semi-final went the time limit to a draw while Frank Stack, defeated Lou Petrocia after attacking Referee Fox in an outside-the-ring mix-up.

Girl Swimmer Gives Up Catalina Try

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — Plucky Florence Chadwick, two-time conqueror of the English Channel, gave up to the choppy Pacific yesterday after coming within three-quarters of a mile of swimming Catalina Channel.

The 32-year-old swimmer from San Diego was hauled from the water 15 hours and 50 minutes after she plunged off the Isthmus of Santa Catalina Island last night. She swam at least 20 miles.

Miss Chadwick fought a four-knot current for the last three hours.

She was able to swim to the accompanying rowboat and grasp her mother's hand before being pulled out and wrapped in blankets.

A waiting crowd estimated at more than 50,000 was strung along Cabrillo Beach and surrounding bluffs for a distance of several miles.

On shore, one admirer thrust a bouquet of red roses in her hand. She was able to smile and walk to the shower room where she used up all the hot water.

Her manager, Ted Bentley, estimated that she swam nearly 28 miles in a zig-zag course. A beeline course from the isthmus to Cabrillo Beach is 21 miles.

A late check disclosed that Catalina Channel has been swum by at least seven persons, the first being Toronto-born George Young in January, 1927. The claimant to the record, however, is Byron Summers of Los Angeles, who swam the 21 miles in 13 hours, 35 minutes, April 24, 1927.

The late Mrs. Martha Huddleston of Long Beach is believed to be the only woman to have swum the stretch. It took her more than 20 hours, also in 1927.

Point Anne Nips Crawfords 5-4 In 13 Innings

There is something about the number 13 that Crawford Metals won't forget for a long time, and that was the run Point Anne Cementmen squeezed over in the top of the 13th inning last evening to defeat the Metals 5-4 in a real thriller at the Alemite Field.

It was Point Anne's ninth win in 12 starts and consolidated their hold on third place in the Belleville and District Softball League.

Both teams played through from the eighth inning in a 4-4 tie. In the top of the 13th Roger Mallory laid down a bunt with one out. Strahan popped to second base and then Pat Maracle hit a line drive to his wrong field that flipped out of the right fielder's glove for three bases with Mallory coming home. Bradshaw grounded out short to first to end the inning.

Crawfords failed to score in the bottom of the 13th although they had the tying run at second on an error at first base.

Point Anne opened the scoring in the first frame with Elliott drawing a walk, moving along on Horwood's bunt, and scoring on a fielder's choice.

Crawfords came back to tally two runs in the second inning on an error at short that put Lewis aboard, and singles by Watson, Taylor and Jeffery. They added another in the fifth on a triple by Duesbury and a single by Temple.

Strahan Homers

Bob Strahan homered to left centrefield with Mallory aboard in the sixth to give Point Anne a 3-3 tie which Crawfords broke in the bottom of the sixth with a single run on an error at second, a passed ball and Jeffery's single to right field.

Point Anne tied the count in the eighth on Elliott's single, a passed ball and an error at second base.

Both teams missed chances to score until the Pointers tallied in the 13th.

Merle Massey went all the way on the hill for Crawfords walking two, striking out two, and giving up only seven hits.

Burshaw started for Point Anne and in seven and one third innings walked three, struck out one, and gave up 10 hits for four runs. Pat Maracle went the rest of the way walking one, striking out three, and being nicked for one hit and no runs.

Bob Strahan led the winners with two hits in six appearances. For the losers, Jeffery had three singles in five tries.

Record-Breaking Track, Field Kids Have Gay Time at Jr. Championships

TORONTO (CP)—With Olympic trials catching most of the limelight lately, Canada's younger athletes had a happy time themselves yesterday smashing 10 records before the half-way mark in the two-day sixth annual Canadian Junior Track and Field Championships.

All but one of the records tumbled in juvenile and midget events. Ron Wallingford, Ottawa Glebe Collegiate, toppled the single junior mark.

T.T.F.C. Leads

The Toronto Track and Field Club, five times winners of the championships, piled up a heavy early lead with 75 points. Toronto Secondary Schools Club moved into second with 37, Montreal Track and Field 30, Agincourt 27, New Westminster 21, and Sudbury Nickel Teen Club 13.

Harry Nelson, 17, of New Westminster, B.C., Olympic Club was responsible for two new marks. He shaved three-tenths of a second off the 120-yard hurdles record set by Toronto Track's Norm Williams last year. In the 220-yard dash he pared one-tenth second off the 22.9-second mark of Peter Sutton, also of T.T.F.C.

Nelson's performance was matched by Jerry Zabiyko of Toronto Secondary Schools Track Club.

Zabiyko won the midget high jump with a leap of 5 feet 7¾ inches to knock down the 5-foot 2½-inch previous record. He tossed the javelin 163 feet 1¾ inches. The former standard was 122 feet 9 inches set last year when the event was introduced.

The juvenile running broad jump record fell to Laird Sloan of Montreal Track and Field Club who launched himself 20 feet 9 inches to better by two inches the mark set by T. Whan of Victoria y.m.c.a.

Sets Javelin Record

Jerry Drouhok, T.S.S.T.C., sent the juvenile javelin for a record distance of 184 feet 8½ inches. D. McArthur of Shawinigan Falls, Que., set the previous mark of 159 feet 2 inches.

Ron Wallingford of Ottawa knocked 24 seconds off T.T.F.C., B. Taunton's record with a time of 15:22 in the junior three-mile.

In the juvenile 800-yard event Jack Dunnigan of Buffalo smashed the standard set by Don Aitken of T.T.F.C. with a time of 2:01.3.

The Agincourt Spikes Club collared two records. John Ramsell tossed the juvenile discuss 137 feet 7½ inches, bettering last year's mark of 117 feet 9 inches.

The Agincourt juvenile relay team covered the 880-yard distance in 1:36.6, two seconds better than the old mark.

Final events are slated for this afternoon.

Panthers Snap Sox Win-Streak; Guelph Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The standings in the senior Intercounty Baseball League appear to have fallen into permanent pattern. There was no change following three games last night.

Only the top two clubs, Guelph Maple Leafs in first place and Kitchener Panthers in second, have switched their niches in the last month.

Guelph last night gained their 16th win in 22 starts by defeating Galt Terriers 7-2 while Kitchener snapped Brantford Red Sox' five-game winning streak with a 7-3 lacing. London Majors clipped Waterloo Tigers 4-1.

Four In A Row

Righthander Lew Fauth brought Guelph their fourth straight victory and his fifth of the season. He held Galt to seven hits, walked eight and fanned three.

Jimmy Bell started for Galt but was replaced by John Mulholland in the seventh. Bell was charged with the loss.

Third baseman Bud Kimball of Guelph blasted a home run and a single in four trips, batting in three runs and scoring two. The homer was his sixth of the season.

Righthander Chuck Fedoris travelled the distance for Kitchener as did Brantford southpaw Alex Gavey.

Fedoris, in picking up his seventh win, allowed nine hits and seven walks, striking out five.

Steps Sure Homer

The Panthers turned in an errorless game while the Sox committed only one miscue. The fielding highlight was centrefielder Jerry Wilson's one-handed snag of a 400-foot smash by Panther first baseman Don Gallinger. It came with two on in the fifth and the score tied 3-3.

First baseman Joe Bechard brought London its 10th win in 25 starts. Batting .333 in latest league figures, he homered in the sixth with the bases loaded.

The 415-foot wallop broke up a tight pitching duel between London's Bob Brake and Waterloo's Gord Ariss.

Brake allowed eight hits in winning his fifth game in six starts. Ariss allowed only five hits but three came in a single inning—the sixth.

Waterloo leftfielder Bill Flick led the hitters with three for four. His seventh-inning double scored Tigers' single counter.

Tonight London meets Waterloo, St. Thomas goes to Galt and Kitchener to Brantford.

Glen Roy Peewees Defeat Booths 13-5

Behind the outstanding hurling and hitting of Reid, the Glen Roy youngsters defeated Booth's Teevees 13-5 in a scheduled Peewee Softball League game at Firemen's Park Thursday night.

Reid struck out seven in going the route and slammed out two homers and a triple in four appearances at the plate. He gave up but three hits.

Moreau hurled for the Booth team and struck out one.

Young, Glen Roy catcher, was injured in the fourth inning and was forced to leave the game. He was replaced by Kellar.

Bass-Bug Fishing

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Bass-bug fishing is a fascinating piece of business. Once you have been exposed to it and the germ has taken hold, you will find it an ailment not easily shaken off. A friend of mine, an excellent fisherman, once expressed the opinion that the fly rod and the bass bug make the most deadly method yet devised for taking bass consistently.

I feel that his statement should be modified somewhat. A great deal of the water in which bass live is not at all suitable for bass-bug fishing. The open waters of a lake, for example, out away from shore, are not good bass-bug fishing. You can take bass there on either bait or plug, but to cast a bass bug out over open water is a rather fruitless task.

My preference for bass-bug fishing is a good shore line. I like the water to be from four to six feet deep, with big rocks or logs, bushes and stumps. There is enough water to cover a large fish and a place for him to hide.

It must be remembered that a bass, particularly a smallmouth, arranges his life according to temperatures. Both largemouth and smallmouth are classed as warm-water fishes but the smallmouth is much more particular about his temperatures than is the largemouth.

For a smallmouth to spawn, the temperature of the water should be above 55 degrees. His preference is water that is 67 or 68 degrees and that is where he will build his nest if he can find such a spot. Moreover, he will continue to live in water of that temperature throughout the summer if he can locate such an area.

67 Degree Level

Once the summer temperature layers have established themselves in a lake, the 67-degree level is usually from fifteen to thirty feet down. Obviously it is unreasonable to expect a bass to rise through that much water to take a bass bug.

Thus, to fish for smallmouth with a bass bug in a lake, you should know your territory thoroughly. This means that you should find the spring holes and the spots which are reasonably shallow and which still maintain the comparatively low temperatures.

It is a good plan always to explore the shore lines directly under the hillsides. Here you generally will find rocky cover and spring seepage, draining down from the hills. Such places are furnished homes for the big smallmouth.

Of course, a river is the ideal place in which to fish for smallmouth with a bass bug. There the current flow keeps the water mixed so that temperatures are approximately constant from surface to river bed.

As is true of a lake, so are there spring-seepage spots in a river. Study the topography of the valley through which the river flows. Feeder streams and spring runs almost always come down from the valleys. Should the river flow against the base of a steep hill, there, generally, you will be able to locate spring seepage, finding its way to the river.

Prefer Same Temperature

These places are natural concentration spots for the bass because there they can live in the temperatures that they prefer. Should the shore line drop off sharply into deep water, with rocky cover available, so much the better.

There are two ways to locate these concentration spots. One is to fish all of the likely looking water, making note of the productive areas and gradually, by trial and error, separating the good from the bad.

The other way, and by far the easier, is to test the likely looking spots with your stream thermometer. Temperature readings will tell you the story rather quickly.

In a river, it must be remembered that the riffles hold most of the natural food, the riffles and the shore lines. Usually, unless the shore line is a good one, the bass do not live in these places. They visit them only in search of food. Once they have satisfied their hunger they retire to the security of the deeper water.

My preference in bass water in a river is a deep, rocky shore line against which the current flows, fresh and strong. These places are nearly always found where there is a bend in the stream. Smallmouth like "live water" and a bend in the river pushes the current directly against the shore.

Take to Cover

Largemouth bass in a lake take up residence for the summer months in spots along the shore lines where they can find protective cover and enough water to offer them security. You will find them around the stumps and logs, in the weed beds, and beneath overhanging bushes and trees. There is one type of cover, however, which many fishermen do not associate with big bass — the points.

Strangely enough, a point which juts out into the lake does not need to offer much in the way of protection, such as stumps or logs. If there is enough water there to cover a bass safely, that is about all he wants.

What attracts the fish to the points is probably the transient food supply. In a cove the traffic of shore-line minnows and other natural food can't be very heavy. but everything which moves along the shore must, inevitably, pass the points. Thus, a big bass can take up residence there and wait for his food to come to him.

Don't overlook the importance of keeping track of the daily Solunar Periods when you are bass-bug fishing. Bass, like most game fish, are cyclic feeders. When the Solunar Periods roll around, that is the time when the big fellows leave deep water and cruise in the shallows in search of food.

At these times you will find fish along shallow shore lines which normally are barren. In the bass rivers I have taken excellent bass at the tails of the pools in water which is barely deep enough to cover their dorsal fins.

Fish Alarm Easily

Of course, fish in shallow water take alarm easily. To fish your bass bug successfully in shallow water means that you must cast a long line and not crowd your fish. However, if you are a good caster you will find that the "flats," where the pools shallow off into the riffles, often are very productive places.

In addition, game fish, for reasons best known to themselves, seem to prefer surface lures to any other variety during the Solunar Periods. Why this should be so I'm sure I can't say, but they do.

So, as I say, keep track of the daily Solunar Periods. Nearly thirty years of observation have shown that the bass respond to the promptings of the Solunar Periods. That is when the fish are on the feed.

So get the habit; check the daily times in your newspaper. You will find that it pays off both in sport and the weight of your creel.

Wings Take Two From Toronto, Gain on Royals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto's Maple Leafs seemed to be making a habit of beating Rochester's hot-and-cold Red Wings until yesterday when they came up against Ellis (Cot) Deal and Jack Faszholz.

The two Rochester righthanders allowed the Leafs only seven hits in a doubleheader yesterday and lifted the Wings within three games of the pace-setting Montreal Royals. Deal won the opener 4-1 and Faszholz the nightcap 6-0.

Before the sweep, the Red Wings had lost four of five to Toronto.

Royals Split

The Wing gain was made possible when the Royals split with Syracuse Chiefs, winning the opener 11-4 but faltering 2-0 in the nightcap.

Baltimore and Springfield also halved a twin bill as the Orioles rallied to capture the first game 4-1 and dropped the second 3-2.

Ottawa moved two percentage points ahead of Buffalo into seventh place with 6-2 and 4-3 victories.

Rookie infielder Ray Jablonski tripled and homered to aid Deal's four-hit hurling in the Wing-Leaf opener, and Harry Walker had four safeties, including a four-bagger and a triple, in the afterpiece as Faszholz three-hitted the losers.

Syracuse's Arnie Landeck tossed the four-hit shutout that prevented the Royals from completing a sweep after the league leaders had knocked out 14 hits to win for Gil Mills.

Come From Behind

The Orioles put across four runs in the seventh to come from behind for victory in the curtain-raiser, while the Cubs led all the way in the finale with Al Lary going the route for his first triumph.

Ottawa, behind Jean Roy and Joe Murray, went on a hitting spree at Buffalo. Harvey Gentry and Lou Limmer had three hits each in the seven-inning contest, and George Moskovich, former Bison, drove in all the Athletics runs in the second game.

Actress Runs Gamut in "Outlaw Women"

Jacqueline Fontaine's first film role, as a lady bandit in "Outlaw Women," the Ron Ormond Cinecolor production for Lippert release, is the kind of part many actresses wait years to play.

The blond night club singer runs a new kind of gamut in the new western feature. When she's not vocalizing a sultry number in saloon sequences, clad in mesh hose and low-cut dresses, she's out on the range in riding pants and mask, holding up stagecoaches.

All of which makes it a colorful film bow for the 20-year-old Kenosha, Wisconsin, girl who made her first professional appearance in Chicago night clubs, came to Los Angeles for George White's "Scandals" and when the show folded, turned to television. She was singing on a local telecast when Ormond spotted her and signed her for the picture without even making a screen test.

Jacqueline's birth date was August 14, 1931, and she has blue eyes, stands five feet, three and one-half inches, weighs a shapely 118 pounds. She shares honors with Marie Windsor, Richard Rober, Allan Nixon, Carla Balenda, Jackie Coogan and others in "Outlaw Women," under Sam Newfield's direction.

Film opens Monday at the Drive-in Theatre.

DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"Dial 1119"

The action all takes place, after showing Gunther Wyckoff (Marshall Thompson) getting off a bus in search of a doctor who had been responsible for having him committed to the state hospital for the criminally insane, in a saloon. He is determined to kill Dr. John Faron (Sam Levene) and failing to find him home, crosses the street to the saloon. Here he holds the patrons after a radio broadcast tips off the owner that the man is the escaped potential killer. While trying to telephone the police, the owner is killed and the others herded to corner tables. The shot brings the police but Wyckoff demands that the doctor be brought to him or he will kill the five people he is holding. One of them finally gets the bartender's gun, wounds him, and the police arrive.

Canadians still hold many thousands of dollars worth of "shinplasters," 25-cent paper notes, last made in 1935.

Movie Column

By JAMES BACON
(For Vacationing Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of Hollywood's better-dressed young actresses wears $8 dresses and $2 bathing suits—all made by her mama.

It seems that Terry Moore, freshly-divorced from grid star Glenn Davis, had blossomed into a dramatic actress in "Come Back, Little Sheba." Her role of the co-ed in the movie version of the famed Broadway play was her first big movie break.

At lunch in the commissary even women were complimenting her on how nice she looked. And female stars interrupted our luncheon several times by gushing:

"Daahling. Love that dress." Etc.

It became so noticeable that even I asked her how much it cost. It was a simple dress in white something or other. Looked very summery and Terry had a golden tan that set it off well.

"I think this dress cost about $8, all told," she answered.

"Sale?"

Mother Made It

"No, my mother made it. She makes practically everything I wear."

Terry disclosed that her mother, Mrs. Luella Koford, got in the business of designing Terry's clothes via bathing suits. The shapely actress is tiny every place but the bust, which measures 36 inches.

"It was a real job buying bathing suits for me," she said. "We'd have to buy two suits—a size 12 and a size 10. I'd wear the size 12 top and the size 10 bottom."

Since bathing suits are a basic commodity among young Hollywood starlets, the necessity of buying two suits to get one can even be too expensive for cheesecake art.

"So," Terry continued, "mother started making my bathing suits."

She owns at least 30 bathing suits and estimates about $60 invested in the lot. Mama's labor comes for free.

Another famous cheesecake artist once told me that she usually paid $80 to $100 apiece for custom-made bathing suits in Beverly Hills shops.

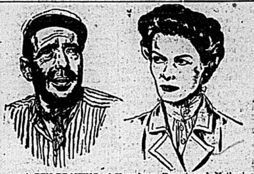
AT THE CAPITOL — Helen Hayes, shown with Dean Jagger and Robert Walker, makes her triumphant return to the screen in Leo McCarey's production of "My Son John," a Paramount picture arriving Monday at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. The timely drama concerns a mother fighting to learn the secrets of her son's guilty past. McCarey also directed and co-authored the screenplay. On the same program "Atlantic City Honeymoon," starring Paul Whitman and Louis Armstrong's orchestra with Jerry Colona and Constance Moore.



A PEN-DRAWING of Humphrey Bogart and Katharine Hepburn as they appear in John Huston's engrossing Technicolor film drama, "The African Queen," which was filmed on location in Africa as an Horizon-Romulus Production. It opens on Monday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre through United Artists release.

In this stirring adventure romance, Katie, playing the prim, straight-laced sister of a missionary, takes revenge on a gin-swilling river boatman, played by Bogie, by emptying every bottle he has stached away on the little boat carrying them down river bent on a fantastic mission. The hurt and disgusted expression on Bogart's face becomes even funnier when it is recalled that there are no liquor stores along the Congo. As Bogart complained, "those crocodiles must have had one heck of a time!"

FRANKFORD

FRANKFORD — The members of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 240, held their annual church service and decoration day Sunday. Led by the Frankford band, the members of the lodge, including the L. O. B. A. ladies and J. O. L. Junior Lodge paraded from the Trinity Anglican Church, where the service was held, to the cemetery for the decoration. It is most unfortunate that most of the people of Frankford were not aware of the service, for many would have enjoyed hearing the band, and seeing the Lodge on parade, taking part in a most worthy custom.

Massed Band Concert

Frankfordites and residents of neighboring districts are cordially invited to attend a massed band concert in the Frankford Memorial Park on Sunday afternoon. This is the Frankford performance of a series of massed band concerts, featuring bands from Warkworth, Stirling, Frankford and Trenton Lions. The recent concert in Stirling was exceptionally good, and attracted a large audience. It is hoped that the Memorial Park will be filled Sunday afternoon for this first massed band concert in many, many years in Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorburt Smith and family are spending a few holidays in Sudbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Post, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Revoy spent a few days visiting relatives in Coe Hill this week.

Friends of Mrs. Clifford Smith will be glad to hear that she is able to be up and around the house after an illness of over three months.

Miss Helen Rose visited her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. G. Ireland in Smithfield on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rowe and family, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Chase and Miss Joan McCrea spent Sunday afternoon and evening at Presqu'ile Point.

Miss Beverley Acton has returned home after spending a holiday with her sister, Mrs. Douglas Buck in Penetang. Mrs. Buck returned to Frankford and is spending a holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Acton.

The Frankford Band will be in attendance at the Lions Club street carnival Wednesday evening and will give a concert.

LIBERTY

"Now the Lord is that spirit, and where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

This is the Biblical version of the Declaration of Independence. It says that liberty is an inner matter, not an outer; that it has to do with the heart, rather than with the form of government. People may live under free institutions and yet be slaves, if they have not yet freed themselves from the tyranny of evil in their lives. Jesus found His contemporaries boasting that they had never been in bondage to any man because they were the sons of Abraham; but this Jesus questioned. They were still slaves, He said, who had not yet freed themselves from the bondage of evil within their own hearts.

We may well ask ourselves at this season whether or not we are free. Is America free? America is free if her people are free, and her people are free if they are free on the inside of their lives. Only political freedom is to be found in the instrument which Jefferson wrote, spiritual freedom abides in the new spirit that Jesus brought into the world by bringing it into the hearts of men. The Master put it very bluntly when He said, "If the Son, therefore, shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."

Stake Horse

By Larry Sternig

The next day, in a claiming race, Johnny Hamilton was out of the sixth and a Hamilton horse won paying a hatful, which helped encourage him in the seventh.

Johnny's entry in this was a maiden, a chestnut colt, who'd been showing a heartening change of form in his workouts. Johnny plunged, every dollar he'd won the day before.

It was a killer. The chestnut colt got the jump, moving out of the mob like a comet. Johnny began to figure this one would pay. The colt hit the turn, showing his heels, and the lgiht between him and the ruck kept growing and growing— all the way into the rear lane.

With that lead, he could be off the pace and still lead them home. Johnny could feel his heart pounding.

Into the north bend now, the stride still steady, the rest of the field fighting but out of it, knowing hey were out of it. The only race was for the place and show slots.

All eyes were on the turn now thousands on thousands on thousands of them, watching this outside chance come romping home.

The shriek that went up was like one voice, like one hoarse voice from some inarticulate giant—as the colt pitched forward coming out of the turn.

Johnny saw Rusty leave the saddle, sail awkwardly over the colt's head, and the animal somersaulted. Rusty was down, but clear of the colt.

There was no mass pile-up; they all went around safely.

Johnny went down to join Nystrom on the track. The steward, bending over the colt, looked up. "Broken foreleg," he said. He was looking at Johnny. He'd need permission from the owner. Johnny turned away as Nystrom said, "Sure. What else?"

Rusty was limping a little as the three of them walked back to the stables. He was pale, but claimed to be all right. Johnny noticed the tight line of his lips, the pain in his eyes.

Nystrom's hand was on Johnny's shoulder, and it tightened at the sound of the shot.

The Futurity was run two days later, and Challenger was as ready as he would ever be. His workouts had been impressive. Rusty, despite a still sprained ankle, was confident. There'd be $20,000 in this one, a big bite out of the debt.

Nystrom told Johnny, "Don't put a dime on this one. With two-year-olds you can't tell. Challenger's got the pole, and that's a big advantage in these short grinds, but don't bet a penny."

It was a six-furlong contest. It would start near the south turn to permit a front-of-the-stands finish. Johnny went down to stand next to the rail, near the boxes.

It was a dull and muggy day; the track was heavy from last night's spasmodic showers.

Today would be the test, Johnny decided. If he won he felt it would be an indication of the season's luck. There was no valid reason for it; there would be bigger and better races later in the season. But it would be an encouraging start.

There was some commotion at the starting gate. Among the young ones there was always confusion. Then, for one moment, all was calm.

Challenger had the pole, but he didn't get the jump. A Kovalt entry, Beggar's Ride, who flanked Challenger, shot from the gate to an early half length lead. It was two full lengths in the backstretch and Beggar's Ride was on the rail, moving smoothly, matching Challenger stride for stride, maintaining his advantage. Tod Lacey, Johnny's former jockey was rating the Kovalt entry well .

Then Challenger began eating up that two-length lead as they swept into the north.

Johnny saw something then that made his heart leap. Beggar's Ride had gone into the turn too fast; he was swinging wide toward the outer rail, and there was a hole big enough for a Percheron. Rusty rode the rail, Challenger under control and driving. It was in the bag.

Beggar's Ride was coming down toward the groove again under Tod's urging. But there was still plenty of room for Rusty.

Nothing happened. Rusty did not try for the hole. The Kovalt entry came down again, along the rail, and Tod's bat was swinging now. Dazedly, Johnny watched the straining Challenger follow Beggar's ride home. Rusty had not only failed to take advantage of the hole; he'd actually pulled Challenger on the turn.

Johnny went over to the stable and found Nystrom already there. The trainer's eyes were hard. Rusty came in, handing Challenger over to one of the swipes. The boy was trembling. He was close to tears.

Johnny remembered then that it was the same place Rusty had taken a spill, two days before. It was the same spot that cost them a colt. He said, "was it because of the spill, Rusty?"

The jock nodded, his eyes searching Johnny's face. Then he was looking at the ground. "I lost my nerve. There isn't anything you can say or do'll make me feel any worse than I do now. I didn't have the stuff when it counted . . ."

Nystrom said, "Nobody got to you with the long green? Kid, you pulled that horse!"

Rusty looked up defiantly. "Nobody got to me. I was yellow —" There was misery in his voice.

Johnny said quietly, "It's all right, Rusty. We can't win 'em all. You aren't the first good boy who's had a jinx."

If Rusty Sloan was jinxed, he didn't show it the next day. Johnny Hamilton had entries in two of the cheaper grinds and Rusty copped the first with a fine display of horsemanship. The other he didn't win, but he pulled everything out of the mare she had and came in second, ahead of some superior horses. It was a claiming race, and the mare was claimed by Kovalt.

"Cured?" Johnny asked Rusty.

Rusty nodded. "I figured it all out. The worst that could happen is I might get killed. And that would be a break compared to the way I felt yesterday." He looked up at Johnny. "You find another boy yet—for the big one?"

This would be the Atwater Stakes. Johnny shook his head. "We figured you'd be the boy, Rusty."

The lad flushed. "Even after—yesterday?"

"Even after yesterday."

"Thanks, Mr. Hamilton. I'll give him a ride; I promise you that."

"Him?" Johnny said. "You figured Adonis?"

"Adonis is the best in the string, bar none. He wouldn't work for Tod, but—well, I've been kind of talking to Adonis in the stable, and I think we understand each other."

Johnny tried to keep from smiling, but to no avail. He said, "You better start talking to Bella. She's our hope in the Stakes. We can't trust Adonis. Not yet."

Rusty avoided his eyes. "Well, I'm just a jock. I don't mean to tell you how to run your business, but there's an allowance coming up, Wednesday, and it might be a place to try Adonis. He hasn't had a test this year, you know."

Johnny tried to give the idea some thought. And the more he thought about it, the better it looked. Nystrom agreed with him if the colt showed well, the race could act as a tightener for the Stakes. So it was arranged that Adonis would enter the race.

The few wins they had, plus the other finishes in money spots had gone toward expenses, which were considerable in a stable this size. Two of the their cheaper mounts had been claimed, and they had picked up no others. There was money in claimers, if one had the eye and the purse. Both Johnny and Nystrom had the eye, but the purse wasn't adequate.

Carol came up for the Wednesday racing. She'd bought a new set of tires all around, and could make the trip.

"Six ply, too," Johnny teased her. "You must be in the money."

"I've a job," she said, "at the Club Madrid."

"Never heard of it," Johnny said.

"It's the newest, the tonlest, and the busiest in town. And I'm the feature attraction." She stretched up to kiss him. "So if your horses won't win, it won't matter. I'll take care of you, honey."

They went over to the stalls. Rusty was there, feeding Adonis a carrot. What dope is to an addict, carrots were to Adonis.

"Remember, we talked about discipline and how you couldn't beat a horse? Well, I got to thinking about your idea of trying psychology. So I got myself a book by one of them child experts."

"Child psychologists?" Johnny supplied.

"Uh-huh. About how to bring up your kids, about rewards, and stuff like that."

"So, when he behaves he gets carrots?" Johnny laughed after Rusty's head bobbed up and down. "I hope he understands why he doesn't get them when he misbehaves."

"He does," said Rusty.

The mugginess of the past week was gone; the sun had baked the track rock-hard. It would be a fast track, and the allowance would be filled with fast horses. They had no other entries, but he and Carol played a few races. A $2 bet was her limit and she made it Johnny's.

They bet every race but the first, before the allowance. Johnny was, at that time $1.80 ahead. Carol had lost almost $5. She had bet all of them to show, Johnny to win.

Johnny nodded gravely. "I've almost $2 now, to pay on the $100,000."

Horses were parading out for the allowance now, and Adonis was third in line. He looked ready, this hot afternoon. He was the best looking colt in that good looking field and Johnny was proud of him. But he hadn't bet a cent. Nor had Carol. Adonis had disappointed them before.

Nystrom came over to their box. He had just come up from the stables. He asked "How's the Hamilton hunch on this one?"

"I didn't bet," Johnny told him.

"Nor I," said Carol. "How about you, Uncle Ed?"

Nystrom only stared at her as Johnny said "Your uncle, honey, wouldn't bet if he was alive. He has yet to make his first wager."

"Nothing in the world," her uncle said, "is as uncertain as a horse race. And $2 will buy a lot of oats."

It was Adonis at the jump off, fighting for the rail and getting it, moving out from the melee to a full length lead. Adonis, leading them all into the first turn, setting the pace.

They were all just bobbing spots of color in the backstretch now, the distinguished silks of the various stables the only tip-off. And the Hamilton green and white led all the rest.

The bunch spread out; they were findnig their pace, and still Adonis led. From the two spot a chestnut filly moved up for the challenge as they pounded into the turn.

Adonis met the challenge with a spurt and the filly fell back. Around the bend they came, hoof-thunder on the hard track getting louder.

Averages 176.497 M.P.H. In Two Runs Over Course

SEATTLE (AP)—Stanley Sayres today whipped the screaming Slo-MoShun IV to a world hydroplane speed record of 176.497 miles an hour. It cracked the mark set two years ago by more than 18 miles an hour.

It was the fastest man ever has travelled on water.

In 1950 Sayres and the Slo-Mo-Shun startled the speedboat world by boosting the world mark some 20 miles an hour to 160.3235 miles an hour.

That same year he won the Gold Cup race and the Harmsworth Trophy in the speedy Slo-Mo-Shun.

Lake Washington's narrow east channel was choppy from a sharp breeze as Sayres came out at 8 a. m. PDT (11 a. m. EDT) for his try at the record

With the wind at his back, he ran the first mile of the test in 185.567 miles an hour. On the return against the wind he was clocked in 171.428.

The average for the two runs was taken as the official time.

New England Has Second Set Quads In Three Weeks

PORTLAND, Me. (AP)—Quadruplets—three girls and a boy—were born early today to 35-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Pinkham, wife of a Standish carpenter, in the Osteopathic hospital here.

Dr. Duncan Morse, head of the obstetrical department of the hospital, who delivered the quads, said the condition of Mrs. Pinkham and the babies is "very good."

The babies, born within 45 minutes, were placed in incubators.

The first one, born at 3:31 a.m., was a four-pound, one-ounce girl. The second a boy born 36 minutes later, weighed four pounds, 15 ounces. The other two babies were delivered at 4:12 and 4:16 a. m. and weighed four pounds, and three pounds, 14 ounces, respectively.

The couple has one other child

This was the second set of quads born in New England within 19 days.

Quadruplets—three boys and a girl—were born to Mrs. Marion L. Manning, 27, at South Shore hospital, Weymouth, Mass., on June 18.

The Manning quads are still at the hospital and are reported in "good condition."

600 Americans Die Violently During Holiday

CHICAGO (AP)—More than 600 Americans died violent deaths during the four-day Independence Day week-end. The toll was far from a record for a holiday week-end.

Traffic accidents took 346 lives—far short of the 430 the National Safety Council had predicted and 17 less than the number who died on the highways during a similar 78-hour Memorial Day period.

But 185 drownings helped boost the total well beyond the Memorial Day figure of 510.

Deaths from miscellaneous accidents amounted to 69.

4th Secret Session Fails to Produce Korean Armistice

MUNSAN, Korea (A)—United Nation and Communist armistice negotiators held their fourth consecutive secret meeting today. U.N. spokesmen said proceedings were on a "business-like basis."

A single issue—exchange of prisoners of war—blocks an armistice.

Today's meeting lasted 48 minutes. The executive sessions will resume at 11 a. m. tomorrow (10 p. m. Monday EDT).

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, U. N. Command spokesman, refused to say whether progress has been made.

Only Patients From Hospital Rushed to Safety

GUELPH (CP)—Reforms Minister Foote thought for a minute the worst had happened when he saw what looked like a lengthy line of corpses on the grass as he drove up to the administration office of the Guelph Reformatory during the height of the riot there Saturday night.

The headlights of his car picked out forms lying in white hospital clothing. But they were only patients from the reformatory's hospital, rushed to safety as soon as the guards regained control of the tower.

"I was sure, for a minute, they were bodies," the Cabinet Minister said later.

Sixty head of cattle also were rushed to safety. The farm superintendent turned them out of their barns for fear the rioters would destroy them.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: The weather continues very warm over the eastern half of Canada and the United States. Cooler air just west of Lake Superior is moving only slowly eastward. It will not reach the Sault Ste. Marie area until Tuesday morning, and then it is likely that it will stall temporarily. Showers and thundershowers precede the arrival of the cooler air in Northern Ontario.

Malaria Being Wiped Out as Military Problem Through Use of Primaquine

WASHINGTON (AP)—Malaria, which has killed as many soldiers in some campaigns as enemy weapons, is being wiped out as a military problem by a new drug called primaquine.

Tests now being completed by the United States Army Surgeon-General's office indicate primaquine to be a simple, inexpensive and almost sure cure for the vivax type of malaria. This is the kind that is causing trouble in Korea today.

A routine treatment with primaquine takes only 14 pills costing less than one centt each and requires no hospital care.

Call It Cure

Among one test group of Korean veterans with malaria, the drug has suppressed all symptoms in every case but one. Doctors now are calling it a cure and await only the lapse of a little more time before reporting the results officially to the medical profession.

Vivax malaria has a "sleeper" period of almost 30 weeks in which symptoms may disappear only to return in full force. Doctors want to be sure that in the test cases the drug has cured, not temporarily suppressed, symptoms. But the tests have been running since last summer, and virtually no relapses have occurred.

The present supply of primaquine is sufficient only for the United Nations forces in Korea. In time it seems certain that the drug, or an improved form of it, will be available wherever malaria is a leading cause of death.

It could cut down the world death rate for malaria to a low point. Doctors say primaquine alone probably won't stamp out the disease because it is only a cure. The disease is spread by mosquitoes.

The army says that primaquine is wiping out, for the United Nations one of the last of nature's great soldier-killers.

Primaquine is one of about 15,000 compounds tested since 1942 by U.S. scientists hunting a cure for malaria. Dr. Robert C. Elderfield of Columbia University produced it synthetically while working in co-operation with the U.S. Office of Scientific Research and Developmet.

Now it can be produced at cost of 12 cents for a full course of treatment—14 pills in 14 days—for each man returning from Korea. Before this it cost an average of $72 per patientt to hospitalize about 12,000 Korean veterans with Malaria.

The development work on primaquine cost about $10,000,000.

The type of malaria found in Korea is related to that which once prevailed widely in the United States. Quinine, atabrine and another new drug called chloroquine are helpful but not usually considered a cure.

Malaria organisms first live in the blood stream and then apparently hide out in such body organs as the liver. Quinine, atabrine, chloroquine and other substances will control the disease in its first stages. But when patients stop taking them, the organisms are out of reach of the drug and the disease may break out again.

Primaquine apparently penetrades to the hiding places of the parasites.

Present treatment is in two parts. Soldiers are given chloroquine to suppress malaria symptoms, like chills and fever, and prevent it from disabling them. The second part of the treatment consists in giving all men returning from Korea 14 pills of primaquine to wipe out hidden parasites.

FRAUD CHARGED, WRITER RELEASED ON $1,000 BAIL

Case Against Davies Enlarged Two Weeks

OTTAWA (CP)—Raymond Arthur Davies, former executive officer of the Communist party's political arm in Canada, today was remanded to July 22 on a charge of passport fraud.

The 44-year-old Montreal writer was released without plea on $1,000 cash bail.

Davies, born Rudolf Shohan of Polish parents, was arrested in Whitby last week and charged here before Magistrate Glenn Strike with making false or misleading statements when he applied for a passport in 1936.

Peter Newcombe, appearing for Davies' Montreal lawyers Walker, Martineau, Chauvin and Walker, asked that the $1,000 cash bail posted last week by Davies' wife be changed to property bail.

Opposes Application

Raoul Mercier, Crown attorney, opposed the application and Magistrate Strike said the matter could be settled when Davies appears again.

The charge said Davies stated in a passport application that he had no other name than Raymond Arthur Davies, that he was born in Montreal March 15, 1908, and that his nationality was British.

Maximum penalty on conviction is two years in penitentiary.

Davies, neatly dressed in a blue suit, leaned nonchalantly against the prisoners' box while the Crown and defence argued over changing his bail from cash to property.

He is a former leader of the Young Communist League, the Communist party's youth organization. Later he was an executive officer of the Labor-Progressive party, the Communist political group.

Super-Liner United States Sets Atlantic Speed Record Of 41 Mph. on Maiden Voyage

By WILL GRIMSLEY

ABOARD THE S.S. UNITED STATES AT SEA (AP)—The sleek new super-liner United States completed her maiden Atlantic crossing today in a record three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes, copping the transatlantic speed ribbon for the U.S. for the first time in 83 years.

The first run of the U.S. merchant fleet's pride was 10 hours and two minutes faster than the record set 14 years ago by the British Cunard liner Queen Mary.

The United States raced past the finish line—Bishop's Rock off the English coast—at 5:16 a.m. GMT (1:16 a.m.EDT) as a dawn gale of 60-knot winds whipped her. The ship's band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," and her 1,700 passengers capped their champagne celebration with a cheer. The wind and rain kept most of them off the open decks, however.

Averaged 35.59 Hours

The 53,000-ton United States averaged 35.59 knots—about 41 land miles an hour—on the 2,938-mile crossing from Ambrose Light outside New York. The Queen Mary had averaged 31.69 knots on her record trip.

Among the excited passengers this morning was Margaret Truman, who stood on the captain's bridge.

The passengers were to be at Le Havre, France, for lunch. The ship will call tomorrow at Southampton before the return trip to New York

"I feel like a pitcher who has pitched a no-hit game," the ship's jubilant captain, 55-year-old Commodore Harry Manning, told reporters.

Exceeded Expectations

Earlier he had said the liner's performance had exceeded even his own expectations. He added she would be doing her best again on her home voyage, but that adverse winds on the westward trip would tend to cut her speed.

The weather had been fine for most of the maiden voyage. Even dense banks of fog she hit off Newfoundland her second night out did not slow her down. She did better than 35 knots, guided by Radar.

The United States' 160,000-shaft horsepower motor had worked perfectly on the entire trip. So powerful it stirred a foamy wake a mile astern, the motor smoothly pushed the ship along and passengers felt hardly a tremble at the fast clip.

Met Queen Mary

Practically all the other ships in the Atlantic family radioed their greetings to the United States. Among those welcoming her was the Queen Mary, whose record was shattered. The two big ships—the Mary bound for New York—met dramatically Saturday in mid-ocean.

The last record-breaking run by a U.S. ship was in 1851, when the S.S. Pacific made the crossing in nine days, 19 hours and 25 minutes.

That record stood until 1869, when the British City of Brussels crossed from Ireland to New York in seven days, 22 hours and three minutes, an average speed of 14.65 knots, Since then the blue ribbon has been held by German, British, Italian and French ships, but no Americans.

Taft Confident, Ike Hopeful As GOP Convention Starts Nomination Meetings Today

By C.R. BLACKBURN

CHICAGO (CP)—Eisenhower forces faced today's Republican party convention with prayers for a dramatic shift in the political winds.

Nothing less than a sensational swing of pledged delegates could make Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower the Republican Presidential candidate.

A convention floor fight looking toward such a shift was in the making and was expected to break out soon after the convention got going at noon.

Taft Confident

Senator Robert Taft, cool, smiling and confident, yesterday told reporters that he has the necessary pledged delegates to win—and some to spare.

Gen. Eisenhower was on record as not knowing how many delegates were pledged to him, and apparently not caring. He seemed to be depending on a swing of sentiment created by resentment at what he describes as old Republican machine tactics to keep delegates supporting him out of the voting positions in the convention hall.

Eisenhower talked far into the night with his chief aides and those who have delegates they could swing to him—California, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and other state leaders.

But if Taft's claims are correct, Eisenhower will need a revulsion of feeling and squads of bolting delegates.

Weather Hot

Meanwhile Chicago was seeing perhaps the most tumultuous and noisy launching of any of the political conventions of recent years. And the temperature was hovering close to 100 with no relief promised until tomorrow.

The first issue to come before the convention is one involving delegates whose seats are in dispute.

There are double slates of delegates from a half-dozen states and each side will fight before the convention to have its slate seated.

However, Eisenhower forces and 23 Republican state governors want the disputed delegates prohibited from voting on delegate contests.

A compromise on this demand offered by Senator William Knowland of California would permit disputed delegates to vote if they had been seated with the support of 80 per cent or more of the Republican National Committee.

Canada Cited As Country In Good Shape

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Chamber of Commerce yesterday cited Canada as an example of how a country, without price control, can curb inflation, balance its budget and reduce its debt

The chamber issued a report which compared the economies of Canada and the United States.

It said Canada, between 1946 and 1952, cut its net national debt 17 per cent to $11,000,000,000. This compares with the United States debt of $260,000,000,000.

Higher sales and excise taxes, credit restrictions and increased interest rates were called the pay-as-you-go tools with which Canada curbed inflation "in spite of a 5-per-cent rise in government expenditures since Korea."

At the same time, the chamber contended, "the United States has been hampered with all the uncertainties, confusion, costly red-tape procedures, discriminations and labor strie generated by price and so-called wage controls."

Simmons, Raschi Starting Hurlers In All-Star Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Curt Simmons for the National League and Vic Raschi for the American League will be the opposing pitchers in the 19th annual All-Star baseball game at Shibe Park tomorrow.

Simmons, fireballing left-hander of Philadelphia Phillies who returned to major league baseball from the armed services at the start of the 1952 season, has a record of seven victories and two defeats. He has hurled four shutouts.

Raschi, bellwether of the world champion New York Yankees' pitching staff, has an eight-win and two-defeat record to carry into the dream game.

FORMER PREMIER TASCHEREAU DIES SUNDAY IN QUEBEC

Key Figure in Modern Political History

QUEBEC (CP)—Louis-Alexandre Taschereau, 85, Quebec premier between 1920 and 1936, died here yesterday.

A key figure in the province's modern political history, the former Liberal Premier was descendant of one of Canada's most distinguished families and held the premiership 16 years less a month, a record in Quebec.

His three sons, two dapghters and their families were at his bedside when death came. They had kept constant vigil since his health waned following the death of his 81-year-old wife Jan. 24.

Family At Bedside

At the bedside were Robert, justice of the Supreme Court of Canada; Paul, Quebec lawyer and Charles Montreal designer; and his daughters, Mrs. Cortland Fages and Mrs. Louis Gelinas of Montreal.

The funeral will be held here Wednesday.

During Mr. Taschereau's political career he sat 36 years in the provincial Legislature for Montmorency riding and held the portfolios of Public Works, Provincial Treasurer and Attorney General.

His administration—from the booming years after the First World War to the difficult depression period—sponsored the bulk of legislation which now stands in Quebec's statute books. Among his achievements were the province's basic farm, mining and liquor laws, the Press Act, organization of Quebec's coast road network, establishment of settlers and the opening of northwestern areas.

Retired In 1936

Although he retired from politics following defeat in 1936 at the hands of Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale party, Mr. Taschereau continued to keep an eye on what went on at the Legislature, near his home on tree-lined Grande Allee.

15 Prisoners Slept Through Riot on Lawns

GUELPH (CP)—Some 950 prisoners rioted at Guelph Reformatory Saturday night. But 15 slept through it.

A few prisoners were working in the fields when the outbreak started at about 8 p.m. A few others were brought from the hospital wing to tree-lined boulevards near the prison.

Two guards stood watch.

The prisoners were given blankets—and they curled up on the grass and went to sleep.

20-Year-Old on Mountain Top For 52 Hrs. Before Rescue by 'Copter

By PETER MURRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 20-year-old surveyor who lay injured on a mountain top for 52 hours in the wild Pitt Lake region 40 miles northeast of here was rescued by helicopter yesterday.

A nursing sister, one of three persons who parachuted to the scene Saturday night, was suspended 100 feet above the ground for three hours when her chute caught in a tree.

Ken Northcote ad Joe. Chamberlain were working on Mount Coquitlam for the British Columbia Geological Survey Friday when Northcote missed his footing and plunged down a cliff, suffering a possible fractured back.

He lay helpless at the 2,800-foot level of the mountain.

Chamberlain stayed with Northcote throughout Friday night. At dawn, he began to hike out.

Chamberlain walked from 4 a.m. until 1 p.m. when he reached civilization and notified the R.C.A.F.

The air force picked up Chamberlain and flew over the area, pinpointing the spot where Northcote lay. On his return, he collapsed from exhaustion.

Nursing Sister Grace Woodman hit the silk with Sqdn. Ldr. Dick Wynn, an R.C.A.F. doctor, and Sgt. Red Jamieson, a veteran of rescue jumps.

Wynn and Jamieson landed safely and scrambled through the bush and over rocks until they found Northcote an hour later.

But Miss Woodman landed in a tree and was suspended 100 feet above the ground. She worked frantically to free herself. After hanging for three hours, she made a rope from the shrouds of her chute and slid to the ground, suffering hand burns.

The R.C.A.F. called on the United States Coast Guard for help and they sent a helicopter to Vancouver.

The helicopter landed half a mile from the camp. It took four hours for Wynn and Jamieson to carry Northcote on a stretcher from the camp to the helicopter.

$200,000 Damage To Dormitories, Blocks, Kitchens

Men Wielded Knives, Wrenches, Meat Cleavers

GUELPH (CP) — Police armed with truncheons and ax handles today cleared a compound occupied by a hold-out group of the 1,000 prisoners who during the week-end staged a 12-hour riot at the Ontario reformatory.

Fifty Provincial Police officers herded the men from "C" yard after Superintendent Gerald Wright ordered the unruly group to line up. The prisoners formed four ranks and placed their hands behind their necks in the fashion of prisoners-of-war.

The superintendent warned that any man who moved toward the centre of the yard would be fired on from the rooftops by guards with riot guns.

Prisoners Quiet

A group of sullen, weary prisoners remained in the "B" yard but they were quiet

As police and guards regained control in "C" yard, they moved out anything that could be used as a weapon.

Down came the makeshift tents, fashioned from timbers and blankets, which the rebellious prisoners had erected. Cans and jars of jam and fruit were carried away.

About the same time, a start was made on cleaning up the prison and repairing riot damage, estimated by officials at upwards of $200,000.

The violence started about 8 p.m. Saturday.

The snarling xx para 2 dl ....

The snarling, cursing prisoners wielded knives, wrenches and meat cleavers, surging through dormitories, kitchens and cell blocks to smash furniture and windows, wreck plumbing and set fire to stores of food and clothing.

Last night armed guards watched from the tops of walls and through some of the thousands of broken windows while several hundred prisoners slept in the open. They were herded in the two compounds of the prison.

Riot Quelled Sunday

Peace was restored early Sunday after a hastily-mobilized force of guards and police charged into the convict ranks with tear-gas guns, fire hoses, clubs and fists. One guard and one prisoner were reported seriously injured while scores on both sides were cut and bruised.

Apparently no prisoners escaped. The prisoners couldn't get any of the outside doors open.

There was no immediate explanation for the outbreak. Officials said the food was good and the men had no known complaints.

Water was doled out to the prisoners late Sunday but there was no ration of food. The situation lent ironic emphasis to comment of Superintendent Gerald Wright that the prisoners were hurting no one but themselves. They had destroyed their bedding and enough food for 3500 meals, the institution's daily average.

At one stage of the battle the convicts gained complete control of the building. They armed themselves with knives and cleavers seized from the kitchen, pipes from demolished plumbing fixtures, scissors, lengths of wood and bricks.

In Sunday's early dawn, with streams of water from fire hoses playing on the milling rioters in the central courtyard, one prisoner yelled: "We're packing it up. Turn off the water."

Superintendent Wright shouted back: "All right. Put your hands behind your heads and line up."

That signalled the end of the riot.

Started Saturday Night

It began about 8 p.m. Saturday, as the prisoners were returning from evening exercises.

Investigation To Determine Cause Will be Opened

GUELPH (CP)—An investigation will be started immediately to determine the causes and ringleaders of the 12-hour riot which rocked the Ontario Reformatory here this week-end, Reforms Minister Foote said yesterday.

At a press conference Mr. Foote said: "This reformatory is one of the finest in the country. I don't see any reason for the rioting."

A prison chaplain and other officials agreed with the Minister when he added that the province was forced to place too many men at Guelph who were too tough for a rehabilitation school of this nature.

"This is the best living some of these men have ever had," Mr. Foote said, showing reporters menus providing macaroni, soup, beefsteak pie, mashed potatoes, gravy, rice pudding, tea and bread for dinner.

Murray Gaw, a social worker-student from Toronto, was just finishing up six weeks study at Guelph when the riot started.

"My general impression," he said, "is that discipline has been very low. I have had the feeling something was going to happen ever since I arrived, Other members of the staff have felt it too. We just didn't know when it would be.

"The inmates have been making a farce of the rules and staff. The men have no fear of being put on charge."

BANDITS GET $10,000

WINDSOR (CP)—Three armed men walked into the Borden Dairy's main Walkerville office Saturday night and held up employees counting the day's receipts. The bandits escaped with more than $10,000.

BOY'S FOOT SEVERED

STRATFORD (CP)—Three-year-old Stewart Dow had his left foot severed just above the ankle Saturday when he became entangled in a hay mower on the farm of his father, Elmer Dow, of nearby Cromart. The boy was watching his father clear the mower of an obstruction. Unknown to Mr. Dow, his son ran into the machine as he was starting it in operation again.

Motorists Advised No Left Turns At Intersection

No left turns at the main intersection of Front and Bridge streets went into effect today following the placing of signs on the four corners.

Approval of the no left turns at the main downtown intersection was given by city council some weeks ago on the recommendation of the city traffic committee who felt this will serve to speed up traffic at the four corners. Left turns will be barred from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily except Sundays.

As the no left turn regulation went into effect, Inspector J. C. Hayes of the local police department asked the co-operation of motorists in making the new scheme effective. "Only through full co-operation on the part of all motorists can the no left turn regulation be effective," he pointed out.

All the participants thoroughly enjoyed the keen competition and fine hospitality of the Cobourg Club.

9th Anti Tank Regiment Takes High Honors at Petawawa; Wins East Canada Shoot Title

Officers and other ranks of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment, (SP) RCA, (ALI) arrived home from summer camp on Saturday, their heads held high in justifiable pride.

For they demonstrated in no uncertain measure, through the high efficiency of the regiment's "shooting eyes" that they were the best in Eastern Canada during their week's tenure of summer training at Petawawa Military Camp.

They came home proudly bearing the victor's laurel wreath won in a battery shooting competition over five other crack anti - tank regiment's batteries from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

The regimental battery under the command of Lieut. R. D Burns demonstrated unerring accuracy with its seventeen-pounders blasting the target for eight direct hits in ten competitive rounds.

Other units taking part were the 21st, 45th, 46th, 47th, and 35th anti tank regiments.

Personnel of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment's battery were, besides Lieut. Burns, Sergeant W. H Bennett, Bombardier, D. G. Seames, and Gunners, F. H. Clarke, K. R. Lewis, D. H. Wood and F. G. Heaslip.

The battery won the Artillery Association of Canada Trophy which will be presented later. Battery personnel will be presented with replicas.

Under Keen Scrutiny

The competition was "shot off" under the discerning eyes of a panel of seven neutral judges headed by Colonel Lane, Shiloh Camp commandant.

High ranking officers watched the competition. Included were Major General Howard Graham, DSO, GOC Central Command Oakville; Major General H. Vernache, GOC Quebec Command, Brigadier J. Bibeau, commandant No. 2 AGRA and Col. Douglas commandant, Petawawa Military Camp.

At the conclusion of the competition, the winning battery was paraded before the remaining competing units drawn up in a hollow square. Lieut. Burns was presented with the honors won with Major Generals Graham, Vernache and Brigadier Bibeau in attendance. Following the presentation the battery was piped off the square by the regimental band with other units standing stiffly at attention.

The battery scored a high rating capturing 100 points out of a possible 120. The 47th Anti Tank Regiment, however, gave the Belleville district unit a close run, scoring 99 points. Third was the 45th Regiment with 95½.

Scoring points won by the battery included, deportment 3 of 5; speed, 9 of 10; accuracy, 40 of 50; fire discipline, 18 of 20; correct sequence of orders, 9 of 10; correct reports, 4½ of 5; correct drills, 3 of 5; correct loading, 4 of 5; talking around gun, 5 of 5; voice and control 4½ of 5.

Tributes Paid

Tributes to the winning battery were paid by Brigadier J. Bibeau, commandant No. 2 AGRA, Major A. Archambault, BMRA and proudest of all, Lieut. Col. G. W. MacGregor, commanding officer of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment.

In written tribute Brigadier Bibeau said: "It has been a distinct pleasure to have your unit associated with my formation in summer camp this year. The efficiency of your training has been extremely satisfactory. May I offer my congratulations, also to your gun detachment whose efforts resulted in wintning r HR forts resulted in winning the No. 2 AGRA shoot in competition with units from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes."

The regiment devoted its training periods to various phases under a wing system in charge of Major Everett S. Fairman, regimental second-in-command, Major E. H. Warwick was in charge of the anti-tank wing; Major Joe B. Black, mechanical transport; general training, Major L. V. Earle, with a special wireless signals wing supervised by Major R. W. MacPherson.

Other Training

Another special feature, one that climaxed a week of intensive training was the placing of a battery in action fully equipped with vehicles and personnel.

Other training consisted of rifle, grenade, pistol and light machine-guns.

The regimental pipe band under the direction of Pipe Major Douglas Burns, came in for its ow nshare of tributes. The band, the only one in camp played for "reveille," flag ceremonies, and at the presentation ceremonies to the prize-winning battery.

Commanding officers of the regiments in camp were loud in their praise of the camp operation, at a conference held prior to leaving Petawawa. An extremely high state of efficiency had been attained during the camp, it was stated, due in the main part to the capable direction and co-operation of Brigadier Bibeau and his staff.

Upwards of 115 all ranks of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment attended the camp. Besides Col. MacGregor and Major Fairman, other officers included the battery commanders Majors J. B. Black, 34th; Major R. W. McPherson, 47th, Napanee; Major Earle, 3rd Gananoque and Captain Harold Vaughan, who represented Major W. H. Burgoyne, unable to attend.

Belleville officers included Major W. E. Wylie, Captain A. Stratton, Capt. Alex Cunningham, Capt. Fred Symons, Captain A. M. Breuls, and Lieuts. R. C. Jago, H. J. Andrews, Mac Smith, W. G. Vase and Harold Kellar.

The unit travelled to Petawawa by military vehicles undergoing convoy training en route and on return. A compliment was paid to Major Joe Black, in charge of mechanical transport, by Brigadier Bibeau during the training period. Major Black was in charge of a large convoy on a training jaunt and had occasion to go through Petawawa village. During the training the brigadier and other officers travelling by jeep halted to let the convoy proceed.

"It was one of the best convoy demonstrations ever seen in the Petawawa district," was his tribute.

Sticky Weather Drives People To The Beaches

TORONTO (CP)—Sticky weather, which the weather man says is "about normal" for July, sent residents of southwestern Ontario to the beaches in droves during the week-end. It is scheduled to continue at least throughout tomorrow.

The weatherman said Toronto's average temperature at this time of year is 77 or 78 degrees. A high of 90 was forecast for today.

"That's quite a bit above the average but that average is over a 100-year period," the forecaster said.

Not even thunderstorms are in sight to cool off in the southwestern section, where a long dry spell is hampering development of crops.

A 90-degree high lies in store for St. Thomas, Trenton, Hamilton and St. Catharines. Windsor and London will fare worse. Their high: a sweltering 95.

Canadian Dollar Moves Closer To All-Time High

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar, moving closer to its all-time high, today was quoted at $1.04⅛ in terms of U.S. currency.

The dollar, which has been rising steadily since last year, was quoted by foreign-exchange dealers as 9-16 cents higher than its close in New York last Thursday. The market was closed Friday and Saturday. The all-time high of the Canadian dollar is $1.05 which it held briefly during a period of fluctuation in 1933.

Bankers generally agree that the climb of the Canadian dollar is the result of heavy movement of capital from the United States into Canada.

CRAWFORD. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Mary Crawford, who passed away July 7th, 1949.

Oft we think of you, dear mother,
And our hearts are filled with pain.
Oh this earth would be a heaven
Could we hear your voice again.
Three years have swiftly passed away
But still we don't forget,
For in the hearts that loved you best
Your memory lingers yet.

—Sadly missed by daughter Helen and family. J7

CRAWFORD. — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mary Ann Crawford, who passed away July 7th, 1949.

We who loved you sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year.
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of you are ever near.

—Ever remembered by husband and family. J7

PRESTON. — In loving memory of a dear husband, William C. Preston, who passed away July 5th, 1950.

Oft and oft my thoughts do wander
To the grave not far away;
Where we laid our dear William

but what I think of him.

—Ever remembered by his wife Elizabeth. J7

DOWNEY. — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, John Downey, who passed away eleven years ago, July 6, 1941.

It is not at the time the tears we shed
That tell of a heart that is torn.
But the lonely tears, of after years,
And remembrance silently borne.
Oh happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.

12-Pound Pickerel Taken from Trent By Ardent Angler

TRENTON (Special) — Noted guide and ardent fisherman John "Sunfish" Anderson lays claim to catching the largest pickerel ever pulled out of the Trent River below No. 1 dam. The other day while John was making his daily spin around the fishing spots in the waters below the dam he hooked a heavyweight that gave him the stoutest battle he has yet experienced. When John placed his prize on the scales it weighed 12 pounds. "This is a record" John proudly declared displaying the monster to one of his friends.

John Anderson was born on the river and since he was a child big enough to hold a fish pole he has pulled "big ones" from this favorite fishing place. And the other fishermen have a slogan which goes: "When John doesn't catch them nobody does."

When the American sportsmen came to these parts seeking game fish they soon heard about John's prowess and many of them hired him thinking they could learn his knack. But strangely enough finding the Anderson twist wasn't that easy and John has his original customers returning year after year for another lesson.

Garnet Wickens' 32 foot Gar Wood launch the Bonna Meda sprang a leak and went to the bottom of the bay a few hours after launching at the Air Station last week. The owner anticipates hiring a diver to inspect the hull underwater before salvage operations begin. The Bonna Meda has been used a number of years in these waters as a pleasure boat.

One Hundred and Eight Boys At Leaders Camp at Quin-Mo-Lac

One hundred and eight boys and their leaders began their migration from the city and Peterborough and surrounding districts to Quin-Mo-Lac camp at Moira Lake on June 28th, for a ten-day camping experience under the directorship of the Rev. A. Lloyd Shorten, assistant secretary of Christian Education of the United Church of Canada.

Camping at Quin-Mo-Lac means fun and fellowship, new friends, new achievements in swimming and sports, hikes, campfire programs and worship. Each day the boys rise at 7:00 a.m., to begin the day's activities with a morning dip in the lake. Then follows breakfast, a Bible Study period, interest groups and crafts and a swim period.

After dinner, the boys have a rest period and a varied afternoon feature with swimming. In the evening, ball games, outdoor campfires and vesper services are enjoyed.

Camping Highlights

Some of the highlights of camping are the afternoon features and the campfire programs. Afternoon features included an over supper paper chase with the boys exploring camp property. An outdoor supper of wieners and buns as well as other good things to eat is provided.

One afternoon, a field day was spent with the man from the Dominion Parasite Laboratory, learning about insect life. Another afternoon, Mr. Joe Shortt, from Belleville, visited the camp and gave instruction on camping and the handling of boats and canoes. An afternoon was also spent with the representatives of the Department of Lands and Forests, from Napanee.

An interesting feature was the discussion on the safe handling of firearms and a demonstrating shooting which proved to be most helpful. The emphasis in this feature was on 'safety', and the avoidance of shooting accidents.

In the evening programs, one evening was spent with Mr. Jack Martin, of the Dominion Parasite Laboratory, Belleville, who gave an illustrated lecture on "Travels and Studies in the Arctic and Alaska."

Mr. Alec Gordon also entertained the camp with music, camp songs and films of former camps. One evening was spent at the fireside listening to a travelogue by the Rev. Malton Tonge, former missionary to China, who gave an account of his experiences there.

On Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Moody, of Oshawa, visited the camp, as a representative of the Canadian Red Cross Society. Under her direction 20 campers qualified for junior swimming awards; 15 campers for intermediate swimming awards and 16 campers and leaders for senior swimming awards.

Camp closes on July 8th with many fond memories and new friendships both among the boys and also among their leaders.

Nineteen Drown In 33 Fatalities During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Week-end accidents claimed 33 lives in Eastern Canada. Nineteen persons were drowned as citizens sought relief from the heat in rivers and lakes.

A Canadian Press survey today showed that Ontario had 13 deaths, Quebec 9, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia each 5, and Prince Edward Island 1.

It was the blackest non-holiday week-end this summer, overshadowed only by the 100 deaths recorded during the four-day Dominion Day week-end.

Traffic accidents took 10 lives. This was one of the first week-ends when drownings outnumbered traffic fatalities.

Seven Ontarians Drowned

Seven persons were drowned in Ontario. They were: Alexander Keeper, 19, of Roblin, Man., in Boulevard Lake at Port Arthur; Dianne Miller, 10, and Basil E. TAFT CONFIDENT

This would let delegates from Florida, Mississippi, Kansas and Missouri vote on the permanent seating of delegations from Texas, Louisiana and Georgia. The groups from the latter three states, all heavily favoring Taft, could not vote on any of the contests, under the Knowland proposal.

Charges Votes 'Stolen'

Taft's backers seemed unlikely to accept this proposal.

Wrapped up in this is one of Eisenhower's strongest talking points in his bid for the nomination —the charge that if Taft is chosen it would be with the help of "stolen" votes from such states as Texas, Louisiana and Georgia.

Against this, Taft contended he had the backing of 537 pledged delegates. He said about 100 more are leaning his way. He said all were legally elected.

Nevertheless, many delegates felt that Eisenhower's backers would be able to put over in a test vote a change in the rules to bar disputed delegates from voting on seating contests.

If this happened, it could be regarded as a psychological setback for Taft on a side issue. It might have a telling effect on his chances when the convention gets down to voting on the nomination later in the week.

Minor delegate shifts gave Taft three more probably first ballot votes, switched two from Eisenhower to the uncommitted column. The Associated Press tabulation gave Taft a probably first ballot total of 534 votes compared wih 425 for Eisenhower. Other candidates have 131 and 116 are uncommitted.

Another pre-convention development was agreement by Taft and Eisenhower on one plank of the party's platform. The two leading contenders for the nomination were in accord in accusing the Truman administration of "tragic mistakes" in dealing with world communism.

UNDER CONTROL

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (Reuters) — The state veterinary service announced today that it has virtually brought under control livestock foot and mouth disease, which broke out for the first time in Holland last year. A new vaccine was used to increase the immunity of Dutch cattle, the announcement said.

PRESENTS ON WAY

LONDON (Reuters) — Christmas presents are already on their way from Britain to children living in isolated parts of Labrador and Newfoundland. They include crates of toys and games and gifts of warm clothing. The gifts have been sent early for distribution to villages and hamlets hundreds of miles apart before ice closes in in the autumn. Many of the presents are from children in Britain.

BIRD BLAMED FOR FIRE

CALEDON (CP)—A bird flying with a lighted cigaret butt in its beak is blamed for a fire that caused $1,500 damage to Knox United Church here Saturday. George Emack, one of four persons credited with saving the church from destruction, said he believes the bird picked up the butt from the sidewalk and dropped it on the tinder-dry roof.

REAL COMMUNITY SERVICE

As an example of unselfish community service, the Belleville branch of the Canadian Legion would be difficult to beat. Their latest venture into the realm of public service, when they staged a band concert and fireworks display and shared the profit with the Belleville Recreation Commission, is deserving of the highest commendation.

The welfare work conducted by the Canadian Legion here seldom, if ever, comes to public notice. They work behind the scenes, assisting the families of veterans and sometimes the veterans themselves. The Last Post Fund of the Legion has made it possible for many destitute veterans to be buried with respect and dignity, not in a pauper's plot which would be their lot if the Legion did not assist.

Thanks should be extended to Les Digby and Stan Goodwin and many others for their recent effort which provided more than five hundred dollars to build and maintain additional playground facilities for Belleville children. Children need play for health and no better place could be found for that play than a properly equipped and supervised playground. The Legion helps make these playgrounds possible.

COST-OF-LIVING UP, IT SAYS

Beyond voicing a fact that every Belleville housewife knows to be so, the Ottawa statistical experts who dutifully compute the cost-of-living each month, have just about proved that not even the Bureau of Statistics can push the clock back. On Saturday it was announced that the cost-of-living index had jumped three-fifths of a point for the month of May and most of the jump was blamed on rising rents and food costs.

That the cost-of-living will eventually settle back to the living costs of 1935-39, the years termed as "normal" in determining the cost-of-living index, is about as likely as the return of the horse and buggy. Gone are the "good old days" and as it was suggested in this column a few weeks ago, "normal" living costs will be reached when normal income meets normal expenses. Any attempt to turn back the clock fifteen years to take a fix on normalcy is impossible and ridiculous because it is a goal which will never be attained. We just don't turn back.

BRITONS GUARD PARLIAMENT'S RIGHTS

One point in the British Labor party's attack upon Lord Alexander for what he said to the Canada Club in London on Dominion Day should be noted by Canadians, and specifically by Canadian cabinet ministers. This:

> "It was disrespectful of the House, former Prime Minister Attlee said, for the Defence Minister to tell outsiders something that he did not feel free to tell Parliament."

Britons are touchy on this point; touchy on the point that cabinet ministers must make statements of policy or of government information to Parliament — make their statements as responsible ministers in a place where the statements may be checked, properly assessed.

In Canada, unfortunately, we are not so concerned with this obligation of ministers, or are becoming less concerned with it. Thus in recent months we have had the spectacle of one of our cabinet ministers not merely going outside of Parliament to make an important statement of Government policy but actually going to another country to make it, plus the further and more deplorable spectacle of the press permitting such a misdemeanor against Parliament to go practically by default.

A good thing it would be for this country if it could come more to the British way — match its talk about loyalty to a parliamentary system with a more vigorous concern for Parliament's rights and authority. — (Ottawa Journal.)

SO ARE PEOPLE

The little girl who said "lions are mean" had every reason to say so, because she was the one who was mauled by a lioness at the Lethbridge exhibition. Lions certainly are mean, little girl, and we don't blame you a bit for saying so. However, we don't blame the lions, either, if you understand what we mean.

No wonder lions are mean! Who wouldn't feel the same way they do if they were taken from their natural habitat and cooped up in a cage for the rest of their lives? Humans wouldn't like it, so why should animals who are used to roaming the fields and the mountains of their homeland without a care in the world.

We feel sorry for the little girl who was mauled, but we also feel sorry for the lioness. — (Lethbridge Herald.)

JUST FOLKS

THE OLD CAMPAIGNS

In the old days our grandfathers used to parade
And carry the banners with slogans they'd made.
No matter the distance to meetings, they walked
To hear and to cheer when their candidates talked.
The cause was important to both parties' men,
But they'd no television or radio then.

They were eager to learn and to hear and to see.
No effort to serve then too great seemed to be.
But now, when the candidates take to the air,
Too many at ease settle down in a chair.
No more the parade to the old meeting hall.
The speeches now come from a studio small.

I wouldn't go back, but throughout the campaign
That old-fashioned spirit I'd like to regain;
That "get up and go" through fine weather or bad
To work for the cause which our grandfathers had;
That deep love of country which urged them to fight
And defend to the last what they thought to be right.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We were sitting in a friend's living room on a casual evening visit when the wife suddenly leaped to her feet, staring out the window, and cried:

"The rug! The rug!"

Her husband bounded to his feet, glanced out the window and immediately started to canter across the room towards the staircase.

"Where is it?" he hissed.

"Top shelf in the linen closet," cried his wife. "Quick!"

The husband accelerated his steps up the stairs.

My wife and I got up too and looked out the window. A lady and gentleman were just getting out of a car in front.

"They gave us a rug—" explained the wife, agitatedly, as she went to the door to meet the new arrivals. She was able to delay them a minute or so with greetings until her husband came back down stairs and went to the door with hearty cries.

The newcomers were well-to-do friends of theirs who, a year or two ago, had brought them one of those handicraft hooked rugs on one of their trips down into the quainter regions of the dominion. Every time they call, our friends have to rush and get the rug from where it is kept, and spread it in the upstairs master bedroom.

They proved to be very interesting and entertaining people. But the woman did manage to get upstairs, and I could hear her exclaiming about how good the rug looked. When they had gone, I went up and looked at the objet d'art. I wouldn't want it either.

In our family's case, it isn't a rug; it is a framed photograph. We keep it in the cupboard of the china cabinet. Whenever the subject of the photograph visits us, we have to make a wild dash and exchange it for a nice little watercolor that properly adorns the living room.

Let us all agree to give one another handy things, like framed photos, antique platters to hang on walls, jugs, dinner gongs, small, manageable articles that can be quickly switched when we see one another arriving. Rugs are too clumsy.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE WORRIERS

Today is our day to cheer up tired businessmen and so let's study the findings of the Benjamin Franklin Clinic of the Pennsylvania Hospital which recently examined 2000 businessmen and found them in pretty awful shape.

One Philadelphia industrialist sent all 63 of his executives for the check-up. The clinic reported that 80 per cent of them were in desperate need of a doctor or a psychiatrist, or both.

The most common ailments were found to be coronary artery disease, hypertension (high blood pressure) and those old familiar ulcers of the stomach.

The pyschiatrist was needed, in most cases, to convince the executives that they should slow down and stop worrying which their wives could have told them in the first place.

On completing its study the clinic gave up with a five-point diagnosis of what makes tired businessmen tired.

They found that the average executive stuffs his business problems in his briefcase and carries them home at night; he lunches with other executives and does more talking than eating; he can't enjoy his annual vacation because he feels he's indispensable; has no hobby, but goes out once a week for a strenuous physical workout to cure all his ills; doesn't know—or practise — moderation in either work or play.

In summary, said the clinic, a businessman must be the boss of his job, not the slave. On this simple axiom hangs the difference between a healthy man and one on the edge of an emotional or physical breakdown.

Gosh!

Of course, these findings will surprise neither businessmen nor those who brush up against them. The only surprising thing is that businessmen continue to do nothing about it.

I'm acquainted myself with executives who spend most of their waking hours shrewdly computing risks of capital, machinery and manpower while their biggest investment — their own mind and body — depreciates at an alarming rate.

The more important the executive, it seems, the less importance he attaches to his own natural assets.

He'd never dream of overloading a machine with the kind of tension he accepts himself. It would be uneconomical. His trucks or typewriters receive a regular maintenance program designed to extend their lives. His frame and brain disintegrate at will.

You see them in their clubs at lunch, hunched in urgent conference, relaxed only by Scotch and soda. You see them sweating in the steam rooms, trying to boil their worries away. You see them at full gallop on the golf links.

It's a kind of disease in itself. Businessmanitis, if you like. The causes are ambition and responsibility. The outward symptoms are the furrowed brow, the chain-smoked cigarettes, the darting eye. The inward symptoms are those more serious ailments noted in the Philadelphia survey.

Very few businessmen escape it. When business is poor the businessman worries about improving it. When business is good he worries about keeping it that way or making it better. The hot breath of competition is on his neck at all times.

And who can blame the executive in the pressure cooker business if he feels indispensable? If he gets to feeling any other way then he's really got a problem.

What I can't understand is why these poor, pooped-out businessmen don't get together to save themselves from what appears to be their certain fate.

The astute businessman relies heavily on experts or "consultants". Faced with a specific problem in, say, merchandising, engineering or public relations, he consults the specialist. More than that, he and his fellows pool information through boards of trade.

Now then. Why not a sort of clinic board of trade? Here a permanent staff of medical men and psychiatrists would be on hand to service the businessman on a basis as regular and thorough as that given his office equipment.

Doctors would stand guard over the approaching ulcer. Psychiatrists would advise their clients when the time had come to get away to the sanatorium. Skilled, tactful experts would move in to replace the temporarily broken businessman.

No two businessmen would be allowed to spend their "repair period" together for this would defeat the purpose. Neither would they have radio, newspapers, telephone, stock exchange tickers, racing forms, Dow Jones averages or any communication with the outside world.

A month or so of such isolation and the businessman would return relaxed and full of vigor. Either that or stark raving mad.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

RESPONSIBILITY OF PARENTHOOD

Robert E. Lee, so highly admired, and rightly so, by all who have read American history, told the story many years ago of how his little son had unwittingly challenged his father to live life at its best.

It seems that General Lee was walking with his son one day when he became aware that the boy had dropped behind. Glancing quickly over his shoulder, General Lee observed that the boy was imitating his father in every particular. He was putting his feet in the exact spot his father had trod. He was carrying himself with the same military erectness, his head held in that position which later became so familiar to the multitude of Lee admirers.

"At that moment," said Lee, "I awoke to the realization that if my boy aspired to follow me to the extent he did, it was up to me to be the best man I knew how to be."

The responsibility of parenthood is appalling. Parents need above everything else to be fully matured adults to whom the children can look for guidance. Fathers and mothers had better be careful how they conduct themselves — and careful of the ideals they establish in their homes — if their children are to come to the end of their lives in satisfaction and triumph. It costs to be a good parents, and the cost is high.

Letter to the Editor

EDITORIAL WINS ADMIRATION

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Dear Sir:

Apart entirely from the dynamic content in that editorial "The Next Century Is Ours" and which, while somewhat acquisitive, won my admiration, I was interested especially in the following picture of possibilities along the road ahead: "With a seaway which will accommodate ocean-going ships, permitting deep sea grain carriers to nudge close to Canada's western wheat lands, Canada's economic position will be without limit. Who knows if science maintains its present pace ways may be found to keep the seaway open during the winter months. Such a move would almost double the seaway's use".

This latter is certainly an ambitious challenge, not only to the weatherman but, also, to the patient workers in the research laboratories. At the moment, I am not able to recall having seen this massive idea raised in connection with the well-documented story of the St. Lawrence seaway; but it is something for Canadians to ponder and — as one of the sages puts it: "Men love to wonder, and that is the seed of our science; and such is the mechanical determination of our age, and so recent are our best contrivances that use has not dulled our joy and pride in them; and we pity our fathers for dying before steam and galvanism, sulphuric ether and ocean telegraphs, photograph and spectroscope arrived, as cheated out of half their human estate" (Emerson in 1848). And, again, we look back to 1893 if not to 1848?

My own view is that Canada's decision, as referred to in the above editorial "to embark alone on a $818,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway and power project" will draw the eyes of the nations to this favored land, and inevitably brings the hungry human family closer to the great fields to which your editorial points, on the Canadian Prairies,

Western Reader.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

RICKETS OFTEN UNRECOGNIZED

From the age of three or four weeks every baby should receive every day not less than 300 or 400 units of vitamin D to prevent rickets. A scant teaspoonful of cod liver or other fish liver oil contains 300 or 400 units of vitamin D. A single drop of one or another concentrate of fish liver oil, such as conDol, viosterol, contains 300 units of vitamin D.

Some babies get such a daily ration of vitamin D for several months or for the entire year. But too often doctors and parents forget about it before the baby has outgrown the need for it. Not until about the eighteenth month, when some babies begin to get sufficient vitamin D from egg yolk and butter (the only foods that can supply enough for a growing child), may the fish liver oil, conDol or viosterol be discontinued—that is, if you to give the baby a fair break.

Some good doctors advise not one teaspoonful of fish liver oil but three daily; not a single drop of fish liver oil concentrate, conDol or viosterol but three drops daily — that is, 900 or 1000 units of vitamin D daily.

It is hardly possible to learn in one easy lesson how to diagnose rickets, but the mention of some common manifestations of this calcium deficiency disease (vitamin D merely promotes assimilation and utilization of calcium — will give a fair idea of the disease. Incidentally, milk and egg yolk are the best food sources of calcium for infant or growing child.

Familiary symptoms or signs of rickets escape recognition in many instances because parents and sometimes doctor are prone to dismiss them as "teething", "indigestion" or "nervousness."

Rickets is not just a bone disease. The bone changes are secondary. It is a nutritional deficiency disease and affects the whole body. The baby with rickets is tired, restless, unhappy, fretful by day, by night sleeping badly, turning, twisting, throwing off bed clothes. He impatiently rolls his sweating head on his pillow, perhaps wearing away his hair. His bowels are constipated except for sudden attacks of diarrhea. His abdomen is distended because muscle coat of alimentary tract is flabby, lacks tone, as are the muscles and ligaments of the whole body, so that the limbs may be twisted into bizarre positions.

It is especially unfortunate for the baby with early rickets that susceptibility to the cri (common respiratory infections)is characteristic of the disease. This encourages (blankety) parents and (blank) doctors and (censored) saireygamps and (shall we say just) quaint people to deny the baby his place in the sun or the chance to play most of the time dressed only in didies. Sunlight or just diffuse daylight (in the shade), if permitted to reach the skin, manufactures the vitamin D the baby needs.

Suffice merely to mention her the more frequent bone changes of rickets: Late closure of fontanelle (soft spot on top of head remains soft—it should feel as hard as the rest of the skull by the 18th. month). Beading of the ribs. Large square-shaped head, prominent forehead. Pigeon breast. Harrison's groove—constriction around upper chest at armpit level with outflaring ribs below to conform with the potbelly. Spinal curvature. Enlarged wrists. Knock-knees or bowlegs. Retarded growth of long bones. Flatfoot.

Although the daily vitamin D supplement may be discontinued in some instances when the baby is eighteen months old, especially if the baby has the boon of sufficient everyday exposure to ultraviolet in sunshine and shade, I am sure an extra ration of vitamin D can do no harm and I recommend as a kind of health insurance along with calcium, phosphorus, iodin, thiamine and riboflavin, right on through childhood, youth and maturity, as described in the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks, available on written request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOMETHING LEFT OVER

There is no feeling quite so comfortable as the one you experience when you are just a little ahead! In other words, with something left over. It was Stevenson who said: "Earn a little, and spend a little — less."

By taking time to do an important thing you do it well ,and have ambition and energy to start something new. It is so wise to keep something in reserve. Too many people use up all their strength each day, so that they start each new day with nothing left over. We feel better with a good balance in the bank.

It's that something left over that wins about everything in life. Even the race horse wins with what he had left over, after the total distance of near top exertion. Too many people have nothing left over at the end of day, or upon the completion of a job, simply because they burn it all up in worry, anxiety or fear.

Burdens are for the day in which they are taken on. Not for the day after. We need the strength that we have left over each day to face new duties and enterprises of the tomorrow. With something saved and left over we gain in faith and confidence. We have more initiative. We are least discouraged.

People who treat their bodies kindly, take periods of relaxation, and think themselves out of difficult situations, have a world of strength left with which to face all emergencies. It's that something left over, and to spare, that enables so many to share with others, and so to become a continual inspiration to others.

In a commercial way men have made fortunes out of the "left-overs". By-products they call them. None of us should ever get used up—totally. We are enabled to face each new day with greater courage and confidence because we have something left over — something with which to begin new adventures!

Jewel Dealer Tells How Trade Is Operated in Kuwait, Iran

By I.S. CHAKALES

KUWAIT (AP)—A man walked into the dusty little office of the Middle East Diamond Company the other day, laid a bundle of rupees worth $40,000 on the desk and said he wanted that amount in small diamonds.

He left his name and address and walked out. He didn't ask for a receipt. None was offered. That's the way the diamond trade is conducted in this oil-rich desert town on the Iranian Gulf, where a lot of diamonds are bought and sold.

Kingpin of the precious stone business in Kuwait is William de Mouche, 38, "Bill" to his friends and customers. In fact, Bill de Mouche, of Portland, Tex., is the kingfish in the gem trade in the whole Iranian Gulf and one of the biggest operators in diamonds in the entire Middle East.

Trade On Reputation

"Very little of the gem trade in the Middle East is recorded and receipts are seldom given," said Bill explaining that $40,000 deal. "You trade on your reputation."

Bill's gem business is an outgrowth of a hobby he acquired just before the war.

"I've been interested in precious stones for years," Bill said. "But I really didn't concentrate on them as a business until 1948. I've been out here in the Middle East for more than 10 years with the army and the oil companies. I was a private contractor in oil when I decided to quit dabbling in stones and give them all my time. I've done pretty well."

He wouldn't say how well. In fact he's like diamond merchants the world over. He won't divulge the source of his diamonds, nor to whom the big sales have been made.

"That's one of the reasons a lot of people come all the way to Kuwait to buy from me," he explained.

The biggest deal he ever made was on an 82 carat silver Cape diamond (canary stone in the trade).

He admitted the transaction involved around $250,000 but identified the buyer only as an "eastern potentate" and wouldn't say where the giant sparkler came from.

The prettiest stone I ever handled was one of 12 carats. It was a deep blue, pure stone that just blazed with fire. I just couldn't afford to keep it. I really was sad when I let it go for $40,000.

Bill relaxed his secrecy to say that particular beauty came originally from the Russian Czar's crown jewels. "Until I got it," Bill said, "it had been in the hands of a dealer."

What Caused Riot?

GUELPH (CP)—What caused the Riot?

Why did the prisoners in a "model" reformatory, almost to a man, join in a 12-hour orgy of window-smashing, incendiarism and general mayhem that caused some $200,000 damage to the institution?

Penal officials, newspaper men and the general public were still in the dark today, 36 hours after the outbreak at the Ontario Reformatory, as to what brought it on.

They knew it was similar to other prison disorders in Canada and the United States. Newspaper clippings found in the possession of Guelph prisoners showed their interest in these disturbances.

But there appeared to be no parallel in the grievances that touched off the earlier riots, most of them brought on by prisoners' complaints about poor food or harsh treatment.

As yet, the Guelph prisoners' complaints were known only to prison officials. The prisoners had not been allowed to communicate with the outside world.

Food Good

But Reforms Minister Foote, police and the reformatory staff agreed that the prison fare and treatment of the prisoners left few grounds for discontent.

Keith Childerhouse, staff psychologist, echoed the feelings of his baffled colleagues when he told reporters:

"The men have everything they could expect and more."

Like everyone else in the reformatory, he had seen the trouble coming but had been at a loss to explain it.

The heat could have had something to do with it. The best of prison menus and prison amenities can pall in 90-degree temperatures.

One thing appeared to be clear. The prisoners were more interested in destruction of property than in violence against their captors. A few guards were injured by flying debris, but the one guard held was well treated throughout his confinement.

Quinn, of Deloro, and William Francis Nickle, only son of Mrs. James Nickle, of Malone, and the late James Nickle. Rev. George D. Young, B.A., B.D., officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing an original New York model gown of marquisette over taffeta. The headdress was a halo of lace trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Garrett Vincent was her sister's only attendant wearing a similar gown in periwinkle blue and carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white roses.

Presley Nickle, of Madoc, was groomsman.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother receiving in a gown of navy blue brocaded crepe and white accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a black gown with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Out-of-town guests were from New York, Kingston, Kitchener, St. Catharines, Port Arthur, Waterloo, Peterborough, Madoc and Bancroft.

PHILLIPS—MORRISON

St. John's Anglican Church, York Mills, Toronto, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Saturday, July 5th, at 2:00 p.m., when the Rev. Canon A. C. McCallum, before a background of blue and pink delphiniums and white Shasta daisies, united in marriage, Constance Jean Morrison, of Toronto, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Morrison, to Thomas Graydon Phillips, also of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Phillips.

Mr. Whitney D. Cameron, church organist, furnished the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. L. E. Morrison, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of summer-mist tissue cotton, fashioned with fitted bodice with short sleeves, small collar, and buttoned down the front with smoked-pearl buttons. The bouffant skirt was circularly banded with narrow ribbon rows of rose, yellow and blue. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink roses and blue dephiniums.

Miss Joyce Morrison, of Toronto, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in light-grey tie silk with small white flowers, featuring small short sleeves, and full skirt. She carried a nosegay of dephiniums and yellow roses.

Mr. Bert Phillips, of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Reg. Orgill and Mr. Walt Menzies.

The reception was held at the bridegroom's home in Willowdale, where his mother received the guests, attired in olive green tissue faille with corsage of Talisman roses.

For travelling to New York, and the southern New England States, the bride chose a beige silk shantung dress, with yellow accessories. They will reside in Toronto.

LAROCHE—COLE

Before an altar banked with mixed summer flowers, the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the setting of a pretty wedding on Saturday, June 14, at 10:00 a.m., when the Very Rev. Dean Garvin, assisted by the Rev. Guy Gartland, S.A. Franciscan Friar of the Atonement, Greymoor Garrison, New York, united in marriage Carmel Margaret Cole, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cole, to Reginald Vincent Laroche, of R.C.A.F., Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Laroche, of Corbeil, Ontario.

Sister Wilhelmina rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Carolyn Forhan, who sang "Ave Maria", "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "Bless This Day".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her full-length bridal gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with fitted bodice having a portrait neckline and long sheath-like sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt fell in graceful folds into a cathedral train, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses tied with satin bows. Her full length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet encrusted with seed pearls.

Mrs. Barbara McCurdie, of Belleville, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, attractively gowned in yellow nylon net over taffeta featuring a fitted, strapless bodice with cape, and full-length bouffant skirt. She wore a matching picture hat, and accessories, and carried a hand bouquet of rust colored roses.

Miss Barbara Joudwa, of Belleville, little cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl, dainty in her frock of salmon pink taffeta with tiny coronet of matching flowers. She carried a nosegay of summer flowers.

Mr. Ivan Laroche, of Corbeil, Ontario, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman; Mr. Harry Cole, of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ambrose Gilhooley, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

The wedding breakfast was held at the bride's home, which was beautifully adorned with summer flowers, pink and white ribbons and white wedding bells. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing black sheer with white accessories and corsage of white gardenias. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore mauve sheer with grey accessories and corsage of white gardenias.

For travelling to Chalk River, North Bay, and Espanola, the bride chose blue nylon sheer with white hat and accessories, and red rose corsage. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Laroche will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Deseronto, Toronto, North Bay, Tweed and Trenton.

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League of Marmora, was held on Wednesday afternoon, at the summer home of Mrs. B. W. Hughes, at Crowe Lake, with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. B. W. Hughes, occupied the chair, and the meeting opened in the usual manner.

Mrs. Hughes welcomed the members after which the treasurer, Mrs. J. O'Neill gave the financial report, showing a substantial balance on hand. Mrs. Rose Johnston reported that several boxes of used clothing and used stamps had been forwarded to the Western Missions, for which a grateful reply had been received.

Mrs. E. D. O'Connor and Mrs. Ford Woodhouse reported five visits made to the sick and shut-ins and Mrs. Joseph Doyle and Mrs. P. Brawley volunteered for this duty for the summer months.

A discussion was held regarding the holding of the Regional meeting in Sacred Heart Hall, Marmora, in September, also the League will cater to the Chamber of Commerce meeting in September at which Premier Frost will be the guest speaker, and 300 guests are expected.

Presentations Made

Mrs. Cook, the past president, was presented with a crystal table centre and matching vases. The presentation was made by the president, Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Cook graciously thanked the donors.

Mrs. Hughes was presented with a china cup and saucer in appreciation for her hospitality. The presentation was made by Mrs. J. J. Ethier and Mrs. Hughes expressed her thanks for same.

The president presented the Rev. J. A. O'Neill with a cheque for the second installment on the hall chairs and he was also presented with a personal cheque for which he expressed his appreciation and thanks.

Diocesan Convention

Mrs. Hughes then gave an interesting report of the Diocesan convention held in Kingston in June.

The Rev. J. A. O'Neill then addressed the meeting briefly, congratulating the members on the success of their undertakings and expressing his gratitude for their assistance and co-operation in parish activities.

Mrs. Donald Shannon, program convener, then presented the following program, a piano selection "The Petite Waltz", Mrs. E. Shannon; reading "To the Sacred Heart", Mrs. J. McCroden. A quiz contest was held in which the winner was Mrs. H. English.

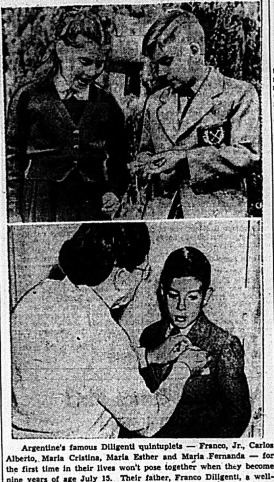
Several of the members spent the afternoon in quilting a quilt, after which a delicious pot-luck supper was enjoyed and a few games were played before the gathering dispersed.

Altar Society

Following the C.W.L. meeting at the home of Mrs. Hughes at Crowe Lake, the Altar Society of Sacred Heart Church held their annual meeting. Mrs. A. M. Jones, secretary-treasurer, gave a report of the year's activities and a substantial cheque was presented to the Rev. J. A. O'Neill. Father O'Neill expressed his thanks and thanked the ladies, who had looked after the altar linens and decorated the altar.

It was decided the present executive would carry on for another year with Mrs. C. Crawford, president, and Mrs. A. M. Jones, secretary-treasurer.

Argentine Quints



Argentine's famous Diligenti quintuplets — Franco, Jr., Carlos Alberto, Maria Cristina, Maria Esther and Maria Fernanda — for the first time in their lives won't pose together when they become nine years of age July 15. Their father, Franco Diligenti, a well-to-do Italian-born factory owner, has sent them to five different schools. Their Canadian counterparts the Dionne quintuplets, will start college together next fall. Their father, Oliva, would not divulge its location. Two of the Diligenti quintuplets, Maria Fernanda and Franco Jr., get together during a brief visit to the Diligenti home at Belgrano, a suburb of Buenos Aires. Bottom: Carlos Alberto gets a school insignia from a matron at the St. George school he attends in Quilmes, a Buenos Aires suburb. — (CP from AP)

Diligenti Quints Broken Up For Disciplinary Reasons Sent to 5 Different Schools

By ROMAN JIMENE

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's most famous team has been broken up for disciplinary reasons. The Diligenti quintuplets, now in their eighth year, have been sent to five different English boarding schools.

Father Franco Diligenti, the well-to-do, Italian-born factory owner who since the quints' birth has been sheltering them from the glare of publicity, quietly decided earlier this year that the children should be treated as single units.

"They were becoming an increasingly serious problem," he said in an interview. "Their team spirit, a wonderful thing in most cases, was just too much for their mother and myself and their teachers and servants."

Develop Individualities

Diligenti, a busy man who has little time to spare, and Mrs. Diligenti, whose restraining influence was strained no end, agreed that, harsh as it may seem, the best for the kids was to have them separated.

"Besides," Diligenti explained, "we wanted the children to be educated as any other boys and girls. We wanted their individualities developed. When they went to the same school, the teachers and the other pupils could not help treating them as the quints."

It's different now, said Diligenti, who has firmly requested headmasters and headmistresses to be more stern with his children than with other pupils.

The five now study, play, eat and sleep in schools miles apart. They get together only on rare occasions on week-ends—but never the five of them at the same time.

Their father takes them out for a couple of hours, singly or, at most, by twos, every Saturday.

Franco, junior, who has not yet decided what to be when he grows up, and Carlos Alberto, the prospective airmen, met only once in the last three months.

Changing Ideas

Their three sisters—Maria Cristina, Maria Fernanda and Maria Esther—have changing ideas about their wishes for later in life.

Diligenti said this is the beginning of proof that he was right in splitting the team apart. Before, he said, the five were apt to keep to a thought-pattern when one of them had any idea.

He plans to keep them segregated for years. By contrast the 18-year-old Dionne sisters of Callander, Ont., the world's only other quints, have always been together.

The plan to keep the five young members of the Diligenti family in their distant schools all year is so strict that even the traditional birthday party, a lavish affair every July 15, will be skipped this time.

The earliest date contemplated for a full family reunion is sometime in December when the quints will take their first communion.

Diligenti said he chose English schools for the quints because he thought they offered the best chances of a stern discipline and he wanted the children to learn English correctly.

Besides, he commented, their old team spirit should serve them well in sports such as practised in English schools.

Food for Thought

Eat Less-Live Longer

Overweight women between the ages of 20 and 64 have a death rate 47 per cent higher than their normal-weight contemporaries. (With overweight men the death rate is 50 per cent higher.)

So, my sweets, when you reduce to look beautiful and slim and young you are increasing your chances of living to a ripe old age and dandling your great-grandchildren on your skinny knees.

And do you know what? If you are overweight you can't blame your glands (1 case in 100,000 might.) You can blame yourself—for you overeat.

Our reducing following in this column is like a band-wagon jammed to capacity, but we'll add another coach—for old-age's sake.

Diets for overweights that take only a certain number of days are of no permanent help. Face your overweight problem squarely: you have to eat moderately all of your life to keep your weight at normal—and choosing the basically nourishing foods is fun for you learn a lot.

Here is a guide for those who are amateurs at the reducing game: To maintain present weight multiply your weight by 15. This equals the number of calories you may have daily. (For instance I weigh 128 lbs, so I should have 128 times 15 which equals 1920 calories to stay at 128 lbs—it's hard going too!)

To lose weight substract 500 calories from this number to drop 5 lbs. per month, which is safe in most cases. Your doctor should give you a go-ahead signal before you do any drastic dieting.

Breakfasts

(1) 8-oz. glass orange juice, 1 slice whole wheat toast, 1-2 pat butter or margarine; 1 egg, not fried; clear coffee or coffee with skim milk and sucaryl. (2) Half-grapefruit with no sugar, poached egg on unbuttered 1-2-slice whole wheat bread; 1-2-slice rye or whole wheat toast with 1-2 teaspoon butter and 1 teaspoon jam, clear coffee. (3) 1 1-2 cups fresh raspberries without cream or sugar, boiled egg, 1 slice toast with 1-2 pat butter, clear coffee or cafe au lait (half strong coffee and half hot milk).

Lunches

(1) One 6-oz. cup clear jellied or hot consomme, salmon sandwich on 2 slices whole wheat with lemon and pickle and 1-2 pat butter, 8 oz. skim or buttermilk, 1 medium-sized ripe banana. (2) Canned apricot and cottage cheese salad on lettuce (8 apricot halves, 1-4 lb. cottage cheese, 3 large lettuce leaves), 8 oz. skim or buttermilk, 1 slice dark rye bread with 1-2 pat butter, 20 sweet cherries or 1 large orange. (3) ham sandwich on rye, mustard and lettuce but no butter, 8 oz. skim or buttermilk, 1 tomato, 1 medium-sized ripe banana.

Dinners

(1) Cream of spinach or celery or pea soup; 4-oz. slice lean broiled steak, 1 1-2 cups tossed green salad with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise, 2 fresh fruits—apple and cherries or orange and raspberries, but no sugar, clear coffee. (2) Shrimp cocktail, 2 lean 3-4-inch broiled lamb chops, 1 small baked potato, jacket on, 1-2 pat butter, 1 cup new peas (no butter), 1-2 celery heart, 2 large dessert plums, clear coffee. (3) Broiled liver and crisp bacon, 1 cup cooked wax or green beans, 1-2 pat butter, 3-4 cup diced beet with lemon, radishes and carrot sticks, apricot or orange sherbet, clear coffee. (4) Broiled whitefish, broiled tomato halves—no limit, boiled new carrots, 1-2 pat butter, head lettuce salad with cottage cheese instead of mayonnaise, mixed fruit, cup of unsweetened freshfruits: banana, raspberries, orange, grapefruit. Clear coffee. (5) Roast chicken, spinach with lemon, boiled rice—3-4 cup—with 1-2 pat butter, dessert fruit salad of fruits in season with white cream cheese instead of dressing, clear coffee or cafe au lait.

The program was in charge of Mrs. K. Reid. Mrs. Conboy read a poem of Edgar A. Guest's. Donalda Walkom favored with a piano solo. Two humorous readings by Miss J. Redner were much enjoyed. Mrs. Creelman read an article, the main thought being "Give credit where credit is due." Mrs. Reid conducted a spelling match, Mrs. E. Gazley and Mrs. M. LaRue as leaders. Mrs. Holmes proved to be the best speller present.

Mrs. Bruce Besley closed the meeting, after which a social half hour was spent.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

CLOSER THAN IT LOOKS

Mebbe the Reds took too much for granted, or believed the stories that the Prescott Merchants would be "easy". It was far from it, unless the river team was playing over its collective head. True they have not got the polish of the Central Ontario League teams, but at the same time they are nobody's fools, or weren't Saturday. It would have been a very close game had the Prescott management started Caloren instead of Murdock who went to the showers without retiring a man in the first innings. He walked two and gave up two hits good for three of the Reds seven runs. You figure it out from there, basing your decision on the fact that Caloren, relief pitcher gave up four runs while his mates were scoring as many over the rest of the route.

The Reds long-ball hitting was noticeably missing. This is evidenced in the fact the Merchants infield accounted for 25 of the 27 putouts, and was credited with 15 assists. Incidentally the time of the game, was 1:45.

Coach Ralph McCabe went the route for the Reds and blazed a blistering fast ball over, mixing it up with a deceptive change of pace. He struck out the side in the first innings, and allowed four hits over the rest of the route. He whiffed the last two in the ninth. He came through with a double and two singles and an all-round fine performance was blemished only with two miscues in the seventh that helped the Prescott three-run rally.

Manager Jack Carson said today that arrangements have have been completed for a two-game exhibition series with the Camp Drumm, United States Army team. The soldier-baseballers will be here on July 21st for a night game and the Reds go back on August 16th for an afternoon tussle. Camp Drumm is the former Pine Camp situated near Watertown, N.Y.

The Niagara District Baseball League leaders, Oshawa Merchants will be here in the first of a home-and-home exhibition series on July 15th. The return date is to be announced. This should be one of the best games of the season as the Redmen are confident after two previous meetings with the Merchants, they can take the measure of the Motor City crew, imports or no imports.

There's a Ladies' Night coming up when the fans and others of the distaff side will be admitted at a charge of 25 cents. The Redmen executive will offer a number of special draw prizes for the ladies only and a large number of the fair sex is expected to turn out. The date will be announced later.

Meanwhile the Reds face a busy time this week. They play hosts Wednesday night to the Peterborough Petes who came up with a sparkling 6-1 victory over the Kingston Monarchs Saturday night, and on Friday night they safari to Kingston for a joust with the Monarchs. On Saturday night Brockville White Sox will be here and it is stated a pitching special is being arranged. It is quite possible that Ralph McCabe will face the well-known "Smoky" Smith on the slab and if both hurlers are in form, the joust should be one for the archives.

GOOD SIGN!

Peterborough Petes, under new management, it is reported, turned in a starry exhibition under Bill Stewart's masterminding against the Kingston Monarchs Saturday night. The Petes have not been overburdened with those intangible assets of many sport, the "breaks" since the COBL opened, and have lost not a few games by squeaks. However, the ability is there and perhaps Stewart is the man to extract it from the side. With a new spirit starting to flare in the Petes camp and Kingston coming up with some smart baseball, the Redmen had better be on their toes, despite the fact they hold a comfortable lead atop the loop ladder.

DOTS 'N' FLASHES . . .

Manager of the Prescott Merchants thought the Reds were a barnstorming team. "Too bad you haven't got a league up there" he said. Don Dolan, umpiring his first senior baseball game was in a tough spot. The Prescott diamond has a wire backstop with the plate ten feet in front. Five feet behind sat a row of local umpire-baiters. Don missed a few of the corners but otherwise did a creditable job . . . Mervyn Wood, Aussie policeman, won the Diamond Sculls at Henley on Saturday. Cary Middlecoff, golfing dentist won the Detroit, $15,000 open tournament Sat. . . . Whip Watson has traded Bobo (Koko-bonk) Brazil for Yukon Eric as a rassling partner, following the defeat last Thursday . . . Armand Savoie and Johnny Greco clash in Montreal tonight. Greco's welter title will be at stake . . . There's no television, theatre, home or otherwise, nor radio broadcast of the Gavilan-Turner scrap for Americans tonight. The fight will be aired over some Canadian stations . . . A reminder — all umpires officiating in OASA playdowns must be registered with that body. Playdowns as usual, will be operated on a home-and-home basis commencing August 15th . . . Northern Electrics softball girls face elimination in Peterborough tonight. They play Ashby's in the second of the best-of-three semi-finals. Ashby's are one up . . . Bob Shantz Forced to Retire, Not Pitch in All-Star Game; Cards Run Win String to Nine

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It looks as though the pitchers are in for a tough time in the major league's 19th All-Star game at Philadelphia tomorrow.

Five of the 12 pitchers on the dream squads saw action yesterday in the final games before the mid-summer classic—and all were beaten. The sluggers, on the other hand, came through with flying colors.

Shantz Forced Out

The American League suffered biggest blow when Bobby Shantz, the scale-model lefthander of Philadelphia Athletics, was forced to retire after four innings because of a muscle pain across his chest in the first game of a doubleheader against the pace-setting New York Yankees.

Shantz, the major's top winner with 14, was counted on to start against the National Leaguers. Cleveland's Bob Lemon now may draw the assignment.

The Yanks clipped Shantz for four runs during his stay and went on to defeat the A's 5-2. All-Stars Gil McDougald and Mickey Mantle led the Yank drive with home runs.

Philadelphia bounced back to win the second game 7-6, scoring the winning run with two out in the ninth inning when Ferris Fain doubled home his All-Star teammate Eddie Joost. Fain collected five hits during the twin-bill to extend his hitting streak to 21 games. Fain, the league's top hitter, takes the highest batting mark, .336, into the All-Star game.

The split enabled the Yanks to retain their three-game lead. Chicago White Sox took over second place from Cleveland, edging the Indians 3-2 in 13 innings on All-Star Minnie Minoso's homer. All-Star Mike Garcia was the losing pitcher.

Senators Fourth

Washington Senators clung to fourth place, beating the fifth-place Boston Red Sox 5-2, and Detroit Tigers came from behind to defeat St. Louis Browns 8-6.

Brooklyn opened a 4½-game lead in the National League, trouncing Boston Braves 8-2, while the second-place New York Giants divided with Philadelphia, winning the first game 2-0 but losing the second 4-1.

The torrid third-place St. Louis Cardinals ran their winning streak to nine games by sweeping a pair of games from Pittsburgh, 6-5 and 6-4. The fourth-place Chicago Cubs took two from Cincinnati, 5-1 and 2-0.

Satchel Paige, expected to work in relief against the Nationals if the situation arises, was the loser in Detroit. The Tigers hopped on the St. Louis star for four runs in the seventh inning. Jerry Priddy doubled home two runs for the winners but he suffered a broken right leg while sliding home with the fourth tally and will be lost for the rest of the season. The victory was the second straight for Detroit since Fred Hutchinson was named manager Saturday.

Dodgers Blast Spahn

The Dodgers blasted Warren Spahn, one of the Nationals' six All-Star pitchers, for five runs in four innings. Gil Hodges, the dream team's first baseman, sewed it up with a three-run homer in the eighth.

Max Lanier turned in his first complete game of the season in besting Philadelphia's Robin Roberts. Roberts was expected to start for the National League tomorrow but it appears now that teammate Curt Simmons will draw the nod.

Stan Musial, one of the National's starting outfielders, won the first Cardinal-Pirate game with a home run in the ninth inning, his 11th of the campaign.

Hank Sauer, who leads both All-Star teams in home runs and runs batted in, cracked a homer in each game for Chicago to boost his output to 23 and his R.B.I. figure to 69.

Syracuse Edges Montreal 4-3, Wings Clip Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There is little a baseball player likes more than to come back to haunt a club he once played for.

Johnny Welaj is no exception. The outfielder who played for Montreal and Toronto before going to Syracuse had the pleasant experience of driving in the winning run as the Chiefs beat the league-leading Royals 4-3 yesterday.

Welaj's ninth-inning single was the telling blow as Syracuse came from behind a 3-0 deficit to overtake Montreal.

The Montreal loss served to keep the Royals from pulling far out in front of the International League race.

They lead by three games over Rochester Red Wings who remained in contention with a 5-3 victory over fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs. George Condrick won his fifth straight for Rochester with relief aid from Bob Tiefenauer and good hitting support from Don Richmond's two-run homer.

Ottawa Splits

The week-end was a comparatively happy one for Ottawa Athletics because it lifted them out of the cellar ahead of Buffalo Bisons. They beat the Bisons 9-5 Saturday and then split a Sunday doubleheader, winning the first game 6-3 but blowing a four-run lead to drop the second 5-4.

Marion Fricano staggered through to the Ottawa first-game victory although he gave up 13 hits. George Moskovich and Harvey Gentry delivered three hits each as Buffalo engineered a relief triumph for Babe Birrer in the nightcap.

Baltimore Orioles won two from Springfield Cubs, 2-1 and 1-0. Roy Weatherley drove in the winning run with a single in the first game which went 14 innings. Bob Miller won in relief. George Byam's third-inning single drove in the deciding tally in the second game, won by Blix Donnelly with Kent Peterson's help.

In other Saturday action Montreal beat Syracuse 4-2 in 11 innings, Springfield defeated Baltimore 6-3 and Toronto edged Rochester 4-3.

Brantford Sox Trim Panthers; Elgins Edge Galt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first change in senior Intercounty baseball standings in almost two weeks came Saturday night as Brantford Red Sox moved into a third-place tie with Galt Terriers on the strength of a 7-6 win over Kitchener Panthers.

Galt lost a Saturday evening game 7-5 to the last-place St. Thomas Elgins while Waterloo Tigers defeated London Majors 5-2.

Brantford and Kitchener were tied 6-6 at the end of the sixth and both teams remained scoreless until the ninth when catcher Eddie Napier singled to bring in the Sox' winning run.

Brantford used four pitchers to squeeze out the win with Billy Gibbs taking the credit.

Thomas Tops Hitters

Kitchener centrefielder Freddy Thomas was top hitter with a double and two singles in four trips.

St. Thomas took a 2-0 lead in the second innings but Galt returned with three in the bottom half of the same inning. St. Thomas added four and Galt two in the seventh and the Elgins clinched the game with another in the eighth.

Centrefielder Rhade and third baseman Atkins each collected three hits in five tries for the Elgins.

Veteran Joe Yosurak hurled six innings to bring Waterloo its 10th win in 22 starts. He was relieved in the seventh by rookie Whit Graves with the Tigers well out of trouble on the top half of a 3-1 count.

Former Kitchener pitcher Jim Gifton was tagged with the loss. He was relieved in the seventh by southpaw Jess Baro.

Kvasnak Homers

Playing manager Alex Kvasnak spurred the winners with three hits in three trips, including a two-run homer over the left field fence in the eighth.

Nickie 'The Nerve', Aging Jockey Making Sensational Track Comeback

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK (AP)—For the last several years young jockeys have come from out of the west to thrill easterners.

Lately, however, it hasn't been young squirts from California like Gordon Glisson, Willie Shoemaker or Ray York, but 44-year-old Nick Wall who has been booting home those winners at Aqueduct.

The story of Nick "The Nerve" is one of the most fascinating human-interest stories of the turf which abounds in rags-to-riches and riches-to-rags tales.

Thrown From Mount

On Oct. 29, 1946, Nickie was riding at Bay Meadows. Thrown from his mount, Nickie wasn't able to roll clear and the freightened thoroughbred rolled over him.

Doctors found 12 ribs broken, both lungs punctured and a collar bone separation.

"Nick," they said in effect, "you're very lucky to be alive. You're going to be all right now, but your riding days are over."

The future seemed dreary. He was in hospital for months.

Movies Aid Comeback

He got a job as a patrol judge at Tanforan and watched the races as an official. As part of his job he watched the motion pictures of each race. Oddly, this gave him the idea of a comeback.

"Those pictures were an education in racing," Nick explained. "I saw mistakes that I used to make myself, but they convinced me the back of a horse was the place for me."

It wasn't until July 1949, that he started exercising horses at the Hollywood Park meeting at Santa Anita. In time he got a few mounts, but although he was famous as the winner of two Santa Anita Handicaps—Stagehand in 1938 and Bay View in 1941—Nickie found the going tough.

Tough, that is, until he brought home a 15-to-1 long shot, Sassanid.

That convinced the skeptics that Nickie was back on the beam and again could ride with the best. That's just what he is doing now at Aqueduct.

Win or lose "The Nerve" is worth a two-buck bet anytime you're at the track.-

Olympic Moguls Reject Another Track Prospect

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HELSINKI (CP) — Canada's Olympic team arrived here by plane from Montreal late yesterday and ran smack into a large-sized official headache.

Awaiting the 70 athletes and accompanying officials at the huge Kapyla Village in the northern section of the city was Jack Burney of Vancouver who paid $100 out of his own pocket to come here from Germany, where he is stationed with the United States army.

He believed he was on the Canadian team as one of its entries in the 400-metre hurdles. He was in for a big disappointment—the entries for the Games closed Saturday and his name was not listed.

Timed In 53.8

The 2-year-old athlete said he has done the 400-metre hurdles in 53.8 seconds "at least eight times this year"—well under the 54.5 second standard set by the track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

He had the news broken to him that he was not on the team by this reporter and almost broke into tears. Talks with Bruce Humber of Vancouver, men's track coach, and Jack Davies of Montreal, assistant team manager, did not bring him any solace. Humber has nothing to do with selection of the team and Davies said it is "too late to do anything.

"I've been training for the last six months," said Burney. "I've sent my times to Bob Osborne of Vancouver (A.A.U. past presidet) and it looks as if somebody pulled a fast one.

"The United States army gave me a 30-day furlough to come here. I turned down a chance to go to the United States to compete in the American Olympic trials—the army volunteered to pay my expenses—because I wanted to compete for my own country. And now I get this."

Redmen Score Eleventh Victory Of Season With 7-4 Win Over Prescott

First-Innings Three-Run Lead Decides Issue in Close Game, McCabe Fashions Four-Hitter

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

PRESCOTT — While Coach Ralph McCabe tossed a four-hitter at the Prescott Merchants, St. Lawrence Baseball League entry, here Saturday night for a Belleville Redmen 7-4 victory, it was closer than you think.

It was the Reds eleventh victory in twelve starts and constituted a clean sweep of the first round with the four clubs of the down-east league.

McCabe hurled his first full game of the season and barring a temporary fielding lapse in the seventh when the homesters scored three runs, was master of the situation throughout. He struck out eight, walked one and held the Merchants to one scratch hit for six innings. He bashed out 3 hits, one a double that drove in one of the Reds seven runs.

The Reds came up with some loose base-running at times and their four infield bobbles were responsible for all the Prescott runs.

"Poosh 'Em Up, Tony"

Murdock, a righthander started for the Merchants but the Reds gave him short shrift. He walked Pat Gilmour and Jackie Wardhaugh, then Tony Pettitt promptly blasted a towering triple to right centre scoring the runners. Vern Goyer hanged out a single to score Tony, and that was the end of Murdock.

Caloren took over and did a neat job. He held the Reds bats for the next six innings to four hits and no runs. They got to him in the later stages nicking him for nine clouts all told, good for four runs.

The Reds led 3-0 up to the seventh when they pushed over two more counters on a pair of hits and a Prescott error. McCabe singled and went to second when the Prescott catcher threw wild. With Mouse Bush safe on a fielder's choice, Tony Pettitt batted in his fourth run of the game when his scorching double to centre scored both runners.

McCabe's double in the eighth drove in Huck Reeves who was aboard via the error route and Bush accounted for the Reds seventh run in the ninth when he scored Pettitt who had doubled, with his infield out.

Three in Seventh

Prescott had the spectators on their feet in the seventh when they cut the Red's margin to 5-3. With one away, Wormington, Prescott clean-up hitter, drew the only McCabe walk of the game. He went to second and Tobin to first when McCabe tossed badly to second in a double-play effort. Huck Reeves threw a bad one at Kelleher off Patterson's infield slap and the bags were loaded. Kirby got the only Prescott extra base wallop when he doubled in two runners, scoring himself on brother Don's tap to the mound. McCabe forced the next two batters to ground weakly to the infield.

Two scratch singles and another Red infield error gave the homesters their last run in the eighth. In the ninth McCabe tossed out Patterson and struck out the last two batters to face him.

Pettitt fattened his batting average with a triple and two doubles, with McCabe bashing out a double and two singles. Goyer came up with two, with Pat Gilmour, Huck Reeves and Al Kelleher getting the rest.

Kirby hit a double for the losers with Caldwell, Wormington and Whitley getting singles.

Glen Roys Trim Wooler 14-2

By JACK BRETT

The league-leading Glen Roy team, strengthened their lead Saturday night as they trounced the sixth place Wooler men 14-2 in a Belleville and District Softball League game at the C. N. R. Field.

For Glen Roy, Bobby Green went the route walking nine, striking out 11 and giving up five hits for two runs. McColl hurled for Wooler, walked three, struck out 10 and gave 15 hits for 14 runs.

Wooler was blanked in the first inning, but Glen Roy had a torrid half as they took a six-run lead. Hull, Batchelor and Carr's doubles, along with J. Goyer's single, Pete Green's base on an error and a walk for Lally tallied the markers for Glen Roy.

May tripled in the fifth for Wooler and came home on a passed ball to give the Wooler team its first tally of the game. In the eighth, Wooler looked like they might do things. McMasters singled and McColl and May walked to load the bases. Miron also walked, forcing in McMasters for Wooler's second tally. Manager Austin, complete with cast on his hand for a broken thumb, went in as pinch hitter for McKee. With two men out and the bases loaded, Austin struck out.

A single off the bat of J. Goyer in the second made it 7-0 for Glen Roy. In the fourth Hull and Batchelor scored for the 9-0 count. Two singles and a walk in the sixth advanced the score 12-1 for Glen Roy. Goyer and Hull singled again in the eighth and came home on fielder's errors to make it 14-2.

Harry Nelson, a tall, 17-year-old representative from the New Westminster, B.C., Olympic Club, racked up two records to pace the out-of-town competitors.

Equals Own Record

He did the juvenile 120-yard low hurdles in 15.0 seconds to slice 3-10 of a second off the old mark. He then equalled his record in winning the finals Saturday. In the juvenile 220-yard dash he cut 1-10 of a second off the old mark of 22.9 seconds.

Another two-time record-breaker was Jerry Zodiyko of Toronto Secondary Schools Track Club, who made a toss of 163 ft., 1¾ in. in the midget javelin competition. The old mark was 122 ft., 9 in.

In the midget high jump he beat the previous leap of 5 ft., 2½ in., by 2¼ inches.

Probably the most sensational event of the meet was the 440-yard juvenile dash Saturday which saw Don Aitken of Toronto slice one-tenth of a second off the previous record—51.5 seconds. Aitken crossed the line inches ahead of Laird Sloan of Montreal.

Another record fell Saturday when Gwen Hobbins, 14, of Toronto ran the 60-metre junior dash in 9.0 seconds, just six-tenths of a second less than the old mark.

Despite the scorching heat, Murray Cockburn of Toronto won the junior 880-yard event in 1:59.9. The old record was 1:58.6.

Two records were set by Peter Stranger of Montreal and Norm Williams of Toronto.

Peter covered the midget 120-yard low hurdles in 15.0 seconds to better the old mark of 15.8.

T.T.F.C. Wins Aggregate

Final two records to fall were in the junior hop, step and jump and juvenile 440-yard relay. Agincourt Spikes Club won the latter event by setting a record of 44.6 seconds. The previous mark was 47.9. In the hop, step and jump event, Bob McLaughlin of Toronto reached the 45 ft., 1⅛ in. mark. The old record was 44 feet.

Final aggregate scores gave Toronto Track and Field Club first place by a wide margin. They had 260½ points with Montreal Track and Field second with 81. Agincourt Spikes Club had 61; Toronto Secondary Schools 54, New Westminster Olympic Club, 51; Sudbury Nickel Teen 43.

Flyers Win 12-10 With Three Runs In 11th Inning

RCAF Flyers picked up their eighth win in 15 starts this season when they were presented with three runs in the top of the 11th inning Saturday night for a 12-10 decision over Belleville Motor Car.

Both sides staged a free-swinging campaign with the score 9-9 at the end of nine innings. In the 11th Greenough led off with a fly to centrefield that was dropped for two bases. He moved along on Gingrass's fifth hit of the evening and scored as Berner pumped a long fly to right field. Auld popped up to second base but Wood drilled a single into left field to score Gingrass and Berner. Freeman popped to third to end the inning.

Shorty Miller led off with a home run to right field for the Motors but the next three men went down in order to end the game. The Flyers winged away to a fast start scoring three in the first inning on an error, a walk, Freeman's triple to left field, and McCartney's long fly to centre. Two singles and three errors added two runs in the second, while two walks, a sacrifice, a single, and an error went for two more in the fourth.

Motors scored once in the first frame on an error, a passed ball and a single, and another in the third on a walk and two singles. They evened the score at 7-7 in the fourth with a five run rally that drove Steeves to the showers and brought on Burtt, Jack Callaghan's home run to right centrefield with two on was the big blast in the rally.

Jack Reid, who came on to rescue Donly in the fifth, put Motors in front with a home run to centrefield with Tapp, who walked, riding in on the blast.

Singles by Greenough, Gingrass and Berner, and Auld's fly to centrefield counted one run for the Flyers in the seventh, and Freeman smashed a home run to left field to tie the score in the eighth.

Ray Burley connected for a solid smash in the seventh for the Motors but was called out at the plate in a hotly disputed decision after a tremendous relay from deep centrefield to second base to the plate.

Best batter of the night was Gingrass for the Flyers with five singles in six trips. Freeman homered, tripled, and singled in seven tries. For the Motors, Shorty Miller had a homer, double, and single in six appearances

Donly started for the Motors and in four innings walked four struck out none, and gave up six hits for seven runs. Jack Reid toiled seven frames walking one, striking out one, and giving up eight hits for five runs.

Steeves started on the hill for the Flyers and in three and two thirds innings walked four, struck out four, and gave up seven hits for seven runs. Burtt bailed him out in the fourth and went the rest of the way walking three, striking out nine, and giving up four hits for three runs to claim the victory.

'Little Mo' Wins Womens' Singles British Tennis

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Maureen Connolly, petite powerhouse from California, whipped Louise Brough, 7-5, 6-3, Saturday to become the first teenager in 65 years to win the coveted women's singles title in the All-England tennis championships.

The 17-year-old bombshell, also holder of the U.S. singles crown, surged from behind twice to end the comeback hopes of the veteran Miss Brough, three times Wimbledon champion from 1948 to 1950.

Not since 1887, when Lottie Dodd, the 15-year-old girl wonder, won the women's title here has the queen of the courts been someone of such tender years.

Given Ovation

Playing with the precision of a mechanical doll, Miss Connolly cut down Miss Brough, a fellow American, with a display of faultless ground strokes and uncanny anticipation. As she slammed home the winning point, the crowd of 13,000 jammed into the famed centre court rose and gave her an ovation.

While she received from the Duchess of Kent the silver plate that goes with the title, Maureen bubbled with laughter and joy—just like any other teenager caught in a moment of excitement.

Miss Connolly was not the only one to harvest tennis glory for Frank Sedgman, Australia's magnificent Davis Cupper, completed a "triple" by sharing in the doubles and mixed doubles title.

The Aussie teamed with countryman Ken McGregor to retain the men's double crown. They scored a thumping 6-3, 7-5, 6-4 victory over Vic Seixas of the U.S. and Eric Sturgess of South Africa.

Then Sedgman joined with Doris Hart of the U.S. to take the mixed doubles title. They defeated Enrique Morea of Argentina and Mrs. Thelma Long of Australia 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, to hold the crown they won last year.

The 24-year-old Sedgman won the men's singles Friday in four sets over Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt. He also holds the U.S. singles crown—which makes him the No. 1 player in the world.

Miss Connolly had less success in the finals of the women's doubles. She teamed with Miss Brough but the two singles finalists were beaten by Miss Hart and Shirley Fry of the U.S., who retained their title 8-6, 6-3.

Fred Hutchinson Succeeds Rolfe As Tiger Boss

DETROIT (AP)—Robert (Red) Rolfe, who skippered Detroit Tigers to within a breath of the American League pennant in 1950, was fired Saturday and relief pitcher Fred Hutchinson promoted to manager.

Hutchinson's selection was a surprise, President Walter O. (Spike) Briggs, Jr., said the new manager's contract will run only to the end of the current season.

Players Approve

Hutchinson's appointment brought jubilization in the Tiger clubhouse but there was no outward show of bitterness toward Rolfe.

As the change came the Tigers were mired in the American League cellar 21 full games out of first place and 7½ behind the seventh-place St. Louis Browns.

Hutchinson's first start as manager was a winning one as Detroit beat St. Louis 5-0. They won again yesterday, 8-6.

Fired with Rolfe was his third-base coach, Dick Bartell. Briggs announced both would be paid until the end of the season. Rolfe drew $45,000 a year—one of the highest in the majors—as manager.

Vic Wertz, right-fielder, told reporters: "The players are all for the guy (Hutchinson). They couldn't have picked a better man. We'll play for that guy."

Briggs made his announcement to a score of reporters.

Doubs Improvement

"We all appreciated the loyalty of Red and Dick and the fine job they've done," he said. "I doubt if there can be any improvement in the ball club but we've got to find out."

Hutchinson, who broke in with Seattle in 1938 and was purchased by the Tigers for $50,000, played off and on for Buffalo Bisons of the International League in 1940 and 1941 before winning a permanent berth in the majors. He has a lifetime major league pitching record of 95 wins and 71 defeats.

Gavilan 8-5 Choice Over Turner In Heat-Forced 'Duel of Survival'

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Steaming heat may put the premium on stamina tonight in the welterweight title bout between champion Kid Gavilan of Havana and Gil Turner, the 21-year-old challenger from Philadelphia.

Some 40,000 fans are expected to pay $300,000 to see the latest hometown sensation bid for a world's title.

With prospects of hot, muggy weather and daytime temperature around 95, this could build up into another Sugar Ray Robinson-Joey Maxim duel of survival. However, there will be no glaring television lights at ringside because radio, TV and theatre TV all have been barred.

Gil Unbeaten

Unbeaten Turner, with 25 knockouts in 31 straight wins, brings a sensational record into the ring. But he must face an experienced veteran of 98 fights who has been knocked down only once in his 10-year pro career. Gavilan's record of 82-12-4 lacks the glamor of Turner's perfection but it reflects the 26-year-old Cuban's willingness to fight 'em all.

Gavilan has beaten middleweights Paddy Young, Laurent Dauthuille, Rocky Castellani, Eugene Hairston and Walter Cartier, Robinson wasn't able to floor him in 25 rounds in two fights. In fact, Ike Williams in 1948 was the only man to put him on the deck. He got up at eight.

Turner's path has been much easier. He has knocked off Beau Jack, Charlie Fusari, Bernie Docusen and Williams—after they were past their peak. He is confident he is ready for the big test. Only two fighters knocked him down—Fusari and Irish Jimmy Sanders, Each time he got up and knocked out his man.

Gavilan is an 8½-to-5 choice.

Middleweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson will not go through with his projected European tour and title fight for Israel, Dr. Vincent Nardiello, his personal physician, said yesterday at New York. Dr. Nardiello said he advised Robinson against making the trip because the champion still has not fully recovered from the effects of the heat exhaustion which caused his defeat in the June 23 bout with light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A time comes when a bridge player should look a gift horse in the mouth. An easy trick may not be a profitable one. Times are when it is bad business to accept a cheap trick.

Look for it in this deal:

NORTH
♠A 10 5
♥7 4 3
♦A J
♣A K Q J 2

WEST
♠K J 9
♥Q 9 8 2
♦Q 7 4 3

EAST

♥A K J 10 5
♣9 8 6 5

SOUTH
♠8 6 3 2
♥6
♦K 10 9 8 6 5
♣7 3

Early in the bidding, east bid hearts. South became declarer at five diamonds, doubled by west. Opening lead from west was a heart. East took it and returned a heart that south ruffed.

A trump was led through west, the doubler, for a finesse. Jack won it and trump ace was cashed. Now declarer was defeated. West's trumps blocked dummy's clubs and south's spades could not be sluffed.

The first heart lead gave south a chance to make safe the clubs on which to sluff spades. With only one heart loser he can afford to lose one trump trick. But he must time it not to lose control.

When he ruffs the second heart round, the trump lead is dandy. But he should refuse to finesse. Instead, go right up with trump ace, return the jack and overtake with his king.

He then forces out west queen with a trump lead. If west comes back with a heart, south ruffs. If west comes back with a spade, dummy's ace wins and south ruffs the heart. Either way he can pull the last west trump.

Ordinarily, a declarer is anxious and willing to take a winning finesse in trumps. But not here. It is one of those rare cases where a contract can be lost because a finesse succeeds.

In the play of any deal, the aim is to take as many tricks as possible. However, a gamble for another trick is not worth while if there is a chance to lose the game contract thereby.

The temptation is always greater, of course, when an extra trick is earmarked for success. Advance planning tells you if worth the risk.

Even its cheapness may not recommend it.

Mossadegh Named For Another Term As Iranian Premier

TEHRAN (AP)—Iran's legislators yesterday overwhelmingly approved the reappointment of Premier Mossadegh to another term at the helm of this crisis-ridden country of virtually padlocked oil riches.

The under-strength Majlis—lower house of parliament—with only 76 of its normal 130 seats filled, gave the fiery Nationalist leader a majority of 52 votes. Two other votes went to former Premier Ahmed Qavam and another to the former Iranian Ambassador to Washington, Nasrollah Entezam. There were 10 abstensions and 11 deputies were absent.

Backers of the aged and ailing premier hailed the secret vote as a mandate from the people to continue Mossadegh's policies, under which he pushed through nationalization of the vast oil resources once operated by British authorities.

Mossadegh's opponents were stunned by the big majority he had chalked up. They are bitterly opposed to his policies on the grounds that his failure to settle the oil dispute with Britain had resulted in almost total loss of the huge oil revenues which once supported the country. They had hoped the anti-Mossadegh forces in parliament would put up a better fight.

According to the tradition accompanying the opening of a new parliament, Mossadegh resigned Saturday. But he made a strong appeal in a country-wide radio address for reappointment. He was not in the Majlis when the vote was taken. The Majlis last week declared itself formally open for business, despite the fact that not all the seats were filled in the national elections which started last December.

Three Africans Killed

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Three Africans were killed here yesterday in a riot between native vigilantes and Basutos of the New Clare native township.

The dead were members of the native civic guard, an unofficial body formed by the Africans themselves to protect the township.

A few minutes before the clash a riot squad of white police was rushed to a church being stoned by friends of a drunken native who had been thrown out.

The police left 20 African constables guarding a bridge which divides the part of the township occupied by a Basuto faction known as the "Russians."

Civic guards, seeing the riot squad leave, invaded the "Russian" territory. when police returned both warring factions had vanished, leaving the dead behind.

DRIVE-IN THEATRE

New Movie Offers Burlesque Bounty

The newest, sauciest motion picture to deal with burlesque is "Rage of Burlesque," which currently, is heating the screen of the Drive-in Theatre.

Followers of the bump-and-grind art will have a field day when they see "Rage of Burlesque," which features several of the top stripteuses of the country. Headed by Lillian White, known as the "Carnegie Hall" stripteuse, the list includes Kay Carroll, Jungola, Gung Hai, the Oriental bewitcher, and other surprise packages of the shake-and-show coterie.

"Rage of Burlesque" also features song and dance headliners from stage and screen, among them being the De Castro Sisters, the Slim Gaillard Trio, Linda Lombard and Gregory Knox, Janina Frostova and Felix Sadovsky and the Terry Twins.

AT THE CAPITOL — Helen Hayes, America's first actress, stars as a mother whose son is being sought by the F.B.I. in Leo McCarey's "My Son John." The Paramount film, now at the Capitol Theatre, today and Tuesday only, is her first in 17 years. On the same program the musical "Atlantic City Honeymoon," starring Constance Moore and Jerry Colona with Paul Whiteman and Louis Armstrong's orchestra.

DRIVE-IN THEATRE

Marie Windsor Stars in "Outlaw Women"

Ever heard tell of Big Nose Kate, Gertie the Gold Dollar, Crazy Horse Lil or Big Minnie?

They were the colorful but lesser-known contemporaries of Calamity Jane, Belle Starr and other pioneer women on the early western scene, who employed more subtle means than the six-shooter to take over control of rip-roaring, lawless gambling towns on the frontier.

The aforementioned ladies helped to inspire Marie Windsor's fictional role as Iron Mae McLeod, saloon operator and the law of Las Mujeres, in "Outlaw Women," Ron Ormond's Cinecolor production release by Lippert Pictures which opens tonight at the Drive-in Theatre. Richard Rober, Allan Nixon, Carla Balenda, Jacqueline Fontaine, Maria Hart and Jackie Coogan have other leading parts.

A likelier selection than Marie could hardly have been made. She's a shapely five feet, eight inches tall, weighing 134 pounds, with big blue eyes and auburn hair — ideal equipment for the color cameras and the luscious, low-cut 1875 wardrobe designed for the Windsor figure that Varga, the artist, has called "Hollywood's best."

Marie is a real westerner, too. She was born Marie Bertelsen, December 11, 1924, at Marysvale, Utah, where she reckons she saw 500 movies before she was 12. After two years at Brigham Young University, she came to Hollywood to study drama under the late Mme. Ouspenskaya.

It was a free-lance player that the attractive Marie, who was once named "Miss Utah", achieved starring roles and two of her earliest free-lance appearances were in "Dakota Lil" and "Frenchie," predecessors of "Outlaw Women" in the western field.

As might be suspected, Iron Mae McLeod is something of a misnomer for Marie in the new picture. When a gambler of romantic bent, played by Richard Rober, comes to town, Iron Mae finally melts.

AT THE CAPITOL — King of Jazz Paul Whiteman and "Satchmo" Louis Armstrong combine their talents to bring hot and sweet music to "Atlantic City Honeymoon," Republic's gay musical extravaganza which is now at the Capitol Theatre today and Tuesday only. On the same program, "My Son John," starring Helen Hayes —first lady of the stage — with Van Heflin, Robert Walker and Dean Jagger.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—YOUR INDIVIUAL HOROSCOPE Not all encouraging for other than routine, daily duties. This means extra effort, more concentration on important issues, and less time for non-essentials.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Employers and employees will do well to get together for a peaceful agreement. Working together in business, at home always brings better results.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — You will have to take advantage of every opening and opportunity this in-a-way unattractive day. Avoid contention, disagreements. Forget past; work on present and future.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Exercise extra caution in all business matters. Afternoon: improved prospects for personal, social and home affairs. Be ready to listen as well as talk. Don't over suspect.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Less friendly in some way for real estate, investments than for intimate affairs. Watch personal interests, especially in early hours of day.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Be sagacious, diplomatic in all matters of estate, loans, dealings with domestic problems. May be tendency toward irritability, quick retorts; avoid these for better living.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — If you can conveniently, make this a day to get caught up in delinquent matters. Follow your conscience; it's best. Be open-minded, too.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — By holding to sensible traditions and routine you can avoid pitfalls, misunderstandings, improve overall affairs. Don't gamble with principles, family security.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Personal, business matters have equal chance to advance, if you are up to par. Distribute your efforts well, to cover all phases, opportunities.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — You can't be touchy, lax or insincere and expect good results. Be serious in all things in which you should be, and don't forget to smile, pass along a kind, jovial word.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Little to offer without hard, earnest trying. Watch important matters, don't do things without knowing just what you are doing.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Go along with trend of things; be on the progressive side, but don't just follow the leader. Aim to solve situations yourself. Some gains likely in real estate, building.

YOU BORN TODAY: Bright, pleasant, but occasionally too sensitive and tend to fault-finding. These moods can thwart good intentions, harm best efforts. Reveal your best disposition you will go far. Pray daily. Birthdate of: Felicien Rops, Belgian painter, great engraver.

Prime Minister Will Lead Party In Next Election

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal party strategists are finding one consolation in the series of defeats their forces have experienced lately in both the federal and provincial fields.

They are virtually satisfied now that Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent is going to lead the party in a 1953 general election.

The 70-year-old Prime Minister has been careful to make no outright commitments that he will run and unforeseen circumstances could rule him out. But, as one informed source put it: "There is very much more confidence now that he will run again."

This arises partly from indications Mr. St. Laurent has given the Liberal caucus in the wake of Progressive Conservative victories in four of six federal by-elections.

With additional setbacks in the Saskatchewan and British Columbia provincial elections, Liberal morale has slumped and key figures have been arguing that the party would stand a good chance of losing the next general election unless Mr. St. Laurent leads. The Prime Minister is aware of this apprehension.

He has been taking an interest in the current Quebec election campaign but will participate directly only to the extent of voting July 16. Another sharp Liberal defeat would reduce even further the odds against Mr. St. Laurent withdrawing from the federal field.

October Announcement

It is felt in some quarters that Mr. St. Laurent will make his position clear in October when a postponed annual meeting of the National Liberal Federation is held in Ottawa. His answer to reporters' queries these days is blunt: "When I have made up my mind, I will announce my plans immediately."

Meanwhile he is at his summer home at St. Patrick, Que., and will spend some weeks between there and Ottawa. Trade Minister Howe is acting as Prime Minister.

Christian Island in Georgian Bay was so named in 1649 when Jesuit missionaries led Huron converts to safety there.

Additional Plans Being Made For Centennial Fair

PICTON—Additional plans for Prince Edward County Centennial Fair at Picton, Aug. 20, 21, 22, and 23, were completed at this week's meeting of directors.

C. R. Widdifield, Q.C., chairman of the horse races on the last two days, reported much interest being shown. There are to be three races each afternoon with $1,000 in purses.

It was decided that on the opening afternoon that there would be a service of thanksgiving in recognition of the 100th fair. A choir and minister are to assist. This being children's day, the Elk's Lodge is providing free rides and ice cream. At night, a horse show is to be held under lights, classes being additional to those on other days.

The Old Boys and Girls reunion on Aug. 21st., is to be featured by a Century of Progress parade and a program which will recall the past. A horse show will be held as well.

On the Friday, horse racing, horse and cattle judging are highlights. Saturday, Tourists' day, will see races and a horse show.

Revue to be Held

Secretary Phil Dodds reported arrangements complete for the International Revue to be presented three nights in front of the grandstand by United States artists. The board authorized purchase of fireworks for Wednesday night.

Elmer Gerow and Bob Lightfoot were named to arrange extra horse stalls, a huge tent to be secured for extra accommodation.

Agricultural Representative D. A. Taylor reported 11 farmers using 125 bushels Lanark oats in the field crop competitions, and Junior Farmer competitions to be held.

W. P. Marvin was authorized to purchase new drinking cups for the poultry section.

President E. W. Henderson reported on moving hydro poles. Willis Sills and W. P. Marvin were thanked for assistance given the secretary in collecting special prizes. Plans were made for sale of tickets on the car to be given away the last day of the fair.

With many special attractions being arranged for the Centennial, Don Foster has been engaged as assistant secretary.

Jets Fly Non-Stop From California To Honolulu

HONOLULU (AP)—A squadron of 20 F-84 Thunderjets flew here non-stop from California in five hours, 29 minutes yesterday. The U.S. Air Force heralded the flight as proof it is ready for war—anytime, any place, at a moment's notice.

The Thunderjets averaged about 450 miles an hour on the 2,408-mile flight. They refueled in mid-air. Details of the refueling were kept secret.

The planes were on the second lap of a 9,000-mile mass flight from Albany, Ga., to Japan.

The Air Force said success of the mission so far proved the "global mobility" of the Strategic Air Command.

Korean M.P.'s Have Dangerous Job

South Korean national assemblymen battle their way through a mob of 500 supporters of President Sigman Rhee after the lawmakers had been imprisoned in the Pusan legislative building for five hours. Siege of the assemblymen was the latest outburst in Rhee's fight for re-election. — Central Press Canadian.

The historic merchants' guilds of England derived the name from the Saxon gild or geld, meaning payment.

Canada had 62,212,000 acres under crops in 1951, an increase of 10 per cent from 1941.

About 60 per cent of the dwellings in Canada had telephones in 1951.

To reach their cell blocks they had to cross the visiting room where Guard Ted Brett was stationed. Before he could move the men were upon him.

"I could see there was something wrong when they came in," said George Lillice, turnkey guarding the main door. "Brett was in between two of the visiting tables. The leaders in the column seemed to slow down, then they suddenly surrounded Ted. I saw a chair raised, then it came down on his head. He fought his way toward me. They hit him three more times before I was able to slip him through the door to safety."

Guards said the screaming prisoners caught up others who showed no inclination to riot. Some 600 swept into the main dormitory building. Guards scrambled to safety but from one of them the rioters snatched a key that unlocked every main door inside the dormitory.

Chairs, toilet bowls and windows were smashed, furnishings destroyed, piles of mattresses and blankets set afire.

Kitchen Wrecked

Scores of other rioters broke into the kitchens to cause more of the damage that officials called fantastic. For Sunday lunch they were to have had pork chops, for supper, picnic ham. Chops by the hundreds littered a corridor floor. Hams worth $25 apiece floated in the water from the fire hoses. Great steam tables and stoves were overturned and battered. Canned goods were taken out to be used as missiles.

Superintendent Wright took 26 guards and went to the rescue of six of his men who were trapped, four of them in the kitchen.

He caught a blow from a pipe wrench hurled through a window and later discovered a piece of glass had cut through his shoe and nipped off the tip of his big toe.

Harold Whiteside, 40-year-old guard, fell in the onslaught and was treated at hospital for concussion, head and face cuts. The squad released Guard Frank Thornton, who had locked himself in a corridor in the east cell block.

The four in the kitchen and another in the western wing of the prison were freed without much difficulty. The latter, F.A. Lamb, trapped by the onrush of convicts through the wing, was reported hidden by older prisoners, who disguised him as one of themselves.

Reinforcements Rush In

Meanwhile 65 Ontario Provincial Police and 20 Guelph policemen as well as firemen had reached the reformatory on the eastern outskirts of Guelph. By midnight the situation had quieted down and at 2 a.m. officials said the demonstration was "practically over."

An investigation was ordered by Reforms Minister Foote who inspected the damage early Sunday. He told a press conference that he could see no reason for the rioting in the reformatory, which is administered by the province.

In a previous riot in 1937 at the 1,000-acre farm, 700 prisoners rampaged for five hours in demands for better food. They set fires which caused damage estimated at $200,000. Twenty-two prisoners who escaped were recaptured or surrendered.

Mr. Foote called the prison one of the finest in Canada. Across the rolling acres of pastures and grain fields are scattered workshops, barns, projects, giant gardens and man-made lakes. Since 1931, prisoners have made licence plates for Ontario's automobiles.

FORMER PREMIER

He died when the campaign was hottest in preparation for the July 16 elections with the Union Nationale opposing a revamped Liberal party.

Before becoming bed-ridden, he continued his law practice and often met Premier Duplessis near the Parliament Buildings as they went to their respective offices They always exchanged greetings and sometimes stopped to chat.

Son of a justice of the Supreme Court and of the daughter of a Quebec Lieutenant-Governor. Mr. Taschereau was the ninth of 11 children.

St. Laurent Mourns

The name Taschereau runs prominently through Canadian history since the days of the French regime and the former Premier was praised by Prime Minister St. Laurent for adding laurels to an old and well-known family.

Mr. St. Laurent heard of Mr. Taschereau's death at his summer home at St. Patrick, Que., and said it was "a personal grief."

Mr. Taschereau was defeated in his first attempt to break into politics when, at the age of 25, he ran in Dorchester constituency. He was later elected in Montmorency.

Shortly after he became Premier, succeeding Sir Lomer Gouin in 1920, he told the Empire Club in Toronto that the Quebec farmer was the first Canadian and "will be the last." He praised the rural people, their large families, bravery in battle and their priests. French-speaking Canadians hated oppression at home but were ready to fight for the Crown, he told the club members. One such man was his grandfather, Jean-Thomas, who wrote violent articles against the administration of Sir James Craig and was jailed for treason in 1810.

Two years later, Jean-Thomas Taschereau served with the Beauce county habitants against the Americans at Chateauguay and he later was appointed a judge in the Court of King's Bench.

Stake Horse

By Larry Sternjg

The crowd noise drowned out the sound of those hammering hoofs. Adonis seemed to falter, lose stride. The chestnut filly was closing in as they swept toward the wire.

Then, from somewhere, Rusty pulled another spurt out of the colt. Adonis went on—to win.

Nystrom's voice was ragged. "He's hurt. Look, he's limping."

It was true. Adonis, walking back to the winner's cricle now, was limping badly.

It was a quarter crack caused by the unyielding surface of today's track. Johnny asked the trainer, "How bad is it?"

The trainer took a deep breath. "Bad enough to keep him out of the Atwater. How much worse, I couldn't judge."

"It couldn't be taped?"

Nystrom shook his head slowly. "It's up to Bella now."

Rusty said, "Well, Adonis has the stuff. Even a cracked hoof didn't stop him. He's everything we hoped for."

"Everything," Johnny admitted. "And so are you, Rusty."

Johnny told Carol when he returned to the box.

She said, "Do you really think this Mr. Kovalt is out to break you? Do you think it's something personal? I'll bet you could get another extension."

"You know him?" Johnny cut in.

Carol was obviously flustered. "Yes. Judge Garry introduced me. He didn't seem at all like a man who'd go to all that trouble just out of spite."

He said, "He's no good, Carol. Steer clear of him."

She had to leave right after the race to be at the Club Madrid for the 10 o'clock show. As he escorted her to her car, she said, "Honey, try not to put so much importance on those notes. This isn't the only way in the world to make a living."

He kissed her, and drew away to study her. "I don't feel right. There's something about this Kovalt business you haven't told me."

She shook her head solemnly, and her blue eyes were grave. "You must trust me, Johnny. There's no love without trust."

They brought Bella along carefully. They gave her a tightener, two days before the Atwater, and she romped home in front of three open lengths. But the competition wasn't up to what she'd meet later.

Goodhue came down the day after the tightener. He'd sold the house, he informed Johnny, and his equity in it had gone to pay off the mortgage on the farm. He smiled. "If you lose the horses, you can farm the place."

Johnny looked up Nystrom for lunch. The tall, thin trainer was standing next to the fence, watching Rusty work Challenger.

"Think you could get along without me for a while, Johnny?"

Johnny nodded, but there was a question in his eyes.

"My heart," Nystrom explained. "It's acting up again. I should go back home and rest a while. I surely couldn't watch that one tomorrow."

"Why, I had no idea your heart was bad."

The trainer expelled his breath through his mouth. "It isn't bad enough to put me to bed. But I've seen too many close races, I guess. This one tomorrow is a little too important. I couldn't take it."

After dinner, Johnny found a copy of his home town paper on a news stand. And from there to sports pages. And from there to the entertainment page.

A columnist's item caught his eye:

Roger Kovalt's new Club Madrir would seem to prove that the former gambler does not need the wheels and the dice and the cards to keep him clear of the formerly oppressive law. Only food and entertainment at this new spot, and both of them, this scribe must record, are excellent. Carol O'Shea is the featured thrush at the Madrid. 'Nuff said?

Johnny remembered Carol's words. "I've met him, Judge Garry introduced me." And "Johnny you must trust me. There's no love without trust."

Judge Garry, with his out-of-character friendship for Kovalt, his support of Goodhue. The attorney, who'd sell only to Kovalt. He thought of Nystrom's regard for the judge. And he remembered that Rusty had pulled Challenger in the Futurity.

At the sight of that homely freckled face topped by the rat's nest of reddish hair, Johnny forgot all about the questions but one.

"Who's going to win tomorrow, Rusty?"

"We are, Mr. Hamilton. You know that."

"Go up and get your sleep," Johnny said. "I've a letter to write."

He was in no mood to write a rational letter, and he didn't. He was young, and this was his first love, or had been, and there were some things he simply had to say. When he'd finished, he read it over hurriedly, sealed it, and mailed it in the lobby.

He didn't fall asleep until nearly 3 o'clock. By then it had already started to rain.

It was still raining, though not much more than a drizzle, when he arrived at the track next morning.

Rusty was there, and Rusty looked glum. He said, "She lost one race last year, just one out of seven. That was on a muddy track."

Johnny said, "That was last year. She's got to win this one, Rusty. I'll take her over and get some bar plates on her."

"It don't think it's the traction she minds," Rusty said. "It's just the dampness she hates, and the flying mud."

"Well, caulks won't hurt," Johnny said.

At lunch with some of the other owners at the club house, Johnny learned that the Stakes would be run. The purse, in a stake race, is a total of all the entry fees plus what money the track management might care to add. Johnny's money was in it now, and it had been a considerable sum. He couldn't back out, despite Bella's slim chances, despite the knowledge that it was dangerous business running a horse that fears sticky tracks.

"Break her early; try to get the jump," Johnny told Rusty. "Maybe she can hold the pace. It's a bad day to go around."

That's the way Rusty tried to play it. He did succeed in getting the jump on them at the barrier, and Bella led for almost a furlong.

On the south turn, Carolina King went by. In the backstretch two more. Johnny watched it all bleakly, feeling no surprise, nor any disappointment greater than he had experienced before. The whole Atwater season had been unfortunate for him.

Bella was running sixth at the wire.

He went down to the stables to wait for Rusty. The jock looked heart-broken. He said, "I gave her all I had, Mr. Hamilton."

"I know, Rusty. I'm quitting. I can take just so much of this kind of luck."

He drove to town. At the telegraph office he sent Goodhue a wire telling him that he was ready to sell out. Then, after considerable thought, he sent Nystrom a plan of action with instructions to follow through on the deal with Goodhue.

It was a chance shot; a crazy idea, but if his plan worked, there might be something he could save.

Kovalt didn't put in an appearance. But his trainer did, the afternoon of the next day. He had three stable hands with him.

He had a letter from Goodhue, and one from his employer. He was to pick up the horses Kovalt had chosen. Goodhue had the notes.

Challenger was the first to be led out. Then Bella, Annabella, Melody, and a few of the cheaper horses. The trainer came over to Johnny's car.

"That'll do it, Mr. Hamilton." He smiled. "I'm glad you could save something. I knew your dad; I knew him well. This isn't a pleasant task, but it's my job—for the time being."

"He isn't taking Adonis?" Johnny asked hopefully.

The man shook his head. "Not after what he learned about the colt." Then he smiled again. "There's just an off chance you may have put one over. Adonis looks fine to me. But I was told that Kovalt would do all the thinking."

They won a couple at Meadowbrook. Not much in the way of purses. And nothing that would add to the prestige of his small stable. But wins, just the same, and good for the ego. Johnny managed, during the busy days, the long nights, to keep his mind from Carol and her perfidy. But he slept very little.

At Meadowbrook he got a wire from Nystrom: "Entries close for Pioneer in two days. Will have to stay here awhile."

The Pioneer Handicap, the biggest money event of the year, would be run in California, in a month. There was only one horse in the stable Nystrom could have meant for that one. There was for that matter, only one stake horse left in the Hamilton stable—Adonis.

The entry fee was terrific, but Johnny scraped it up. Which left him down to bedrock. He explained it all to Rusty. He said, "I haven't bet a dime since we opened here, Rusty. But these kind of purses aren't going to get us to California."

Rusty agreed. "I've been thinking of Lady Luck."

Lady Luck was a five-year-old mare who'd run in a couple of $3,000 claimers that season with little success.

Johnny said, "You were thinking we could drop her down a couple of notches?"

"And bet our shirts. It's a hunch. Lady Luck doesn't really belong up there with those three grand goats, and I can do it, honest Mr. Hamilton, I can do it." The jock paused, out of breath.

"I believe you can, too," Johnny said. "But my shirt is about all I have left to bet."

He sold a horse, the chestnut two-year-old he'd hoped would develop into a winner. He got five thousand for her. He and Rusty began to look for a spot. Luck in a $2,000 claiming race for three-year-olds and older.

Political Riots Leave 3 Dead, 300 Under Arrest

Police, Soldiers Patrol Streets in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Soldiers and police patrolled the streets and blocked all roads leading to Mexico's capital city today in the wake of political riots which left at least three killed, 200 injured and another 300 under arrest.

Similar outbreaks were reported in other Mexican cities. All apparently were quelled quickly, however, and there were no indications of any deaths or injuries.

Further outbreaks were feared today. Government sources said last night's riots were only the curtain-raiser to a larger uprising by supporters of anti-government candidates running far behind in the counting of votes from Sunday's presidential elections.

The disorders ended the political peace which had reigned since the polling began.

Death Toll 15

Although there were only three known dead, official sources estimated the toll might reach 15. Thirty-two of the injured were listed as in serious condition.

Scores of United States tourists were reported affected by tear gas fired by police as the fighting swirled near the Del Prado hotel.

Gen. Leandro Sanchez Salazar, Mexico City police chief, blames "Communist students" for the bloodshed. He said they refused to disperse and threw stones at police.

The rioting began last night when police attempted to break up a "victory celebration" called by supporters of Gen. Miguel Henriquez Guzman. He is running far behind the government candidate, Adolfo Ruiz Cortines, in unofficial returns on the two-thirds of Sunday's vote so far reported.

General Henriquez claimed victory in full-page newspaper advertisements yesterday. Despite a ban on political meetings, about 1,000 supporters gathered in the belief they were hailing the next president.

Police Charge

Mounted police armed with sabres charged them when they refused to disperse. A few shots were fired. Fighting became general. Henriquez compaign leaders finally called off the demonstration to "avoid bloodshed."

Fighting broke out again in front of the presidential palace and the cathedral. Volleys of shots were fired and police laid down a heavy tear-gas barrage.

Despite Henriquez' claims, victory in the election appeared going overwhelmingly to Cortines. Unofficial and preliminary figures gave him a lead of 2,009,370 to Henriquez' 187,615. Other unofficial totals given out by the president's office were: Rightist Efrain Gonzalez Luna 63,037 and leftist Vicente Lombardo Toledano, 123,555. The final, official count begins next Sunday.

Section of Body's Largest Blood Vessel Has Been Successfully Transplanted

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania hospital disclosed today what it termed the "successful completion" of a rare operation in which a section of the body's largest blood vessel was take from a dead man and transplanted into a living person.

The vessel, the aorta, supplies blood to the body below the heart. It is about 1½ inches in diameter with walls one-eighth inch thick.

The patient, 46-year-old John Chatman, was suffering from a weakening of the wall of the aorta. The hospital said a break would have caused immediate death.

On June 25 surgeons removed the weakened section and replaced it with a three-inch section taken from the body of a 19-year-old youth who had been killed in an accident 10 days before. The section had been preserved by refrigeration.

The transplanted section of the vessel will be absorbed by the blood stream and replaced with new tissue created by his body.

Chatman, now well on the way to recovery, will shortly be released from hospital.

TAFT, EISENHOWER HEADING INTO ANOTHER BATTLE

MacArthur in Keynote Address Raps Democrats

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—Two five-star generals held the interests of the Republican National Convention today.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who wants to be the Republican nominee for President, went into the convention's second day with a psychological victory over the forces of his chief opponent, Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who was removed from his job 15 months ago as Supreme Commander in the Far East, and who then announced he was going to "just fade away" like the old soldier song, rocked the convention with his oratory in the keynote speech last night.

Given Ovation

MacArthur is not a candidate and there was no complimentary demonstration suggesting his candidacy, although delegates and spectators in the crowded stockyards amphitheatre cheered his oratory loud and long.

Eisenhower's workers, led by young Senator Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, did not even have to precipitate the fight they won on the convention floor yesterday over the disputed delegates from Texas, Louisiana and Georgia.

For a reason not explained the Taft forces brought up the hot issue, rising from the claims of Eisenhower forces that the Republican machine had prevented the popular delegate from these states, 68 of them, from selection as delegates because they were largely supported by Democrats who would turn Republican for Eisenhower.

The Taft forces, making what they claimed was a magnanimous gesture, offered a resolution which would have prevented certain of these delegates from voting on their own right to be seated as delegates.

The Eisenhower forces refused half a loaf, and in amendments moved for removal of all 68 from the privilege of voting on their own right to be seated. The Eisenhower people won a 658-to-548 victory.

Taft Confident

Pro-Eisenhower forces immediately seized on this as an indication of how the vote will go when the balloting for a candidate starts. But the Taft forces claimed the 548 are the hard core of the Taft support and will remain through enough ballots to gain the additions to give the Ohio Senator the necessary 604 votes to win.

The real meaning of the vote will not be known until the nominations Wednesday night.

The candidates do not go near the convention hall until after the nomination. Thus the delegates have no chance to be swayed by the personalities except in the meetings constantly going on in hotel rooms.

Russians Say Canadians Nice Lot But That Does Not Go For Government Says Gilmour

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russians are always careful to say Canadian people are a very nice lot, but that doesn't go for the Canadian government.

Canada comes up quite a bit these days in the Soviet press and radio commentators also talk about it considerably over the Moscow radio

There seems to be rather a fixed idea about the Canadian government, or what the commentators call: "Canada's ruling circle."

They say emphatically that these Canadians are just stooges of the U.S.A., and that they follow almost to the letter the policies (particularly foreign) of the Americans.

Note was taken here of Canada's protest to Washington of the transferring of Canadian troops to Koje Island without prior consultation.

Just A 'Manoeuvre'

One commentator scoffed at this and said it was just a "manoeuvre" on the part of Canadian officials to give the impression that they were free to do what they wanted to with their forces in Korea, whereas everyone really knew it was up to the Americans.

Much criticism has been levelled at the Canadian government recently for allowing American military units and experts into Canada's northern areas. Soviet commentators have gone so far as to say Canada is just a dependency of the U.S.A.

Month after month the Soviet press hammers away at this idea of northern bases and the arrangement whereby Canada allows it The Canadian government is also denounced for its membership in the North Atlantic Alliance.

Canada's leaders are often called "aggressive" and devoid of friendship towards the U.S.S.R.

B.C. Case

Russian newspaper readers have recently noted with what must be considerable indignation a case of what was described as a Soviet citizen being killed in Canada and the person responsible let off with light sentence. This has been played up prominently.

(The case referred to is apparently that of a Polish-born immigrant in British Columbia who died of a fractured skull after being struck by a man who objected to him speaking Polish. The assailant was convicted of manslaughter, fined and sentenced to one day in jail. On appeal by the Crown the jail term was raised to 18 months.)

The commentators have often told their readers and listeners, however, that the doings of the Canadian government do not coincide with the likes and wishes of the Canadian people.

They express the view that there are many persons in Canada friendly towards the U.S.S.R. and that better relations would exist if it were not for that Canadian government.

Labor Peer Urges Legal Action Against Red Dean For 'Germ Warfare' Charges

LONDON (AP)—A Labor peer today called on the government to take legal action against Dr. Hewlett Johnson. Almost at the same moment the self-styled "Red" dean of Canterbury was telling a press conference here he was convinced the allies are using germ warfare.

Lord Ammon, a former Labor party leader, filed a question in the House of Lords sharply attacking the dean for statements "reflecting on the conduct of British troops liable to create ill-feeling with other nations. . .and to bring the church into disrepute."

Dr. Johnson, one of the directors of the Communist Daily Worker, of London returned to-from an eight-weeks visit to Communist China. During his tour he was quoted by the Communist Chinese news agency as saying he had found "most damning" evidence of Allied germ warfare in China.

Attlee Refused Action

Eighteen months ago a similar call for government action against him was refused by former Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, archbishop of Canterbury and highest-ranking prelate in the Church of England, said no disciplinary church action could be taken against the dean for his personal opinions.

Less than 12 hours after returning to London from his Chinese trip, the "Red Dean" called a press conference today to put forward what he described as "irrefutable facts" about germ warfare.

He read a long prepared statement saying he had visited several places in north China where he claimed germ bombs had dropped on Chinese territory.

Parries Questions

The dean said he examined some of the insects in test tubes but parried all questions about them with the statement, "I am no bacteriologist."

He admitted that he had not seen anyone who had contracted any disease through germ warfare.

"Immediately after an air raid warning has sounded," he told the conference, "masses of children go out in the fields and swarm through them picking up insects with chopsticks."

"Chopsticks," he added, "are peculiarly suitable instruments for picking up germs."

He said there had been no epidemic of disease in China because of an efficient system of inoculation.

Two Children Burned to Death In Nova Scotia

BRIDGEWATER, N. S. (CP)—Two young children were burned to death today despite heroic efforts of their mother, critically burned as she tried to carry a baby from their flaming home at New Germany, 18 miles from here.

Dead are Diane, 9, and Wayne, 8, children of Mr and Mrs. Quinton Conrad.

Mrs. Conrad is in critical condition in hospital here along with a son, James, 2, whom she was carrying from the burning house when she collapsed.

On two previous trips she carried Dale, 7, and Marion, 12, from the building uninjured.

Her husband, rushing to the house from a nearby Field, suffered serious burns as he pulled his wife and son James from the house.

Geraldine, 12, was injured when she leaped from the second-storey window of the frame farm home.

Yearling Cow Moose Loses Part of Tail

POWASSAN (CP)—Stumpy, a yearling cow moose who somehow suffered cuts and the loss of all but an inch of her tail, is being cared for here by friends.

Conservation officer Bill Humphrey went to Stumpy's rescue after Charles Yates of nearby Callander reported she had been standing in a creek for three days. This was her way of keeping flies away from her wounds.

Humphrey placed a halter on her and led her to a barn owned by Clifford Campbell where her cuts are being treated. It is believed she may have been attacked by a bear.

Her future is uncertain but it is possible she might be taken to Parry Sound for exhibition.

Powassan is about 15 miles south of North Bay.

LAST CONVICTS IN REFORMATORY RIOT GIVE UP

Ten Accused of Leading Disturbance Named

GUELPH (CP)—Another night in the open behind them, some 900 prisoners buckled down to a temporary outdoor life at the Ontario Reformatory here today while repair crews worked to fix buildings damaged during the week-end's $200,000 riot.

Last traces of the disturbance petered out late yesterday when 450 surly, bedraggled prisoners were disarmed, searched and given water. Later they had a bread-and-milk supper.

The complete surrender came almost some 40 hours after the prisoners had wrecked dormitories, furniture and stores of food, clothing and equipment.

Sleeping Compound

Last night, the prisoners slept in jail compounds as they did Sunday night.

Ten men accused of leading the riots, which suddenly broke out Saturday night, gave themselves up yesterday. They stepped out of the compound ranks after their names were called. They were quickly marched to new cells.

Prison officials said charges of assault, threatening and unlawful assembly may be laid against the prisoners who instigated the break.

Earlier in the day the prisoners in the outside compounds were ordered to behave while police officers and guards searched them —20 at a time—for weapons. The search yielded a small havest of razor blades, wrenches, knives and keys.

Meanwhile Premier Frost called for punishmet of the riot leaders without making them heroes.

To Punish Leaders

He said they will receive "justice tempered with understanding" but for their misdeeds. One of the ringleaders will pay the penalty things which "appalled" him was the wanton destruction of foodstuffs.

Prisoners told reporters they had planned to take over the prison to draw attention to food grievances, treatment by guards and lack of machinery for airing complaints.

Although some guards said discipline broke down after Reforms Minister Foote insisted that no prisoner be strapped without his approval, Maj. Foote denied that the new rule was an attempt to "mollycoddle" prisoners. Three prisoners were strapped last week.

The temperature in the yard where the prisoners remain reached the 80s yesterday. Huddling under blankets in an effort to escape the broiling sun, they yelled for water.

Guards handed small paper cups to them through an opening in a

Canadians Accepting U.S. Dollar At Par Taking Financial Beating

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Should Canadians accept the United States dollar at par value when their own dollar is quoted on a higher level

Most Canadian businessmen have done so until now, but with their dollar reaching new heights at New York, there are signs today of a change.

At New York yesterday the Canadian dollar for a time hit its highest point in terms of United States funds in 19 years, reaching $1.04⅛. It dropped at the close to $1.03½.

A Canadian Press survey showed many Canadians are being forced to reassess the situation.

The problem was expressed by George Matthews, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association at Vancouver. He said: "We accepted the U.S. dollar at par until now as a goodwill gesture. But the discount has increased so sharply our members are taking too much of a financial beating."

Others, who remembered the time when Canada's depreciated dollar was accepted at par at border points, looked for ways out. The Victoria Chamber of Commerce decided yesterday to recommend that merchants wait until banks discount the U.S. dollar a full five per cent before following suit. The Ontario Hotel Association decided on a similar course last week.

A survey at that time in Toronto showed U.S. tourists could still get full value for their money.

At Ottawa the specialty shops section of the city's Board of Trade yesterday suggested that stores discount U.S. money on all sales under $5 but give full value on sales over that amount.

In Montreal, the tourist and convention bureau and the Hotel Owners Association said they no longer are urging their members to accept American funds at par.

Halifax reported that large stores accept currecy at par and absorb the loss. But some 6,000 men of a U.S. naval force there were hit for a four-per-cent discount for paper currency at restaurants and small stores. Tourists are treated like the sailors.

In the west, Edmonton's stores accepted U.S. funds at par. One big store said it will stop when the discount reaches five per cent.

A quirk of the exchange problem turned up in Ontario where a survey of border cities showed that most stores in Detroit, Port Huron, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and other places accepted the Canadian dollar at par. Only banks and a few gas stations paid the premium. Some Detroit businessmen still insisted on taking Canadian money at a discount.

Taken on 100-Mile Ride by Abductor, Suspect Arrested

Doctor Says Kidnapper Definitely a Psychopath

GODERICH (CP)—Two young girls were in hospital here today following a 100-mile ride last night with an abductor who beat them over the head with a gun after he tied and blindfolded them.

Muriel Campbell, 13, of Kitchener and Carol Parkinson, 12, of Guelph, are being treated for slight head injuries.

Kitchener police arrested a suspect about 40 years old early today at his home about 12 miles from Kitchener in Waterloo county.

Police said the two girls were swimming at Eramosa, just north of Guelph. As they came out of the water a man asked them if they would like to go for a ride and when they refused he struck them each five or six blows on the head with the barrel of a revolver and forced them into a motor car.

Police reported that the man tied and blindfolded the two youngsters and beat them during the drive. They said he tried unsuccessfully to rape the two girls.

After hours of riding, the girls were dumped on a sideroad 12 miles north of here last night.

They wandered to a farmhouse where Roderick McKenzie and his wife took them in, gave them food and phoned for medical aid and police.

Dr. Norman C. Jackson, who treated them at hospital, said their abductor was definitely a psychopath.

A psychopath is a mentally deranged person.

Mr. McKenzie said the girls were "scared kids" when they reached his farm.

"They knew it was a late-model car but that's about all, they were so scared and had been beaten so much"

He said the girls were wearing sweaters and shorts. They walked into the yard at dusk, carrying their bathing suits.

"We had no idea what had happened at first. My wife gave the girls something to eat while I called a doctor and Provincial Police.

"I had no chance to see the car from which they were dumped because they were let out on the back sideroad a half mile from here."

Hospital officials said the girls were suffering from cuts, bruises and shock.

Man Arrested Two Men Sought, For Kidnapping

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Jollymore, 28, was arrested and charged with kidnapping early today just a few hours after two young girls, missing for nine hours, were found in west-end High Park.

Police are continuing their search for two other men who are believed to have been in the car which stopped to pick up the girls, aged 9 and 12, as they played near their home.

The girls, dazed and sobbing, were found wandering about the park early today.

Search for the girls started when a playmate, who refused to go "for a ride" in the car, reported the incident. She had taken the car's licence number. The girls said the men kept them in the car until 5:30 a. m. and then left them in High Park

Heavily-Reduced Production Faces Canadian Plants

OTTAWA (CP)—Some Canadian industrial plants face heavily-reduced production if the six-week United States steel strike lasts a few more weeks, says K. S. Harris, director of the Defence Production Department's steel division.

Mr. Harris said in an interview yesterday that Canadian steel plants may be forced to curtail production next winter as an indirect result of the strike.

The effect of the U.S. tie-up may be a "national calamity" for Canada if it continues much longer, he said.

Oly about 15 per cent of normal imports of steel from the U.S. now are entering Canada.

In about four weeks, he estimated, Canadian manufacturers using U.S. components will be getting to the bottom of their stockpiles. These would include producers of automobiles, electrical equipment and machinery.

The construction industry would be hit, too, since it uses many sizes of structural steel made only in the U.S.

But Mr. Harris said the most serious long-range effect of the strike will be that developing from the concurrent tie-up of iron ore production in the U.S., on which Canada's central Canadian mills depend for their raw material.

These now are eating into their ore stockpiles while the Great Lakes shipping season—during which they bring in their winter requirements—is slipping away.

FRENCHMEN TOUR PLANTS

TORONTO (CP)—A group of 77 French government, military and industrial representatives visited here yesterday on the first leg of a six-day tour of eastern Canadian defence and industrial sites. They have just completed a study in the United States. Some flew to Sarnia to see the Polymer Rubber Corporation. The team also will visit Kingston.

Police Direct Motorists In Obeying Signs

Who believes in signs?

Apparently not many of the motorists who yesterday afternoon passed the main intersection of Front and Bridge streets with intention of making left hand turns.

Monday morning bright new signs noting that left turns were not permitted between 7 a.m. and 7 p. m. were placed in position on traffic light standards and immediately beneath the lights. But do you suppose the motorists saw the signs. Very few of the drivers gave any evidence of the fact

It was not until the traffic department stationed two officers in the middle of the intersection drawing attention to the new no left turn signs that motorists realized a new traffic regulation had gone into effect.

Huckleberry Crop Will be Short Say Vendors

Continued dry and hot weather on the huckleberry rocks in the northern districts will shorten the huckleberry crop this year, according to vendors attending the local produce market today. Huckleberries are now selling at 73c per quart and at from $2.50 to $3 per basket and vendors prophesied the price would go to $4 shortly.

Not only are there fewer berries this year, but they are smaller in size taking much longer for pickers to fill their baskets. As result many pickers are already discouraged.

What was said to be practically the last of the strawberries for the current season, were quoted at 40c per box. Montmorency cherries were $1.25 per basket and black sweet cherries up to $1.40 per basket or 30c per box.

New potatoes were quoted at Saturday's figure of $1.25 per basket and $1.75 per peck.

Police Chief Asks Co-operation Of Motorists During Holidays

With the school holiday season in full swing as a result more kiddies on the streets, Police Chief Walter Probert today asked the co-operation of motorists to drive with a bit extra care during the summer period ahead.

At the same time the chief pointed out the place for kiddies to play was in their own backyards or at city playgrounds and not on the streets.

"But even though the children use the city playgrounds they must cross streets to get back and forth from their homes it is here where the danger lies," Chief Probert said.

He went on to point out that throughout the year school guides had directed children across streets at designated points. Now, with the summer holidays, they are crossing streets at all hours and without direction from guides.

"It takes but very little extra effort for a motorist to drive with caution in built-up areas where children are liable to be playing. And that little extra precaution might well save a child's life."

We have him in our hearts.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by Uncle George and Aunt Mary. J8

ZEBEDEE. — In loving memory of our dear little grandson, George Albert Zebedee, who left us one year ago, July 8th, 1951.

We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
When all other things decay
Our love for him will still stay green and never fade away.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Grandpa and Grandma McDonell and family. J8

ZEBEDEE. — In loving memory of our dear son, George Albert Zebedee, Jr., who lost his life suddenly at Foxboro, July 8th, 1951.

Without a farewell he fell asleep,
With only memories for us to keep.
We have lost what God has gained,
One of the dearest sons the world contained.

—Ever remembered and sadly missed by Mother, Dad, sisters and brother. J8

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices showed a steady but moderate decline today in slow early afternoon stock market dealings.

Residents Take Various Means Of Beating Tropical Heat Wave

"We're having a heat wave, a tropical heat wave." The words of the old song have certainly rung true over the past three days. Officially what is happening is this: A strong southerly flow of air has kept a constant passage across southern Ontario. Tropical air at that.

Today's forecast is for sunny hot weather, clouding over about midnight tonight. The high expected today is for 90 degrees. The weather office at Trenton forecasts cooler air blowing in from the west tonight. Tomorrow is expected to be cooler with a high of 75 degrees.

The high yesterday was 87 degrees in the shade. Time of the reading was between 4.00 p.m. and 6.00 p.m. If you were in the sun you were a little warmer than that temperature.

Residents of this city had various means of beating the heat yesterday, some were successful in their endeavours and others just gave it up and sweated it out.

Margaret Stokes, clerk in a Front Street store, carried a fan around with her all afternoon. True an electric fan is a bulky piece of mechanism to lug around all day, but, as Miss Stokes says, "It's better to be tired than suffer heat exhaustion."

Mrs. Frances Dansereau, nurse in a local doctor's office didn't have to worry about beating the heat. She explained her office is cooled by a piece of machinery known as a De-humidifier.

Mrs. George Diment found the only cool place in the district. According to the housewife, underneath the big tree on her front lawn was a pleasant cool place to be. There is where she spent her afternoon.

Charlotte McGrath, switchboard operator at the Northern Electric just put up with the high temperatures. As far as she was concerned there was nothing she could do about it. Miss McGrath said she just kept plugging away.

Industrial Relations manager at the Bakelite plant, W. L. Anderson, beat the heat by keeping his eyes and mind off the thermometer. "I just kept my eyes away from the mercury," Mr. Anderson said "and sat quiet."

Billy the Monk at Smith's Coal yard is the only one who isn't complaining about the heat. According to his keeper, Billy is quite happy with this type of weather. "After all," Mr. Smith said, "he's tropical". Who isn't [illegible]

Steel Strike Causes No Layoff In Local Plants

Despite the acute shortage of steel due to the nationwide strike of steel workers in the United States, there will be no lay-offs in the immediate Belleville area an industrial spokesman said today.

The spokesman, G.A. Freeman, manager of the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company, expressed the view that his firm was possibly the largest single user of steel in Belleville.

"We have enough steel on hand for the next few weeks," he said, "and that should last until the plant is shut down for two weeks holiday early in August. If the steel strike is not settled by September the effect here will be serious."

Top Official In West Berlin Is Kidnapped

BERLIN (AP)—Dr. Walter Linse a top official of the West Berlin free Jurists, was kidnapped this morning and driven off to the Soviet zone amid a flurry of gunshots.

The head of the economics department of the Free Jurists, Dr. Linse was attacked by three men shortly after he left his home in the United States sector. He was dragged into a car which drove at high speed into the Soviet zone.

Several people who noticed the kidnapping and pursued the car were shot at.

The kidnappers threw hundreds of nails out of their car. One of the pursuing cars had to give up the chase when a tire was punctured.

When the car containing the kidnapped official reached the border the Communist peoples police raised the barrier and let the car pass. The car had a West Berlin licence plate.

The West Berlin Free Jurists is an organization of democratic lawyers which attempts to keep tabs on what is going on in eastern Germany, particularly concerning the legal rights of the population.

Earlier today, French officials announced that the Russians had nabbed one of their high officials, Jean Benoir, as he strolled along the Soviet zonal border and held him in captivity for 24 hours.

John S. Labatt Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—John S. Labatt, wealthy London brewer who was the central figure in Canada's most celebraed kidnapping for ransom, died today at his summer home at nearby Port Stanley following a heart attack.

Death came to the former president of the Labatt Brewing Company of London almost 18 years after he was kidnapped—on Aug. 14, 1934—on a deserted road near Sarnia and held for $150,000 ransom. The money was never paid and he was released on Aug. 17 after being held captive at a summer cottage in the Muskoka district 130 miles north of Toronto.

Three Convicted

Three men served penitentiary terms on charges connected with the kidnapping. Jack Bannon of Windsor and Russell Knowles of Detroit each was sentenced to 15 years. Michael McCardell, a native of Dublin, Ont., who was arrested at Crown Point, Ind., got a 12-year term. Gerald Nicholson of Windsor was given a suspended sentence on a charge of being an accessory for driving the car which brought Mr. Labatt to Toronto for his release.

Another man—David Meisner, Cincinnati bookmaker—got a 15-year sentence following his conviction on charges of abduction, detention and armed robbery. Meisner was freed after McCardell confessed that the kidnapping was carried out by himself, Bannon, Knowles and Albert Pegram. Pegram was never captured.

President of the Labatt Brewing Company at the time of the kidnapping, Mr. Labatt retained that office until 1950 when he became a director and consultant on brewing to the company his grandfather founded in 1832. He was succeeded as president by his brother, Hugh. The brothers had been active in the firm since 1900.

8 UNHURT IN CRACKUP

PUSHTHROUGH, Nfld. (CP)—Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, Royal Canadian Navy Chief of Staff, escaped with a soaking yesterday as a U.S. amphibious plane on which he was to be ferried to Halifax cracked up on the takeoff. The admiral and seven crew members took to a life raft as the plane sank after the hull split. None was injured.

Export Lumber Industry in B.C. Faces Challenge

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's export lumber industry, with world-wide markets overstocked and hit by falling prices, history, H. R. MacMillan, said in an interview here.

Mr. MacMillan, chairman of the board of the multi-million dollar MacMillan and Bloedell Ltd., one of the world's biggest lumber shippers, reviewed world conditions and disappearing markets.

"We in this business have had our ups and downs before," he said. "I know we will work out of this one."

The United States and Canada now constitute B.C.'s only two immediate major outlets for the lumber industry, Mr. MacMillan said. British merchants are in no hurry to buy. They have more than a year's supply of lumber on hand.

"There is an additional 1,250,000,000 feet of first-class lumber in Sweden, Finland, Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia, ready to ship. The British merchants would just as soon have that lumber as ours."

The once-big China market has disappeared; Japan has taken little and New Zealand is overstocked.

Mr. MacMillan said demand for B.C. lumber in the United States continued good.

"But it is an up-and-down country. It buys only three or four weeks ahead."

He said industrial techniques are being improved to provide the U.S. market with the kind of processed lumber B.C. hitherto has not produced in quantity enough to "push" on the U.S. market.

Mr. MacMillan said counter-measures are planned to restore export markets.

"We do not feel that we are ruined," he said. "The top operating firms in the industry have put millions of dollars into improving their manufacture and their sales."

Already, world markets are being ranged by Vancouver "scouts" seeking new buyers."

Republicans Told to Mend Party Quarrels

CHICAGO (AP)—Senator Styles Bridges, Senate Republican leader, told the Republican convention today it must patch up party quarrels or "almost certainly go down to defeat in November."

The veteran New Hampshire legislator appeared on the convention's second-day program along with other party leaders.

In a prepared address, Bridges delivered a scathing attack on the Democratic party. He called for a united front of Republicans, now unsettled by the close race between Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Ohio Senator Robert A. Taft for presidential nomination.

"The Republican party is beset," Bridges said, "by stormy, bitter wrangling forces. . . This party can not succeed if this bitterness remains after the convention."

He added:

"Let us heed this warning—unless the Republican party stands in a solid phalanx behind the choice of this convention for the presidency of the United States, we will almost certainly go down to defeat in November."

General Quarantine May be Lifted Within Two Weeks

REGINA (CP)—Because no new foot-and-mouth disease cases have been found in southern Saskatchewan since May 3, the general quarantine of the 21-municipality quarantined area and the 41-municipality buffer zone may be lifted within two weeks.

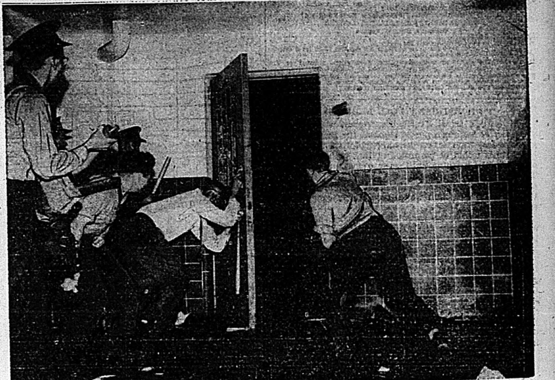
But the individual quarantines on the 28 premises where the disease was found and the 12 contact or suspected premises will be maintained after the general quarantine is lifted.

Since the disease was first diagnosed in the Regina area late in February 1,742 head of livestock have been shot and buried in the campaign to stamp out the disease

Govt. to Check Hospital Expenses

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Phillips said yesterday that the Ontario government from now on will keep a closer check of hospital expenditures. New regulations being drafted will lay down a uniform accounting system for all hospitals receiving government grants. Grants must go for the purpose for which they were intended.

Prison Guards Felt Trouble Brewi ng, but Violence Came as Surprise



At the height of the riot at the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, policemen and guards co-operate to force rebellious prisoners out of the prison buildings and into the compound. Stones thrown by the rioters make the job a dangerous one for the guards who, with one opening the door, toss smoke bombs at the crowd of inmates. Many guards and prisoners showed bruises and cuts after the riot was brought under control.

Although in failing health for some time, William James Parrish, former alderman of this city, died suddenly at his home, 30 Colborne Street, early this Tuesday morning. He died in his sleep from a heart condition.

Mr. Parrish was born in England, 69 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parrish and came to Canada in 1917. For a few years he lived in Picton but thirty-five years ago he came to this city, where he has continuously resided. For over thirty years he has been a valued member of the Public Works Department and he was well known and highly respected in this community. In 1925 he ran and was elected for Alderman. He was also past president of Oxford Lodge, Sons of England.

Man to Appear On Double Murder Charge

SLOUGH, Buckingham, Egland (CP)—Donald Neil Simon, 32, a machinist formerly of Fredericton, N.B., will appear this month at Birmingham Assizes on a double murder charge, police said today.

Simon is charged wih the shooting of his wife, Eunice Marjory, 28, and Victor Brades, 27. Brades was found dead against a wall about midnight June 21, and Mrs. Simon was lying wounded in a nearby gutter. She died later in hospital.

Mrs. Mary Pearce, mother of Mrs. Simon, testified at a preliminary hearing yesterday that Simon had said to her after the shooting:

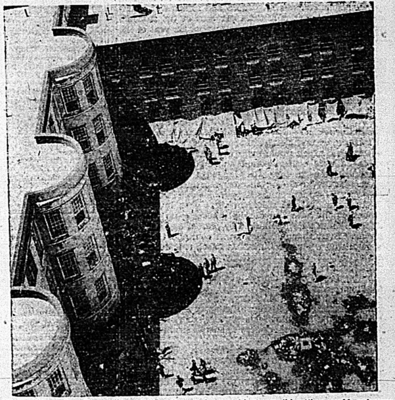
"Oh Mum, what have I done."

Prosecutor Ryland Thomas said that on June 21 Simon met his wife and Brades and told them: "None of you will get home tonight."

Thomas said Simon fired first at his wife. Brades was shot through the heart as he went forward to protect her.

The court was told that Simon and his wife had agreed to live apart because of his alleged excessive drinking. Mrs. Simon, said to have gone out several times with Brades, lived with her mother.

Police said that Simon gave his hometown as Fredericton. Although the information was not confirmed, it is understood Simon served in the Canadian Army from 1938 to 1947 with the Royal Canadian Regiment.



Having done close to a million dollars damage by wrecking everything they could, prisoners erect crude tents in their compound to protect them from the sun. By this time the guards and police had the situation under control except for a group of 200 stubborn prisoners who had cornered some food and retreated to one section of the prison and defied guards to remove them.

European Heat Wave Moves Into 11th Day

LONDON (AP)—The European heat wave moved into its 11th unrelenting day today with no relief in sight. Deaths totalled about 300.

The temperature hovered at the 100-mark at scattered points on the continet.

In western Germany more than 200 deaths were reported from heat prostration or drowning. Italy reported 33 dead, France 20.

Some of Europe's highest temperatures were in the usually-cool, mountainous countries. Both Norway and Austria recorded 104 degrees.

Britain remained comparatively cool.

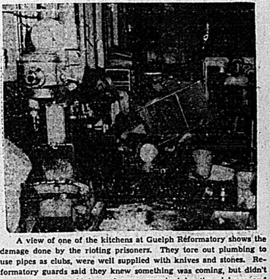
Union and Rail Officials Meet For Negotiations

MONTREAL (CP)—Union representatives of 125,000 railway workers and officials of Canadian railways opened negotiations here yesterday on a new collective agreement to become effective Sept. 1 next.

The unions, whose strike two years ago halted Canada's railways for nine days, want an increase of 45 cents an hour plus a bonus, calculated at one cent an hour for each one-point rise in the official cost-of-living index. They also ask a union shop and a check-off of union dues.

The meetings, being held in private, are expected to continue for several weeks.

A joint company statement Friday said the 45-cent increase would cost the two principal companies—the Canadian National Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway—$150,000,000 a year. If non-union groups were included, cost would be $167,000,000 a year, they said.



A view of one of the kitchens at Guelph Reformatory shows the damage done by the rioting prisoners. They tore out plumbing to use pipes as clubs, were well supplied with knives and stones. Reformatory guards said they knew something was coming, but didn't know what it would be and were surprised by the violence and obvious planning of the revolt. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

POLICE BLOTTER

An Oshawa motorist, Peter D. Youngson, had his wardrobe seriously depleted when his car was entered while parked overnight in the parking lot of a local hotel. Youngson told police that the no-draft ventilator of his car had been forced with one complete suit, two jackets and two pairs of trousers being stolen from the car.

Argosy Carriers, 101 Station Street, complained that four new auto tires had been stolen from one of their stake body trucks.

PEDESTRIANS' FOES REDUCED

Belleville's Great Traffic Experiment was launched yesterday as workmen posted signs at the Bridge Street - Front Street intersection warning motorists that no left hand turns would be permitted at that point from seven o'clock in the morning until seven o'clock in the evening. This action follows a recommendation of the city's traffic committee to the council in the belief that enforcement of the left-hand turn ban would ease traffic congestion in the city.

On hand yesterday to watch the Great Experiment in action was Inspector J. C. Hayes, of the city police department, who observed that many motorists negotiated left-hand turns despite the signs.

Summing up, he said: "If you speak to these people or give them a ticket, they think you are a bum."

However, after motorists have had an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the Great Experiment, it is expected that the regulations will be observed. Meanwhile, the pedestrian crossing this intersection is given a fifty-fifty break because his fight for survival will be reduced since his adversaries will be limited to those motorists who turn right on a red light.

With familiarization and co-operation, the Great Experiment should be a boom to the city's traffic needs.

ENGLISH CHANGES, TOO

The English department at McGill University in Montreal is reported to be in a tizzy because of the low standard of English composition among the freshmen group. To bring these freshmen up-to-date on English, special instruction was introduced and subsequent examinations reveal that only three per cent of the students received first class marks, while twenty-six per cent of the students flunked.

The English professor lamented that "there is no denying that the amount of sloppy English among students is very distressing."

The educator traced his "distress" to the fact that students find it possible not to study formal grammar and syntex and that students in high schools are shunning good books in favor of movies, comic books and radio.

Perhaps the professor is right. But the prime function of any language, including English, is to express an idea simply and clearly. For example, the expression "not so hot," which would make educators shudder if the expression were confronted on an English examination paper, was sneaked into the language by Wm. Shakespeare. Yet, who among the educators would tell Bill Shakespeare his English was sloppy?

An author of best sellers in years gone by, Charles Dickens, might have had difficulty keeping up with the current literary pace established by present day top-flight authors. Even though Dickens will continue to live as the man who wrote the Christmas Carol, it is doubtful if he could market Oliver Twist today. Classics of their era, as Huckleberry Finn and Robinson Crusoe and others are beginning to ebb in popularity because readers' habits are changing.

Similarly, Thomas Macaulay, who achieved undying fame as author of a five-volume History of England, would have been told to tighten his phrases, shorten his 700-odd word paragraphs if he were to submit his manuscript to a publisher today.

As it does on all things, time leaves an imprint on the language, too. The rules of grammar are constantly under review and what is accepted today is rejected tomorrow. Witness the success of Damon Runyon who really clubbed the English language. Yet his works were widely read and there is a chance that Runyon, in his way, may have influenced the present crop of writers.

Grammar and syntex are important, but if students can leave the university possessed of the ability to think straight and express their ideas clearly and accurately, it should lessen the "distress" of the McGill professor.

WHY HURRY?

Modern progress does peculiar things.

Take, for example, the recent Atlantic crossing of the ultra-modern United States, the last letter in luxury travel, which raced across the ocean at record speed, shearing ten hours off a record set a few years ago by the Queen Mary.

Somehow we can think of no better way to enjoy an extended holiday than as a passenger aboard one of these posh ships. The food is excellent, the cabins leave nothing to be desired and the swimming pool and games which may be enjoyed on deck would make the stay a memorable vacationer's paradise.

But what do they do? After the best brains have plotted and planned to provide this luxury aboard ship, another group of wise guys go to work on the engines to show what they can do. And they do it, too, coming up with a power plant which pushes the huge craft through the water much too fast and thereby shortening the enjoyment of those who went for the ride. Is that progress?

WEDDING

Out of the church they ran,
No longer maid and man.
Henceforth to be through life
Together — husband, wife.

Divided two families sat.
Hers this side, his on that.
Henceforth as time moves on
To share their hopes as one.

This is what weddings do:
The rites uniting two
Join with the solemn oath
The families of both.

Out of the church they came;
She to assume his name.
Two families to share
All they will have to bear.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DANGERS IN EDUCATION

A young man who has spent a number of years working among college students—and who has been unusually successful—was making his final address before leaving to assume another position. With great conviction he stated that it is possible for men and women to go through colege today and retain their Christian faith but that it is not probable that they will do so. He spoke of the classroom influences which often lead young people to forsake the faith of their childhood and henceforth regard it as naive superstition. He dwelt on the social pressures which are so overwhelming that multitudes of young people are during college years inducted into moral habits which render the living of a Christian life impossible.

Is education worth while? It certainly is, and both parents and children should sacrifice to the utmost to make a high degree of education possible. Education has become so secular and the homes from which many young college people come have become so worldly that it takes will power and the grace of God given without measure to get young people through college today without permanent damage to their future moral life.

The risk is worth taking. Courage demands that it must be taken, but the dangers are so great that both parents and children should realize these dangers before the college course begins.

CALCIUM DEPOSITS FOLLOW DISEASE OR INJURY

Driving through days of rainy weather the windshield wiper failed, so I had to work it with my right arm. In consequence I suffered bursitis in the right shoulder and cried with the pain of it until the doctor came and gave me a shot or two of morphine, I suppose it was. In the course of several weeks I made a complete recovery, with no limitation of function.

A year later I sustained a fracture of the left shoulder in an automobile collision. The X-ray man made films of both shoulders for comparison, and found the bursa in right shoulder calcified. The shoulder has given no trouble whatsoever since the bursitis. Whether that bursa is still calcified I don't know or care. But my experience goes to show that a bursa may be calcified although there is no trouble whatever.

The deposit of calcium (calcification) in the bursa was the consequence of the bursitis.

It is my opinion—and don't forget, I'm not an authority on anything except maybe, well, never mind—that a deposit of calcium or calcareous material in any part of the body is the consequence, and not a cause, of the arthritis, bursitis, rheumatiz, hardening of the arteries or other pathological condition which may be ascribed to it.

So far as the rheumatiz or arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) is concerned, I believe I am fending off both conditions when I take my daily ration of calcium and vitamin D as a supplement to my regular diet, which, like the diet of most Americans is probably deficient in these essentials of good nutrition and vite.

I am indeed sorry for people who are training for the rheumatiz but not enjoying the prophylactic effect of supplementary calcium and vitamin D because, poor souls, they have Ben Told it will cause calcium deposits in their joints. I am especially sorry for them if Ben Told is a doctor by trade. It seems to me that a medical student or a physician with even an elementary knowledge of pathology would demand some sort of scientific foundation for the morbid notion. Moreover, the dairy interests should inquire into the question, for who is going to eat milk, cheese and eggs, the best food sources of calcium, if calcium is "deposited" in the joints and arteries, as the old timers would have us think?

If any medical student, physician, pathologist or physiologist has any information or even a plausible theory to support the notion that a "deposit" of calcium can occur in tissues that have not already degenerated, I hope he or she will enlighten me. It is his or her duty to do so, if my teachings about this are not correct.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EATING COMPANIONS

I am never happy eating alone. From the expression on the faces of those whom I see eating alone in public places, they must feel as lonely and deserted as I feel when dining alone. Good companionship while eating is almost a must.

Nourish your body with food, while happily engaged in good talk with companionship with some friend, and that food will strengthen the body and give glow to the mind. No one should ever eat when in an unhappy mood, and eating alone should be reduced to a minimum!

There is a small handfull of friends with whom it is always a delight for us to dine. Those with tastes and interests that are akin to ours. I often read of Colonial days when the jolliest of places were the old inns where the stage coaches stopped and there was an atmosphere all about that cheered the loneliest of travellers. There was a welcome of warmth offered to all.

When you dine with a delightful companion you do double service to both your body and mind. Atmosphere means so much in an eating place, too. In pleasant surroundings, with courteous attendants, and attractively prepared food, you get the utmost of dining joy. The choice of a dining place is always important. And the type of person with whom we dine has much to do with our happiness as well as our friend's.

Dining with someone whose mind stimulates your own, and whose personality inspires you, does not call for an expensive eating place, noted for its celebrities. Rather does it call for a small, quiet place where good food is served and where one can feel most at home.

We can fit our moods to certain friends of ours when we invite them to adventure with us at the restaurant of our choice. And we can plan out our happy talk in advance. It may be on people, the wonders of nature, or books. Certainly upon some topic, however, of mutual interest. And what an adventure dining with a friend can prove to be!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We still snort at the gewgaw style of furniture and ornamentation of the Victorian era— the whatnots, the bric a brac, the tawdry china vases, the almost loony elaboration of every article of wood, metal or clay, as if the artists who designed them and the craftsmen who made them got going and couldn't stop.

Our present functional era in art and design is likely to inspire similar snorts of derision from the up-coming generation. If you have lately tried to buy a table lamp or bridge lamp, either for living room or bedroom, you must have been sorely puzzled and baffled. Except for the most expensive lamps, which have simplicity and modesty of design, the general run of these articles bear evidence of an increasing anxiety neurosis on the part of our present day designers. They sem unable to stop. They start playing with a design, and them go haywire. They appear to be incapable of making something plain and leaving it alone. If they do achieve a simple attractive lamp, they have to put a gold filligree around the bottom of it. If they arrive at an almost acceptable modernistic design, they ruin it by a sudden, impulsive jag, dab, twist or squish. The lamp department of a big store will give you the fairly clear impression that our present day industrial designers are heading into the same dilemma the late Victorians got into. We may be on the verge of a new Victorian era.

The Pioneers of what we call modern design tried with all their might to express the thought that simplicity in relation to function was the essence of art. It may be true. Probably it was true, at the time. But back of all artists, even back of the Picassos and the Russel Wrights, stand the promoters and and manufacturers, not one or two of them but hundreds of them, all competing, all trying to be newer, different, smarter. Dear old Victoria, here we come! We will be faithful to you, in our fashion.

What Made "The Little Woman" a Tough Critic? and why that means
Better Living— for Everybody!

Today's home-maker is a shrewd buyer, an informed critic of everything she buys. She knows values better than her mother or grandmother ever did. When it comes to food, she buys wisely to obtain the greatest nutrition yield and menu variety for every dollar. Textiles and clothing she judges as carefully, gauging workmanship, wearing qualities. She is an expert buyer.

Advertising helped make the "Little Woman" what she is today. Through the advertising pages of her newspaper she is informed of the qualities of goods offered for sale. The advertising messages strive to give her the facts that guide her buying. Advertising helped make her an expert buyer. Now, advertising must work all the harder to continue answering her demands for facts before buying.

Information makes the big difference in the buying performance of today's home-maker. We live better because we set high standards on everything we buy. Manufacturers of goods, merchants who sell those goods—all of them must meet our high standards because we know how good the things we want can be. Today, nobody need buy a pig in a poke.

Information is the force of advertising. Scan the advertising columns of this paper, and you'll find them packed with information that makes intelligent buyers of all of us. It adds up to better living that surpasses the dreams of a generation ago.

Because of advertising appearing regularly in its pages, this newspaper is aware that the service it performs for its readers is far greater and much more valuable than it could otherwise be.

WEDDINGS

ARNOLD—TAYLOR

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 5th, by the Rev. Laurie Price, at Calvary Temple, Dundas Street, Belleville, when Vivian Hilda Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Taylor, of Belleville, became the bride of Ralph Malcolm Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arnold, of Deseronto.

The bride was attended by Miss Mildred Taylor, and the bridegroom by Mr. William Hunt.

Following a honeymoon, they will reside in Deseronto.

GENEREAUX—BADOUR

St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church, Tweed, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, June 14th, at 8:00 a.m., when the Rev. Dean J. Shannon, assisted by the Rev. Guy Gartland, S.A. Franciscan Friar of the Atonement, Greymour Garrison, New York, united in marriage Dora Bernice Badour, of Tweed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Badour, to Donald Wilfred Genereaux, of Cloyne, Ontario, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Genereaux.

Sister Mary Carmel Rose rendered the traditional wedding music, and accompanied a choir of six girl friends who sang, "Ave Maria", and other selections appropriate to the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal floor-length gown of powder blue nylon featuring a fitted, strapless bodice and bolero of brocaded nylon, and bouffant skirt. She wore a matching Dutch cap of lace and matching lace mitts, and carried a shower bouquet of white gardenias, white carnations and yellow Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Leo O'Coin, of Tweed, sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride, gowned in shell pink silk, trimmed with white lace, and carrying a nosegay of bronze and orchid tinted roses with blue corn flowers.

Mr. Edward Badour, of Tweed, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, the wedding breakfast was held for the immediate families at Hotel Tweedsmuir, Tweed. Later, at the home of the bride's parents, fifty guests were received by the bride's mother, gowned in mauve crepe with white accessories and wearing a corsage of white gardenias and white feathered carnations. Mrs. Freemor O'Coin, aunt of the bridegroom, assisted, wearing black silk crepe, white accessories and corsage of white gardenias and white feathered carnations.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. Guy Gartland, of Greymour Garrison, N.Y.

Following the reception, the young couple left for a short honeymoon to Kingston, Thousand Islands, and Buttermilk Falls, the bride travelling in a white satin dress, with white accessories and corsage of red Bettertime roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Genereaux will reside near Cloyne, Ontario.

Out-of-town guests present were from, Belleville, Oshawa, Bobs Lake, Read, Marysville, Sulphide, Kaladar and Greymour, New York.

Betty Mitchell Praises Progress Of Drama Groups

Interviewed on her way to Europe for several months, she praised the progress of drama groups in Alberta. One of her "explosions" was the famous Workshop 14, a group made up of her graduate students from Western high school where she has taught since 1936. The Workshop group has won the Alberta regional drama festival six times out of seven.

Though it has yet to come out tops in the Dominion festival, in which it has competed five times, Workshop 14 took the awards in 1951 for best actress, best supporting actress and best set design.

Alberta Pioneer

Miss Mitchell thinks Alberta is a pioneer in using drama in the high school curriculum. She says high school is the best time to instill an interest in the theatre as either hobby or career.

"Once a person gets out of school and into business," she explained, "if he has not learned the basic things of drama, it's much more difficult for him to do so."

Miss Mitchell estimates that 30 ex-members of Workshop 14, formed eight years ago, now are in radio or theatre jobs in Toronto, New York and Hollywood.

The group is housed in the loft of a barn beside a graveyard in Calgary. The members plan to have the barn painted and furnished by the time Miss Mitchell returns from Europe, where she will spend the next year studying and observing theatre techniques.

Clothes to Suit Your Own Type

Study the stars for fashion tips. A movie glamor gal like Elizabeth Threatt knows simple styles favor her exotic looks.

By HELEN FOLLETT

SOME women have a most unfortunate way of selecting unbecoming clothes. Others hit the sartorial bull's eye every time and always appear chic and sassy. It all depends upon whether one has developed the dress sense or not. It is important to know what type you are, to understand the effect of color and line. There are always pitfalls in new fashions for many of us—especially the over-plump gals—and the only way to avoid them is to know what you can and cannot wear.

Certain dress offerings will be ideal for the woman who is long-waisted, fatal to the one who is short-waisted. What about your equator? Have you ever thought about its placement and what it does to your figure? The short-waisted woman should wear her belt low, see to it that the upper portion of her bodice in the back doesn't bulge.

If your waistline is low you should not tolerate extra hip inches. Get busy and do some rolling on the floor. You can roll those fat cells away. You'd better be wary of frocks that have hip fulness, too.

Study your build. Make your rules and stick to them. Fashions may change in clothes but basic principles never do. Don't let a smart saleswoman talk you into buying something that you know will not flatter you.

When going to the movies, observe the stars of the screen. Hollywood has become a fashion centre during the last decade; some of the most ravishing ideas in dress have originated there. Pretties of the movies have the best professional attentions when it comes to frocks, hats, shoes, all the little details that make up the composition of the lady of fashionable appearance.

YOUNG COUPLE HONORED

Prior to the wedding the young couple were entertained at the Sunday School rooms one evening, and members of the community presented them with many useful and beautiful gifts. The groom responded fittingly for the bride and himself and thanked all for their kindness.

The hostess and her assistants served delightful refreshments which brought the evening to a close.

Presentation

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reddick celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Tuesday, July 1st. The occasion was marked by a family gathering in the evening. On Wednesday evening, after the regular weekly euchre, which was held at Mrs. Mabel Russell's, the friends of the honored couple presented them with a handsome set of luggage. They were greatly surprised and pleased and expressed themselves in a becoming manner.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Vanderwater celebrated their 51st. wedding anniversary, Wednesday, June 25th., in a quiet manner at home. All are proud of couples who have reached the golden mark of their life together and congratulate them both, and wish them health and happiness in the years to come.

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Raspberry Jam Session

These be three cogent things (about raspberries): (1) fresh in pie they are tops, (2) than which there is no better jam and (3) for me they tie with strawberries for shortcake.

There is a great stir amongst you readers about best methods of making raspberry jam. Some of you are having trouble with it fading; others say their raspberry jam ferments.

I am giving you the standard method of making raspberry jam; the method taught in Home Economics classes across the land, and basically the method used by manufacturers of pure jams. (Please don't waste your precious fruit and sugar by following old-fashioned methods that claim raspberry jam will keep without cooking.)

RASPBERRY JAM (Standard Method)

(This will answer Mrs. E. J. P., Mrs. Mabel Q., and the others who have written to me about raspberry jam in the past two weeks.)

Four quarts are plenty to handle in one batch. Gently wash 4 quarts choice fresh raspberries. As you wash each quart crush it with potato masher in bottom of heavy preserving kettle. Measure. Bring to boil, and gently simmer for 15 minutes. If you had 8 cups berries when you measured them add 6 cups sugar; (otherwise figure 3-4 cup sugar to each 1 cup of crushed uncooked berries.) Bring to boil and boil to jam stage.

To test for jam stage: remove kettle from heat, dip a teaspoon of jam from it onto cold saucer, and chill this quickly. If jam does not set to desired thickness boil a few minutes longer and test again. Jam thickens considerably on second day so allow for this.

Pour hot jam into sterilized jars, leaving 1-4 inch space at top. Cover with double coating of paraffin—one at once and one when cool. Put on cover and store in cool place.

JULY JAM

Wash 2 cups each gooseberries, red currants (stemmed), raspberries, and 3 cups unpitted cherries. Pit cherries and mix all fruits when prepared. Crush in preserv-kettle and bring to boil and boil uncovered for 15 minutes, gently. Add 4 cups sugar, bring to a boil and boil uncovered to jam stage—about 10 to 12 minutes. Pour and seal as for raspberry jam above. (The cherries in this stay quite firm and it is a great favorite.)

Now would you like to hear how an old raspberry pie hand makes hers?

EMEM'S RASPBERRY PIE (fresh)

(Who's fresh?)

This gives you a filling for a large 10-inch 2-crust pie. Prepare the glaze first. Mix together 1 cup sugar and 3 tablespoons cornstarch (use 4 tablespoons if pie is to be used within 2 hours of baking). Stir slowly into them 1 cup hot water plus 2 tablespoons. Stir over boiling water until thick. Add about 10 drops red food coloring and 1-8 teaspoon salt. Let cook five minutes covered, stirring once. Pour this hot glaze over 4 cups washed and drained raspberries in bowl and let stand while you make pastry for 2 crusts. Pour filling into pastry-lined pie plate that has been sprinkled with 2 tablespoons sifted dry bread or cracker crumbs. Seal well-gashed top crust to edges. Brush top crust with mixture of 1 tablespoon each sugar and milk. Bake 40 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. Do not cut this pie until it is cooled to room temperature — preferably 4 or 6 hours after baking.

For raspberry shortcake use biscuit shortcake same as you do for strawberry shortcake. Do not crush berries but when stirring sugar into them use less sugar than you would for strawberries.

Write me enclosing stamped self-addressed envelopes, if you want more raspberry know-how in a hurry.

TAFT, EISENHOWER

But their workers do the spellbinding for them and the Eisenhower orators in yesterday's scrap seemed to have the edge from every point of view.

MacArthur, not quite the dazzling figure in mufti that he presented in his war togs, was eloquent and impressive in his keynote speech. He is for Taft and there has been considerable questioning about the selection of a keynoter so strongly committed in advance to a candidate for nomination. He never

Criticizes Ike

But the general did make an indirect attack on Eisenhower when he criticized the war policy which left Russia in such a strong position in Europe.

"We practically invited Soviet dominance over the free peoples of eastern Europe through strategic disposition of Soviet force at the close of the European war," he said.

"We foolishly permitted the encirclement of Berlin by Soviet forces, rendering almost inevitable the tragically high cost we have had to pay to force open lines of supply and communication between our zones of occupation there and in West Germany."

Eisenhower and Taft headed toward another clash over delegate contests today. The big convention seemed triggered to explode over a Credentials Committee report on the seating of 93 delegates from seven states, most of them Taft backers.

Of these, the 68 from Georgia, Louisiana and Texas were barred from voting on any seating contests until their own status is decided finally.

Controls Committee

Although Taft was beaten on that issue he bounced back to capture control of the convention's Credentials Committee. This group named former representative Ross Rizley of Oklahoma, a Taft backer, as chairman.

Some Eisenhower leaders feared the committee would bring back to the convention—possibly today but more likely tomorrow—a report giving the Ohio Senator the bulk of the contested delegates. They promised a bristling floor fight in that event.

Eisenhower and Taft leaders were revising their strategy as a result of the 658-to-548 vote on the rules change.

The latest Associated Press tabulation of delegates gives Taft 534, Eisenhower 429, other candidates 131 and leaves 112 uncommitted. A total of 604 is needed for election.

ripped screen. Each contained about a mouthful of water.

Some Faint

Several older prisoners fainted from the heat and thirst and were promptly evacuated from the area by guards. When a few of the younger prisoners tried to act out heat prostration they were severely dealt with.

The riot broke out about 8 p.m. Saturday when prisoners returning from their evening sports period slugged a guard and armed themselves with tools, baseball bats, chair arms and metal bed legs.

From there they ran rampant through the reformatory wrecking everything in sight.

Guards and hastily-summoned police reinforcements quelled the main disturbance with fire hoses and tear gas early Sunday, but not until after the prisoners had left the reformatory a wreck.

After guards fired warning shots over the rioters' heads, the prisoners began the destruction of their quarters. They smashed windows, tore clocks off walls, shattered a glass partition separating prisoners from visitors in an interview room, wrenched toilets from the floor and converted the plumbing fittings into weapons.

The men destroyed much of their sports equipment. They raided the band locker and ruined nearly all the instruments except a bugle on which a musical rioter kept playing snatches of "come to the cookhouse door."

Wreck Kitchen

In the kitchen they wrecked large stoves and refrigerators, tore radiators off the walls, broke crates of eggs and poured cans of food into a general mess.

They set fire to piles of bedding and blankets. They hurled chunks of plaster and pieces of broken chairs at guards and police. They heaved out hymn books and Bibles.

HOUSING No. 19-A

GOVERNMENT SAYS NO TO CANADA'S MAYORS

The appeal in Convention of Canada's Mayors to Ottawa for assistance to stimulate Housing was turned down flat. The appeal being in the nature of a suggestion of non-confidence in government policy to date must of necessity have been refused. However, if the Government policy had been endorsed and accepted in principle and a careful analysis submitted at the same time showing clearly in detail in what particulars and in what manner the N.H.A. and C.M.H.C. financial assistance could be improved to assist the builder and submit a weight of evidence in support of such proposals. It is inevitable that good would come from the effort.

A broad, open appeal leaves the Government in the dark. Any remedial measures it might introduce might not and most probably would not meet with general approval.

The real wants of the people must be agreed upon first and only after long and thorough investigation, analysis and consultation, should any submission to the Government be made by any body, and, with the submission, an unanimous endorsement of the detailed modifications asked for.

MAYORS ASKED FOR
"More direct measures to stimulate Housing"

The Prime Minister's answer was in effect—that the N.H.A. is the most practical way in which the government can assist.

In this we must agree. But there appears to be more unsaid than spoken.

The N.H.A. is generally a good act but like any Act drawn up in a hurry at a particular time and to deal with an existing situation, it needs to be revamped to keep its good and effectiveness.

It might have been pointed out in detail its insufficiencies and with the weight of the appeal of the Mayors in Conference the Prime Minister could not have side-tracked the issue by pointing to the N.H.A. as the way.

Yes, let me say again. It is the way, but it is just now too tough. It needs smoothing out.

One important fact municipalities have had put squarely before them is that for immediate assistance they must look to the Provincial Governments.

Our provincial government can help tremendously.

1. Revamp the Planning and Development Act to restore to Municipalities their independence and authority over their particular fields of endeavor.

2. Overhaul our educational set up. It is too costly and government policy is not helping. It is forcing us into bankruptcy.

3. Assist land servicing and improvement for all its worth, but leave ownership and control with the Municipalities.

It is not true that municipalities as such should not approach Ottawa with regard to Housing.

The N.H.A. contrary to the reply by the Fed. Govt. to Canada's Mayors, is not provincial. The C.M.H.C. is not provincial. This Act and the C.M.H.C. have failed to meet the demand in Housing for various reasons. And it is to Ottawa the Municipalities must appeal for the needed modifications in law and procedure.

The Prime Minister pointed to the N.H.A. as the government's best assistance, but all across Canada people have been pointing out the defects in it.

The Mayors of Canada have made a good suggestion — a round table conference, and let us have it, even if the party with all the boodle stays away.

PETES WILL STAY!

If you hear any rumors on the street that the Peterborough Petes baseball club has "folded" for the season, put it down to so much balderdash. The story emanated from a report that the Petes had cancelled their game with Kingston last night, and were holding a meeting to discuss the parting of the ways.

The truth of the matter is that the Petes had made arrangements some time ago to postpone last night's tilt with the Monarchs and the aforementioned meeting was held to talk over ways and means of securing more players before the July 15th deadline.

A telephone report from Petes headquarters yesterday revealed the club has no intention of striking its tents and "folding" for the season. Far from it. The Petes, now under new management, demonstrated they have ability with that 8-1 defeat of Stan Scrutton's Monarchs and with a few additions here and there will give both the Monarchs and Redmen a smart run for the money.

The scheduled game between the Redmen and Petes will be played tomorrow night, and the Liftlockers, inspired by their victory over Kingston will be a-questing for another at the expense of the Redmen.

Incidentally the proposed exhibition game between the Oshawa Generals and the Redmen has been postponed indefinitely since it has been learned that the Oshawans discovered they had made previous arrangements with another club on the date mentioned. The home-and-home series will be played later in the season, perhaps in the OBA playdowns. Quien sabe?

READY FOR PLAYOFFS-

With the end of the schedule in sight and important playoffs and playdowns looming on the horizon, teams of the Belleville District Softball League are girding their loins for whatever the softball gods have in store for them.

Close hard-fought battles are anticipated when the squads buckle down to the task of grabbing playoff spots with various trophies waiting at the end of the trail.

The official schedule ends on Saturday, July 12th, and according to Prexy Don Lee, next week will likely be taken up in catching up with postponed and rained-out games and in general, squaring away for the city and OASA playoffs.

The Glen Roy juniors, current loop-leaders, automatically enter the OASA junior "A" playdowns and will hook up with Kingston, Peterborough or Oshawa, likely the former. Six squads will battle it out for the Bill Ott Trophy emblematic of the city softball title. These include Glen Roy, CNR "AA", Northern Electric, Belleville Motor Car, Crawfords Metals and Point Anne.

In the Intermediate "A" series the Ox Pointers and CNR "A" will tangle for the "A" championship, and will meet again in the OASA playdowns.

Northern, BMC, Crawfords and CNR "AA" will tangle for the Labatt Trophy and the right to represent the city in the Intermediate "AA" playdowns.

The RCAF and Frankford will enter the Intermediate "B" playdowns and likely will be pitted against each other in the first round. Wooler will enter Intermediate "C" although it is reported the village team may go in the "B" series.

Two batting trophies will be presented again this year. These include the Pellar Trophy for the leading hitter of the "A" section and the Conger-Lehigh Trophy for the top slugger in the "AA" division.

ANOTHER WAR STARTS

Don't look now, but guess who's coming Friday!

It should be the wrestling battle of the century including those free-for-alls that livened the trio of meetings twixt Whipper Watson and Lord Layton. This time it should be even better.

It will be the Klip versus the Kraut.

Yup, that's it. None other than Lord Athol Layton, who will toss his clips at Hans Hermann, German sensation from Hannover in the Deutschland, Ja?

Now there's a set-up that should tickle the spleen of the most lackadaisical of the faithful. Holman, one of the roughest toughies to squash a mosquito in these parts will pit his "Prussian Squeeze" against the vicious judo clips of the Briton in a scale-model replica of the Battle of the Marne, the Dunkirk retreat and possibly that estaminet brawl in Festubert when the sergeant major refused to tivvy up his weekly vin rouge bill and the gendarmes moved in. Ah, that was a battle.

And as a special attraction Fred Atkins, hardrock Aussie, and popular Ray Villmar will renew their feud but this time with a 45-minute limit. Lou Petrocia, will meet Jack Pesek in the opener.

DOTS 'N' FLASHES

Franz Grandame, chairman of the minor baseball division requests that all minor player certificates be in the hands of Tom Lewis before July 12th. This is necessary in order to complete arrangements for OBA playdowns . . . Glen Roy juniors meet RCAF at Alemite Field tonight in a scheduled BDSL game . . . Aside to Court Miller:—"Yuh aint seen nuthin' yet, bub". That pictured gal also tried the Catalina swim, and will likely turn up as Miss Zwick's Island . . .

British Athletes Get 'Airlift'

LONDON (AP)—Nine flights spread over 13 days will carry 321 athletes and officials to Helsinki to represent Britain in the summer Olympic Games.

The British Olympic Association announced the full squad today, along with details of what it called the "British Olympic Airlift."

The first flight of 44 men will leave July 11. It will include the field hockey team, the rowing squad and five officials. The last plane will leave London July 27. The first return load will leave Helsinki July 24, only five days after the games open. The games run from July 19 through Aug. 3.

The Olympic Association announced yesterday that appeals for public funds totalled more than 59,000 pounds, with some still to be counted.

Veteran's Wiles and Iron Jaw Too Much for Eager Rookie; May Fight Again Within Year

By JACK HAND

That's the situation today as the Cuban Keed looks for new worlds to conquer after his 11th-round technical knockout over 21-year-old Turner last night at Municipal Stadium.

Al Weill, International Boxing Club matchmaker, went to work on a future schedule for the 147-pound champ.

Rematch—Maybe

There is talk of a rematch with Turner—in a year or so.

Turner was running about even with Gavilan last night when he ran into the furious 11th-round barrage. Both judges Charley Daggert and Lou Tress had it 5-5 after 10 rounds and referee Pete Tomasco had the Cuban out front 6-4. The Associated Press card showed Gavilan leading 5-4-1 going to the last round.

Coming into his big test as an unbeaten fighter with 25 knockouts in 31 straight wins, Turner paid the penalty of over-eager youth. In time he may be able to cope with the wiles and iron jaw of Gavilan, but not yet.

After setting a blazing early pace, Turner ran into trouble in the fifth when Gavilan hurt him with a flurry inspired by a patented bolo right Turner was penalized the round by referee Tomasco for a low blow but it was only a formality. Gavilan won the round from here to Havana.

After the fifth, Turner slowed his furious pace. Gavilan, more sure of himself, was able to make the Philadelphia kid fight his fight. The Cuban champ took the lead only to have frantic flurries by Turner force him to bide his time.

In the 10th it seemed Gavilan couldn't miss with a left hook. Time after time they thudded home on Turner's wide open jaw. Still young Gil surged back with a round-ending flurry. But the end was in sight.

Last Rally Fails

Coming out for the 11th, Turner shot the works in one last-gasp effort. It failed. Driving home counter hooks, Gavilan smothered the rally. Pressing Turner against the ropes, he rattled punch after punch off Gil's chin as the youngster sagged on rubbery legs. Referee Tomasco stopped it at 2:47 of the 11th.

Few in the crowd of 39,025 that paid a record welter gate of $269-677 disagreed although Turner, 11-to-5 underdog, had solid betting support from his home town. Even Turner agreed that the ref was right. Only his manager, George Katz, objected

The simple facts were that Turner was in over his head with the experienced 26-year-old champ. The 15-round route was a little too much. If it had been a 10-rounder, Turner might have won.

Weight made no difference. Gavilan at 146 to Turner's 144 was in his best condition in months.

Fain in Lead American League Batting Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Ferris Fain of Philadelphia Athletics, showing one of the most remarkable form reversals in recent years, is back on top in the American League batting race, a spot he held at the close of the 1951 season.

Going hitless in his first 21 trips to the plate this year and unofficially traded to New York Yankees, Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers many times, Fain has battled his way back to hold the No. 1 position with a .336 average.

Fain, with 12 hits in 28 times at bat, picked up 13 points last week to wrest the lead from Al Rosen, Cleveland third baseman. Rosen dropped to third with a .330 average.

Although he lost three points to .333, Stan Musial continues at his familiar top rung in the National League, nine points better than one point, at .335.

Vic Wertz, slugging outfielder of Detroit Tigers, is the A. L.'s home run leader with 16.

Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn second baseman, dropped to third from his National League runerup spot of last week. Jackie collected only six safeties in 27 trips for a 12-point drop to .315.

Sport in Brief

The Canadian Olympic rowing team in Finland needs three racing craft in a hurry. The three shells sent from Canada have been "irreparably damaged" in transit. Kenneth Farmer, general manager of the Canadian team, said yesterday in Montreal he had received word from Goeteborg, Sweden, that the boats were damaged at sea in heavy weather.

Coach George Trafton said it was going to be rough in Winnipeg Blue Bombers' workouts this season. But even he didn't know how rough. Trafton was injured yesterday in a practice while holding a tackling dummy. His foot got stuck between the dummy and the ground and Trafton couldn't get clear before it was nailed by halfbacks George Benson and George McPhail.

In future, clockers will be refused access to the stabling areas of all Ontario Racing Association tracks. Said S. Tupper Bigelow, chairman of the commission, in Toronto yesterday: "Their presence in the stabling area caused a general inconvenience. They were interfering with horses and horsemen going to the track and to the barns."

Three Toronto men were officially named yesterday as Canada's equestrian team for the Olympic Games. They are L. J. McGuiness, team captain, Thomas Gayford and John Rumble. Walter Pady has been named as spare rider. The team at present is training in England.

Wanderer IX, only Canadian entry in the Bermuda-Halifax open yacht race, last night won the first running of the 750-mile voyage over three American yachts. The Halifax-owned Wanderer, like the other craft, capitalized on her handicap of nine hours, 20 minutes and 52½ seconds to defeat Ticonderoga, the scratch vessel which finished first.

Harold Wilmering of the Hamilton Cedar Springs Golf Club fired a three-over-par 75 at the Glendale Course yesterday to win the Hamilton district preliminaries in the Ontario junior golf eliminations. One stroke behind was Dave Lee of Dundas while Jim Gerry of Glendale carded a 78 and Norm Thompson a 79. Thompson is only 15 and comes from Guelph.

Two longshots produced the largest daily double of the New York racing season at Aqueduct yesterday when Mrs. Frank Frankel's Fondest and Florence Dellaria's Sun Diver returned $1,024.70 for $2.

Russia has entered its national soccer champions, the Red Army team, in Olympic competition. The first 11 players listed yesterday on the official Olympic entry list at Helsinki are the same men who took the field against Finland under the name of the Red Army team a week ago. They had a tough time beating the Finns, 2-0.

Guelph Blanks Waterloo 2-0; Sox Pass Galt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Red Sox last night pushed past Galt Terriers into third place in the senior Intercounty Baseball League on a 6-4 win over St. Thomas Elgins.

Guelph Maple Leafs blanked Waterloo Tigers 2-0 to stretch their first-place lead to 2½ games while London Majors whipped second-place Kitchener Panthers 7-3.

Elgins Lose Lead

St. Thomas took a 3-0 lead in the first and added another in the fourth only to have Brantford pull the game from the fire with two in the eighth and four in the final inning. It was the 20th loss for the Elgins against eight wins.

Billy Gibbs pitched the first eight innings for the Sox and was credited with the win. Frank Parker finished.

Elgins' Lefty McKinnis was counted the loser.

St. Thomas outhit Brantford 11-10, collecting their three runs in the first inning on a homer by rightfielder Don Butler. Centrefielder Jerry Wilson with three for five led Brantford hitters.

John Adie pitched a two-hitter for Guelph to bring them their shutout. It was the Leafs' fifth straight win and Adie's sixth against no losses.

Veteran Phil Marchildon allowed only four hits for Waterloo until he was removed for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Adie fanned the first 13 batters to face him, Tiger rightfielder Sam Claypoole picking up the first hit —a single—in the seventh. Thirdbaseman Bobby Fisher rapped out Waterloo's other single in the eighth.

Leafs scored their first run on two walks and a single by catcher Art O'Connor and their second on a walk, a sacrifice and an error.

London took a 3-1 lead in the first inning and were never behind.

First For Baro

Jesse Baro went the distance to register his first win in a London uniform. He allowed 11 hits and two walks, fanning four.

Leftfielder Les Lockett paced the Panthers with four for five while rightfielder Bill Johnston, leftfielder Russ Evon and first baseman Joe Bechard all had two for four for the Majors.

Goodfellow Quits As Hawk Coach

CHICAGO (AP)—Ebbie Goodfellow, coach of Chicago Black Hawks, yesterday announced his resignation to accept a position with a motor sales company in Detroit.

Goodfellow, who coached the National Hockey League team the last two years, said in a statement he would like it "distinctly understood" that his resignation was at his own request. He said he considers Detroit his home and intends to make his permanent home there.

His contract had another year to run.

Bill Tobin, Hawks owner, said the resignation came as a surprise and that he accepted it reluctantly.

Sid Abel, retiring Detroit Red Wing centre, and King Clancy, former Toronto star and ex-National Hockey League referee, were reported to be top candidates for the job.

Abel, veteran Red Wing player, is reported retiring to operate a Detroit tavern. Clancy won the American League championship as coach of Pittsburgh Hornets last winter.

Now They're Digging Up Boy Athlete Said Greater Than Fabulous Thorpe

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—They are at it again—those fellows who must argue sports questions to which there are no precise answers. This time the debate revolves around young Bob Mathias and the ancient Jim Thorpe. Which is the greater athlete

Four years ago at London Mathias, only 17 and a high school athlete, won the Olympic decathlon title. In doing it he bettered five marks Thorpe hung up in winning the event in 1912 and tied the Indian in a sixth. Thorpe was 24 at the time.

Last week Mathias, now a growing 21, won the Olympic decathlon tryouts again. This time he surpassed the Indian's marks in nine events—and compiled so many points he broke the United States record even before toeing the mark in the 10th.

At the trials Mathias piled up 7,825 points, wiping out his own national mark of 7,444 points.

Dan Ferris, national A.A.U. secretary-treasurer who saw Thorpe at Stockholm and will see Mathias at Helsinki, says: "You'd have to say Mathias was the better alaround decathlon man because of his record. But with modern training Thorpe probably would have been as good."

When it comes to other sports, Thorpe must be given the edge.

Star in Everything

Old Jim, whose Olympic achievements were erased because he had professionalized himself by playing pro ball before going to Sweden, was an outstanding football player, reached the major leagues in baseball and excelled in basketball, lacrosse, tennis, handball, hockey, swimming and wrestling.

It was Thorpe who broke up a majoor league double no-hit game between Cincinnati and Chicago's Cubs in 1917 by beating out a bunt that scored the decisive run in the 10th.

But Mathias isn't a slouch in other sports either. In high school he was a track and football wonder and starred as well in basketball.

It was Mathias, now 6-2 and 200 pounds, who went 96 yards with a kickoff return against Southern California last fall for a touchdown that helped put Stanford in the Rose Bowl against Illinois.

The July 19-Aug. 3 Games will be Mathias' last appearances as a decathlon athlete, he has said. Next fall, for the first time, he is going to give his full attention to football with the hope it will get him some pro offers.-

Lone Figure At Olympics

HELSINKI (CP)—One figure—a spectator only—stood slightly apart yesterday at the Canadian flag-raising ceremony at Olympic Village, where Olympic competitors are housed.

It was Jack Burney of Vancouver, now serving with the United States army in Germany. He arrived here Sunday in the belief that he was on the Canadian team as an entry in the 400-metre hurdles.

President A. Sidney Dawes of the Canadian Olympic Association said in Montreal yesterday that it would be unfair to permit Burney to compete for Canada since many others who would have liked to have gone to Helsinki also missed out in the trials at Hamilton a week ago.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This is the third and last of a series of columns which have, perhaps sketchily, and with omissions, dealt with sport as Canada enjoyed it at Confederation in 1867, and before.

Perhaps you were surprised when, earlier in this series we remarked that on Canadian soil in pre-Confederation days, there had been fought two or three world heavyweight championship fights.

But records prove it. They are not the exact records that have prevailed the last fifty or sixty years, but still records. And here is the story.

"Flaming Ben" Hogan, a picturesque figure, who was a Civil War spy, gambler and oil magnate, claimed the heavyweight fistic title, just about 1867, and fought Bob Donnelly for it at Fort Erie, Ontario.

Morrissey had fought John C. Heenan, "The Benica Boy" for the world title at Long Point, in Canada. John J. Dwyer fought Jim Elliott at the same Long Point in the 70's, in another fight for the heavyweight title both claimed. So even with this sketchy background, you can be sure that some boxing existed in Canada even before Confederation.

Golf was introduced to Canada in the 60's by officers of ships from the Old Country, who played in Montreal and Quebec on 3-hole courses, and in 1873, six years after Confederation, a group of the original players met in Montreal, and created the Montreal Golf Club, since re-named Royal Montreal.

There are no records to prove it, but undoubtedly there was harness racing, for that sport dates back in America to 1770, and the great Flora Temple was history when Confederation took place.

Of course Canada had great Winter sports programs, away back beyond, and through Confederation.

There were skating races in the Winter, dating as far back as 1859, when officers of the Montreal Garrison raced to Quebec, a tidy run.

The first covered rink built in Canada, according to such records as are available was built in the Ancient Capital, hilly Quebec City in the middle 1850's. Montreal followed dilatorily in 1859, and in the same year organized the Montreal Skating Club. In 1862, there was built in Montreal, in what is now the heart of the Canadian metropolis the Victoria rink, where gala fancy dress balls and carnivals were held. This rink holds hockey history, too, for here the first Stanley Cup games of all times were played, in the dowdy nineties.

And there was football, whether English Rugby or soccer, we couldn't say. But the Montreal Football Club was formed in 1868, a year after Confederation. There was tobogganing, too, and snow-shoeing, with the Montreal Snowshoe Club formed in 1840. And there would be many paddling contests then, certainly not the great regattas of today, but the canoe was then a useful form of conveyance, and tests of speed would be a natural outcome.

So young Canada, in 1867, had plenty of sport, plenty of fun, sport in its truest amateur sense, mostly, and young Canada lived a pretty good life without radios, automobiles, bicycles, and a lot of the things which are regarded as essential in these more high-pressure times. It must have been a good life then, with no threat of A-bombs or H-bombs, no Communists, and none of a lot of things we could very well do without.

Everything Favors National For Third Straight Victory In Annual All-Star Classic

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Everything points toward a third straight National League victory in the 19th annual All-Star game today. The Nationals have the pitching, power and a crippled opponent.

The only thing manager Casey Stengel of the American League is promising at the moment is to show up. He'll be minus two of his best pitchers and his third baseman and will start with an injured centre fielder. But old Case has proved himself a master a licking adversity in the past. His undermanned lads just might upset the 7-to-5 odds against them.

A capacity crowd of 32,785, paying some $180,000 into the player's pension fund, will be on hand to watch the men more than 3,000,000 fans voted baseball's outstanding players. Additionally, $125,000 will be stashed away in the till from television receipts. If it should rain—the fun will be held over until 11 a.m. EDT tomorrow.

Simmons May Start

If the weather man's prediction of a cloudy, warm, humid day is correct, manager Leo Durocher of the Nationals will start Philadelphia Phillies' fire-balling left hander, Curt Simmons. He'll be faced by the veteran Vic Raschi, Stengel's right-handed money pitcher from the Yankees.

Simmons, a seven-game winner who has been beaten only twice, came back to baseball in April after 21 months' army duty.

Raschi is being used only because Stengel's first two choices, Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz and Allie Reynolds, big Yankee right hander, are on the injured list.

Stengel has lost George Kell, brilliant third sacker of Boston Red Sox, who is out with a groin injury. Dom DiMaggio, also of the Red Sox, will start in centre despite a leg injury.

The American League manager, who has failed to direct a winning All-Star team in two tries, indicated he plans to follow Raschi (8-2) with Bob Lemon (7-7) and possibly Satchel Paige (6-4), the seemingly ageless Negro pitcher of St. Louis Browns.

Loaded With Power

Durocher, who also has failed to win with two National All-Star teams, feels he has one of the best National League dream teams of all time. The Nationals have power to burn in big Hank Sauer who tops all players with 23 homers; the one and only Stan Musial, Jackie Robinson, Bobby Thomson, Roy Campanella and Enos Slaughter.

The senior circuit has good defence and such pitchers as Robin Roberts (11-6), Gerry Staley (11-6), who probably will hurl the middle three innings, Bob Rush (9-6), Sal Maglie (11-4) and Warren Spahn (7-9).

Figures indicate the National League has the advantage in power with 166 home runs so far this season to 133 for the Americans, and 740 runs driven in to 635 for the underdogs. The Americans will have six .300 hitters in their starting line-up to five for the Nationals.

The starting line-ups as selected by the vote of the fans with the batting order and pitchers selected by the managers:

Ridley Wins In Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)—Ridley College of St. Catharines smashed out 104 runs yesterday to defeat Prospect Command, top British army team, by nine runs in a cricket match highlighted by heavy hitting.

Jack Aylott, who scored 50 runs not out, was top batsman for Ridley, who remained undefeated with two consecutive victories.

Team captain J. D. Chaplin of Galt, made 19 runs; R. E. Fosbrook, Curacao, B.W.I., had 18, and E. C. Evans, Montreal, 17.

Prospect lost five wickets for 42 but rallied in a fine sixth-wicket stand which netted 75 runs. They failed after that, however, due to poor bowling by J. Drynan, who took four wickets for 27.

Gavilan, Turner Fight Breaks 'Take' Record

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Kid Gavilan-Gil Turner fight at the Municipal Stadium last night broke all financial records for a welterweight fight but failed by a few hundred persons to match the all-time high for attendance.

A total of 39,025 fans paid $269,677 to see Gavilan stop Turner in the 11th round. The figures compared with the 39,968 attendance and $194,330 gate for the Jimmy McLarnin-Barney Ross scrap May 28, 1934, at the Long Island Bowl, New York.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Way back in the last bare-knuckle fight for the world's heavyweight championship, John L. Sullivan defended the title by winning the decision over Jake Kilrain 63 years ago today. That fight went 75 rounds at Richburg, Miss., and was the last important bare-knuckle fight in the United States. Sullivan lost the title to James J. Corbett at New Orleans in 1892, when both fighters wore big gloves.

Canadian Bowlers

Canada's representative team of lawn bowlers, on a three-months' tour of the United Kingdom, is seen with a group of Scottish players on the green of Portobello Club in Edinburgh. In a white shirt in the third row is K. B. McKellar of Toronto, captain of the Canadian team, and on his left is William Jardine, president of the Scottish Bowling Association. Savoie Defeats Johnny Greco For Welter Crown

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Armand Savoie, Canadian lightweight champion, added the welterweight title last night when he won a split decision over champion Johnny Greco in a rousing 12-round bout at Montreal.

Savoie weighed 135 pounds, Greco 145¾.

Both fighters were on the verge of knockouts during the bout. Spectators in shirt sleeves, were drenched in perspiration in the Montreal Forum, where the bout took place. It was one of the hottest nights in years.

The crowd was 4,690 with the gross gate $12,043.

Savoie's speed gave him the advantage and he outboxed the heavier Greco. The latter used his 10-pound weight edge and in the infighting, which featured most of the bout, he steadily pounded Savoie's left kidney, while Savoie countered with short, sharp uppercuts.

In the fifth round, Greco appeared to lose the steam in his punches, and Savoie pounded him consistently. Greco seemed out on his feet.

In the 10th, Greco came back strongly and drove several hard jabs to Savoie's jaw. Savoie went down against the ropes but bounced back. He was wrestled down again for a no-count before the round ended.

As the 11th round opened, Savoie, realizing his sharp, speedy boxing had piled up the points, stayed away from his heavier opponent and jabbed. He took this round by a slim margin, and hammered Greco in the last round, the Welterweight was almost out as the gong sounded.

In the preliminaries, Bryan Kelly, 139¼, of Niagara Falls, Ont., won over Juan Torrens, 137, of Puerto Rico, in eight rounds.

Jean Porier, 144½, of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Pat Manzies, 145, Syracuse, N.Y., fought to an eight-round draw.

Royals, Wings Drop Verdicts; Toronto Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syracuse Chiefs appear to have hit the jackpot with their latest acquisition—pitcher Lynn Lovenguth. The 170-pound righthander, who carried a 4-6 record with him from Buffalo last week, made his first start for the Chiefs last night and tossed a three-hitter to beat Springfield Cubs 4-1.

In other contests, the league-leading Montreal Royals lost to whipped runner-up Rochester 11-2 and Toronto rallied to down Ottawa 4-1.

Lovenguth walked only two and fanned six as Springfield's lone tally came over in the seventh on a triple by Glen McQuillen and a long foul fly. Lovenguth also had two of the Chiefs' eight hits.

Damon Phillips' grand-slam homer in the first inning was the payoff blow for Baltimore as the Orioles used the pitching of Paul Stuffel and Kent Peterson to halt the Royals.

Milt Jordan yielded 15 hits to Rochester but did not give up a single walk. His Bison teammates chipped in with four double plays and hit freely at the plate to hand Freddie Martin his fourth straight setback.

Duke Markell also turned in a good mound job and drove in a pair of runs to help Toronto overcome a 1-0 Ottawa edge. Ed Stevens belted his 12th homer to drive in the deciding tally.

American League Players Ask Salary Increase

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—American League players yesterday asked for an increase in the minimum baseball salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year.

Freddie Hutchinson, retiring spokesman for the junior circuit players, included the salary boost among 11 demands made to the owners. Hutchinson, only last week-end appointed manager of the Detroit Tigers, said the increase was necessary because of higher living conditions, high taxes and high prices. The $5,000 minimum was instituted in 1947.

The players also ask uniform pitching mounds in all parks; extension of bullpen roofs to keep relief pitchers from getting hit with pop bottles and other missiles; more ventilation in clubhouses and the field clear of fans after a game until all players have reached the dugouts.

'Stop These Wild, Crazy Bonuses' Says Ford Frick

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick said yesterday there must be a "stop to the wild and 'crazy bonuses'" to youngsters starting out in baseball.

Speaking after the joint meeting of the club owners of both major leagues, Frick said there was "unanimous feeling that some rule limiting outlandish payments to untried youngsters must eventually be written into the books."

But Frick added that despite discussion of the bonus rule no move was made to change the present setup which allows clubs to sign a player for a bonus and then farm him out for experience.

There has been criticism that some clubs have been spending large sums for bonus players in an effort to corner good young players.

Frick also disclosed that Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn Dodgers have been given permission for a goodwill tour around the world at the close of the 1952 season.

Scribes Crash Russ Olympic Village, Get Good Reception But Little News

Canadian Press Sports Writer

HELSINKI (CP) — A tour of Olympic villages for athletes pointed up one thing—the Iron Curtain is not tough to pierce.

While watching the Canadians at the Kapyla all-male camp waiting for officials to cut red tape and arrange for practice hours and training grounds, an Australian and this reporter decided to visit Canadian women in another camp yesterday. It was listed as at Otaniemi, about four miles from here.

Entrance Easy

There were no guards at the entrance and to our amazement, we found ourselves in the midst of Russians, Romanians, Czechs, Hungarians and Bulgarians.

This was supposed to be "forbidden" territory. Finnish newspaper men had been unable to get permission to visit the camp and United States sports writers had been "working" on officials for the go-ahead to visit the camp, situated in a lonely wooded section.

We walked around freely and talked to an English-speaking reception official, who said western women were not there — they were in another Olympic village.

(Sullivan and his Australian companion apparently were able to enter the Communists' camp only by accident. An Associated Press dispatch from Helsinki earlier held little hope that westerners would see Red athletes in action before the games.)

Otaniemi turned out to be the only camp where male and female athletes are together. The Russians there apparently want to make sure none stray to the west before the games.

The reception official "forgot" his English only when queried about the number of Russian athletes and on general information regarding the Reds.

Canadians Happy

The Canadians are housed in the main Olympic village in the northern section of Helsinki. In accommodates 4,500 competitors and is made up of 14 apartment houses. Following the July 19 - Aug. 3 games, it will be turned over to Finnish families.

In the village are a bank, barber shop, post office and a restaurant that covers almost two acres. The rooms accommodate from one to nine persons. Although the rooms are furnished simply, Canadians are happy about the set-up.

The only complaint—and its common with practically every visitor—is that it never gets dark. There is a sort of twilight until the early hours of morning and most athletes are awake before 5 a.m., the sun shining brightly.

Canadian sprinters and middle distance runners wear fire-engine red uniforms for limbering-up exercises on a training ground almost at the doorstep of the village.

Brenden Macken, one of Canada's Davis Cuppers, and Mrs. Hanna Sladek, top-seeded in Germany before coming to Canada four months ago, gave Montrealers the lion's share of titles in the week-long Ontario Tennis Championships held at the Toronto Tennis Club. Brenden, elder of the two Davis Cup brothers, emerged as the leading performer of the championship meet, winning the men's singles against Lorne Main of Vancouver, top-seeded in Canada, and then teaming with brother Jim to take the men's doubles against Main and Don Fantana of Toronto. HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A slumbering trick may wake up almost any time in a hand of bridge. Just give it a chance and a trick may pop up out of nowhere. Or so it seemed with this deal:

NORTH
♠Q 8 3 2
♥Q 4 3
♦7 4 3 2
♣9 2

WEST
♠9 6
♥K J 10 9 8
♦10 9 8
♣A K Q

EAST
♥A 7
♦J 5
♣J 10 8 6 5 4 3

SOUTH
♠A K J 5 4
♥6 5 2
♦A K Q 6
♣7

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 S	Dbl	2 S	3 C
4 S	Dbl	Pass	Pass
Re Dbl	Pass	Pass	Pass

West started out with an opening lead of the club ace which took the first trick. When west then led the king of clubs, south trumped it and took two top rounds of trumps.

He then led four rounds of diamonds on which west discarded the heart ten and east discarded two clubs. South now led a small heart toward the dummy queen.

West played the heart nine on that small heart lead from south and south stopped to study for a moment before playing from dummy. Instead of the queen, declarer finally played the dummy four of hearts.

With that play the contract is safe if east has the ace or king and only one more heart. Yes, no matter how the opponents play. And it is so whether west wins with the nine or king of hearts.

Because if west then leads a heart, east must win with the ace. And east will then have nothing to lead but clubs. A club lead from either east or west will give south a heart sluff while dummy trumps.

And there is a surprising point to notice if east has the ace or king and only one more heart. A small heart lead from dummy away from the queen will accomplish the same result.

As someone remarked at the time, it is not what you think you are but what you think.

Drinking Ends With Dunking, Murder Charge

OTTAWA (CP)—Police today charged Albert Lafrance, 35, with the murder of his fisherman companion, Azel Bigras, 37, whose body was found today in the Ottawa River, within sight of the Parliament buildings.

Lafrance, a native of Mont Rolland, Que., living with his married sister here, went fishing Friday with Bigras where the Rideau Canal joins the Ottawa River.

Police said that Friday night he turned up at the home of Bigras' sister, told her he pushed her brother into the river and repeated the statement to several nearby residents.

Drinking Party

Lafrance was arrested Saturday but released after questioning. Police said an investigation indicated that the two fishermen staged a drinking party on the canal bank which was interrupted by an R.C.M.P. constable patrolling Parliament Hill.

The constable, Peter Shewcier, was called by a government employee who said he saw two men wrestling near the water's edge. One man had just pulled himself out of the water.

Shewcier said only one man was sitting by the river bank when he investigated. He confiscated a bottle of wine and told the man to go home.

City police said Lafrance told them under questioning Saturday that "a Mountie" pushed Bigras into the canal and held him under until he drowned. They said he changed the story later to say he and Bigras were wrestling in fun and throwing each other into the canal.

Frankford Stays In 4th Place, Trims Motors 14-6

By JACK BRETT

The fourth place Frankford Merchants trimmed the Belleville Motor Car 14-6 in a Belleville and District Softball league game played at the Alemite field last night.

Frankford trailed 4-2 at the end of the third frame. Both teams were blanked in the fourth. In the fifth, Frankford gained the lead as Farr got a base on an error, Gilmore brought him across the plate as he hit a homer to right field. Wickson went to first on an error, Cosgrove walked, Bedard walked and Cooke, with the bases loaded, hit a grand slam home run to make it 8-4.

Callaghan walked for the Motor Car in the last half of the 5th, gained third on James' double and was forced in as Ashley and Reid walked to make it 8-5 for Frankford.

Dafoe hit a homer straight through centre field in the sixth frame, for Frankford, for a 9-4 count.

In the seventh, a single by W. Rankin, a double off the bat of Curtis, a home run to left field by Farr and base on an error gave the Frankford team four more runs to make the score 13-5.

James' single in the bottom of the seventh was the final run for the Motor Car team.

Cooke went to first in the top of the ninth on an error, went to third on another error and came home on a passed ball.

Curtis started on the mound for Frankford and gave up 4 hits for four runs, walked five and struck out three. Farr relieved him in the fourth, walked five, struck out 11 and gave up 8 hits for two runs.

Reid went the route for the Motor Car to walk five, strike out eight and give up 10 hits for 14 runs.

Homers Feature Trainmen Win Over Crawfords

You can't argue with a home run. And two home runs in the bottom of the ninth inning last evening ended a nine-inning argument between CNRAA and Crawford Metals as the trainmen picked up a 14-11 win at the CNR Recreation Field.

Crawfords opened the scoring in the first inning with Upper leading off with a walk, taking second on a passed ball, stealing third and scoring on Lewis' long fly to right field.

CNRAA's came back with three tallies in their half of the first on singles by Nolan, Tracy, Lockyer and Nichol.

Crawfords tied the score in the fourth with Donovan smashing a tremendous home run to right field with Bob Temple aboard.

The A.A.'s stormed back with a five run rally in the fifth frame on two walks, a single, and two doubles plus a two base error in centrefield.

Duesberry's double and Gerry Lewis' home run were good for two runs in the fifth for Crawfords who contiued to roll along with a six-run outburst in the sixth on three AA errors, Donovan's triple to right field, Duesberry's single, and Lewis' double.

Singles by Boyle, Nolan, and Lockyer were good for two runs for the trainmen in the eighth. In the ninth Moon led off with a home run into right centrefield to tie the game. Then, with one out, Bertrim singled and went all the way to third on an over throw at second on an attempted pickoff. Boyle walked, and then Taylor slammed a home run to centrefield to wind up the game.

Frank Baldwin started on the hill for CNR and in four and one third innings walked two, struck out five, and gave up four hits for five runs. Buck Rogers toiled the remainder of the route walking none, striking out one, and giving up four hits for six runs.

CNR Diesels Win Another, Pound Wooler 12-1

Don Boyle scattered six hits as he coasted to the win for the Diesels. In going the route he walked seven and struck out ten.

The Diesels scored their first run in the third inning. With two out Jack Hunter got a life on an error, moved along on a walk to Jack Wardhaugh, and scored on Doug Sword's double.

The trainmen shunted in three more runs in the fourth on a single by Glen Young, a single by Ronsky, and back-to-back doubles by Don Boyle and Jack Hunter. They whipped over two more in the fifth on singles by Corbett and Don Adams.

Wooler picked up their lone run of the game in the sixth on walks to Stacey and Miron, and singles by McMasters and Rosenplot.

Bradshaw Leads British Open With Sizzling 65

ST. ANNES-ON-SEA, England (CP)—Gene Sarazen of Germantown, N.Y., who won the British Open golf championship 20 years ago, shot a sparkling 69 yesterday in the first qualifying round for the 1952 tournament.

Sarazen's round was one of the brightest spots of a gloomy wet day that saw records broken for both courses being used to trim the field of 266 to 100 qualifiers.

The 69 put Sarazen in a three-way tie for fourth place in the half of the field that played the 6,512-yard Fairhaven course, which has a bunker for each day of the year. An extra trap was added for this tournament because it is leap year.

Leading the Fairhaven entries was Harry Bradshaw of Ireland with a sizzling 65. He was trailed closely by John Panton of Scotland with 66, also under the previous record of 68.

Harry Weetman, British match play champion, posted a brilliant 68, a record for the tough 6,657-yard Royal Lytham and St. Anne's layout where the 72 holes of the regular tournament will be played starting tomorrow

Max Faulkner, 1951 champion, shot a 69 at Lytham.

Pointers Drop Fourth Game Northern Win 7-6

Northern Electric handed Point Anne Cementmen their fourth setback in 13 starts in the Belleville and District Softball League last evening as they downed the Pointers 7-6 at Point Anne.

Northern rebounded from a 5-1 deficit in the third inning to tie the score in the sixth and go on to win on Brian Mulvihill's leadoff triple in the seventh and Young's fly to centrefield.

Northern scored the first run of the game in the second inning when Bob Hatfield led off with a home run to centrefield.

A single by Murney Green and a double by Rusty Logue, with two out evened the score in the Point Anne half of the second.

The Pointers took a commanding lead in the third scoring four runs on three errors, a fielder's choice, Mallory's single and Pat Maracle's home run to centrefield.

Northern came back with two runs in the fourth on singles by Pete Jones, and Bob Little, a fielder's choice that put Bone aboard as Jones was forced, and Dave Jones' triple to right field.

They added three more in the fifth to take a one run lead on Mulvihill's home run to left field, Young's infield single, DeRushie's single to left field, a passed ball, a fielder's choice, and Hatfield's long fly to left field.

Point Anne tied it up at 6-6 in the sixth with a walk and a single being good for one run.

Mulvihill Scores Winner

Mulvihill scored the winning tally in the seventh on triple to right field and Young's hoist to centre.

Holmes went all the way on the firing line for Northern to notch the win. He walked four, struck out two, and gave up eight hits.

Roger Mallory pitched the first five innings for the Cementmen, walking one, striking out none, and giving up seven hits for six runs. Pat Maracle finished up walking none, striking out two and giving up one hit for one run and the loss.

Mulvihill with a home run and a triple in five tries led the winners at the plate, while Pat Maracle with a home run and a single in five appearances led the losers at bat.

Point Anne: Elliott c; M. Whalen 2b; Wood 3b; Mallory p, cf in 6th; P. Maracle cf, p in 6th; Strahan ss; M. Green lf; Logue 1b; Buchanan rf.

Movie Column

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comes now M.G.M.'s answer to Francis the Talking Mule—Fearless Fagan, the wandering lion.

Unless Hollywood tradition reverses itself, that means you'll be seeing pictures with such titles as these:

"Fearless Fagan in Africa," "Fearless Fagan Takes a Mate" and, of course, "Son of Fearless Fagan."

There is no better or more consistent moneymaker in the business than a series picture with an animal star. Lassie, Rin Tin Tin and now Francis are top examples. Universal-International, the trade reports say, uses Francis to pay off the studio overhead.

Fagan's Picture

M.G.M. press-previewed "fearless Fagan" the other day and introduced Pte. Floyd Humeston, the real-life owner of Fagan. Although Carleton Carpenter and Janet Leigh were co-starred, it was Fagan's picture. One critic quipped that he would give it a "four roar" rating. Another called Fagan the movie's best grunter since the late Wallace Beery.

But surest sign that the studio is going to give Fagan the buildup is the news that Sidney Franklin, Jr., has been raised to producer status.

Young Franklin, until Fagan came along, had only been an assistant to producer Gottfried Reinhardt.

Although Fagan is 410 pounds of bonafide lion, he somehow acts like an overgrown kitten around Humeston. The soldier raised the beast from the time it was four days old. He spends every furlough away from Fort Ord with Fagan.

M.G.M. paid $10,000 for the Fearless Fagan story. Humeston got one-third but he said he considered the money of minor importance. The fact that Fagan has a good home at M.G.M. is what's really important.

Hospital Supt. Had Extra Policy Inquiry Told

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — East Windsor Hospital provided an $8,500 insurance policy for Superintendent Dr. P. J. G. Morgan in addition to regular employee insurance coverage, a provincial government investigating commission was told yesterday.

H.N. Phillips, regional group director of the sun Life Assurance Company, told the commission which is investigating the hospital's affairs that the extra policy was provided by his company to match offers by competing insurance companies.

The superintendent's regular insurance coverage under the Sun Life insurance plan now in effect at the hospital was $7,500, he said. This was in addition to the $8,500 policy.

Mr. Phillips described in addition a Sun Life pension plan for the hospital's employees. Under its terms, Dr. Morgan benefits more than any other hospital employee, he said. He knew of no other pension plan in effect at a charitable institution so favorable to the chief employee.

Some $43,000 in past service benefits now has been paid on behalf of the superintendent, the witness said. If he were to leave the hospital's employ $33,000 of this amount would be ascribed to the pension funds of other hospital employees.

The inquiry into the 350-bed institution for incurables was ordered by Attorney-General Porter. It is continuing.

EMPEY HILL.—Empey Hill held its annual strawberry social recently. A booth in charge of the ladies was much enjoyed; but the fish pond in charge of Mrs. G. Dupre was a great delight for the kiddies.

The duets by Francis Robinson and Evelyn Hudgins were so greatly enjoyed that again, and again they were called to the front. The River boys gave several barber-shop quartets. These boys are unexcelled.

Stake Horse

By Larry Sternig

There wasn't it developed, as much play on Lady Luck at the mutuels as they thought there'd be. Saving feed money, Johnny spread most of the money three ways; the mechanics of the mutuels are such that the three money slots are not always proportionate.

It was a quiet field; there was little trouble at the barrier.

An owner sitting next to Johnny said, "You're cute, dropping a hot one like Lady Luck in there. But that Hooligan of mine is a sleeper, I don't mind telling you—now that the mutuels are closed."

"Nice time to tell me," Johnny said. He looked out at the lank gelding, Hooligan, and added, "He doesn't look like much to me."

The owner smiled. "For money—he doesn't look like much?"

Johnny's pride was being prodded. "For a thousand."

The owner didn't blink an eye. "For a grand. Just betwen the two of them, Lady Luck and Hooligan."

It was all the money Johnny had.

And that's the way it was, just between the two of them. Hooligan at the jump-off, looking all legs and speed, with Lady Luck trailing him by a length into the first turn.

Almost neck and neck at the finish, stride for stride, they swept past the boxes. Johnny was up, and shouting, but so was everybody else. He couldn't tell, from this angle. He couldn't be sure who had won, as they swept past the wire.

It was, the loud speaker announced, a photo finish. Results would be announced as soon as available.

It was only a matter of minutes, but it seemed like hours to Johnny. Then the numbers went up. The other owner coughed. He said, "You'll accept a check?"

"With pleasure," Johnny answered.

They left for California the end of the week.

Adonis was shaping up. The colt's hoof was completely well now. They planned just one race for him before the Pioneer.

It rained the night before the tightener. It wasn't a heavy rain, but it was a steady rain and the track would be far from dry.

The rain had stopped by morning and when Johnny got out to the track he saw they were drying it out. This was accomplished by a strange looking contraption he'd never seen in use before. It was roughly the size of a steam roller, but instead of the mammouth front wheel, there was extended in its place a huge red hot steel plate, carried some few inches above the track's surface. This plate was kept hot by the jets of flame that played on it from above.

There would be no mud test for Adonis here.

The fourth was a mile race for three-year-olds, and there were important colts and fillies entered. Sinbad, a Kovalt colt, would be running in the Pioneer.

Johnny briefed Rusty on Adonis.

Then he went out front to hold his thumbs.

It was no race for anybody with a weak heart. There were too many good horses in it, including a sleeper named Holiday.

But Adonis made his bid. He seemed to be flying a jet flash, leaping ahead in a powerful spurt of speed, going on to win by two clean lengths. Sinbad was second.

Back at the stable, Rusty said, "Two carrots for that one, huh, Mr. Hamilton?"

Johnny nodded. "And $500 extra for Rusty Sloan."

With the money from the Pioneer, he could buy up some promising foals. With the prestige from winning it, he could jack up the prices on his own spring crop.

Perhaps, he thought, he could get Challenger back, and Bella and Melody. But he knew that Kovalt would never part with those horses. Not that he needed them, but it would put a rival back in the field.

The morning of the Pioneer Handicap was a hot one, and it climaxed a period of hot days. The strip was getting harder every day, and Johnny remembered Adonis' weakness. The colt had cracked a hoof at Atwater on just such a track.

They gave him rope work and ran him very little. Rusty spent all his available time with the colt. This hot morning, the jockey looked unhappy. "If he remembers Atwater, this track might scare him."

Johnny was almost afraid to go and watch this one. Ten furlongs for the finest three-year-olds in the game. With a jockey only a year out of the apprentice class, with an unpredictable colt and a 20-year-old horse trainer. It didn't look much like a winning combination in a grind as rugged as this one.

The big names were there. Elegy and Sinbad, Lady Caroline and Warrior; impressive horses from wealthy stables, stables that didn't need success on the tracks to maintain themselves; hobby stables.

In the box next to Johnny's, an owner said, "I thought Kovalt got that colt of yours, boy. He got the rest, didn't he?"

Johnny nodded. "Just about."

"It's a man's job, running a stable these days," the owner went on. "I surely was sorry to hear about your dad." He paused "You plan to sell that Adonis?"

"Adonis will never be for sale. And Johnny held his thumbs as he said it.

If he wasn't a man now he never would be.

All quiet, the hush, and then the expelled breath as the webbing lifted.

Elegy faltered. Sinbad moved by. The Kovalt horse was running second now, looking like the logical choice to beat the Lady. From the fifth spot, Adonis began to move up.

Even seeing it, it was that hard to believe.

Adonis swept past Lady Caroline as though she were hitched to a post, and he was crowding Sinbad a good half furlong from the wire.

Sinbad ran his heart out in that sprint, but it wasn't nearly enough; it looked almost like he had quit.

The sight of Adonis coming back to the winner's circle, was something Johnny would remember all his life.

Rusty's face was glowing, and his eyes were wet. He said, "I'm going to rub him down myself, Mr. Hamilton. It's no job for a swipe."

Johnny said, "You're going to be boss around here for a while, Rusty. I'm taking a plane home."

"Trouble?" Rusty asked.

Johnny shook his head. "I'm going to get some questions answered."

Johnny Hamilton was home in 20 hours. It was noon when the taxi dropped him off at the farm gate. Down near the stable, he saw Nystrom and there was someone with him.

It was, Johnny saw as he drew nearer, Judge Garry. There was a big smile on Nystrom's thin face, and his pale eyes sparkled. "Did you come home for our congratulations, boy?"

Johnny shook his hand, and Judge Garry's. He said, "I came home to find out what's cooking."

"You came at the right time," the trainer said. "Come with me" He led Johnny toward the stable door.

Johnny stepped inside. He blinked, rubbed his eyes, and staredfi and stared and stared. . .

They were all there. Bella, Challenger, Annabella, Melody; all the horses Kovalt had taken from him.

Johnny puckered his lips into a whistle. "My hunch was good, huh?"

Nystrom nooded. "The old Hamilton hunch, Johnny. Just like your dad."

"Tell me about it. I want to know all the details—how'd you get the horses back. Everything."

Nystrom said, "Let's go up to the house. Ma's making doughnuts."

When they entered the kitchen, Mrs. Nystrom said, "Welcome home, Johnny."

The doughnuts were fresh, the coffee fragrant and hot. Nystrom told his part of it while they ate.

"I can't claim any credit for this Johnny, I merely followed your instructions—with a few variations."

"A tie-up between Goodhue and Kovalt?"

Nystrom nodded. "Yes, but if there hadn't been, your plan for saving Adonis would still have worked."

Judge Garry smiled at Johnny. "It's the sort of scheme your father would have cooked up," he said.

High praise, that, and Johnny felt justly proud, though somewhat embarrassed.

"Well," Nystrom went on, "I got in touch with Judge Garry, here, as you suggested, and we worked out the details. I told Goodhue that the judge would pay $40,000 for Adonis, but that you wanted to sell him to Kovalt. He wanted to know why and I said the colt wasn't right, that the track vet at Atwater told us he'd never be well, that you didn't want to stick the judge with a sour horse."

Johnny glanced at Judge Garry doubtfully. "Perhaps that was a bit-uh-dishonest."

Nystrom shook his head. "Not when you're dealing with a man like Kovalt. Well, Carol, in the meantime, saw Kovalt from day to day, and when he asked her if it was true what he'd heard about Adonis, we knew he could only have got that informative, from Goodhue. Carol told him that we were figuring on shooting Adonis."

A great load lifted from Johnny's heart.

Nystrom smiled. "You know Carol only took that job to see if she could help. And she did. She saw Goodhue there frequently. We learned Goodhue was a gambler, and that he owed Kovalt plenty. Maybe the judge better tell you the rest of it."

"I checked over the notes," Judge Garry said, "and one thing about them seemed strange to me. They were formerly held by two men who had been friends of both Kovalt and your dad: And both men were dead, so there was no way of breaking down their stories. Kovalt wasn't taking any chances."

The judge took a deep breath, and his eyes were sad. "When you asked about Goodhue—well, he was as close as I'll ever get to having a son, and I—" He shook his head. "I was wrong that's all. The notes were forgeries, and crude forgeries at that. It wasn't your dad's signature at all. Goodhue never figured they'd be checked. He was executor, administrator—there wasn't anybody likely to demand a check-up. He'll go to jail, of course, and be disbarred. Kovalt's got some expensive legal help, but I'm afraid that won't be enough for anything as raw as this."

Nystrom said, "We got the horses back, first, before we turned them both over to the law. Maybe they thought that would be enough." He shrugged.

Johnny said "I'd like to use the truck. Is it here? I'd like to run into town."

Nystrom smiled. "She ought to be home." He shook his head. "You surely must've written a nasty letter. She cried for almost two days solid."

Johnny said, "I'm a crazy fool."

"The truck's in the yard," Nystrom told him.

Johnny never got into the truck for the convertible was parked at the road end of the driveway, blocking the entrance.

Johnny was running, and Carol was waiting.

When he reached her, he said nothing. He only opened his arms. After a moment, he felt the tears on his cheek and drew away.

She gulped. She said, "I saw you on the porch, just as I was going to turn in. I wanted to be alone with you. If you were still angry, I didn't want them to hear what you'd probably say. And if you weren't I didn't want them to see what you'd probably do."

Johnny grinned. "What, no flat tire?"

"No, but I had thought of letting the air out—"

He sighed. "Deceit, trickery. Always in some way—"

"That's a woman for you," she agreed. "Why don't you shut up and kiss me again?"

Which he did.

MacArthur Makes Blistering Attack On Democrats

CHICAGO (AP) — Old soldier Douglas MacArthur last night blistered the Democrats as a blundering "war party" and rallied Republicans to a "crusade" to rout them from office.

The general's keynote address knifed through the strife stirred by Presidential nomination. It united the packed convention hall in a standing ovation as it bit sharply at the Truman administration's policies.

Takes No Sides

The 57 minute speech, punctuated 73 times by handclapping and roars, formally plotted a non-partisan course in the nomination battle between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

MacArthur, who backs Taft and who has been mentioned as a possible vice-presidential running mate for the Ohioan, said:

1. The Democratic party has been captured by schemers leading the United States toward "the socialistic regimentation of a totalitarian state."

2. The Republicans must enlist all kinds of Americans, who are "desperate for a plan which will revive hope," to win the November election.

MacArthur named neither Taft nor Eisenhower. But he hit at the administration's policy of Communist containment, which Eisenhower supports, and called for more air power, a Taft objective.

Critical Of Truman

MacArthur spoke slowly and deliberately. He levelled his heaviest blast at the administration of President Truman, who fired him last year as United Nations commander in the Far East

The administration's foreign policy, he said, "practically invited Soviet dominance over the free peoples of eastern Europe."

In the east, MacArthur said, the U.S. "proceeded with precipitate haste to divest ourselves of our own military strength." This policy caused the loss to Communism of China, North Korea and the Kuriles, he said.

Court Cleared Of Public and Press In Spy Trial

Marshall Pleads Not Guilty To Five Charges Laid

LONDON (CP)—A young Foreign Office radio operator accused of spying insisted today he did not know how a secret government document happened to be in his pocket when he was caught while talking to a Russian diplomat.

William Marshall, 24, told a jury of 12 men at London's Old Bailey court that he had not given any of Britain's secrets to the Russian and that he knew nothing of the paper found in his pocket.

The prosecutor described Marshall's testimony as "such an improbable story." He asked for Marshall's conviction on five charges of violating Britain's Official Secrets Act.

Marshall was the lone defence witness. He was on the stand 46 minutes.

The prosecution quickly wound up its presentation behind closed doors before the noon recess, basing its case mainly on the piece of paper containing secret information police said they found on Marshall.

"This document, do you know anything about it" Marshall was asked by his counsel.

"Nothing whatsoever," Marshall replied.

"Do you know how it came to be in your wallet"

"No, I'm afraid not," Marshall replied quietly in a high, thin voice.

What the document contained was not disclosed by the government. The public was barred from the courtroom at the outset after the prosecution said it wanted to present "highly secret" evidence.

Marshall pleaded not guilty to five charges. Three alleged he gave information about the diplomatic wireless service to Pavel Kuznetsov, a Soviet Embassy first secretary.

The other two charges were that he obtained and recorded information about the service which would be directly or indirectly useful to an enemy.

Sir Reginal Manningham-Buller, Britain's solicitor-general, said that when Marshall was arrested in a London park with Kuznetsov last month he carried information used at the diplomatic wireless station where he worked.

"Some of that information on the paper would undoubtedly be of use to a potential enemy. It could be regarded as confidential. Some of it was secret and some of it highly secret," the prosecutor said.

The prosecutor said detectives had trailed Marshall and had seen him meet Kuznetsov in parks and restaurants.

". . . It is clear this wireless operator was in prolonged communication with an agent of a foreign power, showing him papers and telling him things."

Canadian Troops Win Awards For Gallantry

OTTAWA (CP)—The determination of Canadian soldiers in Korea to keep their comrades from falling into enemy hands is shown in the citations for four immediate gallantry awards announced today by Army headquarters.

One Military Cross and three Military Medals were awarded. Two of the Military Medals were given to soldiers who showed bravery in bringing back wounded comrades to their own lines.

Lieut. David Alexander Middleton, 28, of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Toronto, with the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was awarded the Military Cross.

Military Medals were awarded to:

Acting Sgt. Trevor Allen, 28, of Springhill, N.S., a member of the Lord Strathcona's Horse;

Cpl. John Glenford Dunbar, 26, of East Croydon, Surrey, Eng., who enlisted in Vancouver with the 1st Battalion, P.P.C.L.I.;

Pte. Jean Guy Guay, 20, of Montreal, of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22d Regiment.

Cpl. Dunbar and Pte Guay both won their medals for bravery in saving wounded soldiers. Cpl. Dunbar and Lieut. Middleton won their awards in the same action on the night of May 21 last, when the corporal carried his wounded officer away from enemy lines under heavy fire despite the lieutenant's orders to leave him.

Unable to Get 685-Pound Man Into Courtroom

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Six husky moving men huffed and puffed yesterday, but they could not get 685-pound Eugene Atkins into a second-floor courtroom.

Atkins' $75,000 damage suit opened before Judge Thomas Keating.

He is suing Lewis B. Schroeder, a movie projectionist, as a result of a 1951 automobile accident which Atkins claims paralyzed him from the waist down. He has occupied two beds at a hospital.

Yesterday six men strapped him to a bed and hoisted it into their van. At the courthouse, a 40-ton crane was ready to lift Atkins, bed and all, to the second floor. But there was no window big enough.

So the moving men trundled Atkins up a short flight of steps into the first-floor corridor. There they left him, puffing a cigar, while selection of a jury got under way.

GRAIN EXPERTS EXPECT RECORD CROP OF WHEAT

Importing Countries May Get Better Price

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—With the weatherman co-operating, Canadian grain experts anticipate a record wheat crop this year, but faces dull when they consider what this may do to international bargaining.

A bumper crop has been forecast for the United States and the experts feel that if the Canadian crop develops into another bumper harvest, importing countries may use this as a lever to argue for a curb on export prices.

Some 40-odd countries are negotiating for a new international wheat agreement to replace the one which expires July 31, 1953. The top wheat-exporting countries, Canada and the United States, are demanding that the price ceiling be raised substantially from the current $1.80 a bushel, in United States funds, for No. 1 Northern.

Turns Thumbs Down

Canadian negotiators want a ceiling of between $2.15 and $2.35 a bushel. The United States has suggested about $2.50 a bushel. But wheat importers, including the biggest one, the United Kingdom, have turned thumbs down on any price advance.

With an eye on the heavy wheat stockpile that may develop in the western world, they have indicated the price should remain at the present level. As a result, a preliminary meeting on development of a new wheat pact held in London last May achieved no concrete results. Another is scheduled for, the fall.

By that time, the negotiators will have a clearer idea of the wheat supply. There's a feeling in Ottawa that by then it may be harder than ever to persuade the importers to agree to any boost in price.

For conditions in Canada point to the heaviest wheat crop in history. Any shift in the weather may, of course, upset the outlook, but so far the experts anticipate that the crop will be far greater than the peak harvest of 566,000,000 bushels in 1928.

The U.S. has predicted it will produce about 1,326,000,000 bushels of wheat, second only to the peak crop to 1,359,000,000 bushels harvester in 1947.

Hospital authorities declined to disclose the nature of Miss McHugh's illness. She is the daughter of Eugene McHugh, managing editor of the New York Times.

Hoover Labels As Largely A 'Phantom' The European Army Commanded by Ike

CHICAGO (AP)—Herbert Hoover, in a farewell address to the Republican party he once headed, last night labelled as largely a "phantom" the European army, until recently commanded by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In an address to the Republican National Convention, he warned the United States to look to its aerial strength and be ready to strike back like a "rattlesnake" at any Communist aggression.

The only living former U.S. president raked the Democrats, accusing them of throwing away the fruits of victory in the Second World War.

May Be Last

Hoover referred to his age—he is 77—and told the convention that in the "the inexorable course of nature, this is likely to be the last time I shall attend your conventions."

Hitting at the concept of building up large land armies in Europe, Hoover said that aside from U.S. and British divisions, the European army is largely a myth because the continent's will to defend itself is weak.

Hoover, as he has done frequently in the past, urged a major buildup of U.S. airpower to defend "the centre and final reserve of strength of the free world (which) lies now in the western hemisphere."

Hoover did not mention by name either of the two leading contenders for the Republican Presidential nomination which he won twice.

Akin To Taft

But the theme of his speech, devoted in large part to foreign policy, was much closer to the expressed views of Senator Robert A. Taft than to those of Eisenhower.

Eisenhower, who relinquished command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces to come home and campaign for the Republican nomination, has expressed confidence that Western Europe will do its utmost in the common cause.

Hoover accused the Democrats, in office since Hoover's futile try for re-election in 1932, of corroding "the grandeur of the people" by the "drip, drip, drip from dishonor in high places."

"Behind this plush curtain of tax and spend," Hoover said, "three sinister spooks or ghosts are mixing poison for the American people.

"They are the shades of Mussolini, with his bureaucratic Fascism; of Karl Marx and his Socialism; and of Lord Keynes, with his perpetual government spending, deficits and inflation."

The Democrats' domestic plan of these, plus "give-away programs"—added to "the lost statesmanship" of dealing with Communism—make freedom the dominant issue of the election, Hoover said.

"This election may well be the last chance for survival of freedom in America," he declared.

Accused Sought Pistol Murder Witness Testifies At Lee Preliminary Hearing

HAMILTON (CP)—A telephone conversation concerning the loan of an unregistered automatic pistol was described by a witness at the preliminary hearing of Harry Lee, 37, Hamilton, in magistrate's court at Dundas, today. Lee is charged with the murder of Mrs. Mary Rosenblatt on June 2.

The witness was Bruce Dennis, son of accused's landlady. He said accused had lived at his home for 14 years.

He said he telephoned home on the Saturday night before the fatal shooting of Mrs. Rosenblatt, and that Lee answered the telephone. He was told his mother was not home. She had gone to Cayuga.

Dennis said accused asked him if he had an unregistered automatic "which could not be traced back to you." He asked what the pistol was wanted for and told the court that Lee told him: "I've been getting the run around and I'm going to fill somebody with lead."

During the conversation, he said accused drew his attention to noise in the background. Dennis believed accused was talking about cats, rummaging around in the kitchen, but then he said he heard a woman's voice calling: "Harry, Harry."

After the conversation, witness said he telephoned his mother at Cayuga and his mother told him to go to the house to see what was going on.

He said Lee seemed to be alone in the house when he got there, and that he asked him again about an automatic. Then he said: "Well, if I can't get one from you I'll use my own."

He said accused went to his car at that time to take it to a service station for gasoline, and that he followed for several blocks. There was no other person in the car with him.

Reds Evacuate Radio Station In West Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—The Communists appeared today to be completely evacuating their Radio Berlin in the British sector.

A dozen employees quit the building. The Reds have shifted all their broadcasting activities to the Soviet sector but had maintained a crew of about 20 watchmen, maintenance and repair men, and scrubwomen in the 750-room building. Even the maintenance crew apparently made its exodus today.

A squad of Soviet sentries remained inside.

EISENHOWER MAY BRING BATTLE TO CONVENTION

Prospect Dim for Vote On Candidate Today

By CLYDE R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO (CP)—This third day of the Republican National Convention to pick a 1952 Presidential candidate may see the party members get down to the business of fighting Democrats instead of fighting among themselves.

But the prospect was dim that voting on a candidate would go on tonight as scheduled.

Forces of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, following through the advantage they won Monday on the seating of contested delegates, may again bring that battle to the convention floor.

Dispute Unsettled

The Credentials Committee, headed by a delegate supporting Senator Robert A. Taft's candidacy, worked all yesterday and virtually all night in an effort to settle the controversy over seating of 68 delegates from Texas, Louisiana and Georgia. These delegates were in question because the Eisenhower forces claimed they were chosen by machine methods and that the popular slate would have largely favored Eisenhower.

Word from the meeting was that the Taft forces were not losing ground but they still had a long way to go. It was reported that if the Eisenhower arguments failed the issue would again be thrown open to delegates on the floor of the convention.

When that happened Monday it resulted in a heavy show of Eisenhower sentiment.

Some observers here believe that in spite of what goes on in the skirmishes over delegate seating the main decision will be made on the convention floor. There, on the first or second ballot, it will become apparent whether or not Taft will be able to swing the necessary 604 votes to win the nomination.

Delegates, representing a party which has been in the wilderness for 20 years, will be thinking primarily about getting a candidate who can win in November, observers believe.

May Turn To Ike

If it seems that Taft has not overwhelming strength of sentiment behind him, there could be a sudden switch to Eisenhower as the popular candidate most likely to win against any opponent. This could happen regardless of the pledges and promises.

Yesterday the convention marked time with oratory while the Credentials Committee wrestled with the delegate problem.

Attractive Waitress Coming Home For Reunion With 19 Ardent Lovers

TOKYO (Reuters)—An attractive Japanese waitress will come home from Okinawa soon for a reunion with 19 ardent lovers—ex-soldiers who killed off 12 of their buddies for her affections.

The romantic slaughter happened on the little Pacific island of Anatahan. The girl, Kazuko Higa, a waitress on Saipan Island, escaped to Anatahan with the 31 soldiers when American troops invaded.

The girl and the soldiers remained on the little island five years after the war, unaware that Japan had surrendered.

And to pass the time, the soldiers fought one another for Kazuko's love.

Finally, Kazuko and her lovers discovered that the war was over. She went to work in a restaurant in Okinawa last year and the soldiers went home.

A ship's captain said here he met Kazuko—now 35—recently and she told him of her plans to return home to see the men who killed for her love.

Horseshoe Lake Scene of Double Fatality Tuesday

Girls, Bathing on Shoal, Drop Off Into Deep Water

BANCROFT — Two sisters of a family of ten girls were drowned in Horseshoe Lake near Maynooth late Tuesday evening when they went over their depth off a sandy shoal.

Drowned were Donna Jean Moxam, 10, and Beatrice Eileen Moxam, 14, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Moxam of Maynooth Station. A third sister Marjorie, age 13, was rescued and given artificial respiration by three Toronto women, holidaying at the lake.

The double fatality took place about 8.30 Tuesday evening when a party of five young girls, four of them Moxam sisters, went to bathe in the lake. The fifth member of the swimming party was Lois Stewart, 16. Mrs. Henry Stewart, mother of Lois, was in charge of the party.

When the three Moxam sisters slipped off the shoal screams for assistance from other members of the party brought Roy Higgins, a neighbor, who jumped in fully clothed and was able to grasp Marjorie. The girl was hauled into aboat by three Toronto sisters, Misses Yvonne Mary and Donna MacRae, who were holidaying at a nearby summer camp.

Given Artificial Respiration

The unconscious girl was taken to shore and given artificial respiration by Dorothy Patterson, Oshawa, and Elizabeth Legridge, Toronto.

The bodies of the two drowned girls were recovered about half an hour later.

Provincial Constable John Hawkins of Bancroft who investigated the drowning said the spot where the girls went in bathing was a regular swimming place in Horseshoe Lake. The lake is about one and a half miles from the Moxam farm home.

The lake is divided by a sandy shoal at a narrow point and it is on this shoal that the party were bathing.

While enjoying themselves in the cool water of the lake following a hot day, the girls slipped off the shoal and got beyond their depth.

Prompt Action Saves Girl

Only prompt work by Higgins and the three Toronto girls saved the third Moxam girl from drowning, according to O.P.P. Constable Hawkins. When Marjorie slipped from Higgins' grasp, the Toronto girls hauled her into their boat. Artificial respiration was applied for fifteen minutes before the girl recovered consciousness.

The girl was later attended by Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft who was called to the scene.

28 Members Of De Gaulle's Party Resigns

PARIS (Reuters)—Premier Antoine Pinay's save-the-franc administration was strengthened yesterday by the mass resignation of 28 members of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rassemblement du Peuple Francais.

The Gaullist rebels, who have set up a new parliamentary group, had earlier helped Pinay win a vote of confidence 267 to 216 on government proposals for a sliding wage-scale.

With further resignations likely during the next few days, Gaullist strength in the Assembly is expected to slump from 115 to about 85 deputies, putting the party behind the Socialists, Communists, Moderate Conservatives and Mouvement Republicain Populaire.

The Socialists, with 106 deputies, now will take the Gaullists' place as the strongest single party in the National Assembly.

Main reason for the revolt were new strict rules on voting discipline which party leaders slapped down on the deputies. The rebels complained the new rules were incompatible with their "parliamentary dignity."

Pinay's victory in the vote of confidence gives his government a respite at least until the end of the summer recess. His government then will have last seven months—longer than any of the three previous administrations.

President Tells Of Convention At Seattle

Harold Carruthers, president of the Kiwanis Club reported on activities at the Kiwanis International Convention held in Seattle, Wash., at a meeting in the Kiwanis Centre yesterday.

He told members of his 3,000 mile trip to Seattle, the courtesy of the members at the convention and the interesting talks given there. John Diefenbaker spoke at the convention.

Mr. Carruthers was rather disgusted with the manner in which Canadian visitors were treated in American speeches. He felt the Canadian influence was treated as a minor influence something to be mentioned purely as a matter of courtesy at the convention.

The president became interested in different projects American clubs used, and he brought back with him a number of ideas for the local club to put into operation.

The appointment of Bud Punchard to the board of directors was announced yesterday. Mr. Punchard will fill the vacancy left by John Thornbury.

Two new members were welcomed into the club yesterday. They were Bob Lapman and Don Finkle. Mr. Finkle was introduced to the club by his father Ernie, a long time member of the club.

The president was thanked by Bill Stovin.

200 Candidates Expected in Que. General Election

QUEBEC (CP) — Nominations close today for the Quebec provincial election next Wednesday, July 16.

In 88 of the province's 92 constituencies more than 200 candidates are expected to take out official papers and make their deposits of $200 each. District returning officers close the lists at 2 p.m. EDT.

Nominations already have closed in the four other ridings—Abitibi East, Abitibi West, Sagueay and East, Abitibi West, Saguenay and Magdalen Islands. The lists were closed early because the four constituencies include remote areas with slow communications.

216 To Run

So far, 216 candidates have signified their intention of running, compared with the 312 who contested the last Quebec election in 1948.

The Liberals, seeking to regain the power they lost in the 1944 election, plan to put a candidate in each riding. The governing Union Nationale party has announced it will have 91 candidates.

The C.C.F. has announced 23 candidates, compared with seven last time. There also are 10 assorted standard-bearers.

The one constituency in which the Union Nationale will not be represented is Quebec county, held in the last Legislature by Rene Chaloult, Nationalist. This is the same riding which the Union Nationale skipped in 1948 However, this year Mr. Chaloult will face opposition from an Independent-Union Nationale candidate as well as a Liberal.

The drop in candidates this time compared with 1948—216 against 312—arises from the fact there are no candidates representing Union des Electeurs, the Social Credit-type movement which contested each of the 92 seats four years ago. None was elected.

Union des Electeurs has announced it will remain aloof from this campaign, preferring to devote its time to private campaigning for its policies, and already has expelled one member for giving public support to a Liberal candidate.

Four Communists Run

The Labor-Progressive party plans to put four candidates into the field, all in Montreal ridings.

The Union Nationale emerged from the 1948 balloting as the big winner, with 82 members elected against eight Liberals, one Nationalist and one Independent.

At dissolution May 28 last, the House standings was:

Union Nationale, 81; Liberals, 8; Nationalist 1; Independent, 1; vacant, 1; total 92.

Kenneth E. Box Appointed Administrator of Hospital

KENNETH E. BOX

Kenneth E. Box, assistant administrator and comptroller of the Greater Niagara General Hospital, Niagara Falls, has been appointment administrator of the Belleville General Hospital, J. N. Yanover, chairman of the board announced today. Mr. Box assumes his duties here August 1.

The appointment fills the vacancy caused by the death of the former administrator, H. W. Wakefield.

The new administrator was born and educated in Toronto, completing his academic training in England. There during the Second World War, he joined the British Army and was attached to headquarters staff, of the 21st Army Corps. He also served in an administrative capacity in the War Office. He was discharged in 1944.

For a period of two years he was personnel officer and a supervisor of the London Board of Trade.

Returning to Canada in 1945, Mr. Box became associated with the North Vancouver General Hospital as a student in hospital administration. In 1947 he was appointed director of personnel and purchasing agent. A year later he took over the duties of assistant administrator.

He was appointed assistant administrator of the Greater Niagara General Hospital in 1949. In 1951 he attended the Institute for Hospital Administrators at Kingston.

Later he took a university course in hospital management and organization sponsored by the Canadian Hospital Council. He has completed and had printed a 100-page book on job evaluations for hospitals.

Mr. Box is married and has two sons and a daughter.

Merchants Demand Full Premium On American Funds Tendered Here

Belleville retail merchants today decided to discount all American curency and impose the discount on all purchases made with American funds. Previously it was agreed that the discount would not apply on actual purchases, merchants taking the discount loss themselves and discounting American money only in the event that change could not be made in American funds.

The manager of one of Belleville's largest retail outlets expressed the view that much of the American money now in circulation was hoarded by Canadians during the days of foreign exchange control board regulations and was now being unloaded as the hoarders attempt to minimize their losses. It was estimated that less than half of the American money now benig tendered in Belleville came from the pockets of American tourists.

Meanwhile the hotel owners in the city are standing by to see if the official discount rate will pass five percent. A few months ago, the Ontario Hotel Owners Association agreed to accept American money at par in payment for hotel accommodations and services. However, it was further agreed that a change in the agreement would be made in the event the discount rate dropped below five percent.

Drinking in Cars To Be Stamped Out Say Police

Provincial police will crack down on dance hall frequenters found drinking at or near dance-halls in the Belleville area, it was stated today by Inspector A. McDougall at the Belleville headquarters.

"Drinking will not be tolerated in cars in the vicinity of dance halls or at the dance halls," the Inspector stated.

The Inspector asked that dance hall frequenters co-operate in refraining from drinking at dance parties. If co-operation is not secured charges will be laid and offenders following conviction of having liquor in a place other than their residence will face a penalty ranging from $10 to $1,000 under the LCA.

Police Seeking Escapee From Napanee Jail

City and provincial police in the Belleville area have been alerted to be on the look-out for 21-year-old John Rodger Northrup who Monday evening escaped from the Lennox and Addington county jail at Napanee.

Northrup, with two months of a four month jail term still to serve, escaped Monday night shortly after eight o'clock. He was serving time on a theft charge.

On the chance that Northrup may have headed west, provincial police from Belleville last night were stopping all cars on No. 2 Highway.

Inspector A. McDougall of Belleville provincial police headquarters asked the co-operation of the public in assisting to locate the escapee, and asked that the police be notified if anyone answering to his description was seen. Northrup was described as being five feet four inches in height and weighing 115 pounds. He was wearing a red shirt over a gray pullover sweater and had on blue duck trousers.

In ancient Egypt, Babylonia and Assyria, water was supplied by open canals with large storage basins.

Impossible to Correct Conditions at Present Time

Caused by the recent heat wave, unpleasant odors coming from the present city dump, have been the cause of many complaints from the residents in the area south of Dundas Street E.

The complaints are justifiable, Mayor McLean Haig said today, but he added that Department of Public Works officials advise that it is impossible to correct this condition at the present time.

The department, he said, has made every effort to use any available fill to cover the dump, but there has been such a demand in areas of the city adjacent to the bay for additional fill on account of the high water level, that there simply had not been sufficient fill for all purposes.

The department hopes to start its sanitary land fill in the area by the bay bridge road adjacent to Zwick's Island sometime next month, Mayor Haig stated.

Before the present dump is left, it will be graded and covered to remove any danger of future obnoxious odors. While this condition has been aggravated by the hot weather, the department states it is impossible to make any permanent correction until sometime next month when sanitary fill should be available for the purpose.

Driver Tears Himself Free After Two-Car Transport Crash On Main Street in Town

TRENTON (Special) — Austin A. Ainsworth, 27, of Colborne, unlaced his shoe and tore himself free from a burning transport cab early today following a two transport collision at the top of Gilmour hill. He suffered lacerations and burns to the face. One gash on the forehead needed seven stitches to close. He was treated near the scene by Dr. J. Byrne and then taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital.

A Smith's transport and a Husband Transport from London met in front of the Trent House on Dundas Street E. The Smith truck approaching from the east skidded on the wet roadway and jackknifed into the path of the oncoming transport making the turn. The Smith transport burst into flames when storage tank at side of the cab split open spreading highly inflammable gasoline over the highway. The cab of the truck was enveloped in fire by the time the driver freed himself. The Trenton fire department fought for an hour before the danger was eliminated.

A resident who heard the crash called the firemen. While hoses and chemicals were being played on the flames, heated gas tanks exploded and tires on the trailer caught fire and blew out. The explosions could be heard blocks from the scene. The driver of the Husband transport, John W. Parkinson of London, was not injured.

The side was torn off the London truck in the collision and part of the load compromising a shipment of beer slithered out over the roadway. A pile of broken beer bottles had to be cleared away to allow traffic to proceed. It was raining at the time.

The crash and wail of fire engine sirens wakened residents in the area to make up part of the large crowd that gathered to observe the freak accident.

The Smith transport veered off after the impact crossing the highway and straddling the sidewalk between Grace Church and a rooming house. The telephone booth and hydro pole between were badly scorched by the fire.

Dredge Working

A government dredge is clearing dangerous sandbars in the Bay of Quinte about Cronk's Island. The dredge has been working a week now and when finished the waters in this area will be safe for deep-keeled motor and sailing boats.

Suffers Injury

Bobby Simpson, 14, of College Street, Trenton, suffered an arm injury yesterday when he was caught between a cabin cruiser and the government dock here. The rear end of the boat was being swung around and apparently the Simpson youth failed to get out of the way when the stern touched the quayside.

The oldest known system of examinations, which began in China in 1115 B.C., were used for selection of officers for public service.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices made little headway today in slow early afternoon stock market dealings.

Activity slackened from a dull opening. Industrial trading shrank to selected key issues while few golds, metals or oils attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours totalled 740,000 shares.

Refining oils and retail stores led industrials upward with a scattered list of fractional advances. Utilities, steels, foods, banks, textiles and manufacturing companies also drew firm support

Western oils eased as Central-Leduc, Gas Explorations, Jupiter, New Concord, North Canadian, Peace River and Souris Valley turned downward. Britalta, National Petroleum and Omnitrans were firm.

Base metals were mixed but leaders tended higher. Chromium, Gas Explorations, Falconbridge, Noranda and Ontario Pyrites strengthened while Barvue, Nesbitt-Labine, International Nickel and Mackeno dipped.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were about steady on the small cattle supply today at the Ontario Stockyards. Receipts: Cattle 190; calves 60; hogs 290; sheep and lambs 30. The leftover from Tuesday was 300 cattle.

Choice steers sold at $27-28.50 with medium to good selling at $26-27.50. Good heifers brought $26-26.65 while common sold downward to $24. Good cows sold mostly $21-22 with common downward to $17 and canners as low as $12. Good bulls were $19-20.50 while choice fed yearlings sold at $27.50-28.

Calves sold steady at $24-26 for good to choice vealers with common to medium from $16-22 and grassers for slaughter downward to $12.

Children Have Gay Time Playing House on Main St.

Summertime is a gay season for the younger set. It's the time when the youngsters throw away their books, forget about school and such things and begin to concentrate on the happier thoughts of swimming, attending the playgrounds and playing house.

This morning on Front Street, there were three young ladies indulging in the latter pastime. Cheryl Myers, age eight, Sharon Wood, 8 and Marilyn (Molly) Lloyd, 6, were having a gay time strutting up and down the main street wearing high heels and sunsuits. The sunsuits fit.

The girls like summer. Why? Well as the ladies put it. 'Aw you can't go swimming in the winter." The main interest today was playing house. As far as can be seen, playing house simply meant wearing high heels and clacking about.

The high-heeled shoes belong to the little girls' mothers. But, since all three mothers work, the girls feel they are old enough to wear the shoes.

"We play house in the morning, sometimes we go to the playground and sometimes we go swimming," Cheryl said. "Mostly we play house because Sharon hasn't got a bathing suit."

Cheryl and Sharon look as much alike as their names sound alike. Both ladies have their hair cut short, both wear sunsuits, both have dogs and both are having a grand time of it. Molly, the littlest angel, has long blonde hair, big eyes, and a gift of the chatter that would put any politician to shame. All three girls have dogs and Molly has a cat as well.

The little playmates were vague about summer camp.

Molly: "I take dancing lessons."

Cheryl: "I take ballet lessons."

Sharon: "I guess I'll go to camp; but, I don't know when."

As far as school goes, Cheryl and Sharon passed into grade 3 and Molly won't be attending kindergarten next year. But schooldays are in the hazy future for the little girls. The warm summer days stretch in an endless line and disappear over the horizon to the young eyes. The city streets are hot these days, but spirits are high and if things go well, Cheryl, Sharon and Molly will just go on playing house until school bells ring again in September.

Colored Cheese Shows Increase On Exchange

There was slight action on the Belleville Cheese Exchange last evening as buyers sent up the price of a decreasing quantity of colored cheese. Most of the 1476 colored cheese boarded were sold at 28 3/16 with the balance at 28 1/16.

A total of 7,532 cheese were boarded last evening. Of this number 2,467 were specials, 3,589 white, and 1,476 colored. Of the white cheese 601 were sold to independent buyers at 28 cents, while the remainder went to the Marketing Board at the floor price.

W. D. Cook made a motion that all cheese not boarded on the Exchange on any one night, should be boarded on the next Exchange, and that factories not boarding cheese should not ship them until a buyer has been found. Duplicate transportation charges from the Cheese Producers warehouse to independent warehouses increases the cost of the cheese not boarded but shipped anyway. It was decided to discuss this problem with Charles Heath, representative of the Cheese Producers Association, at the regular meeting next Tuesday night.

A complaint that no money had been received by some of the factories boarding cheese on the local Exchange was explained by the fact that the government has not yet guaranteed the Marketing Board's note at the bank. Reason for the delay was attributed to the fact that some of the factories have been selling cheese off the Exchanges in violation of an agreement made between the producers, the Marketing Board, and the government, and that until these factories comply with regulations, the government is going to hold up the loan. Factories selling to the Marketing Board, therefore, will have to go without payment, because the Marketing Board has no money with which to purchase cheese.

Secretary of the Exchange, Fred Mallory, promised that an important announcement would be made at the July 15th meeting of the Exchange.

Cheese boarded last evening by factories, is as follows:

HOUSING No. 19-B

HOMES WANTED

The people want homes that they can live happily in and at the same time can afford.

Contractors want contracts.

Builders want a market for their product.

Loan companies want sufficient backing to eliminate risk.

Our duty is to contribute our time and study to this problem and, through knowledge, support a proper fulfillment of these wants.

All the wants must be analysed and corelated and taken into consideration before any proposals are made or arrived at.

And only a super-wonder could evolve a solution applicable for any great length of time. Wants change with circumstances. The N.H.A. and C.M.H.C. have been working under a formula designed about eight years ago and have assisted in supplying roofs over a great number of families, but with the years deficiencies have become evident. These Acts require to be revamped to correct their weaknesses.

Similarly with the Provincial Government Planning and Development Act and its application to Housing.

Let us not make the same error that the Mayors of Canada made and cry on the doorstep of the Parliament Buildings for Mr. Frost to perform a miracle.

We must group together, gather evidence, study the problem from every angle, particularly from our own local experience and when we have agreed upon what we need and how our needs can best be met by Provincial Government, then present our brief. The Government is then put in a fair position to act and with the assurance that they are meeting with the approval of the majority. If need be apply a different formula to meet the needs of each locality.

Lastly, let us keep it technical, not political.

THE STRAP MIGHT WORK

How far is it practical to go in the "humane" treatment of prison inmates without the inmates mistaking kindness for weakness? This question stems from the weekend riot at the Guelph Reformatory where damage estimated at more than $200,000 was caused by prisoners who, prison guards allege, were "mob-coddled" under existing reformatory regulations.

Since Major John Foote became head of Ontario penal institutions, the strap has ceased to be used as a weapon to maintain discipline, except when such treatment is authorized by the Minister. The guards maintain that the strap was the only effective means of maintaining discipline and when the strap treatment was removed, the prisoners became more insubordinate. This insubordination reached its peak in a full-scale riot.

The inmate population at a reform school is not peopled by "good boys" who got there by abiding to the laws of organized society. For the most part they are a bunch of young thugs and cheats who know no code except the code of force. Convicts who have a sincere desire to "go straight" are unlikely to be among those who flaunt prison rules and regulations. The type who, even in prison, persist in upholding jungle law and mock constituted authority, are not being "reformed" but merely "detained" until their sentence is served.

The humanitarian approach to the penal problem is worthy of the highest praise because it is Christianity at work. But when the staffs of reform institutions are stripped of effective authority to maintain order, it is time they were restored the tools to maintain discipline. If a strap is the only treatment these young thugs comprehend, then let them have the strap and save the taxpayers the added cost of repairing damage caused by these prison riots.

AN ALL-AMERICAN SHOW

With reports on the Republican National Convention in Chicago crowding most other news off the front pages of Canadian newspapers, perhaps Canadians should be reminded that the goings-on in Chicago is a purely American show and that we here in Canada should, perhaps, mind our own business.

For the most part, Canadian sentiment flows toward General Eisenhower. As leader of the Allied forces in Europe during the war, he was the acknowledged head of the Canadian fighting forces in that theatre. He impressed us as being a "good guy" and we admired the leadership he gave us. Besides, he has shown himself to be no "isolationist" and we like his global know-how.

We know less about Mr. Taft, except that he is inclined toward isolationism and that under him and a Republican administration, perhaps a higher tariff would be built to exclude Canadian products from the American market. But he favors the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

However, this is the time to keep our opinions to ourselves. Canadians would be among the first to resent the Americans telling us that Mr. St. Laurent or Mr. Gardiner should head the Liberal party in Canada. Let us extend the Americans the courtesy of having a free hand in the selection of their party chief.

"SUNNY, BLACK WEEKENDS"

Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner for Ontario, coined a grim, paradoxical phrase the other day when he appealed for a halt to "sunny, black weekends."

He was referring, of course, to the lethal combination of hot weather, water and carelessness which has already resulted in a fearful drowning toll in Ontario this season. In fact, that toll "is reaching traffic accident levels," Dr. Lawson said.

More often than not, when such warnings are issued, they are coupled with an appeal for the more extensive teaching of swimming. Dr. Lawson, however, got closer to the root of the trouble when he urged a province-wide program to teach children and adults how to act in boats and to stress the dangers of incautious swimming.

Learn to swim, teach the children to swim. Fine. Teach the proper handling of small boats. Excellent advice, too. But both accomplishments form but part of the defence against death which lurks in every body of water, great or small.

They must be supplemented with a keen awareness of the dangers involved; to them must be added a deep-rooted respect for water and the certain knowledge that death on a sunny, joyful afternoon is but one incautious step or stroke, one act of bravado away. — (Hamilton Spectator.)

SUGAR PILLS

I would not rouse the doctors' wrath,
But mother was a homeopath
Who regularly cured our ills
With small, but pleasant, sugar pills
In belladonna soaked. There might,
At times, be added aconite.

One Latin phrase she taught to us:
"Similia Similibus
Curantur." At disease to strike;
The idea being, like cures like.
Or, by another manner told,
What causes cold will cure a cold.

The memory keeps what custom drops.
We hear no more of "homeops."
Now, doctors do with methods new
What belladonna used to do.
No druggist now a vial fills
With aconited sugar pills.

I am not wise enough to say
Which was or is the better way.
My mother, as a general rule,
Preferred the homeopathic school,
And I, for fevers and for chills,
Boy-like, preferred those sugar pills.

Reds Provide Noisy Background For Welcome

LONDON (Reuters)—Communist demonstrators today provided a noisy background to an official welcome for Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, paying his first visit to Britain since his appointment as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

Shouting "Go Home Ridgway" and scattering anti-United States pamphlets, they tried to force through barriers as Ridgway alighted from the plane that brought him from Paris.

The general, who was accompanied by his wife, imperturbably carried on his inspection of an R.A.F. guard of honor.

Ridgway will stay here for two days, during which he and Mrs. Ridgway will be received by the Queen.

Seven of the demonstrators were arrested.

During their visit to Belleville the buses will be open for public inspection. The tour is sponsored by the British Travel Association and the London Transport Executive.

Increased Number of Cardinals Rumored As Possibility As Pope Readies New Consistory

By JOHN MYERS

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The possibility that the full complement of the sacred college of cardinals, set at 70 in 1586, may be increased to provide more adequate representation for North America, Asia and Africa has arisen with the recurrence of rumors that the Pope may soon call a consistory to fill the depleted ranks of princes of the church.

This possibility also is seen as increasing the chances of a non-Italian being elected pope in the event of the holy father's death.

The membership of the sacred college, whose duty it would be to elect a new pope, now has fallen to 46—24 less than full strength—with the recent deaths of three cardinals.

27 Over 70

Twenty-seven of the surviving cardinals are over 70 years of age, five over 80, fourteen between 60 and 70, and five under 60. The Pope is 76.

The three cardinals who have died in the last three months were the church's three senior cardinal-priests.

In order of seniority they were: Cardinal Alessio Ascalesi, archbishop of Naples (May 11), Cardinal Michael Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich (June 12), and Cardinal Giovanni Battista Nasalli-Rocca Di Corneglíano, archbishop of Bologna (March 13).

Forty-seven cardinals have died since Pius XII was elected Pope in 1939, and 23 since the 1946 consistory at which he created 32 new cardinals, the biggest single nomination in history. The previous largest group created at one time was 31 at a consistory held by Pope Leo X in 1517.

For more than two years, reporters at the papal court have been prepared for the calling of a consistory. Reports of its imminence several times reached the point of near-certainty, but were denied by the silence of the Pope.

May Increase Strength

It is now widely believed that if the Pope does call a consistory, he may increase the strength of the sacred college to more than 70—the number fixed by Pope Sixtus V in 1586. The church has roughly quadrupled its numbers with the addition of millions of members in the "new" territories of North America, Asia and Africa since then.

This trend was already noticeable in 1946 when only four of the newly-created cardinals were Italian. Italian cardinals thus lost their ancient majority in the Sacred College and are now in a minority of 16 to 30 from other parts of the world.

The present distribution of Cardinals also strengthens the possibility of a non-Italian being elected as the next Pope for the first time since a Netherlander became Adrian VI in 1522.

Theoretically, the cardinals may elect any male Roman Catholic as pope, even a married layman. All popes have been cardinals since Urban VI (1378), who was a bishop of Bari.

Canadian Speculation

Speculation in recent years has centred on the belief a Canadian will receive the red hat. James Cardinal McGuigan, archbishop of Toronto, is Canada's only cardinal since the death in 1947 of Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve.

Death of Cardinal Villeneuve left the predominantly Roman Catholic province of Quebec without a representative in the college of cardinals for the first time since 1867.

The speculation about a possible new Canadian cardinal has centred on the figure of Most Rev. Maurice Roy, 46-year-old archbishop of Quebec.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The most malignant liar I ever encountered was a man who expressed the utmost contempt of liars. The accusation against others was constantly on his lips. But his lying was of the most dangerous sort. He did not lie for the fun of it, or to get out of a dilemma. The kind of light and polite lies which are an essential part of our daily life he never indulged in. He gloried in the bluntness of his nature. But his lies were coldly and subtly conceived for only one purpose: to advance his personal interests and to protect his position. He lied scientifically, architecturally. He built a structure of lies as cautiously and carefully as a builder, reading blueprints, constructs an intricate house.

All who knew him took a good deal of pleasure and not a little fun out of watching him at work. Abraham Lincoln said that no man has a good enough memory to be a good liar. This man had a pretty nearly perfect memory. It was as if he carried the blueprint of his lies in his head and could consult it with the skill of an architect and without an instant's delay. He did a great deal of harm in his lifetime, injured no end of people who worked with him and for him. But he gained most of his ends and protected his position, though his position became a lonely, evil-smelling eminence, like a vulture's nest on a crag. And through it all you could hear him croaking his contempt of liars who seemed to surround him on every side.

Cheerful liars are rather pleasant acquaintances. People who lie for the fun of it, merely to stir up a little excitement and wonder in their otherwise humdrum existences, are hardly to be more condemned than children who enjoy the same privilege. Our present state of society is so given over to salesmanship, advertising and promotion that it becomes a little hard to draw the line between exaggeration and prevarication. But as with crime, the intention is all-important.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

"Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it; except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain". (Psalm 127:1).

When you build, build well. We live in a spiritual universe, and the idea that we can neglect the spiritual factors of life and still be happy and successful is a prodigious mistake.

Out of ancient days has come a formula to which every generation of men must give heed. "Except the Lord build. . . except the Lord keep" all is in vain. History is littered with the debris of civilization which believed they could build on the foundration of power and wealth.

Many a man has planned his life on the basis of selfishness and greed only to find himself left at the end in poverty or wretchedness or both.

Everything, both in the individual life and in the life of a nation, must finally meet the moral requirements of the spiritual world. Evil may seem to triumph for a while, but this temporary triumph is the prelude to defeat. In the end evil systems fall like a house of cards; or, to use a figure employed by our Lord, like a house built upon the sand. Except the Lord build, except the Lord keep, life is without purpose and the work of man's hands is without stability.

KEFAUVER CLAIMS LEAD

WASHINGTON (AP)—Kefauver-for-President headquarters posted a claim last night that Senator Estes Kefauver will go to the Democratic National Convention July 21 with 403 delegate votes—nearly two-thirds of the figure needed for nomination. Kefauver's campaign manager, Gael Sullivan, said the 403 votes would be "twice as many as any other candidate" would command.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

EVERY BABY SHOULD HAVE EXTRA B-C-D

Ideally the breast-fed infant requires no dietary supplement — but few if any nursing mothers are not deficient in one or more minerals or vitamins, to say nothing of proteins and fats, and consequently it is advisable to supplement the nursling's diet and necessary to supplement the bottle-fed baby's diet with nutritional essentials which the naturally fed or artificially fed baby does not get in adequate quantities in milk alone.

These nutritional essentials are vitamin B, vitamin C, vitamin D and especially for the bottle fed baby, iron. Milk, the most nearly perfect food, is poor in all of these elements.

Even the purest highest grade cow's milk (Grade A Raw from tuberculin-tested herd or Certified Milk which is not pasteurized) contains very little vitamin at best, and boiling, scalding, pasteurizing or evaporating destroys what little C the milk may have contained when it was fresh.

If the baby does not receive enough vitamin C, also called ascorbic acid, daily, scurvy will occur—and contrary to a popular and medical belief, redness, soreness, swelling and bleeding of the gums and loosening of teeth are by no means the earliest signs or symptoms of scurvy. Both popular and medical literature still pass along a lot of hooey in reference to scurvy. Any one who would like to learn the truth about it should read Stefansson's The Friendly Arctic (Macmillan, '21), than which a more interesting and instructive book I never cracked.

The earliest symptoms and signs of scurvy in infancy are loss of weight or failure to gain weight as usual, fretfulness, loss of appetite, peevishness, crying when handled, perhaps the appearance of "black and blue" spots in skin after trivial injury or none, and small hemorrhages into skin or mucous membranes.

Begin when baby is three weeks old giving orange juice or fresh or factory canned tomato juice, mixed with water half and half, a teaspoonful daily for a few days, then two or three teaspoonfuls daily for a few days, then a tablespoonful daily and so on until the baby takes at least three or four tablespoonfuls of orange juice or tomato juice every day. Do not heat the juice. Use only freshly expressed juice or that from a freshly opened can. Vitamin C is destroyed by heating and by standing for hours, whether in refrigerator or not.

If for any reason the baby cannot have or will not take such fresh fruit juice or tomato juice, pure vitamin C (ascorbic acid) tablets may be used instead — one tablet (50 mg.) daily, dissolved in a tablespoonful or so of water.

Grapefruit, lemon, lime and other citrus fruits or their freshly expressed juices are the richest sources of vitamin C. Nearly all fresh fruits and greens and fresh vegetables or their juices taken raw will prevent scurvy, and so will raw meat. Cooking or long storage largely deprives the food of its antiscorbutic value.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHAT OTHER people think of us is not nearly so important as what we think of ourselves. That life is the most successful, and the happiest, that takes its cue from the heart. It's the inward satisfaction a person gets out of life that gives it significance.

Too many people appraise a life from a monetary standard. Nearly every job in this world amounts to more than the one of mere money making. Security for the body is below that of security to the soul. On the other hand, if you concentrate upon things that give you inward satisfaction you are almost sure to enjoy material gain as additional reward.

There are those of great wealth who have enriched the world and themselves by their good work and benefactions, but a greater number through example and by tireless labor have impressed their names upon the world's immortal roll of honor. Such as these in life reaped the inward satisfaction which is far more precious than gold.

So long as we feel we are doing the right thing, it doesn't matter what other people may say or think. That inward satisfaction of ours is self-assuring. I have always been amused at the sight of a big dog trotting along a path or street, and have noted smaller dogs barking at him but the big dog paying no attention at all! It's his superior pride that keeps him from a dog brawl. It is the same with human beings. So strong is their inward satisfaction that they are too proud and strong to enter into petty things.

People may buy a great work of art, or an intricate creation of man's handiwork, but they cannot place a price upon the inward satisfaction that the creator had in that work of art. We can only pay for technique—the soul of the artist is just thrown in. That makes it deathless!

I like that line, expressed in the Bible, which reads: "Well done thou good and faithful servant." Nothing is said as to how much that servant earned—just commendation for work well done.

WEDDINGS

CUMMING—HUNTER

Before a background of tall white standards of gladioli interspersed with ferns, the wedding was recently solemnized in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Kingston, when Shirley Theresa, daughter of Mrs. B. Hunter, of Brockville, and the late Mr. Hunter, became the bride of Kenneth Alexander Cumming, son of Mr. George B. Cumming, of Kingston, and the late Mrs. Cumming. The Rev. J. Forbes Wedderburn officiated.

Mrs. Olivia Maley rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Sally Ready, who sang, "The Lord's Prayer", and "Through the Years".

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Douglas Hoffman, of Fultonville, New York, the bride was charming in her ballerina-length bridal gown of white organza over taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice, matching jacket and full skirt, trimmed with narrow lace edging. Her shoulder veil of silk tulle illusion fell from a shirred Juliet cap of matching tulle edged with a narrow band of white-forget-me-nots. She carried a shower bouquet white carnations, stephanotis and white sweetpeas.

Miss Bertha Lovelace, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, wearing a ballerina-length frock of pale blue organza over nylon with matching cap and stole. She carried a hand bouquet of 'mums, sweetpeas and blue cornflowers.

Miss Elaine Juby and Miss Linda Cumming, Kingston, little nieces of the bridegroom, were frocked in similar dresses of white with yoke ruffle and overskirts of orchid dotted Swiss. They wore matching half-hats trimmed with orchid velvet ribbon, and carried nosegays of sweetpeas.

Mr. Charles Atkinson, of Montreal, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Donald McGregor, of Belleville, and Mr. Harry Juby, of Kingston, were ushers.

At the reception, Mrs. Harry Juby, sister of the bridegroom, received the guests, gowned in mauve sheer with matching hat and orchid corsage. Mrs. Douglas Hoffman, sister of the bride, assisted, wearing navy and white with white accessories and corsage of white gardenias.

For travelling to the United States, the bride chose an ivory summer ensemble with navy accessories and corsage of yellow mums. Mr. and Mrs. Cumming will reside in Belleville.

Christ Church Parish Guild Enjoys Outing

Refreshingly cool breezes greeted the heat-logged members and friends of Christ Church Parish Guild yesterday afternoon as they arrived at the Bay of Quinte summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ling, Belleville, R.R. 3, for their annual outing, where they were most cordially welcomed by the host and hostess.

The Rev. J. B. Creeggan, rector of the church, opened the meeting after which the president, Mrs. E. Hickey, presided over a brief, but all-inclusive business period, which she prefaced with a sincere 'thank-you' to Mr. and Mrs. Ling for their gracious hospitality, and to the co-hostess, Mrs. W. Kempston, also welcoming the visitors from England, and Mrs. Jordan, who recently returned from her trip abroad, and expressing sympathy of all to Mrs. Carter, who is ill.

Mrs. Theobald acted as secretary for the meeting, in place of the regular secretary, who was unable to be present.

Following a discussion re the purchase of metal chairs for the Parish Hall, and the catering for a coming wedding, the Rev. Everett Smith closed the business session.

A white elephant table, convened by Mrs. Jordan, drew many interested customers and in a short time, all the costume jewellery, cake plate, gooseberries, colorful handkerchiefs, framed pictures, conk shell, pearl necklace and magazines were soon disposed of, as well as ivy plants, and two very lovely Hoya Canozas or 'honey boys' which through the instrumentality of the auctioneer, the Rev. Everett Smith, found ready buyers.

Apart from the white elephant table, groups were entertained by games and a general get-together, joying the ozone-laden breezes on the lawn.

Refreshments of fruit bread, dainty cookies, cake and the tasty cup of tea rounded out a most delightful afternoon.

Sixty-Four Attend Henderson Reunion

Sixty-four relatives attended a reunion of the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson of Lime Lake, Ontario. The reunion was held last weekend at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. James Whiteman, R.R. 1, Marysville, Ont., taking the form of a wiener roast in the evening.

Mrs. James Whiteman is second oldest of the Henderson family. The eldest, Mrs. Mabel Dix, now living in Hoopa, Calif., was unable to be present. Her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Fosse, of West Point, Calif., was on hand to represent that section of the family.

The other two daughters, Mrs. Annie Fergusson of Trenton, and Mrs. Emma Grigg, of Belleville, Ont., were present along with a large representation from their families. Mrs. Ada Henderson of Belleville, wife of the late Charles Henderson, formerly of Lime Lake, Ont., was present with the family.

Sumptuous Repast

Mrs. James Whiteman, as hostess, was ably assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Ella Kimmet of Marlbank, Ont., in serving a wonderful picnic repast. Mrs. Lloyd Lisk and Mrs. Robert McPartlin, of Trenton, along with several other women, assisted to make the meal a huge success.

The group was unanimous in deciding to make the reunion an annual event. The following committee was elected to be responsible to organize the next reunion:

Mr. John McCaughan, of Toronto; Mrs. James Whiteman of Marysville; Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson of Trenton; Mrs. Elizabeth Fosse, of West Point, Calif.; Mrs. Emma Grigg of Belleville and Mr. Borden Sexsmith of Roblin. Mr. Dewar Fergusson of Toronto was elected as chairman of the committee.

It was also decided that the committee should publish a bulletin periodically, that would keep the various sections of the family informed of any news of interest of the rest of the family.

In addition to renewing acquaintances the children were all taken for a swim at Kingsford while the older members of the family were entertained with games, music and songs.

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Beverages-Sophisticated But Soft

A buddy of a buddy of mine drove up to our house after having done her marketing early and caught me drinking my third cup of coffee.

I handed her a cup. She was pleased to find me alone, and immediately blurted out the reason for her surprise call. She had made a momentous decision. No more liquor was going to be served in their home.

She knew my stand on this controversial subject and she knew the reason for it. So when she made this declaration of decision I did not ask why. I merely said "How do you plan to get around it?" (I know the crowd they congregate with.) "That's where you come in. I want to learn to make marvellous fruit drinks and elegant iced coffee and tinkling and clear iced tea and things like that and be famous for them."

Being all kinds of a reformer at heart, with alacrity I brought her back to my desk and we started going through my beverage files. I sent her home loaded with books and clippings.

All of that was two weeks ago. Last night I met her in our mutual friend's home. All she had a chance to say to me was "That iced coffee is tremendous." But the light in her eyes and the breadth of her smile revealed her success.

EMEM'S ICED COFFEE

(I'll confess I've filched from many ice coffee makers until I've perfected this beverage to my satisfaction.)

I use a drip. Eight tablespoons pulverized coffee to the four-cup drip. (Pulverized coffee is not powdered coffee. It is merely coffee beans ground as finely as possible on a big grinder— it makes your coffee stretch half as far again.) This makes very strong coffee, which is what you need for iced coffee. Fill very tall glasses full of ice. If you use sugar put it in now. Pour directly over the ice the hot coffee. Don't allow the stream of coffee to strike the side of the glass. Nearly fill the glass. If you use sugar stir in now with glass sipping straw. Now comes the tricky part if you use cream and like tricks. Holding a shallow spoon full of very rich cream over the surface of the coffee, tip it slightly and slowly. It will form a thick layer on top of the coffee if you do this skilfully. In a certain hotel that many of you know one waiter makes a specialty of this little ceremony. When you plunge your straw through the cream it fills first with cream then with icy coffee and your first sip is delicious. Try it gals.

EMEM'S ICED TEA

Following the same routine as for iced coffee— using double strength 4-minute brewed tea, glasses full of ice, sugar first if used, then plenty of lemon juice— I like 2 tablespoons for each very tall glass. When all of this is in, pour over the ice the strong hot tea. The delicate flavor of properly brewed hot tea is retained —something you can never recapture if you make tea and chill it without ice in the refrigerator. A sprig of mint is a smart addition if you have it in the garden. Alas Pete dug mine up in a wild spurt of spading this spring.

In tomorrow's column see the recipe for making up lemon syrup to have on hand for the thirsty members of your family.

RASPBERRY SHRUB

In a saucepan mix together and cook for 10 minutes 3 cups washed raspberries, 1 1-2 cups sugar and 2 cups water. Strain and chill. Add 1 cup lemon juice and 2 quarts of ice water. (Or instead of 2 quarts water add 1 quart and 1 or 2 trays of ice cubes—the number of ice cubes depending on the size of your trays.)

FRANKFORD

Frankford — Mr. and Mrs. Thorburt Smith and family have returned home after spending a holiday in northern Ontario.

Mr. Denton Spencer, of Toronto, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer.

Choir Re-organized

The choir of the Frankford United Church held its annual organization meeting Friday evening in the church, at which time officers for the coming year were elected. Mr. Harry Slingerland who has been president for over 30 years, tendered his resignation from that office. This was received most reluctantly, for Harry has been a bulwark of strength to the choir in this capacity. He pledged his support to the choir, and thanked everyone for their co-operation with their president. It was announced that Miss Helen Rose would be leaving in September, leaving a vacancy for the secretary - treasurer's job. Shirley Smith was elected to this office, and Doreen Carlisle was unanimously chosen as president. Art Southworth and Gene Lohnes were chosen as the other two members to make up the four - member executive.

The social committee for July was chosen, and the three members are Claude and Marjorie Moran and Beverly Patrick. It will be their task to plan the July social evening for the choir. The choir now boasts approximately 30 members, nearly all of whom are regular attenders.

During the last few years, the Frankford choir has accepted invitations to sing at anniversary services at Ivanhoe, Fuller and Bayside. They already have an invitation this year to sing at Tabernacle United Church, in Murray, on their anniversary the second Sunday in September.

Frankford softball team dropped a 13-5 game to Johnstown in Johnstown Thursday night in the Sidney Softball League. In the absence of their ace right hander Don Couture, Jim Howard did the hurling for the Frankfordites. Although hit freely, Howard turned in a good performance, and with a little better support from the team, it would have been a much closer contest.

Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch Young of Rochester N. Y. visited friends in Frankford [illegible] week. They are presently h[illegible]ng at their cottage on Ashby Lake.

range Lodges ttend Annual hurch Parade

Orangemen of Prince Edward ounty were out in full force de-ite the heat, on Sunday July
h, for their annual church par-
le. The newly formed band of-e IOOF's headed the parade to
. Andrew's Presbyterian
hurch, King St. at Picton.
All primary lodges in the unty were well represented.
cton Juvenile Lodge were art in their regalia, the LOBA
7 had a full turn out, the newformed Crystal Chapter was so represented.
The service opened with the nging of the 121st Psalm, a song degree. "I will lift up mine es unto the hills, from whence meth my help." The 23 Psalm as then repeated responsively.
The Rev. Wallace McLean, pas-r of St. Andrew's, who spent s boyhood in Ireland, took his xt from 1st Kings 21st chapter 3rd verse, "And Maboth said to Ahab, "The Lord forbid it me, that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee."

At the conclusion of the service, many an Orangemen on his way home from Kirk, felt refreshed with a new will to renew his faith.

Upon entering the church one notcies the open Bible on the altar, a symbol of the Orange Order. An open Bible alone can give knowledge. The lovely flowers at the sanctuary were in memory of the late Wellington Boulter, after whom the Picton Lodge is named. Wellington Boulter was at one time mayor of Picton.

Coming away from the beautiful new church the Orange lodges paraded down Main St. The county Orange officers were out in almost full force, wearing Orange collars, the County Master, Morley Norton, Elmbrook, Ont; the County Chaplain, Don Hunt, Picton; the County Secretary, Lewis McFaul, Wellington; County Lecturer, Charlie Howard, Bloomfield and County Marshal Percy Lough, Allisonville. Among the number parading were P. M. James Bowers; P.C.M. Frank Demore; P.C.M. Gibson; Chaplain Don Hunt; Marshal Wilbert Collier and Bert Young, all had paraded to the same church to attend divine service when Rev. S. M. Scott had been the minister and a P. C. Master 25 years ago.

EISENHOWER MAY

The chief spell-binder was former President Herbert Hoover, the only living ex-President, who sounded a war-cry to the party generally and in the main followed the semi-isolationist arguments voiced by key-noter Gen. Douglas MacArthur the previous night.

Hoover made what he said was his political swan song and was given an ovation, but neither his nor MacArthur's speech will long be remembered. They eloquently spoke political cliches and arguments which lacked the realization that the role of the United States in world affairs is largely dictated by what happens abroad. And both spoke too long.

Offer Nothing New

The Republican arguments have boiled down to a startling likeness to those of 1948 in Philadelphia—in their utmost simplification: "Anything you can do we can do better."

Few here outside the paid or highly interested followers of the candidates will venture a prophecy about the voting when it comes. But old-time political observers seem to feel the nod will go to Eisenhower.

Meanwhile the convention is in a state of uncertainty such as has not been seen since 1912, when Theodore Roosevelt split the party with his independent movement and Woodrow Wilson became Democratic president.

Nothing like that is expected here—both Taft and Eisenhower have declared they will support the convention's choice. But the inter-party fight is making that choice difficult and it may be delayed for days.

Lack of Red Cooperation On Korean Front Darkens Red Cross Conference Here

GENEVA (AP)—The Korean War will cast a broad shadow across the deliberations of the 18th International Red Cross conference in Toronto from July 26 to Aug. 7.

Delegates from both Communist and non-Communist countries will attend the conference and the inevitable controversies are expected to arise, particularly in the discussions of Korea, the efforts to aid the wounded, the civilians and the prisoners of war in North Korea and the Geneva conventions.

Acceptances of conference invitations already have been received from Communist China and Romania. Mrs. Li Teh Chuan, minister of health in the government of Communist China, will be the head Chinese delegate.

Await Soviet Reply

Although the list of delegations is not yet complete, it is estimated that approximately 500 Red Cross representatives from all parts of the world will be present in Toronto. The Soviet Union Red Cross Society is among those which have not yet replied to invitations. All governments, signatories of the Geneva conventions, all national Red Cross societies, the international committee of the Red Cross and the League of Red Cross Societies have been invited.

The early acceptances by China and Romania were taken as indications that representatives of most of the Communist countries would be present at Toron, early in the conference when the international committee of the Red Cross makes its report to the conference's important general commission. The committee, in its report, admits its complete inability to carry out its humanitarian mandate in North Korea.

The international committee offered its services to both North and South Korea soon after hostilities started. South Korea accepted this offer almost immediately.

The North Korean government, the committee report says, on July 15, 1950, "announced its intention of conforming strictly to the principles of the conventions relative to the treatment of prisoners of war."

Refused Transit Visas

The committee tried to get a delegate to North Korea both through the Soviet Union and China, but was unable to obtain transit visas from either country.

"In spite of attempts in different forms, with the accent always on the urgency of the matter, no delegate was allowed to enter North Korean territory," the committee's report to the Toronto conference says.

"List of North Korean prisoners of war were received regularly at Geneva and communicated by the ment," it continues. "Reciprocity, however, was not obtained. Two agency to the North Korean governlists, containing 110 names of prisoners in North Korean hands, were sent to Geneva, in August and in October; in spite of continuous requests, none further were received."

The committee's efforts to send relief supplies into North Korea were equally fruitless.

Probe Offer Rejected

If the charges of bacteriological warfare in Korea are raised by Communist delegates, the committee will report that it accepted an invitation to send an impartial commission to Korea to investigate these charges, but that this offer was never accepted by the Communists.

The committee also will report on a wide range of relief activities among refugees in many parts of the world.

Medical welfare teams recruited by the Canadian, British, U.S., Danish and Norwegian societies are at work in Korea and more than $1,000,000 in relief supplies have been sent there by member societies.

One question, not on the agenda, which may come up is that of the curtain lowered by Communist governments of eastern Europe on the sending of food parcels. The Hungarian government has set up its own food-parcel agencies in some places and no other parcels are accepted. One reason given by Radio Budapest was that usually parcels from the west went only to bourgeois Hungarians and not the workers.
